A witness who saw a car strike the rear of the Dodds car gave police the licence number of the car. A check with the department of highways motor vehicle branch revealed it was registered as being owned by Woods. The car was located on the parade square at the Armouries.

Woods was remanded until October 1 on bail of $100.

Decision Rests On Reason Cheque Cashed

Whether or not a Toronto man obtained money from two local firms by false pretences hinges on a decision by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Donald B. Haig, 38, elected summary trial before Magistrate Philp when he was arraigned on three charges of false pretences today and pleaded not guilty.

F. G. McGavin, manager of Beaver Lumber Co., identified Haig as the man who presented a cheque to him for $97.60 in August on a Napanee lumber firm. Mr. McGavin said Haig signed the name of Charles Brignell on the cheque which was made out to and endorsed by an official of the firm. The cheque was later returned by the bank as a forgery, Mr. McGavin said.

KNEW NAME

Under cross examination by Haig's lawyer, John Corkery, Mr. McGavin said he cashed the cheque because it was made out on one of the company's cheque forms and he knew the man to whom it was made out was an official of the firm.

Mr. Corkery argued the cheque was a negotiable instrument because it had been endorsed and that Haig could have signed any name to it.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said that Haig's implication that the cheque was genuine when he cashed it was proof he obtained the money by false pretences.

Magistrate W. R. Philp commented "to establish the charge, it must be proven that the cash was turned over on the reliance of what the man tells him, not on his (Mr. McGavin's) reliance on the Kimberley Lumber Co., as a business concern with which he was acquainted."

The magistrate then reserved judgment on Mr. Corkery's motion for dismissal until September 29.

Judgment was also reserved on Mr. Corkery's motion for dismissal of a second charge of false pretences against Haig.

John Lewis, manager of the S. S. Kresge store here said Haig was introduced to him by Mrs. Shirley Rae of Lakefield who guaranteed a cheque that Haig wanted cashed. The cheque for $50 was made out by Haig on an account which he said he had in a Toronto branch of the Royal Bank of Canada.

ACCOUNT CLOSED

A week later it was returned Mr. Lewis said with a note attached stating the account had been closed.

When cross examined by Mr. Corkery, Mr. Lewis said he cashed the cheque on the strength of Mrs. Rae's guarantee that the cheque was good. He said Mrs. Rae later gave him a cheque for the amount but had stopped payment on it before it was cashed.

It was agreed that this charge was similar to the previous one, and it also was adjourned until September 29, along with a third charge of false pretences.

Haig pleaded not guilty to obtaining money from Cleland Caldwell in October 1949 by giving a cheque purporting to be issued to a C. W. Hogan, on the understanding the cheque was genuine when it was not.

Haig also faces a number of other charges of obtaining money by false pretences in Kingston, Toronto, Trenton, Hamilton and Lennox and Addington counties.

ROME (AP) — Giacomo Rosapepe, an Italian lawyer, left by plane today for Washington to appeal to State Secretary Dean Acheson on behalf of three Protestant groups against what they charge is religious persecution in Italy.

Rosapepe represents the Italian Assembly of God, affiliated with the general council of Assemblies of God, Springfield, Mo., Church of Christ, and the Pentecostal Church.

All of these have reported churches closed and ministers arrested or taken to police stations for questioning within recent weeks.

WANT FREEDOM

Rosapepe said he will urge the U. S. State Department to use its influence to see that Protestant denominations are allowed the freedom of religion promised in Italy's peace treaty, and pledged in the Italian constitution.

Rosapepe said "these churches are making every effort to comply with Italian law."

He said the Assembly of God and the Church of Christ have been trying for four years to obtain official recognition and permits required for their operations.

Driver Convicted Of Carelessness

Donald Clarke of Havelock was convicted of careless driving and fined $10 and $6.75 costs in police court Tuesday.

Clarke was travelling east on Highway 7 the night of May 4 when a car ahead of him driven by John Yzereff, 39 Jackson Ave., slowed down to make a left hand turn.

There were no tail lights showing on the car, Clarke said in explaining why he was unable to stop before colliding with the rear of Yzereff's car. A passenger, Mrs. Jessie Alton, 659 Water St., was seriously injured in the accident which occurred at the Indian River turn.

Yzereff said he signalled his intention to make the turn when he slowed down and O.P.P. Constable John Cawood testified the tail light on Yzereff's car was working after the accident.

Arguing that any carelessness in connection with the accident was on Yzereff's part, W. J. Arthur Fair who defended Clarke said "The courts assume that every time there is a rear end collision the man driving behind is at fault."

Magistrate W. R. Philp said there was sufficient evidence that Clarke was not keeping a proper lookout to warrant a conviction.

Further Mechanization Needed On Farms

TORONTO (CP)—Further mechanization appears the only solution to the current labor shortage on farms, Mrs. Hugh Summers of Fonthill, Ont., said yesterday.

In an address to the annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Consumers, Mrs. Summers stressed the difficulty of retaining capable workers on farms.

"The only solution for this lack of farm workers appears to be the purchase of more and more labor-tunately is extremely expensive," said Mrs. Summers, president of the Federated Women's Institute of Canada. "We are told by statisticians that such machinery can only be used economically on the larger farms, or by farmers buying such machinery to use co-operatively, so it would appear the future trend will be in this direction."

Cleaning Job Of Gold Plate Takes 6 Months

LONDON (CP)—Coronation preparations at Buckingham Palace go into full swing this month as top officials return from summer vacations.

Among important items on the agenda is the job of cleaning the state collection of gold plate used at functions for foreign royalty and diplomats.

There have been several state dinners at which some of the plate has been used since the war, but nothing on the elaborate scale that will be necessary this year.

Expert gold and silversmiths expect the cleaning chore will take six to eight months. Some of the intricate table centres and ornaments have to be dismantled, requiring much skill for reassembly.

In the servants' hall, velvet breeches, silk stockings and powdered wigs are listed for early attention. On the Queen's orders, old liveries laid away since before the war will be brought out, cleaned, altered and repaired.

Some of the dark-blue, velvet-collared livery tail-coats with cuffs of real gold lace and gold wire braiding are at least 40 years old, but still in good condition.

Mrs. A. V. Moore Completes Seventh Atlantic Crossing

Mrs. A. V. Moore, 681 Frank St., returned home Saturday after making her 7th Atlantic Ocean crossing.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore came to this country in 1913 from Manchester, England, and since that time Mrs. Moore has made three trips back, in 1923, 1939 and this year.

This was the first trip back Mr. Moore had taken and he and his sister, Mrs. Jack Rydehalgh of Bournemouth, were reunited after 40 years.

The Moores sailed from Wolfe's Cove, Quebec, July 30, on the Scythia, landed at Southampton, and spent more than a month touring and visiting relatives in England and Wales.

Included in their tour was a visit to the A.V. Roe aircraft plant, the Mersey Tunnel under the ocean from Liverpool to Birkenhead, and the Pauldens Exhibition at Manchester.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Moore were born and lived in Manchester until they came to this country. They were married and one of the four sons, Dinty Moore, was born before they left.

They lived in Toronto for two years before coming to Peterborough. Mr. Moore became an employee with the Henry Hope Co. that made window sashes here at that time. When this company started war work during the First World War, Mr. Moore went to the C.G.E. He has been there ever since except for five years when he operated a blacksmith shop during the depression.

The Moores have four sons and one daughter. Their daughter, Mrs. James Hollingsworth, visited England with her mother in 1939. All four sons were overseas with the armed forces during the Second World War.

Purchased Radio Licences For Years Caught On First Year He Missed

With the approach of fall, the annual crop of charges of failing to obtain radio licences are cropping up in police court.

Inspector Fred Ternaway has already been making spot checks in Lakefield asking homeowners to produce their licences, and while he is in the district he will be ringing doorbells in Peterborough as well.

W. A. Fairburn, R.R. 3, Lakefield, won a moral victory today when he was found guilty of not having a radio licence. Mr. Ternaway said that since it was evident Mr. Fairburn was "a consistent purchaser of licences, he would recommend he be given suspended sentence."

Mr. Fairburn pleaded not guilty to the charge and said he had bought licences on every previous year. "Why should I be singled out when dozens of other people do not have licences and I have complied with the letter of the law for years?" Mr. Fairburn asked the inspector.

"I have no knowledge of who has and who hasn't a licence in smaller communities," Mr. Ternaway replied. "I merely go around from door to door and submit the names of those who do not have licences to Ottawa. I choose certain streets or a number of streets and go from door to door.

Magistrate W. R. Philp commented that Mr. Ternaway admitted Mr. Fairburn had purchased a licence the day after the inspector called, but added he had to enforce the act as it is written.

Mr. Ternaway said there was no doubt in his mind Mr. Fairburn was guilty as charged but he would agree to suspended sentence under the circumstances.

Reject Plan To Sell U.K. Beer Duty-Free

LONDON (CP)—John Boyd-Carpenter, financial secretary to the British Treasury, has rejected a proposal that British beer be sold duty-free to U.S. Army canteens in Britain.

A London brewery firm said 100,000 cases of American beer, each containing 24 12-ounce cans, are imported duty-free to U.S. troops in Britain each month. Surely, said the firm, Britain could supply the same kind of beer at $2.50 a case, thus earning $3,600,000 a year.

Boyd-Carpenter said Britons would see no justification for Americans—much higher paid by British standards—having their beer at eight shillings a pint less.

Today the Linnemanstons have four children.

Alberta Tests Carrying Oil By Plastic Pipe

EDMONTON (CP)—Plastic pipe, this winter will get its initial big initial big test in Alberta's oil fields.

Imperial Oil has strung 3,300 feet of plastic pipe in a surface-flow line from a producing well to a tank battery header in the Redwater field.

The test is the first of its kind in the district and the big point is to learn how the pipe will stand up under winter temperatures.

Plastic pipe is comparative in price to the steel pipe normally used in the job, but it provides a great saving in stringing and installation. The string in use at Redwater was completed in five hours.

The pipe is so light that a man can carry six lengths, about 120 feet, without difficulty. Joints are made with a solvent cement which sets in less than a minute and the pipe is so flexible that ft easily follows the natural contours of terrain.

It is said also to have a high resistance to paraffin collection, a major problem confronted when steel pipe is used. This problem is particularly serious in winter.

Tests in the United States have proved the pipe to have longer life than steel in conducting sour crude oil and salt water. The corrosion resistance of the plastic is responsible. The smooth inner wall allows a two-inch pipe to carry the same load as three-inch steel pipe.

In a pressure test of the Redwater line, the plastic pipe checked satisfactorily under 107 pounds pressure. Actual pump-force pressure in the line during use is not more than 30 pounds a square inch.

UNVEIL FANTASTIC ARCTIC AIR BASE—Secrecy wraps are now off the 90,000-acre Air Force base at Thule, Greenland, nearing completion after two years of incredibly hard work by the U.S. Air Force, Navy, Coast Guard, Corps of Engineers and other branches of the services. It is only 930 miles from the North Pole and 3,000 miles from the industrial heart of Russia. Pictures above symbolize the tremendous effort that went into the project, called "Operation Blue Jay." Its final cost is estimated at $263,000,000. An LST (top) nudges the beach with a full load of trucks and ducks to be used in "Operation Blue Jay." Movie Column

Danny Thomas Humbler Than Other Stars

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Danny Thomas, one of the town's most glib personalities, still doesn't sound like a movie star.

In fact, he'll admit that his co-star was responsible for the box-office success of a movie.

Danny recently teamed with Doris Day in "I'll See You in My Dreams." The picture, in which Danny played song-writer Gus Kahn, grossed $182,000 one week.

"Doris Day brought in 60 per cent of the business. The other 40 per cent came from word of mouth."

BELIEVABLE?

"Here was a musical picture that was successful because it was believable. Take that scene where my wife goes to the hospital for the birth of our baby. I'm not there when I should be because I run across another song-writer in a restaurant. I stay out all night writing a song and don't get to the hospital till after the baby is born.

"I come to the hospital room. I want to tell my wife how much I love her. But what audience would go for tender love words coming from a song-writer with an ugly puss like mine?

"So what do I do? I tell her I love her by singing the song 'It Had to be You.'

"When I start, does a 60-piece symphony orchestra suddenly break out of nowhere to accompany me?

"No, I sing it just like any other ordinary guy who's alone with his wife in a hospital room and who's been out all night."

Although the comedian may not think too highly of his box-office appeal, the Warner Brothers apparently disagree. Else, they wouldn't have starred him in the remake of "The Jazz Singer," a movie dear to the collective hearts and pocketbooks of the brothers.

Policeman's Wife Acquitted Of Murder

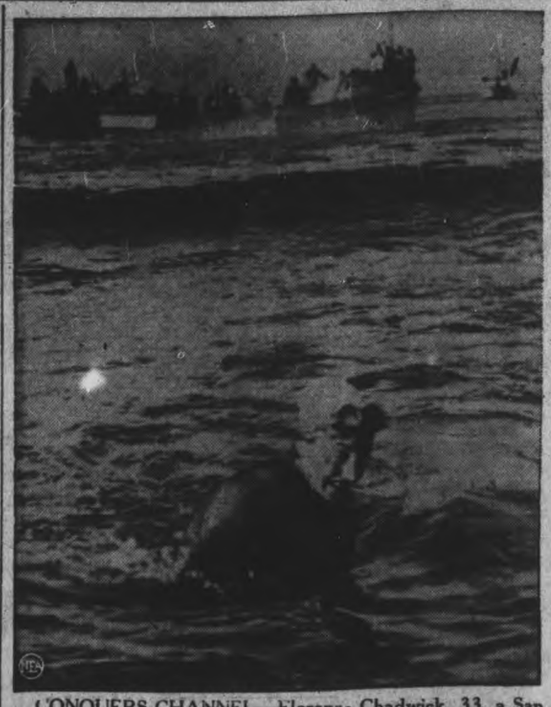
DETROIT (CP)—Mrs. Marion Austin, 29, was acquitted yesterday of a murder charge laid in connection with the slaying last July 30 of her policeman husband, Vincent. The jury found Mrs. Austin innocent "by reason of temporary insanity."

The dead man's mother, Mrs. Agnes Astasaukas, was led from the courtroom shrieking: "My son, my son. She killed my son. Now she can give all the money she wants to her mother."

Suspended Sentence Given For Infanticide

OTTAWA (CP)—Pierrette Proulx 19, yesterday received a two-year suspended sentence after being found guilty of infanticide.

A jury returned a guilty verdict after a one-day trial. The girl was charged after the body of her newborn baby was found in the toilet bowl of her home last April.



Miss Proulx and her parents testified that they did not know she was pregnant.

Girls Burned To Death

GRAND FALLS, N.B. (CP)—Two young girls were burned to death early yesterday when fire destroyed their home following a wake for their infant sister. Hope Grows For Polio Vaccine

TORONTO (CP)—A new technique of growing the poliomyelitis virus in a test tube has given rise to hope of developing a polio vaccine, Dr. A.L. Chute, new chief physician at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children, said yesterday.

In an address to a Toronto Progress Club luncheon he said:

"Laboratory workers have recently found a method for growing the virus of poliomyelitis in a variety of living tissue cultures. Formerly this disease could only be kept going in living monkeys or in some cases in mice. This made its study difficult. Now the virus can be grown in a test tube."

He said it is hoped a vaccine can be made from this material "just as diphtheria toxoid and whooping cough vaccine have made diphtheria and whooping cough largely a thing of the past."

Lay 14 Charges Of Besetting Against Pickets

WATERLOO (CP) — Fourteen more charges of besetting were laid yesterday against pickets at the strikebound Sunshine Waterloo Company plant, arising from an incident at the gate last Friday.

The management laid the charges after a Kitchener Cartage Company truck was prevented from entering the plant. The pickets charged the truck hit one of the strikers at the gate.

Four Crown witnesses were heard yesterday in Waterloo police court in the trial of Mrs. Peggy Dick, Baden, charged with besetting. The court adjourned until Sept. 30 with defence witnesses yet to be called.

Sixty-four were charged originally when the general manager's car was prevented from leaving the plant grounds Aug. 11 There are still 47 cases to be heard. In addition there are 28 charges of besetting and common assault arising from a scuffle at the plant in mid-August when foremen attempted to enter.

About 300 employees have been on strike since July 3. The strike was called by local 2392 of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) over failure to negotiate a new contract.

2 Out Of 3 U.K. Polio Sufferers Have Shown Complete Recovery

By E.S. JOHNSON

LONDON (CP)—Recent investigations in Britain have disclosed that two out of every three infantile paralysis sufferers have made a complete recovery.

The information is given in a report by Sir John Charles, chief medical officer to the Ministry of Health, covering a survey extending over a period of several years. Public anxiety about the effects of polio tends to be exaggerated, the report says, because the actual outcome of the disease is not generally understood.

A detailed checkup revealed that for every 100 polio patients admitted to hospital five or six died, nine or 10 were severely paralyzed, while 17 to 18 suffered a degree of paralysis which, properly treated, would not stop the patient from working. The remainder were only slightly affected and experienced no permanent disability.

Charles says the investigators found no evidence that the spread of the disease was caused by food, water or flies. He declares, however, that this does not constitute positive proof that these agencies are ruled out as possible carrier. But such evidence as there was suggested the disease was passed on by personal contact.

TB VICTORY SURE

In the campaign to defeat tuberculosis, the report says the "battle is not yet over, but the outcome is certain." Compared with 1900 the death rates from respiratory tuberculosis has dropped 25 per cent. And deaths from non-respiratory tuberculosis has dropped 25 per cent. And deaths from non-respiratory forms of the disease today are less than 1-13 of the average annual mortality rate from 1891 to 1900.

Encouraging headway has also been made in the cure or control of many other contagious diseases, Sir John reports. However, the cause of the common cold, he observes, remains as elusive as ever.

COLD RESEARCH

Scientific investigation of colds first began only six years ago, some 2,100 volunteers have submitted to special tests, including 253 married couples, among them several on their honeymoon.

During 1950 new lines of approach were explored. attempts were made to increase the susceptibility of volunteers. They failed.

A group of volunteers was then exposed to influenza and cold virus in complete isolation on an island off the northern coast of Scotland. This experiment also failed.

However, when a visitor, already suffering from a heavy cold joined the "guinea pig" group for only a few hours, those deliberately exposed by associating with the germ-carriers, immediately developed a galloping cold.

Describes Driving Suspect Pair After Tong Shot

TORONTO (CP)—A suburban Port Credit taxi driver today said at the Suchan-Jackson murder trial he had driven two men resembling Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson from Port Credit to Oakville, a few miles to the southwest, the afternoon Det.-Sgt. Edmund Tong was fatally shot. As the Crown, on the fourth day of the trial, sought to reconstruct the step-by-step movements of Suchan and Jackson the afternoon Tong was slain at a west-end intersection, cab driver John Rundle testified:

"One of the men came into my office and asked me what the price was to Oakville. I told him and he agreed it was all right. There was a second man waiting outside."

Rundle said the conversation took place at 2:40 p.m., one hour and 20 minutes after gunmen opened fire on Tong and Det.-Sgt. Roy Perry.

PERRY TESTIFIES

Sgt. Perry, partner of the slain detective, yesterday gave his account of the slaying.

In matter-of-fact tones, Perry in a two-hour long session told of the shooting.

He was allowed to sit during the time he was on the stand. Showing no emotion he picked Suchan out in the prisoners box and identified him as the driver of the car he and Tong stopped.

Perry said Suchan fired two shots and Jackson one in the fusillade of bullets that cut down his partner and wounded him in the arm.

MOVES TO CLOSE

Say Eisenhower Keeping Nixon On Ticket

WASHINGTON (AP)—An anticlimactic official announcement is expected possibly today to confirm what has been made obvious by the sweeping endorsement of Eisenhower, the Republican national committee and tens of thousands of Americans: Nixon will remain the Republican vice-presidential nominee.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican presidential candidate, and Senator Richard Nixon, his running mate, today headed back to the hustings after a tearful reunion in Wheeling, W.Va., yesterday.

The Democratic presidential candidate, Governor Adlai Stevenson, in Springfield, Ill., working on a saying nothing about the Nixon incident, or Nixon's accusation that he was "clamming up" about a fund raised for the Illinois governor.

STANDS PAT

The Democratic candidate was standing pat on what he said yesterday—it would be a "breach of faith" to name key state officials whose salaries he said he had supplemented with donations from a special fund. The money, Stevenson said, came from funds left over from his own 1948 campaign for governor, plus some later contributions. He said contributors didn't know where the money went, and recipients didn't know where it came from.

Left unanswered were such questions as: How much was in the fund originally, how much added, how much left? How many made donations, how many got them? Reporters who wanted answers signed a petition asking Stevenson to clear them up at a press conference, but he said he was too busy.

As Eisenhower took on a heavy whistle-stop schedule in West Virginia and Maryland and Nixon flew west to Salt Lake City, they were teamed solidly by a 107-to-0 vote of confidence by the Republican National Committee in the vice-presidential nominee.

Hydro Rates Up In January

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario hydro rates will go up Jan. 1.

Hydro Chairman Robert Saunders said last night the exact amount of the increase has not yet been set "but it certainly will be under 15 per cent."

He made the disclosure during a television press conference program over Toronto station CBLT.

Mr. Saunders said earlier this year rates probably would go up in 1953.

The increase is due largely to the increasing use of power produced from new steam plants in Toronto and Windsor, he said. Steam power is more costly than water-generated energy.

Beer Drinkers Find Favorite Spots Open

SUDBURY (CP)—Beer drinkers in this Northern Ontario nickel-mining city found their favorite taverns open today, after a strike of tapmen and waiters closed them for a day and a half.

Some 130 beverage room workers went on strike at noon Tuesday to back demands for wage increases.

The demand by the union for a $5 weekly increase across the board was met by the 14 hotels involved with an offer for $3 for tapmen and $2.50 for waiters. The union accepted the offer. Earlier an offer of $2.50 for tapmen and $2.00 for waiters had been turned down.

The increases will bring weekly wages to $48.50 for waiters and $59 for tapmen. The men are members of the International Union of Mine Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.).

Hitch-Hiker Stabs Farmer 100 Times

TORONTO (CP) — A young farmer was stabbed more than 100 times by a hitch-hiker riding in the back seat of his automobile last night.

George Miedema, 20, of Holland Marsh, 30 mile north of here, told police his assailant kept shouting, "keep driving, keep driving," as he jabbed with a six-inch hunting knife. Miedema said he jammed on the brakes.

Police were unable to find Miedema's assailant. They said all the youth's wounds were surface cuts.

Crushed By Pressure

French Sub With 48 Men Lost In Mediterranean

TOULON, France (Reuters)—The French Navy said today that its submarine La Sibylle, missing with 48 men aboard, must have been crushed to fragments by underwater pressure as it sank helplessly into the depths of the Mediterranean east of here.

All hope was abandoned for the crew early today when a vast oil patch and bits of wreckage floated to the surface. The sea at that point is more than 2,600 fest deep.

What caused La Sibylle to plunge out of control toward the sea's bottom may never be known She failed to surface at 9:30 a.m. yesterday after a routine dive.

An admiralty statement said that search operations had located an oil patch off Cap Camarat, 40 miles east of this naval base.

"Several objects were also found floating in that area and are now being identified," it added. "The Sibylle's safety buoy was found, but the cable connecting it to the submarine was broken."

TRAGIC SCENES

There were tragic scenes when the news was announced to exhausted men and women who had waited all night for word of the missing craft. A senior naval officer entered the room where they were gathered and said in a shaking voice:

"I must ask you all to be courageous. As wives and parents of French sailors, you must all in your hearts have been prepared for this moment. It is my tragic duty to inform you that the submarine La Sibylle has been lost with all hands."

Then, slowly and solemnly, he read the list of officers and men trapped beneath the sea. Cries and sobs broke out at each new name. One woman with small children huddled beside her collapsed in a faint.

La Sibyelle was on loan from the Royal Navy. During the war, as the Sportsman, she roamed the Mediterranean, achieving an impressive record as a raider. Once she cruised up to the anti-submarine booms of an Aegean port, and sent a torpedo streaking through a gap into an Axis freighter which hadn't emerged on schedule.

The most recent submarine tragedy in European waters was the loss of the British submarine Affray in April, 1951. She carried 75 men to their deaths below the English channel.

CCL Membership Divided About Officers

TORONTO (CP)—Union power bosses are attempting to whip the rank-and-file into line for the big battle of the ballots tomorrow when 900 Canadian Congress of Labor delegates choose the leaders who will direct their major wage-boost drive planned for 1953.

So far, indications are the union chieftains have not achieved complete unanimity within their own membership—a development of a stubborn refusal by a 43-year-old former mines worker to quit a key C.C.L. executive post. Some union officials predict a major upset may result.

William Mahoney, 35-year-old assistant to the powerful steel union boss, Charles Millard, is being backed by steel, auto and packing-house leaders for the job of C.C.L. secretary-treasurer and organizer held by Pat Conroy, who walked out as a result of a C.C.L. power play last year.

SUPPORT MAHONEY

But some union officials now doubt whether the rank-and-file of the steel and auto unions—by far the largest group in the C.C.L.—are completely behind their chieftains' drive to get Mahoney in to replace the current job-holder—Donald MacDonald of Sydney, N.S.

Forces behind MacDonald say that a Maritime member of the steel union has even offered to nominate MacDonald for re-election. They say the Maritime segment of the C.C.L. is strongly behind MacDonald.

Both Mahoney and MacDonald have spoken before the convention of various resolutions, but the applause for MacDonald has been the loudest. Members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, various C.C.L.-chartered unions and MacDonald's own union, the United Mine Workers, are working hard to drum up votes for MacDonald.

Mahoney has been quiet and almost indifferent to the issue, as though confident of the big union behind him. If the vote goes against him, it may mean a big blow for Millard, the steel union chief and the main propellant force to get Mahoney into the C.C.L. pivot seat.

Tries Crash Roadblock Police Shoot Driver

KENORA (CP) — The unidentified driver of a stolen automobile was fatally shot last night when he tried to crash through a road block set up by Kenora police.

The road block was set up in response to a call by R.C.M.P. at Beausejour, Man., and Ontario Provincial Police that a car stolen from a taxi stand at Beausejour was heading into Ontario.

Kenora police fired on the car, hotly pursued by Ontario police, as it tried to get through the road blocks.

Constable Jack Terrell said he fired two shots at the car, one of which hit the driver. The car swerved into a bridge and came to a stop.

Woman United With Family After 35 Years In Australia

"It's just as though she'd never been away." So said two sisters and a brother who were greeting a sister they had not seen for 35 years. Mrs. Margaret Jones of Perth, Australia, arrived in Peterborough Wednesday afternoon to visit two sisters and two brothers here. One of the brothers, William McKinlay, Mrs. Jones has not seen for 43 years. In 1909 she left Peterborough to go to Australia, and returned for a year's visit in 1917, while William McKinlay was overseas. "We've never lost touch with each other," said one sister, Mrs. Walter Wheeler, 667 Brown St.

"No, we've written a lot of letters and sent plenty of snapshots to each other," said the second, Mrs. Jean Lashbrook, 179 Rubidge St.

MET TRAIN

Both Mrs. Wheeler and Mrs. Lashbrook, with brother William (570 Rose Ave.) and Alex McKinley (727 New Romaine St), met Mrs. Jones at the C.P.R. station Wednesday afternoon.

"We knew her the minute we saw her," said Mrs. Wheeler. "We saw her sitting in the train, looking out, and we just waved and said: 'Hi!'

"Margaret (Mrs. Jones) even knew Mr. Wheeler, although she'd never seen him. She recognized him from the snapshots we had sent her."

Mrs. Lashbrook said she and her brothers and sisters felt that the reunion would be a pleasant, as well as a long, one. Mrs. Jones will be staying here until April. "It doesn't seem like 35 years that Margaret's been away. But, of course, we're a very close-knit family."

FROM SCOTLAND

The McKinlay family came to Peterborough from Glasgow, Scotland, parents and 10 children. Parents were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel McKinlay. Three brothers and two sisters have since died, one of them, Samuel, Jr., in the First World War.

Conditions in Australia, said Mrs. Jones, are good, and they are improving. Although some British immigrants have returned to the United Kingdom because of the housing shortage down under, most are staying.

Prices are roughly the same as those in England, but wages are a good deal higher. Average pay for a tradesman is about £15 a week, which Mrs. Jones said was a comfortable wage for anyone in Australia.

Red tape was one of the problems on her journey to Canada, made by way of the Suez canal, Italy and England. There were forms to fill out, questions to answer, and routine to follow.

British Vessel Raided, Machine-Gunned By Reds

HONG KONG (AP)—Two British warships and Communist shore batteries traded fire today after the Reds swarmed over a British-operated passenger vessel and forcibly removed two Chinese. Commodore Harold G. Dickinson, Hong Kong naval chief, said the destroyer Consort and the frigate Mounts Bay returned fire on Red shore batteries after they were fired upon following the raid. The passenger ship, Takshing, was raided about 3 a.m., some 10 miles east of Portuguese Macau in a channel of "normal international traffic."

Dickinson said the 1,900-ton Takshing was 5¼ miles west of British-held Lantao Island and 10 miles east of Macau when a gunboat and launch, "both flying the Chinese Communist flag," drew alongside.

Dickinson said the gunboat fired two bursts from a machine-gun and one shell from a four-pounder at the Takshing, hitting her in the stern but inflicting no other damage.

He said the Reds then ordered the British vessel, skippered by Capt. J. B. McCaw, to proceed to nearby Red-held Lapsapmei Island, where Communist armed guards "forcibly removed" two Chinese passengers.

The Consort and Mounts Bay arrived at the scene at 6:55 a.m. as the Takshing was weighing anchor to continue to Macau.

The warships patrolled the area until 7:50 a.m. when the Communist shore batteries opened up from Lapsapmi. The British warships were not hit, Dickinson said.

Red Colonialism Grows—Jessup

OTTAWA (CP)—U.S. Ambassador-at-large Philip C. Jessup said today that Soviet Russia has been steadily absorbing its neighbors while accusing the western powers of "colonialism."

"No territory which was under Russian domination has been voluntarily released," Jessup said.

"While in recent years other powers have helped dependant peoples along the path to self-government, the Soviet Union has concentrated on absorbing its neighbors into the monolithic Soviet hegemony," he said.

"Westward through Europe and eastward through Asia, Soviet imperialism has pushed its way—'liberating' nations from the cares and responsibilities of freedom."

Jessup advised the Ottawa Women's Canadian Club in a prepared address to bear this in mind when the United Nations General Assembly meeting next month again takes up questions of administering dependent peoples. He noted that since the Second World War India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Burma, Indonesia, Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia have been granted independence by the western powers.

Anti-Racial Contract Clause

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian government has decided to insert an anti-discrimination clause in all government contracts, Labor Minister Gregg today advised the Canadian Congress of Labor.

A telegram sent by Mr. Gregg informing the C. C. L. of the cabinet decision was read to the convention by Donald MacDonald, C. C. L. secretary-treasurer.

The C. C. L. passed an anti-discrimination resolution last Tuesday.

Mr. Gregg said the anti-discrimination position will apply to all government contracts starting next year.

Under it, the government can terminate contracts if the employer shows any discrimination in hiring labor because of race, national origin, color or religion.

Tell Mossadegh To Watch Reds

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh was told by a Tehran newspaper today that his satisfaction at turning out the British may vanish when the Communists appear at his door demanding a voice in the government.

A lengthy editorial in Siasa-ma, a morning newspaper, blasted Mossadegh for apparent indifference to the Communist danger. It hinted strongly that Britain is engaging in intrigue with Russia to split Iran. This is a rumor spreading widely in Tehran these days.

Iran replied last night to the proposals by Prime Minister Churchill and President Truman for a settlement of the dispute with the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company over the nationalization of the company's $1,500,000,000 properties. The text was not disclosed but it is expected to include a demand that Britain pay Iran $49,000,000 before negotiations can open on a settlement.

Siasat-ma addressed Mossadegh in the editorial, saying "I regret to have to tell you of the British policy of trying to give another blow to Iran under another mask to which you pay no attention. Come and see what the Tudeh party, the Iranian Communists, are doing—these Communists whom the Soviets are controlling with money and good planning.

Hog Prices Slated For Drop By January 1st

OTTAWA (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner announced today that effective Sept. 29 the government support price for cattle will be reduced to $23 from $25 a hundredweight. The minister said the $23 support price will continue until April 1 next and then will return to the $25 price if the United States embargo against Canadian livestock and meat has not been lifted by that time. At the same time, Mr. Gardiner told a press conference that the present floor price of $26 a hundredweight for hogs will be continued until Dec. 31 but will be dropped to $23 after that date.

The government cattle support program was instituted following an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in southern Saskatchewan which resulted in the closing of the U. S. border to Canadian livestock.

The minister declined to speculate on when the U. S. closure might be lifted. He said the U.S. government has been advised officially that Canada now is free of foot-and-mouth disease. He did not agree that U. S. policy called for holding the closure on for a year after such a declaration.

"They did do that in the case of Mexico but that was a different set of circumstances," the minister said.

Mr. Gardiner said government buying of live heavy steers and heifers from farmers will continue at a floor price of $25 a hundredweight until Nov. 15. This was being done to protect farmers who may have held back their cattle but now may want to dispose of them.

In order to dispose of a beef surplus caused by the American embargo, the government earlier entered a deal to exchange up to 63,000,000 pounds of Canadian beef to Britain for New Zealand beef designated for that country.

Canada planned to sell the New Zealand beef in the United States, taking a loss of between 20 and 23 cents a pound on the deal.

Up to now, Mr. Gardiner said, about 50,000,000 pounds of Canadian beef has been purchased by

Pakistan Plans To Go Dry

KARACHI, Pakistan (Reuters)—Pakistan will go completely "dry" next year, excise officials said yesterday.

Plans are being worked out to introduce prohibition throughout the country and a draft bill probably will be laid before the Constituent Assembly next January or February.

It is understood that foreigners will be allowed liquor on permits.

Until now there has been prohibition in the Punjab, East Bengal and, to a lesser extent, in the northwest frontier province. In the rest of Pakistan, a mainly Moslem state, sale and consumption of liquor has been allowed except on Fridays, the Moslem Sabbath. The Moslem scriptures forbid the consumption of alcohol.

France Proposing Joint Health Pool

PARIS (AP)—The French cabinet proposed yesterday another step in European unity—a health pool in which doctors, laboratories and medicines would be joined in a common fight against disease.

The pool would provide for the duty-free flow of medicine among European countries, setting up of a European blood bank, exchange of doctors and joint financing and operation of laboratories.

The scheme will be submitted to the Council of Europe at Strasbourg before Oct. 8.

John W. Pickup Appointed Chief Justice

OTTAWA (CP)—John W. Pickup, prominent Toronto lawyer, today was appointed chief justice of the Ontario Court of Appeals.

The appointment, approved at a Cabinet meeting yesterday, was announced by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Mr. Pickup succeeds Chief Justice Robert S. Robertson who retired recently.

John Wellington Pickup, 60, has been a partner since 1923 in the law firm of Fasken, Robertson, Aitchison, Pickup and Calvin.

Born at Millbrook in Durham county, he attended public and high school there, was graduated from Osgoode Hall in 1913 and was called to the bar of Ontario in 1913.

He has been a bencher of the Law Society of Upper Canada since 1946 and was created a King's Council in 1933.

During the First World War, he served as a lieutenant with the 220th Battalion.

A Liberal and a member of the United Church of Canada, he makes his home in Toronto.

He married Vera Kathleen Fitzgerald of Millbrook in 1916. They have a son, John Douglas, and a daughter, Anne Kathleen.

Plane Explodes 17 Uninjured

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Seventeen persons escaped death yesterday when a baggage compartment explosion blew out one side of an airliner en route to Oaxaca.

The pilot landed the crippled DC-3 at a military airfield 25 miles northwest of here and the federal government immediately clamped a guard on it.

Ezequiel Camacho of Bogota, Colombia, a passenger, said he had noticed a man cancel his passage after seeing two suitcases placed in the baggage compartment.

The explosion in the plane, owned by the Compania Mexicana de Aviacion, occurred while it was flying at 10,000 feet near the Guatamalan border, passengers said. It blew out the side, ripped the doors from their frames, and scattered metal debris over the passengers.

Warn East Germans Reprisals Looming

BONN, Germany (AP)—The West German government today warned 18,000,000 East Germans not to step up active resistance to "Soviet terror" at this time for fear of more bloody reprisals.

Jacob Kaiser, West German minister for all-German affairs, made the appeal in the government's official bulletin being broadcast to the east.

The Bonn government has learned of two death sentences, seven life sentences and prison terms totalling 425 years imposed by Communist courts for acts against the East German regime in the last four months.

Army Closing In

Prepare To Arrest Egyptian Leader Nahas

CAIRO, Egypt (Reuters)—Prime Minister Mohammed Naguib is preparing to arrest Mustafa Nahas, old-school politician who has defied Naguib's orders to quit politics, it was learned today.

Nahas, leader of the powerful Wafd party, may be brought to trial on charges of abusing power while he was prime minister, sources said. If found guilty Nahas would have to abandon his Wafd leadership and politics under the government's new law on political parties.

Soliman Hafez, vice-premier and minister of the interior, is reported to be in possession of documents substantiating the charges which now are being drafted.

Nahas, 75, yesterday defied a move by the authorities to oust him, saying he belonged to the people.

Today a responsible source said: "The people will soon know what the law has to say about Nahas."

The newspaper Al Ahram said one of the charges being levelled against Nahas is that he allowed former King Farouk to draw a large sum from state funds.

Nahas said yesterday that no power, "Allah and the Egyptian people excepted," could oust him.

Last night Soliman Hafez said he had "evidence" which gave him the right to object to Nahas' name among the founder members of the reorganized Wafd party.

4 Men Dead 2 Missing In Explosion

Men Tossed About As Floor, Walls Blown Out, Crumble

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — A bomb-like blast shattered part of a grain elevator yesterday, killing four men and causing damage estimated as high as $3,000,000. Two men are missing.

Fourteen others were injured, four severely, in the explosion and subsequent fire.

Rescue workers held out little hope of locating the bodies of the missing men until later today. They are buried in tons of concrete and metal wreckage at Saskatchewan Pool Elevators No. 4A Terminal.

The dead: Steve Wasilka, 58; Peter Dyc, 46; Phillip Dorzek, 28, all of Port Arthur, and Robert Deer, of Burnt Island, Conception Bay, Nfld.

The missing: A. Lobsiger and F. Zakunsky, both of Port Arthur.

The blast struck the waterfront area with terrific force at noon. Sheets of flame shot 200 feet across the lake slip at the foot of the elevator. Men were thrown about and windows, floors and the wall of a work house were blown out. Huge concrete blocks rained on to a loading dock and on the deck of the S. S. Bayton, Colonial Steamship Lines freighter.

ROOF BLOWN OFF

Roof of elevator annexes A and 4B were blown off. On one, the foot-thick roof and girders tumbled 10 feet down into bins. On the other, the roof, smashed to pieces, settled a foot above the annex floor.

Firemen, first-aid workers and elevator employees swarmed over the smoking ruins while heavy clouds of brown smoke poured from the damaged buildings.

Of the dead and missing, the Lakehead men were all elevator employees. Deer was a watchman on the Bayton and was crushed by a falling bin from the elevator. The blast hurled Dyc from the elevator to the freighter's deck.

A spontaneous dust explosion was suggested as a possible cause. An explosion and fire swept the nearby Saskatchewan Pool Elevator No. 4 in 1945, taking 23 lives. The elevator was eqiipped with anti-dust machinery when it was rebuilt.

Had the blast occurred a few minutes earlier many of an estimated 77 employees would have been still at heir jobs in scattered parts of the building. About 30 were eating lunch at the time of the blast. They were in the basement of the building and were unharmed.

One employee heard the explosion while eating lunch, rushed out and saw a man falling from the top of the building.

"Later I saw other fellows coming out, burned black," said Bill Powell. "Two others were screaming and waving at the top—then they stopped."

Rain Cuts Action On Korean Front

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—The Korean war entered its 28th month today with ground and air action curtailed by chill, autumn rain.

United Nations soldiers drove back several small Communist stabs along the muddy battle front. There were brief but brisk clashes near Bunker and Kelly Hills in the west and "Luke the Gook's Castle" in the east.

Foul weather sharply cut the pace of the Allied air offensive.

U.N. B-26 bomber pilots reported knocking out only seven Red supply vehicles last night.

The navy said U. N. warships destroyed a 12-car Red supply train on the east coast south of Songjin.

Temporary Post As Clerk Led To Vice President

TORONTO—Vice-presidents of the C.N.R. Wednesday night honored a man who made a temporary clerk's post with the Grand Trunk Railway, in 1912, the foundation for a 40-year career in railroading leading to a vice-presidency of the C.N.R.

T HAROLD COOPER

At a dinner in the Engineer's Club, they saluted T. Harold Cooper, whose contributions to rail and air transportation accounting methods have won him international recognition. Mr. Cooper retires at the end of the month under the pension rules of the company.

One of his biggest achievements occurred in 1923 when he consolidated the accounts of the lines now comprising the Canadian National System. The amalgamation involved more than 100 companies in four major groups, each with its own separate accounting method. A uniform set of accounting procedures had to be devised for the new organization, and there was no pattern or precedent to work from. The principles he laid down then have never been changed. He was appointed comptroller of the company in 1937 and vice-president in 1945.

He has also been comptroller of Trans-Canada Air Lines since inception, in 1937, and he organized the T.C.A. accounting system, which has been authorized by the Air Transport Board as a standard for all Canadian air lines. Many of its features have also been adopted by the International Air Transport Association.

In addition to the administrative duties attached to his vice-presidential office, Mr. Cooper has undertaken many special assignments. He had an important part in the preparation of the C.N.R.'s submission to the recent Royal Commission on Transportation and has attended every session of the Parliamentary Committee on Railways and Shipping since 1923.

Expert Criticizes Safety Laws

TORONTO (CP)—Lloyd G. Howe, Toronto industrial safety expert, said last night that an explosion in a Port Arthur grain elevator which killed four men and left two others missing need not have occurred.

He criticized provincial safety regulations enforcing the use of static electricity eliminator in grain elevators. He said in an interview that had static electricity been present in sufficient volume, yesterday's fatal blast could not have occurred.

neared the end of a trial on bank-robbery charges.

These three are charged with the $24,696 robbery of a Bank of Montreal branch here last March 4. Most of yesterday's session was devoted to determining admissibility of certain police testimony.

But the Suchan-Jackson trial held yesterday's spotlight Sgt. Perry, looking straight at the two men, accused them of firing at him as he sat behind the wheel of his police car. Under cross-examination by defence counsel, he admitted that having to recall details of the incident was upsetting to him.

ALL SAW SHOOTING

Four successive Crown witnesses who saw the shooting take place admitted they were unable to identify the two men they saw drive away after Tong fell, mortally wounded. Another witness, Charles Waddell, testified that Suchan did all the shooting and that though Jackson had a chance to fire at Perry, he didn't do so.

Waddell said he was driving behind the police car and saw Tong get out and walk toward the black sedan the officers had ordered to pull over to the curb.

"A shot rang out and this man (Tong) reeled and fell on his face with a thud," said Waddell. "Then there were more shots — all fired, I think, by the man sitting in the driver's seat of the car closest to the curb."

Obituary

MRS. ELIZABETH BRADLEY

OMEMEE (ENS).—Mrs. Elizabeth Bradley, a resident of Omemee for half a century, died Tuesday night following a brief illness.

Mrs. Bradley, who was 87, was born in East Emily, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jackson. She lived there until her marriage to Henry Bradley in 1902. Her husband died 13 years ago. Four sisters and four brothers also predeceased her. She leaves an only son Harold of Omemee.

Mrs. Bradley was a member of Trinity United Church, and a strong supporter of the Woman's Missionary Society, even after she was unable to attend regular meetings.

The funeral will be held from her residence Friday, Sept. 26, at 2 p.m., the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt officiating. Burial will be in Emily cemetery.

Story Filmed Of Conversion Angolia Native

St. James' church will present next Sunday in place of its evening service, the motion picture "The King's Man."

The man is Frederico Musili who, though born a member of a pagan and superstitious native tribe in Africa, became a minister of the Christian church in Angola.

This movie, filmed in Frederico's homeland, is the story of his life through his childhood, conversion and ordainment as a minister, and his wide activities since that time.

An important man in Frederico's training and conversion was Rev. T. L. 'Tommy' Tucker, widely known Canadian missionary and son of a missionary. During the summer and fall of 1950 these two visited Canada together, coming into this district many times in their travels.

At that time Frederico spoke no English, but his speches were often highly entertaining. His interpreter was Mr. Tucker. On one occasion an argument arose between speaker and translator and for several minutes the baffled audience was kept in suspense. It turned out that Frederico wanted to sing 'What a Friend we have in Jesus' in his own language and Mr. Tucker was protesting. The audience, however, carried the day. Frederico sang and sang well.

At Oak Lake summer camp, near Madoc, he became acquainted with Canadian sports. Softball and volleyball took his fancy but the game he enjoyed best was pitching horseshoes. To him it was completely strange and utterly fascinating. On leaving Canada he took with him a set of horseshoes, to be used as models for making more and introducing the game to Angola.

Some of these things and many, many others are shown in this hour-long film, "The King's Man." Among its many native scenes is a sequence showing native 'spirit dancers' in action; a scene never before filmed with authentic sound. Filming was done by Rev. Anson Moorhouse whose father, Rev. A. F. Moorhouse was once a minister at St. James' Church, Peterborough.

The film was released only recently and has already received warm praises for its photography and direction, not only from church publications but from movie reviewers.

WEATHER GOOD

Weather was good, except for the part of the trip that took the ship through the Red Sea, where humidity and heat were high. "I knew it would be hot there," said Mrs. Jones, "but I wanted to be in Canada while the weather was cool. It will be a nice change from what I've been used to."

Mrs. Jones' home is in Wembley, a suburb of Perth, West Australia. The city is only three miles away from the Indian Ocean, with warm weather almost all year, heavy winter rains and "wonderful spring climate."

When April rolls around, and Mrs. Jones has to go back to Australia, she says she won't be too sorry to leave, because she'll be going home. All her close friends are in Australia, her husband and son and four grandchildren are there.

But it will be difficult to leave her sisters, she says. "This is the first time I've seen them in 35 years; I'm going to make the most of it, because it will probably be the last visit I'll make."

"I'll hate to go away, but then, my home is in Australia."

Say Eisenhower

Washed out were any doubts that might have been in the mind of Eisenhower, the Republican presidential standard bearer, on whether Nixon's acceptance of more than $18,000 in privately-raised expense funds from wealthy Californians should count him out as a candidate.

Standing before a shivering crowd of about 7,000 persons which failed to fill the flood-lighted Wheeling Municipal Stadium, Eisenhower testified for his running mate last night in these words:

"My colleague in this political campaign has been subjected to a very unfair and vicious attack.

"So far as I am concerned, he has not only vindicated himself but I feel that he has acted as a man of courage and honor and, so far as I am concerned, stands higher than ever before."

The Republicans hoped they had wrapped up satisfactorily one of the strangest cases in American political history — talk of the possible ouster of a vice-presidential candidate from a national ticket.

The Democrats were not likely to consider the matter closed, however.

Hog Prices

Britain under the deal and all but 2,000,000-odd pounds of it have been delivered. But only 1,000,000 pounds or so of the New Zealand beef has so far been sold in the United States. It was expected these sales would increase shortly.

In making the announcement on the drop in hog floor prices, Mr. Gardiner said the government now is carrying 40,000,000 pounds of tinned pork. A total of some 55,000,000 pounds had been canned but more than 15,000,000 pounds had been disposed of in the Canadian market under commercial brand names at reduced prices — about 40 cents a pound.

TO MARKET MORE PORK

The government now was planning to market more under a national brand name of its own, but Mr. Gardiner emphasized the government had no desire to go into the canned pork business on more than just a temporary basis.

It was hoped that Germany and possibly other countries might buy some of the surplus pork and investigations to this now were going on. There was a deadline of a year to three years, which was about the maximum that the pork could be kept in cans.

Mr. Gardiner said the new hog floor price of $23 a hundredweight is "not an incentive price." In other words the government, while not discouraging hog production, was not encouraging it either.

Fears Election Of Eisenhower

TORONTO (CP)—Emil Rieve of New York, president of the Textile Workers Union of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.), said today an Eisenhower victory in the United States presidential election in November would be "most unfortunate" for Canada and other parts of the free world.

"Much as we may admire his distinguished record, we must do everything in our power to defeat the general," he said in a speech before the convention of the Canadian Congress of Labor.

He said a victory for Eisenhower, the Republican candidate, would put the U. S. "firmly in the grip of right-wing reactionaries, producing a congress controlled by isolationists."

He suggested that the C.C.L. demand a national minimum wage of at least 75 cents an hour.

"Naturally I realize the achievement of a national minimum wage law is not a matter of collective bargaining. It is a matter of political action."

Prices Stay Mixed On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO (CP) — Prices continued mixed and trendless in early afternoon stock market trading today.

Volume for the first three hours totalled 1,004,000 shares.

Growing support for leading western oil issues after their recent declines sparked the section's advance and Anglo-Canadian, Britalta Canada Southern, General Pete A, Husky and Western Leaseholds gained. Gridoil and Marigold slipped.

Banks and refining oils proved firm spots in the industrial list as most groups traded lower. Papers, foods, steels and manufacturing companies lost strength.

Higher-priced base metals lost strength after a firm morning and International Nickel and Hudson Bay slipped. A small majority of other issues added pennies and Labrador and Rix gained.

Senior and junior golds continued mixed. Chimo, Gunnar and Kelor, all prospects, traded actively for small gains but most other prospects slipped. Holding companies were firm.

The exchange's 1 p.m. indices showed industrials up .13 at 318.95, golds down .06 at 87.80, base metals down .13 at 186.67 and western oils up 1.13 at 126.84.

Plane Hired To Carry Exhausted Birds

GRAZ, Austria (Reuters)—Thousands of exhausted southbound swallows, trapped here by a sudden cold wave, soon will be on the wing again—but not their own wings.

They will head for a warmer clime by plane in an "airlift" organized by local bird-lovers

The birds, on their annual migration from Europe to Africa, were caught by the early arrival of cold weather in this southeast Austria area. They apparently were doomed to die of exposure.

The Graz Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals organized its members and friends in the Graz area to catch the birds for an airlift.

The provincial Animal Protection Association arranged for a special plane from the Yugoslav "Jat" line to take the birds to Fiume, Yugoslavia, on the warm Adriatic Sea about 150 miles south of here.

There they will be released to make their own way across the Mediterranean.

Burma Orders Emergency State

RANGOON, Burma (Reuters)—The Burma government today proclaimed a state of emergency in the Shan states along the frontier with Communist China.

The move was aimed at stamping out a threat of Communist rebellion there. Underground Communist rebels, engaged in guerrilla war with government forces for years, have opened a new campaign for a peasant uprising.

"COOL CONTROL"
PLACE-KICKING THE FOOTBALL

1 For a right-footed kicker, the holder kneels with left knee down and right leg pointed toward centre and line of scrimmage. Right sole should be flat on ground, knee should be bent to cushion charge of rushing opponents. Arms extend with fingers spread to offer target for centre pass.

2 On catch, ball is immediately placed in vertical position under fingers of left hand; right hand turns laces of ball away from kicker if possible. Left fingers are not removed until ball is kicked from under them. For kick, kicker lines up with kicking toe on imaginary line through ball and centre of posts.

3 Eyes never leave ball. Foot swings forward with increased momentum. Knee is bent; then ankle and knee lock at moment of impact; leg follows through for control after punching ball in the middle of its width and slightly below the centre of its length. Ball is held straight up for long kick; slightly tilted back for close-in kick.

Yes, it's control that counts, in football as in every sport — control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

Tour Haunts Of Drug Addicts In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—The shadowed haunts of narcotic addicts have had distinguished visitors.

At the end of a two-day conference on narcotics control, four officials from Ottawa were taken on a tour Tuesday night of some of the more notorious haunts.

Heading the visitors was Kenneth Hossick, chief of the narcotic control division, Department of Health and Welfare.

In darkened doorways and back-alley hangouts they saw addicts and traffickers, pointed out by veteran officers who have fought a long battle against the traffic in Vancouver.

OTHER OFFICIALS

Mr. Hossick was accompanied by Robert Curran, senior legal advisor in his department, Inspector R. F. Kerrow, R.C.M.P., chief narcotics preventive officer, and Dr. C.A. Roberts, head of the federal division of mental hygiene.

They made no comment after the on-the-spot tour. But a spokesman for the group expressed hope for reform measures to cope with Canada's narcotic problem.

Chaplin Goes Walking Unnoticed By Crowd

LONDON (AP)—Charlie Chaplin went strolling down the Strand last night and dropped into a pub to have a black and tan—stout and beer.

The comedian who has created such a stir in the London where he was born wasn't even recognized.

Chaplin walked with an American companion. As they returned to the Savoy Hotel a big crowd was shouting "we want Charlie."

A woman stepped up to the American and implored him to "tell Charlie to come out."

She ignored the little man standing in front of her.

How We Spend Our Money In The States

Last year Canadians paid 18,586,927 visits across the border and spent there $245,945,069. That is a lot of traffic and a lot of money. By comparison with the United States which has ten times as many people, Canada gets the worst of the bargain, even if individual Canadians get bargains in their American shopping. Last year 24,879,527 United States travellers came into Canada and spent $257,998,830. Thus, according to their relative populations, more Canadians go more often to the States than Americans come here, and spend more money.

* * *

Most of the traffic, both Canadian and American, is short term, and by car. Nearly twenty-one million of the twenty-five million American visits to this side of the border were for two days or less; frequently for only a few hours. Similarly, most of the Canadian traffic to the U.S. was short term: sixteen millions of the eighteen and a half Canadian trippers across the border went for two days or less. Thus 87½ per cent. of Canadians going into the U.S. and 84 per cent. of Americans crossing into Canada are making casual and local visits, between, say, Windsor and Detroit, or they are even commuting daily. They are visiting friends, shopping or, like the thousands who live in or near Windsor but work in Detroit, are returning home for supper and sleep.

* * *

This casual traffic accounts for only 19 per cent. of Canadian spending in the U.S. and American spending in this country; amounting to less than fifty million dollars each way. Thus the short term traffic is pretty well in balance between the two countries. It is the visitors who stay longer than a couple of days who spend the Americans dollars in Canada and the Canadian dollars in the U.S. Nearly four million of these real American tourists, fifteen per cent. of all who crossed the border last year, spent more than two hundred million dollars here. Canadians visiting the States for more than two days, 2,320,845 of them, spent $197,450,409 there.

* * *

In noting that the Canadian and American figures are pretty evenly balanced, we must remember that proportionately, more Canadians spend more time and far more money in the States than Americans do here. The fact is that Canadians have become the most lavish travellers in the world. They travel more abroad, they spend more, than any other people on the face of the earth. Last year Canadian travellers to Europe and other foreign parts and to the United States (including trippers) spent $280 millions in foreign travel—$245,000,000 of it in the United States. This was a record.

* * *

Our readers who relish comparative statistics may take this for what it is worth: last year Canadians spent more on travelling in other countries than they paid for all the tea, coffee, sugar and rubber they imported during the year. The total travel bill was twenty-four per cent. bigger than the former record of 1950. It is good to travel and fun spending money in foreign parts. Friendships between nations are not built by international councils but on the solid basis of familiarity and esteem felt at first hand by the people of the nation. So long as there is the heavy travel—and heavy spending—that now exists between Canada and the United States there can be no abiding misunderstanding or enmity between the two countries. Likewise, Canadian travel in Europe and other foreign parts can work well for cordial relations there. So we do not decry the lavish spending of Canadians—so long as the country can afford it. It seems to be able to withstand the drain of money. As Ottawa made public this week, Canada had a favourable trade balance of $197,000,000 in the first seven months of this year.

The Painful World Of Thought

When he welcomed the freshmen to Toronto University yesterday, Dr. Sidney Smith, its president, threw some hard questions at them and suggested that they exercise their minds. What did they think about the freedom of speech, he asked; should it include freedom to express every shade of political opinion, criticism of the government in power, sedition, blasphemy and obscenity? Should freedom of worship include the right to proselytize? Does force ever solve a problem completely? Has science disproved the beliefs of religion? Are you in favour of a planned economy? Should Canada encourage immigration? Do you think politics is a dirty game? Why did you come to the university? —These are a few of the matters which the President suggested as suitable for discussion among students. We hope they heed his words and have long and heated arguments during the three or four years of study which lie before them, because they are not at the university merely to accept as dogma what their instructors tell them; they are there to argue among themselves and sharpen their wits. They have not gone to Toronto to be confirmed in the beliefs which they have inherited from their parents, but to question and test all belief. If they fail to undergo some sort of intellectual crisis during their university years they were not fit subjects for university education.

Dr. Smith and other Canadian educators have complained for some time that Canadian young people are not intellectually adventurous; they do not care enough about argument, and they are not sufficiently interested in new ideas. If this is so, it is a serious matter for Canada, because danger from Old Fogies is powerful enough in this country, without adding to it danger from Young Fogies. And it is not only in the lecture rooms, but among themselves, that the students will learn to use their minds as instruments of selection, and not as catch-alls for antiquated ideas.

Argument is one of the principal forces in education. The great flowering of philosophical thought in Greece in the fifth century before Christ found its principal expression in prolonged and acute argument. A man who comes from the university with all his old ideas and no knowledge of how to argue might have saved time and money by going to work when he left his High School; for at the university he should have been introduced to the painful, but glorious, world of thought.

Safer In Korea Than On The Highway

On the highway, we view with alarm. This is not an editorial privilege of an old-fashioned kind but an inescapable reaction to driving on the highway in these times. What we view should be enough to alarm anybody. Here is what came within our view on a recent evening, within the space of fifteen minutes.

Out of the darkness a shape loomed ahead—at twenty yards distance. At the same time, and the same short distance, one thin white gleam was apparent from a small light at the rear of what turned out to be a light truck. It was not a red light and a bright light as a tail light should be, but just one dim light which was without any value as a warning.

When we got past the truck we saw it had only one headlamp. By this time our attention (and nerves) were reacting to another one-eyed thing coming toward us. This was a very bright headlamp. Was the vehicle a motorbike, or a car with one light out of order? A car probably, with all the power for both lamps going into one, and blinding every other car that approached. What side of the one-eyed monster was blind?

It passed by on the other side, to our relief.

Next our own headlamps picked up a man with a dark suit walking on the edge of the road. He was safe enough then; had he been in our approach when the one-eyed car was passing, we would not have been able to see him.

By this time we had slowed down to forty. This was too slow for a car behind. He passed us on the wrong side of a solid white line; and thereafter continued his cutting in and out of traffic at a speed of seventy.

Next we came upon five or six cars piled up on the verge. An accident had happened. We were not surprised to see in the middle of the jam, tossed sideways across the road, an old model car. It seemed to have come out of a country lane.

Now we were thankfully nearing town and our destination. While breathing a sigh of relief we fortunately did not remove our eyes from their stare on the road. So we were able to avoid a youth on a bicycle, which had no light of any kind, and not even a rear-reflector.

This catalogue of highway views is not extraordinary. Anybody can see the same sort of thing every night of the week. And so there are more people killed and injured on the highways of this province in one month than there have been Canadian casualties in the entire Korean war.

Is the reason there are more casualties on highways than in Korea that the men in Korea are skilled in the use of their weapons, keep them in good condition, are attentive to what they are doing with them, and disciplined to consider them as potentially dangerous; whereas many of our drivers are unskilled, inattentive and undisciplined with their weapons—the internal combustion engine on wheels.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A Brockville man was caught in a cement mixer recently and did fifty turns before he was rescued. At the Exhibition, a whirling like that would have cost him at least 50 cents.

Wine-Glut In France

By PIERRE D'HARCOURT

THE LATEST CASUALTY reported in Europe's current minor trade slump is France's famous wine industry. France is growing too much wine and not enough of it is of good quality. But the measures needed to remedy the situation are against the immediate interests of many wine growers and are politically explosive. For the wine trade is represented not only by powerful vested interests, but also by pressure groups of the many small cultivators within most of the political parties of France, particularly of the Left, both Socialist and Communist.

✣ ✣ ✣

MORE THAN one-and-a-half million workers and several hundred thousand French families depend for their living, both directly and indirectly, on the production of wine. This gives some idea of the importance of the trade to the country.

✣ ✣ ✣

OFTEN, a lean harvest for the growers coincides with a general demand for wine on the world market; when demand slackens, it is quite possible that production may rise. It can thus be seen that crises occur only too easily.

✣ ✣ ✣

AT PRESENT the only expanding markets for French wine are in Germany, Scandinavia (with the exception of Norway), Holland and Finland. The British and American markets are unchanged; the rest are falling away. This refers, of course, only to the ordinary table wines, not to the famous branded vintage wines.

✣ ✣ ✣

THE TOTAL of French wine exported in July, 1952, was only 2,098,000 gallons, as against 3,078,000 gallons in July, 1951. And in this last year the overseas market for French wines has virtually collapsed—sales have actually slumped by no less than fifty per cent.

✣ ✣ ✣

THE FRENCH WINE industry has two major problems, quite unrelated, but both of equal importance. They concern respectively the famous vintages upon which the world reputation of French wine depends, and the ordinary non-vintage table wines. With the vintage wines, it is necessary both to preserve the quality—that is to say the vines themselves and the traditional methods of cultivation—and also to maintain the good name of the product, by rigorously opposing unfair competition, such as false labelling.

WITH THE TABLE WINES, a great effort has to be made to reorganise the export drive: particularly so, when one considers that in 1951, France exported only 1,780,000 gallons of such wine, whereas Italy exported 7,590,000 gallons, and Spain 8,230,000 gallons.

In most cases, it seems that parish-pump politics—no doubt highly rewarding from an electoral point of view, but fatal for the future of the wine industry—have been at the bottom of the trouble.

✣ ✣ ✣

FRENCH EXPERTS say that the country is producing something like five hundred million gallons too much wine. The problem is not new; but this year it has a special urgency.

✣ ✣ ✣

AS FAR BACK as 1930 a wine law was drawn up. It concerned primarily, for instance, the uprooting of three hundred and seventy-five thousand acres of poor quality vines, wine made from which was suspected of being harmful to health. This decision, at first postponed, was later annulled in the summer of 1940.

✣ ✣ ✣

IN 1931, fresh planting was forbidden to owners with more than twenty-five acres of vineyards. In practice, however, the decree was ineffectual, since at least ninety-five per cent. of growers owned less than this area. So in 1933 the figure was reduced from twenty-five to eight acres. But even this was insufficient: so it was decided that fresh planting would be forbidden where the acreage of a vineyard had increased since 1924—excepting those plants providing wine for private consumption.

✣ ✣ ✣

THE RESULT of all this confusion was that, in the ten years from 1928 to 1938, far from the acreage under cultivation diminishing, it actually increased by as much as two hundred and twenty thousand acres in Metropolitan France alone.

✣ ✣ ✣

THESE FIGURES show that much must be done to make good the situation, for habits have been formed. The problem particularly concerns table wines, almost all of which are drunk in France itself. Rather than take action against the wine-grower, who is supported by powerful associations and unions, the Government resorts either to subsidising the trade directly or supporting it indirectly by distilling the surplus wine in fuel alcohol. But both methods burden the taxpayer; and neither is, in itself, a solution.

✣ ✣ ✣

THE TRUTH is that France is producing too much wine, not the famous branded wines which should always, by reason of their quality alone, find ready buyers on the world market, but too much of the ordinary table wines which are mostly consumed at home.

If strong measures are not taken (at the risk of considerable political unpopularity) the trouble, serious today, will be disastrous in the future.

One of the witnesses in a case was an old man.

"Did the defendant use improper language when he was beating his horse?" asked the lawyer.

"Well, he talk mighty loud, sir," replied the witness.

"Did he indulge in profanity?"

The witness seemed puzzled and the lawyer put the question in another form: "What I want to know is, did he use words that would be proper for your minister to use in a sermon?"

"Oh, yes, sir," the old man replied, "but they'd have to be 'ranged different!"

Communists Within the Arctic Circle

By FRANCIS NOEL-BAKER

LAPPLAND, Sept. 21—

THE FIRST snow will come to Kiruna, and to the rest of Swedish Lappland, in ten days. The leaves on the dwarf birches—which burst their buds only at the end of June—will then suddenly turn gold and fall. The bright purple willowherb (there are no other flowers) will wither, and the reindeer herds will come down from the hills. By Christmas, it will be too dark to read outdoors at mid-day.

But across the cold, slate-grey lake, the work of demolition will go steadily on. Twice each day the sirens will shriek a warning. Then the familiar explosions will shake the town. And the twin hills of Kiruna-vaara and Luossavarra will shrink by a few more tons.

We stood in the sharp morning air, on the rock embankment which takes the tracks across the lake, and looked over at the workings on Kiruna-vaara and the ravine, two miles long, that has been driven through the mountain by the miners. Then the day's twentieth train—electric locomotive and forty-four open wagons, each filled with thirty-five tons of iron ore — rumbled back towards Narvik, 200 miles west on the Atlantic coast. This year thirteen million tons of high-grade ore are leaving Kiruna: eight million to Narvik, three and a half million to Lulea, on the Bothnian Gulf opposite Finland. But in the twin hills there is plenty more: one and a half billion tons, the biggest concentration in the world.

FIFTY YEARS ago Kiruna, sixty miles north of the Arctic Circle and twelve miles north of the tree line, was as empty and bleak as the surrounding country. Even the wandering Lapps—fishing, hunting and grazing their reindeer, as they still do—had no encampment at this place. Now, bears and wolves (a pack invaded the railway station three years ago) still live a few miles outside the town; but Kiruna had 12,000 people who, with half-joking pride, can claim that its wide municipal boundaries make theirs "the biggest city in the world".

It is also one of the most Communist towns in Sweden: a strange fact which gives Kiruna special interest to-day when, from nine o'clock this morning (Sunday, September 21) until nine to-night (with a becoming interval for church), its people will be crowding schoolroom polling stations to vote in Sweden's second post-war election.

On the assumption that personal prosperity and security destroy political extremism, the fact that in 1948 one in five Kiruna electors voted Communist is extraordinarily difficult to explain. That the miners are prosperous and secure is obvious beyond all doubt. One has only to study their wage rates, see them at leisure or visit their neat, comfortable homes, to realise that here at least the word proletariat has lost all meaning. But that many of them were, and some still are, staunch party members is no less certain. "Nowadays they call us traitors," said a burly miner, looking us in the eye. "They can call us what they like. I've been a Communist for thirty years and I'm not changing now."

LATER, a lone Social Democrat, busy with his party's anti-Communist election drive, commented: "Yes, it is just because they are so conservative that they are still Communists . . . in the face of all reason." He went on to discuss the causes of the Communist tradition in north Sweden. First, the memory of bad working conditions and unemployment in the past: though the last ("and," he said, "final") crisis was in the thirties. Next, the mixed and still rootless populations of the new industrial towns: part Finnish-speaking, part Lapp, and part descendants of the first labour gangs who came from the south to build the railways half a century ago. Then the fact that the Communists realise the great importance of the north, both strategically and for its ore, and have ensured that here the party machine is at its most efficient. And finally—a reason not so flippant as it sounds at first—the bleak, dreary climate and the long, dark winters.

But one must not exaggerate. Though the Social-Democrats may express frustration and alarm because there are still twelve Communists on Kiruna's city council (to their own seventeen, the Liberals' seven, and the Conservatives' four), they do not expect Communist losses to-day, here as in the rest of Sweden. And, taking the country as a whole, the Communist Party won only 6.3 of all the votes cast in 1948. Even at party headquarters in Stockholm, we were grimly and authoritatively told, "We shall do well to maintain that figure." Recent spectacular trials in which Communists were sentenced for espionage for Russia, and the shooting down of Swedish aircraft over international waters in the Baltic, have—whatever some miners in Kiruna may say—made a deep impression on the public mind.

APART from the fate of the Communists, today's election has caused little speculation even inside Sweden. Everyone assumes that the voting will change nothing: except possibly to give the Social-Democrats four more seats and therefore an overall majority in the Second Chamber. With the same exception of the Communists, the pre-election campaign has been placid, with a marked absence of political polemics.

One chilly afternoon some days ago we were startled to hear the boom of two loudspeakers echoing across the calm Kiruna streets from the far side of the town. They were apparently engaged in an altercation. Hopefully, we set out to trace the noise. At last, we thought, an election meeting. Clearly canvassers had collided and we should no doubt find a lively, divided crowd discussing the merits of rival parties.

Gradually, as we stalked the noise, we did catch up with groups of people all walking solemnly in the same direction, stolid Lapplanders prominent among them in their gay, red-plumed caps, long smocks, and narrow trousers. (Why is it, we wondered irrelevantly, that in these days even the most naturally worn peasant costume looks bogus?)

In the end, we did find our lively, divided crowd. But the attraction was as remote from politics as autumn Kiruna from a heat wave. The loudspeakers were busy, not with ideology, but merely with the rival merits of The Frozen Lady and Captain Kidd's Circus in the middle of the monster fairground one finds on the outskirts of every Swedish town.

Among The Happy Hedonists

(CALGARY HERALD)

SOMEBODY at the 18th Synod of the Church of England in Canada has had some cutting things to say about education in Canada. It is too Americanized and too secular, according to the speaker, Canon R. K. Naylor of Montreal.

And the most cutting remarks of all Canon Naylor reserved for the educationists of this province, where, he said, the aim of education was a mere "qualified hedonism". Rushing imediately to our trusty dictionary, we discovered that hedonism means the "doctrine that the pleasure of the individual is the chief good."

Right away, of course, we thought of our hedonistic school trustees cogitating furiously over the pleasure they could give every student with a new lathe, an electric typewriter or an eleven-cubic-foot refrigerator. We thought again of our school board worrying in its hedonistic way over whether to give the students at Crescent Heights a $382,000 gymnasium or a more expensive one in which their parents too could exercise their pleasure at games and dramas. Then we knew exactly what Canon Naylor was talking about.

Too Americanized? We should say so. Why, they don't even talk English any more at our schools or among our educationists. It is a kind of Americanese, imported from Columbia University, or some such place and it seems to have little to do with education as such. The curriculum here has been copied from the "progressive" American school system which has attempted for years to make school all pleasure and no work. There is nothing wrong with a little pleasure at school but when this hedonistic philosophy becomes the end rather than a part of the means to education, the time has come for a change.

On the other hand, the Canon complains that Canadian schools are too secular and that the church should get in there with their Christian teaching, "with our idea of God." The school, he contends, should not be a neutral place. And why, we should like to ask, shouldn't it be? Why shouldn't it be the place where a child receives his basic education, and learns to use his brain?

The Canon did not explain how the church intends to give religious education. If he meant through religious classes, does he mean classes for every possible denomination, compulsory classes, or what? That is a large and formidable problem in a democracy where church and state are plainly separated. It cannot be solved by forcing religion upon the schools.

The Canon may well be right that lack of religious faith is the worst problem of youth today, but the way is to improve our basic educational standards, so that emphasis is again placed on the educated, the thinking man, rather than the boy with the quick-drying veneer of education and the quickly-won aptitude for an easy-money job.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night. And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper. (Ps. 1: 1-3.)

Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord, according as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue: whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.

And beside this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

But he that lacketh these things is blind, and cannot see afar off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins. Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall: for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. (II Pet. 1: 2-11.)

Letter To The Editor

PLEASED WITH EXHIBITION

Sir: This is a difficult letter to write because I seem to be the only satisfied customer to the Peterborough Exhibition. If everybody was so dissatisfied, why was there so much applause at the Saturday night show? If we don't want horse races why did so many people buy at 10c a copy of 90 per cent of the programs available? Why did they roar when the winner came in from the outside? I assure they didn't clap to keep warm.

Sure, in all community efforts something could be done better, the Midway could have been bigger, there's always a sucker to risk his money on a sure thing (for the operator.) The manufacturers' section could have been livelier, the salesmen stood around like watchmen, couldn't get a sales talk in all the bunch, only the outsiders put on any demonstrations, again a half hour listening to the red head selling hair oil was worth the price of admission alone. Then the four hour show at the grandstand was well worth the money, but the Ex. board could make it easier to climb to the top of the reserved section, you have to be an Alpine climber to get up the two foot steps, an extra step between seats is very necessary.

No Mr. Editor, don't trade the horses for motorcycles with all their noise and dust; you'll lose something we should try to keep. The Ex. was the only place in town you could get a 10c hot dog; remember the old days?

I assure you that myself and my family were satisfied with both our trips to the 1952 Ex. I think it was worth the time and money spent.

Yours very truly,

SATISFIED.

Expedition On Ocean Floor Around World To Start

WASHINGTON — Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society, today announced the society will support one of the most comprehensive oceanographic expeditions of modern times, a scientific party that plans to spend the next four years in underseas explorations completely around the globe.

The expedition will be French led. Now completing preparations at Toulon for its departure next month, it has the official backing of the French government and the French Academy of Sciences. The United States Navy expects to lend its assistance in American ports and overseas bases.

Leader of the expedition is the French Navy's foremost authority on free diving and underwater exploration, Capt. Jacques-Yves Cousteau. Named Calypso, the expedition ship is a 350-ton, 142-foot former American minesweeper completely converted to oceanographic purposes.

Captain Cousteau is co-inventor of a device that for the first time enables men safely, comfortably, and independently of all surface connections to enter depths once permitted only to men encumbered with the old-fashioned bulky diving gear.

Called an "Aqualung," the Cousteau device is a mask through which the diver breathes compressed air carried in tanks on his back. An ingenious valve automatically releases the proper amount of air as depth pressures vary, and the body quickly establishes an interior pressure equal to that outside. Lead weights hold the swimmer at any level he chooses, while flippers on his feet give him extra power.

The announcement reflects the society's pioneer interest in earth's last stronghold of major geographical secrets, the Seven Seas with their vast depths and teeming populations of mysterious creatures.

The Geographic was a sponsor of Dr. William Beebe's record-breaking bathysphere descents into the Atlantic off Bermuda in the 1930's. The society said there are further plans for important underwater explorations, but that details could not be announced until later.

Here Captain Cousteau presents photographs which reveal for the first time that the regions beneath the seas are a blaze of brilliant colors. No fish sees these colors in the sombre gloom of his watery world. Only Cousteau's divers with their immensely powerful flash lamps have ever glimpsed them directly, but they appear in their true glory in these epochal pictures.

Testing personnel and equipment in the Red Sea off the coast of Saudi Arabia last winter, Captain Cousteau learned that sharks fear men who swim far below the surface. But nearer the top, the great fish become bold and may charge for brief periods at speeds of 20 to 30 knots. At least one Calypso diver saved his life only by beating a shark over the snout with a camera.

Cousteau learned that strange fishes build Red Sea beaches by grinding coral in powerful jaws. Off the coast of Tunisia in the Mediterranean, he dived to a Roman galley and recovered Greek temple pillars believed to have been taken as spoils in the sack of Athens by the Roman emperor Sulla.

For the French Navy, Captain Cousteau has removed live torpedoes from sunken German submarines, explored a bargeload of armed magnetic mines and searched ship casualties of World War II. In one such ship, a Greek merchantman, he found the compass still operating.

Calypso has twin diesel engines which give her a speed of 14 knots. She has exceptionally powerful echo sounding equipment. With it, Cousteau has already discovered previously uncharted deeps in the Mediterranean.

In a false bow is a ported chamber for undersea observation. Automatic cameras will grind steadily as the ship crosses the oceans, photographing whatever comes into their ken.

A diving well amidships will permit the ship's "human fish" to come in and out of water comfortably no matter what the air temperature outside. On her decks she will carry a helicopter. Below are scientific laboratories of several kinds. Twenty men are in her crew.

During the first two years, the expedition will work in the Sargasso Sea of the South Atlantic, the waters off Bermuda, the mouth of the Amazon River, the coast of Patagonia and the cold Wedell Sea. The second two years will see Calypso off New Zealand, in the Ross Sea of the Antarctic, along the Great Barrier Reef, the Arabian Sea coast of India, both African shores and many exotic places between.

The main interest of the expedition is physical oceanography—depths, physical and chemical properties of ocean water, and the like. Since Aqualung divers are limited to 300 feet and can stay down about an hour at a time, much of this work will be done with instruments.

Give Blue Riband Trophy To Liner United States

LONDON (Reuters)—The blue riband trophy for the fastest Atlantic crossing, which gathered dust in a Hanley, England, jeweler's shop for 14 years because the Cunard company declined to claim it, will be presented to the American liner United States in November.

The Duke of Sutherland, chairman of the committee which administers blue riband awards, will present the trophy at dinner aboard the new Atlantic speed queen in New York Nov. 10.

On her eastward maiden voyage, the United States took three days, 10 hours, 40 minutes, breaking the record of the British Cunard liner Queen Mary by 10 hours, two minutes. On the return voyage to New York, the United States took three days, 12 hours, 12 minutes—nine hours, 36 minutes less than the Queen Mary's best time.

The blue riband, or Hales Trophy, valued at $7,000, was never claimed by the Cunard company because it does not favor speed competitions on Atlantic crossings.

The trophy, presented in 1935 by the late Harold Hales, is four feet high and made of gold, silver and enamel. It went to sea with the Italian liner Rex and the French liner Normandie when they held the records for the fastest crossing. It came to Hanley when the Queen Mary won the blue riband in 1938.

The trophy weighs more than 30 pounds and at its base sits Neptune, surrounded by galleons. Muscular figures support a globe engraved with a map of the world. The trans-Atlantic liner route to New York is picked out by a red enamel line.

Opens Jet-Repair Plant

TORONTO (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton yesterday opened a "very significant addition to the nation's defence structure" — a $2,000,000 government-owned plant capable of repairing any jet engine. He said the Downsview Works built and managed by the Canadian General Electric Co. for the government, will enable Canada to save millions of dollars in foreign exchange because repairs now can be done at home instead of abroad.

THREE PETES' STARS — Two timely goals in the fourth frame at Mimico last night by Curly Mason, at left, turned the tide in the Petes' favor and they went on to beat Toronto Yorks 9-7 in senior lacrosse play. Curly was playing with an injury in the groin. Goalie Moon Wootton, centre, came up with another starry effort in the cage to help in the victory. Russ Slater, right, led the squad in sniping with three fine goals.

Petes Beat The Yorks 9-7 In Rugged Encounter To Lead Finals By 3 To 1

Yanking out a 9-7 senior lacrosse victory in Mimico last night, the Petes' Timbermen took a 3-1 lead over Toronto West Yorks in their best-of-seven Eastern Canada finals. The fifth fray is slated for here Friday. The Timbermen had to break a tie early in the fourth frame to go ahead and then it was nip-and-tuck right down to the wire as the Yorks fought furiously before a friendly crowd. However, the Petes had some supporters on deck, too.

The winners figured they received a rough deal most of the way from Referees Roy Morton and Joe Murphy. The latter handed Ike Hildebrand a match misconduct in the second quarter for questioning his judgment, after three Petes at one time were sitting in the sin bin.

Following the game, Kin Kingston of the executive and Murphy had words and a brief pushing match before being separated. Six of seven penalties were handed to the Petes in the first half, but Yorks drew four in the last part.

AN EARLY LEAD

Jumping into an early lead, the Timbermen led 3-2 in the first quarter. They stretched it to a 5-3 margin at the half, but were outscored 2-1 in the third to make it 6-5 for Peterborough opening the fourth. In this heat, they edged Toronto 3-2 to win out. The Yorks were crowding them right to the last whistle.

Play was generally speedy, with plenty of long, hard runs resulting in goals or brilliant saves by the rival netters—both shining in this scrap. But it was slowed down in spots by stiff checking as the rivals laid on the gad. Each team was equally guilty but the Petes kept drawing nearly all the penalties for two quarters. It was a rugged and close encounter.

SCORED THREE

Russ Slater sparked the victors with three goals, Curly Mason and Harry Wipper flipping in two each, and Ike Hildebrand and Don Ashbee one apiece. Nip O'Hearn had a pair of assists, singles going to Ashbee, Ross Powless, Wipper, Al Garbutt and Dootch Vitarelli.

Nick Ferri led the losers with two markers, Don McPhail, Leo Teatro, Johnny Hewitt, Jack Kapasky and Ken Croft getting the others. An assist each was marked to Hewitt, Kapasky, McPhail and Ferri.

Ashbee drew an early high-sticking penalty but Wipper killed it off neatly. Ike Hildebrand scored first on a slap shot with Vitarelli's passout. Wipper made it 2-0 shortly on a speedy solo and hard shot inside. Ferri got one back on Hewitt's long forward pass, and McPhail tied it up on a sizzler from Kapasky at close range. Slater put the Thorpe team one up with smart finish in close after a quick pass from Garbutt.

ROW OF PENALTIES

Wipper tallied quickly in the second on a nice bit of inside combination with O'Hearn. The latter then drew a slashing penalty, with Jim McNulty following for a similar offence. Slater's blazing angle shot beat Johnston before the pair returned. Ashbee then was waved over for cross-checking, followed by O'Hearn for high-sticking and then Wipper allegedly for high-sticking. With three in the box, Hildebrand questioned Referee Murphy's judgment and was given a misconduct penalty and when he spoke again a match misconduct, putting him out of the game. Ashbee was back shortly but Teatro tallied from McPhail before the other pair finally got back again into play. The period closed with the Petes nursing a two-goal lead.

Hewitt whittled the count fast on Ferri's flip pass and a side shot to start the third. Rog Smith was gated for slashing and Wootton had to be good to kick out hot rubber. Kapasky finally scored in a scramble to sew it up at 5-all. Timpson then drew a high-sticking sentence and Slater scored on a nifty passing play with Wipper to give them a goal edge.

WRAPPED IT UP

Ferri tore in fast on a solo to count in 18 seconds of the fourth. Ashbee battled his way through defence for a dandy to keep the Timbermen in front. McPhail charged Slater and was waved over. It probably was the break in the tight tilt at this late stage for the Peterborough pack. Mason made no mistake on a three-way passing play with Ashbee and Powless. McPhail was back and Croft scored on a free shot right in front of the crease. However, Mason sank the insurance marker with two minutes to go as he took O'Hearn's forward flip and picked a corner coolly with a hard drive. Scott was waved away for tripping as time ran out. Teams:

Petes: Goal, Wootton; defence, Wipper and O'Hearn; centre, Mason; wings, Slater and Garbutt; rover, Powless; alternates, Killingbeck, Nickle, Thorpe, Ashbee, Hildebrand, Vitarelli and Smith.

Toronto: Goal, Johnston; defence, Hewitt and Banks; centre, Croft; wings, Joe McNulty and Jim McNulty; rover, Kapasky; alternates, McPhail, Timpson, Facto, Scott, Ferri, Webster and Teatro.

Referees, J. Murphy and R. Morton.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Regretfully a raft of men and women golfers here will be packing their bags away soon until next spring. Of course many play right till the snow flies, but official men's closing day for the two clubs here is this Saturday. Kawartha has a field day consisting of nine-hole competition, dinner at 6.30 and dancing after. Afternoon at the Peterborough Club will be devoted to friendly inter-club games, with dinner and presentation of prizes and trophies at 6.30, followed by a sing-song. These functions are happy ones but also have the sad significance that marks the official ending of another summer's fun.

Tony Kotowski takes his Orfuns to Kingston tomorrow for a four-point O.R.F.U. contest, and a win should put the local gridders right up there around the top of the heap. Unfortunately for us, we haven't seen Orfuns in action yet this fall—owing to the lacrosse playoffs being on—but we hear this is the best intermediate club to represent Peterborough in years. Plenty of home talent, some aces brought in in recent years, and the addition of classy Orillia footballers, combine to give Tony good material to work on. Oshawa Raiders show here a week from Friday. This grid schedule winds up the end of October, it being a short season.

With Time Running Out

Playoff lacrosse mills grind slowly but surely as Mann Cup time approaches. Big series for the Canadian senior crown opens one week from this coming Sunday in Maple Leaf Gardens. All games will be staged there, unlike the merry-go-round the C.L.A. led Petes out in B.C. last fall when several arenas were used. Meantime, the Timbermen have to take the Eastern Canada first ere planning for the Canadian finals. Anything can happen in playoffs—like that upset here last Monday—so the local gutted-stick aces will have to dig in for the fifth fray here tomorrow night. It should pack 'em in.

* * * * * * *

After that neat 9-7 win in Mimico last night, the Petes should just about wrap up the eastern finals Friday—but we hope no one gets hurt in the process. Last night's number was a speedy yet close-checking and real tight tussle, plenty rugged over the route. The club picked up Toronto Leafs' trainer Archie Campbell en route and he strapped up Russ Slater's shoulder and put the heat on Curly Mason's leg before game time. The doctoring must have helped, as both starred. Harry Wipper and Nip O'Hearn were other potent attackers, and Moon Wootton was brilliant betwixt the pipes. Yorks gave them a hard, hard game and it was much in doubt till the final few minutes of play.

* * * * * * *

Refs Were Below Par

It's not considered proper to pan referees when you lose a joust, but it's no alibi (as Timbermen won it) when we say the officiating was sub-standard last gloaming. Local lacrossers felt that the book was being tossed at 'em in the first half, though things were evened up in the later stages. Also a match misconduct to a star player for saying a referee was "pretty lousy" in the first part of an important playoff is pretty small potatoes. Ken Kingston told Joe Murphy that after the tilt and took a punch from Joe ere the rhubarb was broken up. Petes drew six of the first seven penalties and at one time had three away at once. It's certainly a lively series, and the Thorpe team will try to end it at home Friday.

* * * * * * *

The P.C.V.S. seniors' and juniors' grid schedules are out now, and we note where the Collegiate crews open play 'gainst Oshawa teams here tomorrow eve. Juniors go at 6.30 and seniors at 8.30 in Riverside Park in group games. Both Garnet and Grey squads are away next Wednesday, seniors at T.C.S. and juniors at Lindsay. Outline of the local teams is in elsewhere tonight. Not too many home games in the short autumn football season, so you might say there'll only be a month for local fans to view the husky high schoolers unless followers want to travel to Toronto for the Red Feather and away for C.O.S.S.A. playoffs.

Three Irish Yearling Horses Flown To U.S. In Gamble

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Three Irish yearling horses will be flown to the United States next week to try to justify a gambler's hunch.

Basically, the idea is to determine whether British bloodstock, if properly acclimatized, can beat American horses on their own home grounds.

In what is believed an unprecedented experiment, the three baby racers will be air-shipped to California and raised under the supervision of a leading U.S. trainer, Willie Molter.

Ever since America's Zev humiliated Britain's Papyrus in a match race 30 years ago, British invasions of the American turf have usually been ill-starred.

OUT TO PROVE IT

Now an English aviation executive, Ronald Barnett, is out to prove that it's all a matter of training and environment.

"Racing conditions are so different in the two countries," Barnett said, "that the only way to show the true value of British blood lines is to give the horse a chance to grow up in America."

Molter, agreeing, said the difference in the going is the chief obstacle to international racing.

"In England you race on a carpet of turf, in America we race on pasteboard," he said. "It makes an awful difference."

Other trans-Atlantic differences involve methods of starting, "pace," shoeing and feed.

Barnett got his idea one day last year at Del Mar Racetrack in California. He noted four horses by the imported British sires Radiotherapy, Hyperion, Mahmoud and Blenheim. All four won. So this week at a yearling sales in Dublin he picked up the three yearlings for a total of 5,950 guineas—a grey colt by His Highness, a brown colt by Stardust out of Inkling and another grey by Royal Charger-Burma Road.

OFF TO CALIFORNIA

They will be sent to California in one of Barnett's own planes, broken there next year and prepared for racing at Santa Anita. All will carry Barnett's silks—"White with the Red Rose of England front and back."

"It's strictly a gamble," said the airlines executive. "But I think we'll prove that British blood lines, under the proper conditions, are among the world's best."

Central Triumphs

Central seniors took a 4-0 school soccer victory at the Oval yesterday over Queen Elizabeth. Paul Hum, stalwart Chinese inside, banged home two fine goals, with Robbins and Dinsdale getting the others. Lloyd was good in goal for the losers, Perry, Gilders and Taylor also going well. Sorrie and Armstrong were strong halves for the victors. Teams:

Q.E.—Lloyd, Whitnell, Taylor, Lymburner, Sage, Harrison Lyons, Welsh, Perry, Gilders, Tighe, McConkey, Hancock.

Central — Lamers, Hayman, Barclay, Aulbrook, Sorrie, Armstrong, Tunnicliffe, Grey, Lustic, Robbins, Simpson, Ross, McNaughton, Grills, Mac, Mills, Hum, Dinsdale, Tetlock, Truman.

Referees—R. Rutherford and H. Hempstead.

School Scoreless Tie

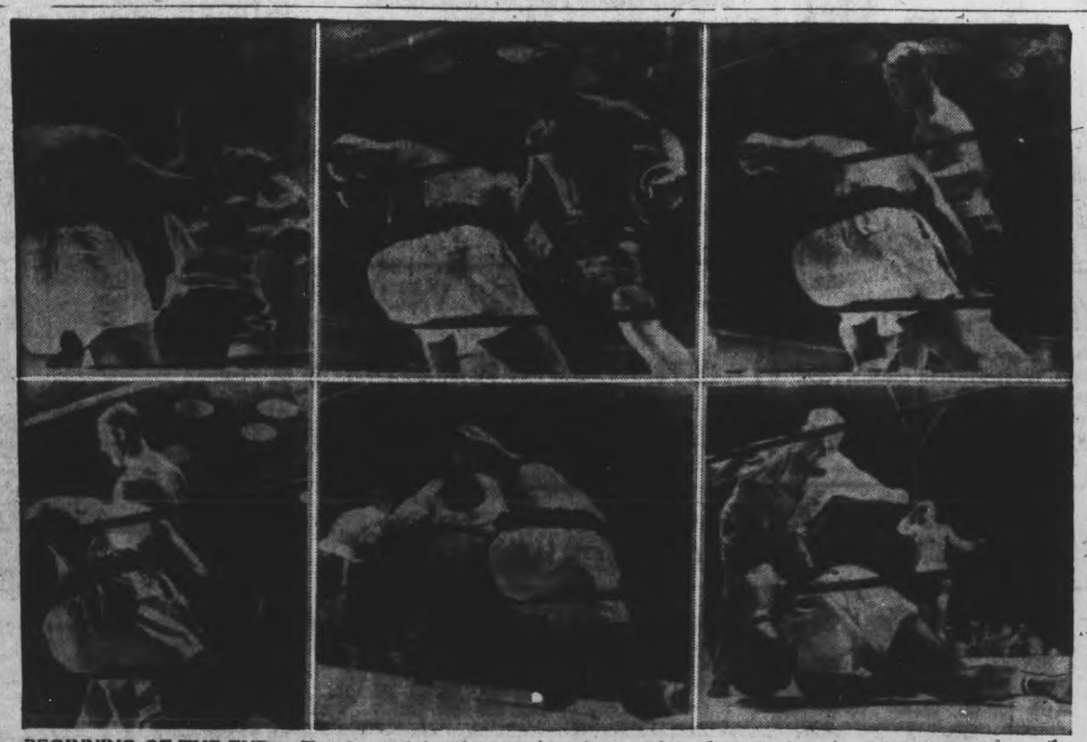
Queen Alexandra and Queen Mary played to a scoreless draw in the Public School Senior Soccer League on Wednesday. The game, held at Riverside Park, was highlighted by fine rushes by both teams but a good defence and excellent goalkeeping kept both teams off the score sheet.

Teams:

Queen Alex: Goal, Macklin; fullbacks, B. Druce, Seifried; halfbacks, Sanderson, Stewart, MaGee; forwards, Kilborn, Nelson, Johnston, Hamilton, Lech; alternates, Downer, K. Druce, Ingram, Cooney.

Queen Mary: Goal, McArthur; fullbacks, Stewart, Wilson; halfbacks, Drury, Hendry, Staves; forwards, Dafoe, Reynolds, Haig, Brown, Mann; alternates, B. Clarke, C. Clarke, Perritt, Milne, Jobbitt, Bignell.

Referees: Messrs. Anderson and Hill.



Walton Rolls 841

George Walton hit high three of 841 and M. Mackay had best single of 336 this week in the Major Bowling League. Flint's led teams with 3,746 and Selkirk's got top single of 1,433. The 7-0 wins were by Flint's, Clapper's, Cherney, Plazas and U. E. over Silents, Sunshine, McLeod, Odeon and O.P.P.; the 5-2 wins went to Examiner, Crowley, Studes, Revenoors, Bickell and Wonder against E. & B., Irwin-Godson, Edwards, Brewers, Herb's and Hollingsworth. Deeth & White edged Selkirk's 4-3.

Neat scores were: W. Harris 838, G. Gimblett (328) 824, W. Flint (322) 803, A. Pilling (318) 794, J. Patterson (320) 790, A. Sanderson (313) 787, J. Latchford (328) 764, A. Mattucci 763, D. Abraham 756, J. Johnson (321) 762, H. Roberts 740, R. Parnell (307) 737, M. Caccavella 735, W. Whiteside (300) 711, W. Crary 707, R. Bennett 700, J. Meyette a single of 312 and A. Basciano 306.

711 AT TELEVISED FIGHT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles Riley of St. Louis won a split 10-round decision over Fabela Chavez of Hollywood last night in a scrappy featherweight fight televised nationally. Riley weighed 130, Chavez 128. There were no knockdowns in the bout which drew only 711 customers at the Washington Arena.

BEGINNING OF THE END in Tuesday night's title fight at Philadelphia is caught above in the 13th round knockout that transferred Jersey Joe Walcott's heavy crown to 28-year-old Rocky Marciano. It starts with Walcott reeling from an explosive right and sagging into the ropes as Marciano swings back with a left. Marciano then turns away and is guided to neutral corner by Referee Charles Daggert, who completes the count as Marciano watches.

Yanks Snap Fenway Park Doubleheader Jinx Whip Boston; Close To Flag

By ORLO ROBERTSON, Associated Press Sports Writer

Wednesday, Sept. 24, will go into the books as the day New York Yankees snapped their Fenway Park doubleheader jinx, the day 20-year-old Mickey Mantle battered the stitches off the ball, and the day the World Champions virtually closed the books on the 1952 season. The pennant-winning day can't arrive until tomorrow in Philadelphia, at the earliest, but a victory today would assure the Champions of at least a tie. But to all intents and purposes the Yanks won their fourth straight American League pennant yesterday when they whipped Boston Red Sox 3-2 in 10 innings and 8-6 in the second game.

Cleveland Indians also won, whipping Chicago White Sox 6-0 behind the three-hit pitching of Bob Lemon. But it will take a real blow-up by the Champions to move the title to Cleveland Sunday.

FIRST IN FIVE YEARS

The triumphs over Boston—the first Yankee sweep of a Fenway Park doubleheader in five years—increased the New Yorkers' lead to two games, three on the all-important losing side. And the Indians have only two games remaining, both against the Tigers at Detroit Saturday and Sunday.

The Yankees have four to play, one against Boston today, then three with the Athletics at Philadelphia.

Allie Reynolds, with 19 victories and eight defeats, is Manager Casey Stengel's nomination today. He'll be opposed by Sid Hudson, who has a 10-12 record.

Mantle, in one of his best days of the year, provided the pay-off punch in the first overtime inning of the opener, powdering the ball for a triple after Irv Noren opened with a double off relief hurler Dizzy Trout.

In the second game he patched in with a three-run homer in the fourth. At the end of the day the books showed he had five hits in nine times at bat and had driven in six runs.

Johnny Sain, who relieved starter Vic Raschi in the ninth, got credit for winning the first game—his 10th of the season. Sain also came back in the ninth of the nightcap, when the Sox shoved across two runs, to help Ray Scarborough over the rough spot. Starter Tom Gorman got credit for the victory.

The first game was played under protest of Boston manager Lou Boudreau after the sixth. At the time the Yanks had a 1-0 lead. Dom DiMaggio opened with a single to short centre. Mantle fielded the blooper, saw that DiMaggio had over-run first base and nailed the Boston outfielder.

BACK TO PLAY

The throw caught first-base umpire Bill Grieve with his back turned to the play and Boudreau stormed from the dugout after plate umpire Larry Napp called DiMaggio out.

Bob Avila and Al Rosen backed up Lemon's shutout pitching with homers.

The National League, its pennant already gone to Brooklyn, continued its battle for the other first-division berths.

New York Giants assured themselves of no worse than a tie for second place by battering Boston Braves into submission, 11-8 and 8-2. At the same time the third-place St. Louis Cardinals lost a night game to Cincinnati Reds 6-1. The results left the Giants leading by four games. Each has four to play.

Philadelphia Phillies advanced within 1½ games of the Cards by walloping the Dodgers 9-7 as Robin Roberts staggered to his 27th triumph.

In the only other game played, Detroit Tigers blew a four-run first-inning lead as they bowed to Tommy Byrne and St. Louis Browns 7-4.

Royals Edge Red Wings In 6-5 Victory

MONTREAL (AP) — Montreal Royals, winners of the International League pennant, still had a fighting chance in the final playoffs for the Governors Cup as they returned home today for the sixth game with Rochester Red Wings.

Rochester, leading 3-2 in the series, missed a chance to wrap it up at the Red Wings' ballwick last night when Walt Moryn batted in five runs with a double and homer as the Royals came from behind for a 6-5 victory.

Tom Lasorda will go to the mound tonight in an effort to keep Montreal's hopes alive, while Jack Collum will hurl for Rochester. If a seventh game is necessary, it will be played here Friday.

The decisive poke last night came in the eighth when Moryn slammed a three-run homer as his club trailed 3-5.

It came off Cot Deal, Rochester's starting pitcher. Ed Roebuck went seven innings for Montreal and got the victory, as Art Fabro pitched hitless relief ball for two innings.

TV Fans May Get Chance To See Return Bout

NEW YORK (AP)—Home television fans may get a look at the return fight between newly-crowned Heavyweight Champion Rocky Marciano and "unretired" Jersey Joe Walcott.

While nothing regarding this major point has been settled by the interested parties, it was learned from a good source that the chances are better than 2 to 1 that there will be a general telecast of the second bout. The fight may take place in late January in either Chicago or Miami.

The first scrap between the two Tuesday was beamed only to theatres in 31 cities via a closed circuit.

Felix Bocchicchio, the manager of Walcott, will come here in a couple of days to talk things over with promoter Jim Norris and Al Weil, manager of Marciano.

NO GREAT SURPRISE

The announcement of Walcott's decision to fight once more came as no great surprise to anyone. Walcott is contracted to get 30 per cent of the return and that could add up to more than $200,000 counting all the extras.

Immediately after the Philadelphia fight, Felix announced that Jersey Joe was all through. Yesterday he said he had given in to Walcott's plea for a chance to "make boxing history by recapturing the championship."

"We're ready to fulfill the contract," said Weill when he was told of the "unretirement." "But Rocky needs a rest and time to heal his cuts. I think Felix and Jim Norris will waive the 90-day clause for the return. We won't fight until after Jan. 1. I think Chicago or Miami is a good place for it."

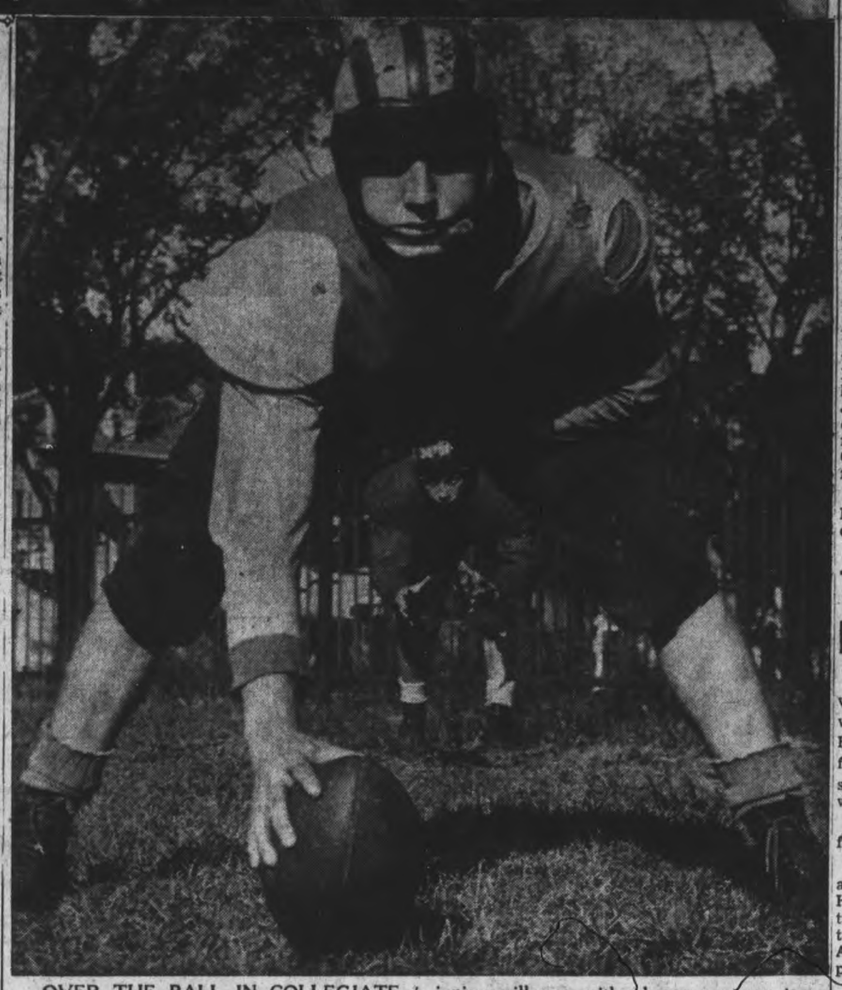
"That's okay with us," said Bocchicchio. "We won't quibble over the date."

Doctors Report Shantz Career Not Finished

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Southpaw Bobby Shantz of Philadelphia Athletics disclosed yesterday that the bone break which ended his 1952 pitching apparently will not affect his pitching future.

Shantz was hit by a pitched ball while batting against Walt Masterson in the Athletics-Washington Senators game Monday. He was at first reported to have suffered a fractured left wrist.

But he said yesterday that Dr. Ilarion Gopadze, the A's physician, had told him X-rays showed the break was in the arm bone, about three inches above the wrist.



"I'm very, very lucky," said wee Bobby. "Dr. Gopadze tells me the break is as clean as though someone cut the bone with a knife, that it will heal without even being put in a splint or a cast.

"And I'll be all right to pitch next season."

His 1952 record still stand at 24 wins, seven losses.

OVER THE BALL IN. COLLEGIATE BALL—Larry Forbes (front lower photo) will be snapping the ball back to Spin Hope (through Forbes' legs) Friday night on all punts as the P.C.V.S. Garnet and Grey seniors open their season with Oshawa collegiate's Combines at Riverside Park. The juniors will open with a league game against Oshawa C.V.I. at 6:30. Coach Al McQuarrie (second from left, top) gives last-minute advice to quarter Terry Roberts, an dhalves, Bob McKinney and Stewart Brooks (left to right).

Collegiate Gridders Get Set

Just how good will the P.C.V.S. Garnet and Grey senior and junior teams be this year, P.C.V.S. students are asking these days in school corridors. They'll see Friday night as the collegiate football season opens officially at Riverside Park, the Garnet and Grey meeting Oshawa's senior and O.C.V.I. juniors, starting at 6:30. This year the 1951 C.O.S.S.A. champions, coached by Bey Goulding, have been grouped with Oshawa Collegiates' combined seniors and Belleville Collegiate. The winner will advance directly into the finals in November. During the season they have planned exhibitions against Toronto schools and Trinity College School of Port Hope.

Al MacQuarrie's juniors have a better grouping, playing home and home games with St. Peter's High, last year's junior "B" C.O.S.S.A. champions, O.C.V.I., Oshawa Central and Lindsay.

SAYING LITTLE

Coach Goulding is keeping mum about this year's prospects after last week's exhibition win again St. Peter's seniors, only a 6-5 victory. The team lacks weight, both along the line and in the backfield, but seems to have speed which might carry them through.

Dave Langhorne who alternated last year with Bryon Young at quarter will start there Friday night. He handled the team well last year when given the opportunity and has the confidence of the team. He'll be working in the backfield with Bob Craw, a light, speedy player, at flying wing, and with Don Scriver, Spin Hope, Murray Grafstein, all veterans, at half. These boys will be in on passing plays which the team hopes to stress.

The line has been the big worry this year. Larry Forbes, one of the best insides in collegiate football, has been moved over to fill the centre gap left by Paul Frise. This breaks up the old combination at inside of Hugh Outram and Forbes, but a newcomer, Bruce Walker, has moved in.

Alternates of last year, Jack King and Gary Gilders, will have the steady job this fall at middle while the ends will be Ted Sanders, another old timer, and Charlie Geale, a newcomer from Port Colborne.

Former juniors Barry Hollingsworth and Jack Corbett will be alternating in the backfield while other linemen are Jim Haggart, Fred Ash, Don Hillis, Deane Lynch, Gord McGrath, John Eastwood, Dan Griffin, Grant Reader and Dick Miller.

LOOKING BETTER

Al MacQuarrie's junior charges appear much improved over last year's edition which had trouble winning. This year he's faced again with an entirely new squad, but the team seems to have a better spirit and balance.

The Garnet and Grey junior backfield is new, with two exceptions, Dave Coit, a half, and alternate quarter Jerry Strickland. Ross MacKenzie will start Friday night at flying wing, Bob McKinney, Stew Brooks and Coit, at half, and Terry Roberts, at quarter. These boys, all big, have come along rapidly in practices. Other backfielders will be Pete Carveth, Jerry Minnie and Hugh Pollard.

Another newcomer, Paul Snider, will be at snap, with Bob Keating and Bob Baker, insides, Don Lang and Don Stewart, middles, Harold Pullybank and Vern Smyth, at ends. Backing up these players will be other linemen, Jack Peirson, Bob Roode, Don Finley, Bob Martyn, Wally Whitnell, Ken Beck and Bill Rowe.

The juniors feature a heavy backfield, medium-sized line, good kicking and running, and fair passing. It appears this year will be much better than last.

This season the P.C.V.S. games will be played at Riverside Park. There will be a few games during the afternoons but they will mostly be under the lights. The seniors play their first games at home during the first four weeks, then won't likely play at home again for the season.

Toronto Man Wins Revolver Shoot

KITCHENER (CP)—P. C. Edward Barkley of Toronto yesterday won the grand aggregate prize, the House of Seagram trophy, in the fourth annual Kitchener Police Association revolver shoot. His total was 330.

The shoot drew 97 competitors from all over Ontario.

One of the main attractions was a challenge shoot, in which Mayor H. Franklin of St. Catharines beat two Kitchener ex-mayors, C. Mortimer Bezeau and H. W. Sturm. Ald. Clarence Seibert also took part.

G. Deady of Kingston won the Gore Mutual trophy for senior officers from inspectors up. His score was 226.

RALEIGH BREAKS WRIST

GUELPH (CP)—New York Rangers of the National Hockey League blanked Pittsburgh Hornets, American Hockey League champions, 2-0 in an exhibition hockey game before 2,500 fans here last night. It was the first game of the season for both teams.

A first-period goal by Neil Strain, a player with Saskatoon Quakers last season, was all that Rangers required. Big Eddy Slowinski added another in the second.

Chuck Rayner, whom many thought was washed up last season after a knee operation, kicked out 27 shots to convince everybody that Rangers won't be weak in goal this season.

The win was costly to Rangers. Ace centre Don Raleigh fractured his left wrist in the first period after a centre-ice collision with Tim Horton. It is believed he will be lost to the team for several weeks.

FALLS PROTESTS GAME

KITCHENER (CP) — Niagara Falls Kerrios have filed an official protest against the decision of plate umpire Jack Sims which last Saturday cost them the sixth game of the Ontario Baseball Association senior final. By losing they dropped the series to Kitchener Panthers 4-2.

Niagara Falls charge the umpire refused to call time when asked; that the diamond was unfit to play because of rain; that the Niagara team was not stalling and the forfeiture was unjustified.

HALIFAX (CP)—The Maritime Major Hockey League welcomed Sydney Millionaires back into the fold yesterday after a short-lived walkout. Millionaires decided to seek re-entry when club president Art Lipton said it was a case of sticking with the Majors "or there won't be any hockey."

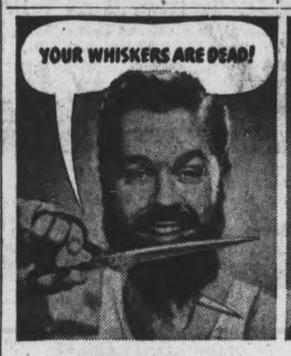
Arcara Aiming At New Heights

NEW YORK (AP)—Eddie Arcaro started after his third million dollars in purse money yesterday for 1952, and Calumet Farm's Mark-Ye-Well picked up votes as the year's best three-year-old as they combined to win the $29,050 Lawrence Realization at Belmont Park.

They romped home four lengths ahead of Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' One Count.

The 36-year-old Arcaro tagged along seventh and absolutely last with Mark-Ye-Well for the first mile, then took off after the others.



Arcaro had won the preceding race with Roman Fair, netting a $3,940 purse to become the first jockey to ride horses earning more than $2,000,000 in a single season.

When Mark-Ye-Well bounced home on top, he added another $20,000 clear, and shot his total to $2,021,121, of which he usually collects 10 per cent.

Claxton, Electric Eye Opener $2,000,000 G.E. Jet Plant

TORONTO.—Defence Minister Claxton officiated Wednesday at the opening of what he termed "a very significant addition to the nation's defence structure."

In stead of snipping the tradi-tional red ribbon he walked through the beam of a photo-electric cell and set in motion the complex machinery of a $2,000,000 jet engine overhaul plant.

Located at Downsview, the plant is the property of the federal government. It is being operated under contract to the Defence Production Department by Canadian General Electric Co.

Its initial function will be to overhaul and repair the American-built General Electric J-47 gas turbines which power F-86E Sabre interceptors of the R.C.A.F.

This work has been carried out in the past by G.E. plants in the United States. Canada would now save millions of dollars in foreign exchange, Mr. Claxton said.

The General Electric plant is the second such defence establishment at Downsview, de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. has been engaged for more than two years in the overhaul of British-made Goblin jets used in R.C.A.F. Vampires.

Another important new jet facility will open Monday when Avro Canada Ltd. unveils the mammoth plant at Malton which is already turning out the Orenda engines which propel that company's CF-100 all-weather fighter.

In the Montreal area, Rolls Royce of Britain is rushing to completion a plant for the assembly of Nene jets. These engines will be used in Canadian-made T-33 trainers.

Downsview, according to the defence minister, is destined to become the hub of R.C.A.F. technical services. Within the next few years it will be overhauling complete airframes as well as engines and accessories.

A large supply depot is being constructed near the new C.G.E. plant. The old plant of de Havilland Aircraft has been taken over by the Defence Department for conversion to airframe overhaul work.

American Surgeons' College Denounces Fee-Splitting

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—The American College of Surgeons today denounced fee-splitting between physicians and surgeons as "dishonest and unethical" and harmful to patients.

Thirteen college officials told of a renewed drive against the doctor kick-backs in a frank press conference with science writers.

They said most doctors are honest, but a "few bad apples" split fees, giving medicine a black eye.

Fee-splitting means a division of fee between the doctor who first diagnoses a patient's condition and the surgeon who operates on him.

It leads, the college officials said, to these evils:

Over-charging in bills; unnecessary operations; "ghost surgery" when a person thinks his own doctor is operating and the selected or "ghost" surgeon does it after the patient is anaesthetized; loss of public confidence in doctors.

THINGS TO WATCH

Dr. Alton Ochsner of New Orleans, immediate past president of the College of Surgeons, said you should be suspicious of fee-splitting if:

Your doctor sends you to only one surgeon, and later you get no bill from the physician, just a bill from the surgeon.

Your doctor doesn't give you a choice of surgeons to do the operation he says is necessary, or doesn't ask you who you want to do it.

Dr. Newell W. Philpott of Montreal, a regent, said he does not know of any fee-splitting in Montreal, but that he knows it is done in some localities nearby. He told of a young surgeon, starting in practice, who refused to make kick-backs, and had to leave an unnamed town within six months.

Give Eisenhower Equal Chance

LONDON (AP)—A leading British handbook said today a sharp shift in the betting on the United States presidential election has made Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower an even-money chance in Britain to beat Gov. Adlai Stevenson.

Ten days ago Stevenson was quoted as the odds-on, 1-to-3 favorite. A spokesman for the handbook—Douglas Stuart, Ltd., of London—said the odds now are 10 to 11 and take your pick. This means Stuart will put up $10 against 11 of yours, whichever candidate you want to bet on.

The spokesman said the furor over the expense fund of the Republican vice-presidential candidate, Richard Nixon, apparently had had no effect on the rise in Eisenhower's stock.

Handbook betting in Britain is open and legal.

2 Drivers Hurt As Sulkies Crash In Race

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Hal Gratton Patch, four-year-old black gelding owned by Hie and Gordon of Cobourg, won both heats in the 2:21 class at the Campbellford fair on Wednesday afternoon, while Empress Elgin, four-year-old bay mare owned and driven by Ted Atkinson of Campbellford was best in the 2:28 class.

East City Team Captures Parish Loop Championship

Immaculate Conception captured the championship of the Catholic Parish Softball League, beating Sacred Heart at the Bowl by 9-4 and 6-5 scores to sweep the series in two straight.

Gord Snape, Sr., started in the second tilt, but gave way to Guilfoyle in the third after fanning one. In four innings, Ken struck out six and allowed four hits and a walk in the tight scrap. Gord Snape, Sr., scored the winner in the eighth after getting three for four at bat. Maloney relieved Clancy in the third inning for S. H., and allowed but five hits. O'Brien, Towns, Heffernan, Farley and Shaughnessy shone afield. Teams:

I.C.—Snape, Sr., Donoghue, Bacon, Shaughnessy, Sullivan, Snape Jr., Heffernan, Guilfoyle, Towns, Deal.

'NEXT YEAR' FINALLY COMES — Crowding their manager, Chuck Dressen (centre), triumphant Brooklyn Dodgers whoop it up in their Ebbets Field dressing room after whipping the Philadelphia Phillies, 5-4, in the first game of a twi-light doubleheader to clinch the National League pennant. The Bums will be in the 1952 World Series and all Brooklyn was roaring with joy as the "Wait till next year" slogan finally came true.

Want More Government Economy In U.K.

LONDON (AP)—Britain's Conservatives appear fairly satisfied with the way their party is running the country. But they would like more government economy and better propaganda for the Tory viewpoint.

Conservative party officials last night disclosed some of the 180 resolutions that will be debated at the four-day annual party conference that opens at Scarborough Oct. 8.

Among them were demands for a "much greater sense of urgency and more evidence of a fighting spirit on the part of Conservative supporters throughout the country if Britain is to be saved from the ultimate fate of becoming a Socialist state."

Others criticize Prime Minister Churchill's government for failure to reduce the "intolerable burden of administrative expenditure — therefore of taxation — incurred during the life of the Socialist government."

Demands for a reduction in the number of government employees and the streamlining of government services also were made.

At least three resolutions attacked Conservative party officials for what is called their failure to combat effectively Labor party propaganda. These reflect concern caused by the obvious decline in the party's popularity since it was voted into office last October.

Big Business Keeping Track Of Stars

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Want to know who are the most sought-after stars in glamorville?

Here's the list: Mario Lanza, Judy Garland, Marilyn Monroe, Marlon Brando, Humphrey Bogart, Kirk Douglas, Martin and Lewis, Ann Blyth, Gene Tierney, Betty Grable and Rita Hayworth.

This is the straight dope, as gleaned from the celebrity service, a clearinghouse for news of the whereabouts of famous people.

The service has offices in New York, London, Paris, Rome and Hollywood. The latter is a headache, reported Lynne Bowers, head of the branch.

WRONG NUMBER

"People out here worry about their privacy. They change their telephone numbers almost as often as they change their socks."

Celebrity service supplies information about the travels of famous figures to agencies, columnists and other legitimate parties. Miss Bowers had some comments about the stars who evoke the most inquiries:

"When Lanza started his fight with M-G-M, everyone wanted to know where he was. Judy Garland is another one who has been in the news. We have dozens of calls for her.

"Of course, everyone wants Marilyn Monroe's private phone number. Brando is impossible. Lots of people try to get in touch with him, but you can't get him on the phone and he won't answer messages. I can't figure why we should get so many calls for Ann Blyth, but we do. I guess she epitomizes the perfect young lady."

Miss Bowers said that the service had files on 100,000 personalities.

Requests are seasonal. "Every Hallowe'en we get requests for the whereabouts of Bela Lugosi and Boris Karloff," Miss Bowers reported.

Insurance Man Dies

HAMILTON (CP)—Robert Hugh Beal, 62, well-known Hamilton insurance man, died Tuesday. Born in Brockville, Mr. Beal was a former bank manager at the Bank of Nova Scotia. In 1923 he formed an insurance partnership with George L. Goodfellow and at one time was vice-president of the Ontario Insurance Agents' Association.

Ask Crop Protection

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Federation of Agriculture yesterday called on management and labor to "end strikes or lockouts during the handling of perishable crops." G.C. Nichols of Blenheim presented the resolution on behalf of the Kent County Federation of Agriculture.

FLYING OFFICER JOHN E. GREATRIX, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Greatrix, 438 Park St., Peterborough, a pilot with the R.C.A.F.'s 430 Squadron at North Bay, will be among personnel moving to Europe on Monday when three R.C.A.F. Sabre-jet squadrons will fly the Atlantic.

Bob Hope Makes Big Radio Deal

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Bob Hope's representatives yesterday announced what they called the biggest single season deal in radio's history—a $2,000,000 contract under which the comedian will do six shows a week.

The sponsor will be General Foods Corporation. Hope will invade daytime radio for the first time with a 15-minute show on tape, five days a week, Monday through Friday. He also will do a 30-minute night variety show for the same sponsor, tentatively scheduled for each Wednesday. Both programs will be carried by the NBC network.

Man Electrocuted

WOODSTOCK (CJ)—Eric Schoeneich, 43, Kitchener, was killed yesterday when wiring a cottage at Pine Pond in Blenheim township. Schoeneich is believed to have touched a lead wire carrying 4,600 volts from a transformer. Police were told the victim "went up in flames."

TWO HUNDRED young women from 13 countries of Western Europe and the United States meet in the Bavarian Alps to discuss the opportunities and responsibilities of women in public life. Women shown here are listening, with head phones, to speeches at a plenary session. Proceedings were translated simultaneously into English, French and German.

German Women Play Role In Affairs Of The Country

BONN, Germany—While there are no women as yet holding key posts in industry, business or professions in the Federal Republic of Western Germany, there are three women judges and over 100 women representatives in provincial parliaments.

The Republic is a staunch upholder of women's rights, has 38 women who are elected representatives to the Parliament out of a total of 400 members.

"We are 20 years behind the times," explains Frau Felicitas Tauche, head of Women's Affairs in the Ministry of the Interior. "In 1932, Hitler barred women from all liberal professions and key posts and sent them back to children, kitchen and church. That's why there aren't many women ready to take over important positions. But we will catch up with lost time."

Frau Tauche admits that while theoretically German women are supposed to enjoy the same opportunities and privileges as men, this just isn't so.

For instance, a woman in public office still can be dismissed if she marries. The rate of pay in government offices is the same for women and men, with the exception of teachers, who get 10 per cent less and work two hours less.

Frau Tauche places women into three general categories: women in public life, working women and the house-wife mothers.

Politically speaking, German women are inclined to follow the Christian Democratic Party, principally because they are staunch advocates of religious teaching in schools, according to Frau Tauche. But, since their political education is sketchy at best, many of them are inclined to follow their husbands' lead.

While a German woman still must have her husband's signature in order to open a bank account, she has had the right to dispose of her own earnings since 1900. Only recently, a husband could overrule his wife with regard to which school their children attended.

Begfore the end of this year, legislation will be enacted that will erase all these discrepancies with regard to women. Another law now under consideration is equal pay for equal work. All of the trade unions appear to favor this measure.

Frau Tauche, who is a lawyer by profession, spent 10 years in Poland, finally abandoning her flourishing law practice in 1945. Her views about the role of women in the new Germany are very definite.

"They are aware of their responsibilities before their own people and before the world," she says. "They also believe that they have the right to a voice in state affairs in addition to their duties as wives and mothers. But it's only if they have equal rights that they can accomplish anything.

"They don't want a 'woman's law' as opposed to a man's law'. Rather, they want a generally humane law."

Telescopic Pictures May Show Starlight Bends

WASHINGTON — From half way round the world, Yerkes Observatory astronomer Dr. George Van Biesbroeck has reported to the National Geographic Society that his "Einstein Shift" expedition reached its goal.

With a completed set of photographs of the night sky over Khartoum, capital of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Dr. Van Biesbroeck obtained the data with which he hopes to verify that light from stars can bend in space.

"Today, only 95 degrees Fahrenheit in the shade, we began taking down the telescope, which we found in good operating condition in spite of a heavy layer of brown desert dust," the Chicago University astronomer and physicist wrote.

The telescope had been set up last February to photograph the stars during the February 25 total eclipse of the sun. This month, Dr. Van Biesbroeck returned to Africa to record the same stars in the same relative position in the sky, but minus the sun.

COMPARE PICTURES

By comparing the two sets of pictures, he hopes to measure accurately the apparent displacement of the stars which, years ago, Dr. Albert Einstein predicted would be caused if star light passes close to the sun.

Only when the sun is totally eclipsed by the moon can the star field behind it be photographed to record image displacement. In the cloudless Khartoum sky last February, Dr. Van Biesbroeck was able to record the positions of at least 20 stars—all too faint to be seen by the naked eye—grouped around the sun's corona.

The telescope was left locked in position. Upon his return, Dr. Van Biesbroeck reported, three nights went by without the stars being visible through the clouds. Then a clear night suddenly gave him his chance, and a matching set of pictures were obtained.

The apparent movement of the stars which the astronomer seeks —so small as to be measured only by delicate machines "reading" the photographs—is thought to be caused by the gravitational attraction of the sun on passing light. If this "shift" can be proved, star light flashing through space will be shown to act as if it had actual weight.

Dr. Jordan Says

Polyneuritis Often Symptom Of Infectious Diseases

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

A 28-year-old reader says that she has been troubled with a condition diagnosed as polyneuritis and wants to know if it is any kin of Parkinson's disease.

This reader's concern is readily understandable, but before discussing polyneuritis the question of its relationship to Parkinson's disease can be answered with a "no".

Polyneuritis merely means inflammation and pain in several nerves. Sometimes the condition gets worse as time goes on, though this is not inevitable. Quite often, the parts supplied by the affected nerves show weakness, wasting of the muscles, pain, tenderness and often changes in censation or feeling.

Sometimes, the pain is severe, and once in a while the interference with sensation is so great that a pin can be stuck into the skin of the affected areas without being felt at all.

There are a host of possible causes. Most of the well-known metals, such as mercury, bismuth, arsenic and lead are responsible in some cases. Vitamin-deficiency diseases, particularly beriberi, which is a vitamin "B" deficiency, and pellagra may be at fault.

Polyneuritis sometimes develops from general dietary deficiencies during pregnancy and in the presence of such general diseases as diabetes or pernicious anemia. Chronic alcoholism can produce this condition.

Infections may also produce polyneuritis. Polyneuritis is a frequent symptom of so-called rheumatic infections. It may complicate typhoid fever, scarlet fever, influenza, mumps and almost any of the well-known infectious diseases.

Whether severe or mild, the cure for polyneuritis depends on finding the cause. If caused by a vitamin deficiency, for example, the proper remedy is to treat that error in the diet. When it complicates known infections, recovery generally takes place without special measures as the patient improves from the disease responsible.

BED REST NEEDED

Rest in bed is usually needed not only because of the muscular weakness, but also because the heart may become involved. Serious deformities can develop because of muscular weakness, if the limbs are not supported by splints, sandbags or other means.

The sufferers from polyneuritis are indeed to be pitied. The pain and the muscular weakness usually interfere with walking or with the use of the hands and arms, depending on where the trouble is located. Treatment usually requires great patience on the part of the patient and ingenuity on the part of the physician.

Father In Court Threatens Dogs Which Bit Sons

LINDSAY (ENS)—For the first time in Lindsay police court, a complaint was heard today against the owners of two dogs accused of biting two young Verulam township boys.

Carmel Thurston was brought to court by Arthur Hergott, Dunsford farmer, on charges that the dogs, crossed Alsations and collies, had bitten and torn the trousers of his two boys, David 10, and Wayne, 8, when they had gone for water at the Thurston home.

Hergott lives with his nine children in a home rented from the father of Mr. Thurston. He explained in court that he had to go to the Thurston property to obtain water. His boys had done the job while he worked in Lindsay during the day, and had been attacked a dozen times by the dogs, twice while he accompanied them in the evening.

The Thurstons claimed that the dogs were not vicious, but added that the boys had struck the animals when they were younger and had antagonized them. Hergott displayed a pair of jeans, belonging to his son, Wayne, which were ripped down the right leg. He claimed that the ripping had taken place when the dogs attacked the boy about a month ago. In another instance, his other son, David, had been attacked and had his knee bitten.

Both boys were called to the stand and testified that they had been afraid of the dogs for some time. They showed the court the scars on their legs and named the times when the incidents had taken place.

Hawley Thurston testified that the boys had bothered the dogs and further that the rip in the jeans displayed had occurred when the younger lad, Wayne, was helping him gather field stone last spring.

Magistrate Gee agreed with Crown counsel Lorne Jordan Q.C. that the boys should be protected from the dogs in the future. But he accepted the offer of H. A. Richardson, counsel for the Thurstons, that the dogs be tied up during the time when the Hergott father or children were drawing water and adjourned the case sine die.

At the conclusion of the trial Hergott threatened in open court to bring another charge within a few weeks and also stated his determination to shoot the dogs if they ever attacked the children while on his property. He was warned by crown counsel Jordan not to take the law into his own hands.

Lawyers Admitted to Bar

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Justice P.E.F. Smily yesterday administered the barrister's oaths to nine graduates of Osgoode Hall and 32 lawyers from other provinces at a special convocation of the Law Society of Upper Canada. Rt Hon. Sir John Morris, British Lord Justice of Appeal and special speaker at the convocation, said honor and integrity within the legal profession form the basis of the legal system.

Believe Stevenson Quips Winning Over US Voters

By JOHN TRACY

NEW YORK (CP)—Governor Adlai Stevenson has been criticized for campaigning as though he were running for toastmaster instead of President of the United States. But some of the correspondents in his press train think he may be reaching more of the voters than Gen. Dwight Eisenhower.

Stevenson's quips and gags have drawn fire from the Republicans for making a laughing matter of national politics, but the Democrat Governor has a knack for remarks that get into the newspapers.

W. H. Lawrence of The New York Times, who has travelled with both candidates, says Eisenhower's speeches sound better than they read and this is a "deterrent factor" since most Americans depend on newspapers to learn of each candidate's approach to the basic issues.

Whether Iek's blunderbuss-like oratory or Stevenson's rapier-like wit will ultimately win, only the voters can say. Stevenson's former law partner, George Bell says the Illinois Governor is saying what he thinks even if it costs him some votes.

ENJOYS HIMSELF

"The Governor has great enjoyment of life, great wit," says Ball, now executive director of Volunteers for Stevenson. "He does not tailor his personality for public taste. He enjoys himself."

Stevenson pulls out quip after quip at Republican expense.

At Bristol, Conn., last week he spoke in a high-school football field. He remarked he wouldn't be surprised to see the Republican team trot out in "1890 uniforms" with Eisenhower the ball carrier but Senator Robert A. Taft the quarterback.

He has referred to the meeting between Eisenhower and Taft, Eisenhower's rival for the nomination on Morningside Heights, site of Ike's Columbia University residence. The Democrat suggested that henceforth New York would be called "Munich."

In another reference to the meeting in which the Democrats say Ike bowed to the Republican "old guard," Stevenson wondered whether Taft now is a six-star general. He said this was because Taft had dictated surrender terms to the former army officer whose insignia was five stars.

Stevenson really opened up a bagful of sarcasm when he discussed the Republican theme of "time for a change." Here are a couple:

At Denver, Colo.—"I shall not argue that it is necessarily fatal to change horses in mid-stream. But I doubt if it is wise to jump on a struggling two-headed elephant trying to swim in both directions at the same time in very rough water."

At Flint, Mich.—"Now as far as the Republican leaders are concerned, the desire for change is understandable. I suppose if I had been sewn up in the same underwear for 20 years, I'd want a change, too . . . It takes more than a new paint job to hide model-T ideas."

Early in the campaign, when the Republicans came down hard on the Democrat administration's record, Stevenson said he would make a deal with them—if the Republicans would stop telling lies about the Democrats, he would stop telling the truth about the Republicans.

He accused Ike of being a "me too" candidate and said he would stand on the Democrat platform if Eisenhower would move over.

SUCCEEDS MOSHER—Harry Chappell, 49, of Winnipeg, was chosen president of Canada's biggest transport union — the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees—following the surprise withdrawal of veteran president A. R. Mosher. The 72-year-old Mosher said he resigned to restore harmony in the union he founded in 1908. Chappell is a supporter of Mosher, who became honorary C.B.R.E. president.

Little Merchant Newsboy Plan Appeals To UK

LONDON (Reuters)—Seventeen Britons who studied newspaper production methods in the United States recommended last night that Britain adopt the American "little merchant" newsboy system.

The recommendation came in an 85-page report from a team sponsored by the Anglo-American Council on Productivity. The team represented the British provincial press.

In one of 62 recommendations for increasing efficiency of British newspaper production, the team declared:

"Efforts should be made to convince the various authorities in this country that delivery of newspapers by young people on the lines of the 'little merchant' system seen in the U.S. can be a worthy, and healthy effort, need not interfere with education and can instil in the youngsters the germ of ability in business."

It pointed out that U.S newspaper carrier boys generally act as private contractors for home deliveries and the more sales they promote the more they earn.

In Britain, youngsters making home deliveries are almost always paid a straight wage.

Moncrief Farm Sold To Crowley

Report of the sale of the Moncrief orchard farm in North Monaghan to J. J. Crowley, 273 Hunter St., was confirmed today by Ernest Ridout Real Estate Ltd. It is situated on the north side of No. 28 Highway on the slope of "water trough hill' west of Armstrong Lumber Co.

The orchard consists mostly of apple trees, and was developed especially in its young plantings by the late Norman Moncrief. Several years ago he built a cold storage plant on the property. It is one of the few orchards north of Rice Lake, and it has been said that the quality of the fruit gains in flavor from its more northerly location, as compared with the apples along the Lake Ontario front.

It is understood that Mr. Crowley does not take possession until next spring, and that Mrs. Moncrief remains in occupation through the fall and winter, disposing of the season's crop.

Realty interest in that neighborhood, now a suburb of the city, has been increasing in the last few years, as reflected by the houses that have already been built in that neighborhood.

Tim Buck Nominated

TORONTO (CP)—Tim Buck, national leader of the Labor-Progressive (Communist) party, last night was nominated as the party's candidate in Toronto-Trinity in the next federal election.

He criticized United States influence in Canada and urged that the country remove all U.S. controls, influences and holdings of Canada's natural resources.

Both he and Stewart Smith, former city controller, said the party will sponsor 70 or 80 candidates at the next election.

What A Wonderful Dish to set before a tired man at the end of a busy day. Your husband will really appreciate delicious KRAFT DINNER. It's macaroni-and-cheese at its best. And it cooks to tasty lightness in only 7 minutes! What's more, it does wonders for an ailing food budget. You see, "Kraft Dinner" gives you a wholesome main dish for 4 that costs less than 5 cents a serving. Better get some soon! And look for it in the brand new package with the easy-to-notice design that helps you in your shopping because it catches your eye right away.

Never Noticed how a lively tune on the radio makes housework go much faster? Particularly when the tempo of the tune is gay and bright. And it's the same with the food you serve. The flavour can be flat—or it can be bright. What makes the difference? So often it's WINDSOR SALT. I use Windsor Salt both in the kitchen and at the table to brighten the flavour of most of my favourite foods. It makes a big flavour difference in salads, for instance. Whether the salad is just lettuce-and-tomatoes—or a jellied fruit salad for company—Windsor Salt makes it twice as tempting. And Windsor Salt is always free-running. No wonder it's the most popular salt in Canada!

"No Time" Is No Excuse for not giving your family the kind of breakfast they need. It takes so little time to prepare one of the most delicious breakfast treats I know . . . 5 Minute "CREAM OF WHEAT". It cooks to wonderfully smooth deliciousness in just five minutes of boiling, and it takes just a few seconds more to sprinkle it with raisins or brown sugar. M-mmm!—there it is! A breakfast feast to waken the sleepiest sleepyhead. Be sure to ask for the package with the familiar trade mark "Cream of Wheat" and the smiling chef—both registered trade marks of The Cream of Wheat Corp. and Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.

Here's To Your Very Good Health! Yes, it's a toast to health and beauty when you drink the juice of one fresh lemon in a glass of water — first thing on arising. You see, this natural fruit drink helps keep you regular the healthful way. That's because lemon-in-water gently helps your system regulate itself. It's good for what ails you. So take my tip—if you're feeling out of sorts, follow this healthful lemon formula for feeling better. It always makes me feel like a new woman. But one thing I make a point of doing. I always use SUNKIST LEMONS. I find I get more, delicious juice from them than any others I've ever tried.

Imagine How Surprised your husband will be to find out you're saving money! And he'll be so impressed, he'll want to imitate you in buying Canada Savings Bonds for the family kitty. Between generous interest rates and the guarantee that they'll always be worth full face value, these bonds are a real bargain. Just yesterday, when I was in at my branch of the BANK OF MONTREAL asking about Canada Savings Bonds, the manager explained to me that, by holding on to my bond until maturity, I can sit back and benefit from the healthy interest rate of 3.44%! And the instalment plan makes Canada Savings Bonds so easy to buy! Only 5% down is required, with the balance over a year. In other words, for as little as $2.50, you can make the down-payment on an excellent investment—and help your country to keep the lid on inflation. It's a bargain that I, for one, am going to take full advantage of when the bonds go on sale at the B of M next month.

It's A "Regular" On My Shopping List. You see, INSTANT CHASE & SANBORN COFFEE is a "must" in our house. For a "quickie" cup between household chores, there's nothing like it. It takes no longer to make than boiling the water. And it's a hostess' best friend . . . it's as easy to make ten cups as one. But the real reason I like to have a supply of Instant Chase & Sanborn always handy is that it's just plain good. You see, it's made by folks who "know their coffee"—it's the result of over 100 years of coffee experience. Something else you'll like about Instant Chase & Sanborn—it's truly economical. The regular size jar gives you the same number of cups as a pound of ground coffee—but what a difference in price!

Right Out Of The Blue — the whitest wash you've ever seen! Sounds easy, doesn't it? Well, it is easy. Easy to get sparkling white sheets, towels, pillow cases, shirts and table linen . . . when you use Blue. Just swish a little Blue in the final rinsing. Blue is kind to your finest fabrics—so you're not taking chances when you use it to get your washings snowy-white. And the cost? Think nothing of it! . . . A few pennies a month, that's all. Yes, Blue prevents yellow tinge. And, incidentally, it's marvellous for rinsing white hair, too!

Yes, for the whitest wash, it's RECKITT'S BLUE.

They Say That "a rose by any other name would smell as sweet". Well that's true but I've found that "any other name" won't do when it comes to buy g Face-Elle tissue handkerchiefs. I know from experience that the way to be sure of getting FACE-ELLE quality is to ask for it by name. That's important because Face-Elle is often confused with another brand name which some people apply to all tissue handkerchiefs. Say "Face-Elle, please" and you'll enjoy the comfort of deluxe quality at an economy price . . . the tissue that's so much softer yet is actually stronger and more absorbent too!

Century-Old Landmark To Disappear

MONTREAL (CP)—Bonaventure railway station, century-old landmark, is about to disappear from the Montreal scene.

Wrecking crews are demolishing the old Canadian National Railways station. This will allow extension of Windsor Street, one of Montreal's main thoroughfares.

Montrealers first called the terminus Bonaventure—literally "good adventure"—in 1847 when it was little more than a woodshed serving wood-burning trains.

From Bonaventure the city watched its first sons go off to war. It welcomed such distinguished visitors as Queen Marie of Romania, Lloyd George, the King of Siam, Sarah Bernhardt, John L. Sullivan and President Howard Taft.

There have been three Bonaventure stations. The original woodshed was replaced by a rambling wooden structure in 1864 and that, in turn, was torn down in 1887 to make way for the present two-storey, red-brick building.

Considered the latest in Victorian architecture, the station had an interior panelled in hand-carved oak, a terazzo floor and stained glass windows imported from Italy.

A fire in 1916 gutted the interior and three towers on the roof were destroyed. When the damage was repaired, the towers were omitted.

The first time Montrealers bade troops good-bye there was in 1866 when a volunteer militia left by special train to meet the Fenian raiders from New York state. The last time troops passed en masse through the building was three years after the Second World War when they and their war brides were welcomed back.-

CURVED SCREEN of Cinerama dwarfs an orchestra recording background music for the first test sequence of films.

WALLER: "I would hate to do all I know how to do."

3 Cameras, Curved Screen Bring New Reality To Films

By RICHARD KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA). — Fred Waller seemed very happy about the whole thing, especially the part where three people got sick.

"Yes, sir," he said, "three of them got right up, real sick. It was very successful." And he chortled over the memory.

He had a right to be happy. When those three people became ill, it meant Waller's 15-year work was over. He had built a method of taking and projecting motion pictures that makes the audience part of the action. A test sequence, a shot of a roller coaster, was what caused the nausea.

For lack of better words, Waller's "Cinerama" system must be classed as three-dimensional pictures. But it is more than just a way of fooling the eyes into seeing depth. Waller, himself, likes to call it "motion pictures with a thrill dimension."

The heart of Cinerama is a new concept of sight and sound. Three cameras are hooked together in the photographing of a scene, each recording a third of the scene in perfect synchronization. Similarly, six microphones are used, each recording the sounds picked up in six different areas on its own sound track.

• • •

NEW SCREEN

To show a Cinerama film, Waller designed an immense, curved screen, higher and wider than any existing projection screen. Three projectors flash the three films on the screen, and eight speakers, spotted all around the theatre, amplify the sound tracks.

The result is a scene that leaves the audience "wrapped in action and bathed in sound." If someone speaks at the left side of the screen, the words come from the left. If an airplane zooms across the screen, the sound follows it across.

"The audience isn't just looking at a picture," says Waller, "they're going through a real, physical, emotional experience."

The intense realism created is obvious in a series of shorts, which will mark Cinerama's public debut. A Broadway theatre has been rebuilt and equipped with the Cinerama system to present the two-hour program.

At private showings, though, Cinerama has proved its point. Besides the unfortunate trio who couldn't take the roller coaster trip, the audience leaned in its seats to bank with an airplane, ducked to avoid the boom of a sailboat and threw up its arms to avoid the spray of a speeding motor boat.

Waller says this is only the beginning.

HORROR PICTURES

"I would hate to do all I know how to do now with a horror picture," he says. "If I did a real Boris Karloff chiller on Cinerama I'd have people fainting all over the place."

• • •

Some movie officials look to Cinerama as a weapon to get people out of their television-equipped living rooms and back in the theatres. Waller thinks that may happen.

"If Johnny Q. Public likes it," he says, "and likes it enough to pay 10 to 20 per cent more to see it—why, the world is ours."

The admission charge will have to be increased, because Cinerama equipment is expensive to install in a theatre, and Cinerama films cost more to make. Waller says he's "only estimating," but says it might cost about $60,000 to rebuild a theatre and install Cinerama.

"But if it would bring people back to the theatre," he says, "what difference how much it costs?"

A tall, thin, graying, nervous man, Waller has been inventing things—from water skis to the widely-used Waller Gunnery Trainer—for years. He's an old hand in the movie industry, too, having been a producer, director and special effects expert.

The production division of Cinerama is now working on its first dramatic film. And plans are underway for other Cinerama theatres.

"I just hope," says Waller, "they use great restraint in picking subjects for films. Outdoor epics would be great and so would straight dramas. But I'm worried about horror on Cinerama. It might scare people so they'd never go to the movies again."

Church To Tolerate Mild Form Of Ancestor Worship In East

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SAIGON, Indo-China (CP)—The Roman Catholic church in the Orient is preparing to tolerate a mild form of ancestor worship among its communicants.

It was learned from a high church official that this dispensation, expected soon, is intended to make it as easy as possible for Orientals to accept Christianity.

The step is not as startling as it sounds. Its real effect is to bring the church's teaching in Asia into line with its practice in the west.

Ancestor worship will remain taboo if the spirit of an ancestor is worshipped as a god.

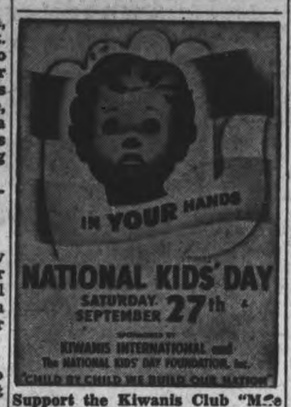
MORE LIKE REVERENCE

But in Indo-China and many other parts of the Orient the "worship" is more a reverence for the memory of ancestors and a respect for ancient family tradition.

Asiatics place flowers or burn incense or candles before pictures of their ancestors or near tombs or family scrolls.

One church authority said:

"If the Christian in the west can revere the memory of his dead ones and pray for their souls, surely it is ridiculous to forbid the practice in the east."



Previously the Roman Catholic church has accommodated itself to Confucianism, which is a code of social principles rather than a religion. It is the basis of family life in Korea, Japan, China and the countries of southeast Acia.

IN NATIVE TONGUE

Other concessions made in the Orient by Rome include the right to hold services and administer the sacraments in the local language.

In Communist China, where public celebration of the mass is forbidden, priests have been authorized to strip it to its essentials. A priest may meet in a cafe with two or three persons desiring communion. While it is apparently only a friendly chat over biscuits and wine, their conversation may be in the form of the service and the refreshments communion.

There is an increasing tendency to pattern churches on local architecture and assimilate native customs and practices into the religion. In Hanoi, Indo-China, the Dominican Fathers have built a church in the style of a Buddhist temple.-

Goes To Shopinsay To Test Memory

SHAPINSAY, Orkneys, Scotland (CP)—William Drever of Medicine Hat, Alta., left the tiny Orkney Island of Shapinsay for Canada 61 years ago. He was a little boy.

Through the years in Western Canada he remembered a vision of his old home—of a stone-flagged floor and a particular stone of special shape.

But he wasn't sure if the stone floor was one of those tricks of the subconscious mind.

He wanted to visit Shapinsay again so he crossed the Atlantic and went to the old homestead.

He knelt on the floor and examined the flagstones. Sure enough. It was there—the peculiar stone. His childhood recollection had been accurate.-

R.C.A.F. Band Presenting Concert Here

When band music fans go to see and hear the R.C.A.F. Training Command Concert Band at the Brock St. Arena at 8:30 tonight, they will see at least one familiar face. Trumpeter LAC Wilfred Jones is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Jones of Water St. N.

The 45-piece concert band which is rated as one of Canada's best is putting on tonight's concert under the auspices of R.C.A.F. 428 Wing, of Peterborough. The proceeds of the show will be used to help the city's air cadets grow and flourish. The local wing sponsors the 534 City of Peterborough Air Cadet Squadron.

The band has travelled in Canada from Newfoundland to Banff and last summer it visited the United States. That is just the sort of life that LAC Jones likes.

LINDSAY MAN

He mentioned that he and a Lindsay man, Horace Beard, represent this district in the band.

Wilf Jones, who is 19, has two older brothers, Arthur and Harold who were in the Navy during the Second World War. Arthur, like Wilfred, is a musician. Wilfred received his earlier training with the Salvation Army Band here.

The band does no marching. It concentrates on music because it is strictly a concert band containing brass, woodwind, string bass and percussion sections.

Tonight's program shows a wide variety designed to please almost every taste. The band leads off with the overture "Oberon" by Carl M. Vonweber, followed by "The Afternoon of a Fawn" by Debussy, Spanish Dance "Bolero", Mozcowski; cornet solo "Ecstasy", by Lenord B. Smith; Fantasy ton; tone poem "Tap Roots", "Casey Jones", Seibert and New-Frank Skinner; march "Imperial Echoes", Safroni; waltz "Voices of Spring", Strauss; tenor solos "E Lucevan Le Stelle" from "La Tosca", Puccini and "Homing" arranged by Sgt. Eric Ford; overture "Iolanthe" Sir Arthur Sullivan; selection of Cole Porter songs and finally the R.C.A.F. March Past. The many people who saw and enjoyed hearing the R.C.M.P. band here last year will be anxious to see how this other top military band compares.

WILFRED JONES, trumpeter with the R.C.A.F. Training Command Band that is playing tonight in the Brock Arena, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Jones, Water St. N. The band, presenting a varied program, is regarded as one of Canada's finest.

Susie Has Done It Again Has Twin Calves 6th Time

KESWICK — Susie the Holstein cow has done it again. She gave birth to twins this week, for the sixth consecutive year.

Mother and twins, 100 pounds and 74 pounds, are doing fine. Her owner, Cecil Sedore, is proud. Susie has given birth to twins every years since 1946.

Despite the fact that Susie is 13 years old, which is getting on in years for a cow, there were no complications at the birth.

The twins have been named Gery and Rosie. Their mother, said Mr. Sedore, also has quite a reputation as a milk producer.

Forestry service fighters battled more than three hours before putting out the blaze, touched off by a spark from a pump.

Signal Oil estimated the loss at $75,000.

Smoke In City Causes Cancer

PORTSMOUTH, England (Reuters)—A British cancer expert warned today that smoke polluting the air of big cities contains a chemical substance known to cause cancer of the lung.

Dr. Percy Stokes, a specialist working for the British Empire cancer campaign, told a smoke-abatement conference that coal smoke contained in the air carries a quantity of benzpyrene. The amount is higher in winter than in summer.

"It is safe to say, I think, that . . .atmospheric pollution by domestic smoke is an important factor in the genesis of lung cancer," he said.

"Tobacco smoke is superimposed upon it as another important factor," he added.

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—The electrically-operated main entrance doors of the Sears, Roebuck and Co., store didn't swing open as customers approached. Thieves stole the electric eye early yesterday.

Killing People With A-Bomb Cheap Operation Expert Says

LONDON (AP)—Killing people with atomic bombs is a cheap operation, a British mathematician said in a technical journal published today.

It works out at a rate of about £1 per corpse, according to the calculations of Fred Hoyle in an article in the Atom Scientists' News.

In a grim discussion of "the economics of extermination." Hoyle said the cost of killing in the Second World War was "several thousand pounds" per victim. Then he assumed that a well placed atomic bomb could kill 25,000 persons, so that it offers an economical means of wiping out populations.

"But this estimate should not be quoted too precisely, since the supply of human material would very likely run out before all the bombs available could be used," Hoyle said. The bomb, he concluded "is a grotesquely cheap means of extermination."

Hoyle added:

"We anticipate that, in the near future, the production rate of fissionable material will rise to about 20 tons per year, which would be sufficient for an annual manufacture of 6,000 bombs."

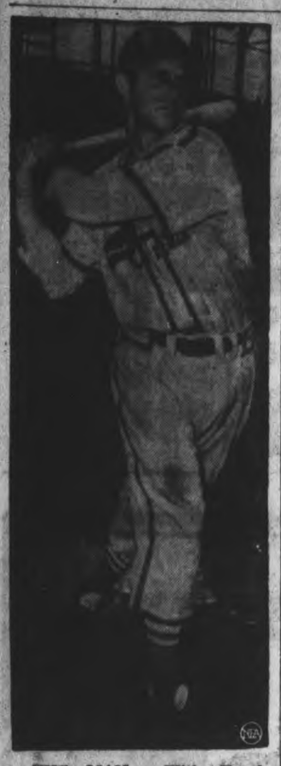
Thousands Send Nixon Telegrams

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans by the tens of thousands responded with a tumultuous outpouring of messages yesterday in reply to Senator Richard Nixon's dramatic radio-TV plea of innocence in using an $18,000 political fund.



Nixon had asked the people to give their verdict — whether he should step aside or remain as Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's vice-presidential running mate on the Republican ticket.

The response was swift and vast. Telegraph wires were jammed, with huge backlogs. Offers of money for a new "Nixon fund" piled up. Newspapers throughout the U.S. were swamped with requests for the address of Republican national headquarters—something Nixon forgot to mention.

Republican leaders summed up the verdict this way—"overwhelming exoneration."

Lands 21-lb. Muskie

LAKEFIELD (ENS). — Doug. Davis was a proud and happy man this week, when, after about 10 minutes fishing, he succeeded in hooking a 21-pound muskie while at his cottage on Deer Bay. With Mr. Davis were Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Pruner of Peterborough. The water was so rough that Mr. Pruner finally had to lend a hand at the landing while Mr. Davis looked after the motor. The bait Mr. Davis was using at the time was an Archer spinner and a worm.

THE MAN — With Frank Baumholtz of the Cubs making it close, the Cardinals' great Stanley Musial, above, was expected to win his sixth National League batting championship, the third in a row.

A HAWES QUALITY PRODUCT

PLASTIC AUTO BODIES like the one on the above car may be in mass production by an American firm soon. Shown for the first time in Canada at the C.N.E. this year, the new type of body was seen in Peterborough for the first time Wednesday. Its manufacturers claim many advantages for the new type of material, a combination of plastic and fibre glass, over conventional metal bodies.

Steel Replaced By Plastic In Bodies For Automobiles

Something new in automobile bodies was seen in Peterborough for the first time Wednesday.

Anyone who noticed a low slung sleek-lined green sportscar on downtown streets and thought it was "one of those expensive foreign models," was wrong.

Although it looked like the latest creation of an European auto manufacturer, it was really a jeep chassis with a plastic body.

Shown for the first time in Canada at the C.N.E. this year, it is the first commercially produced plastic automobile body.

It is made of a combination of plastic, two layers of glass fiber mat and two layers of glass cloth. It is several times stronger than the average steel auto body and weighs only 185 pounds.

At present it is being manufactured by a California company but it is not yet in mass production. The type of plastic used in its construction is manufactured in a chemical plant at Elmira, Ontario.

Its manufacturers claim many advantages for this new type of auto body as compared with the conventional metal bodies used on all autos at present.

In the United States, it sells for $695, only a fraction of the cost of the $3,000 to $5,000 it costs to have a custom-built body made of metal. The only type being manufactured at present is of sports car design, and fits a frame with a 100 inch wheelbase.

Here are some of the advantages over metal bodies that its manufacturers claim for the new material.

They say it is rust proof, and dent proof, light in weight which means a saving in gasoline consumption, has a low centre of gravity which is an important safety factor and in addition permits flexibility in design. Later this year, the company producing the new type of body hopes to be able to offer a variety of sizes to fit standard size frames.

At present, the plastic bodies are painted, but it is predicted that in the near future, the color will be "molded-in" the material when it is being made.

To test the strength of the material being used, a car with one of the new type bodies was driven deliberately into a tree at 25 miles an hour. The damage—a crack approximately 14 inches long at the point of impact on the right side, near the windshield.

The cost of repairing it would make an insurance adjuster rub his hands with glee. The crack was repaired with a patch of the plastic and fiber glass material in an hour and cost less than 90 cents.

In addition to its "toughness," permanence and wearing qualities it has another big advantage according to the company which manufactures it. Expensive molds and heavy plant equipment are not required. The molds, presses and other equipment needed to turn out reinforced plastic require only a fraction of the investment cost of metal fabricating dies and machinery.

Forest Fire Losses Drop

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Total fire damage in Canadian forests this year has been lighter than usual, despite one of the heaviest tourist seasons.
ord.

But the dangerous late-fall period is ahead. Vancouver Island this week battled one of its biggest blazes of the year in rich fir and hemlock near Chemamus Woods in some areas, particularly Ontario and Nova Scotia, are tinder-dry.

A Canadian Press survey shows has had numerous fires, but in chief provinces reporting more outbreaks than usual. Saskatchewan Manitoba and New Brunswick the other provinces fire damage is down this year.

STRICT PRECAUTIONS

British Columbia so far this year has had 1,455 fires, the most reported by any province. But the number is lower than the west coast province's 1,902 blazes last year, which destroyed an estimated 109,000,000 board feet of timber. Nova Scotia is well off compared to 1951, when 165 fires burned 3,000 acres with $50,000 damage.

Probably the worst fire of the 1952 season occurred in the Burns Lake area of British Columbia where a man was killed and 60,000 acres of timber razed. In the east, 1,000 acres of scrub timber went up in smoke near Halifax.

Fair rains in Alberta, Saskatchewan, Quebec and New Brunswick are giving officials hope of a good fall season.

But the hazard is great in Nova Scotia and the Ontario regions of Kenora, Sioux Lookout and Sudbury. Stepped-up precautions here include aerial loudspeakers to warn campers. Southeastern Manitoba also may be dangerous.

Ontario reports about half its fires were caused by tourists and campers. In Alberta, tourists cause fewer blazes and most are blamed on settlers and trappers. Nova Scotia reports numerous fires started by lightning.

STRESS PREVENTION

Through the country officials stress prevention. Ontario says 90 per cent of the province's fires are caused by humans, the other 10 per cent by lightning. The province finds water-bombing from airplanes the most effective fighting technique and is experimenting with silver-iodide cloud-seeding to produce rain.

Alberta's fire losses are down this year. Last year the loss was $85,000—much better than the 1950 figure of $2,355,000.

Saskatchewan reports forest travel this year the greatest in the province's history. But the number of resultant fires has been small. During May and June there were many fires when forests were dry, but the fall outlook is good. Last year's damage was the lightest in 20 years. Co-operative groups of fire-fighters have been organized in many areas.

Forests of Manitoba were harder hit this year than usual, some 370 fires being reported compared to 169 last year. Early spring, July and August were bad periods in many parts of the province. Forest travel was up from last year.

Ontario reports only about 11,460 acres were burned out. Last year 101,243 acres were destroyed. But, say officials grimly—the season isn't over yet.

Although forest travel is heavy in Quebec, the province reports an exceptionally good year. Small outbreaks were reported along the St. Lawrence north shore in June.

In New Brunswick the loss is expected to be greater than in either 1950 or 1951. Last year the loss was the lightest in five years, with 113 outbreaks and 2,500 acres damaged.

British Columbia officials have required logging concerns to install modern fire extinguishers. They've equipped ranger stations with improved communications.

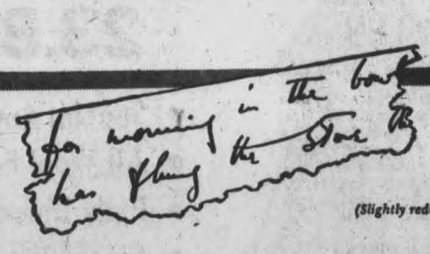
In all provinces, continual newspaper appeals and radio broadcasts are credited with reminding travellers of the dangers and preventing much trouble.

Take Bookkeeper Into Custody

CORNWALL (CP)—Police yesterday took into custody the bookkeeper of a Maxville business man who was shot to death last month. The Crown Prosecutor said he wants the bookkeeper on hand when police capture 27-year-old Henri Seguin.

Lodged in jail here was Douglas McGibbon, 29, described by Prosecutor R.P. Milligan of Cornwall as his most important witness against Seguin, charged with shooting Leonard Z. Hurd and the object of an intensive manhunt north of Ottawa.

Hurd, garage and taxi company owner, died from five .22-calibre bullet wounds last Aug. 16. He had been robbed of more than $1,000 during a night taxi ride.



Seguin was charged when his army discharge papers were found in the taxi with Hurd's body. Police have hunted him since Aug. 16. He also is wanted here on theft charges.

After bringing McGibbon to jail here from Maxville, about 20 miles north, Ontario Provincial Police joined a detachment of Quebec Provincial Police in Hull. Heavily armed, the police headed into the Gatineau Hills about 18 miles north of Ottawa where they believe Seguin has hidden out. They used automobiles unmarked with police insignia.

Mr. Milligan said McGibbon has been out of work since Hurd was shot and has no place to live.

"He might have gone off somewhere seeking work and his presence here is essential until Seguin's case has been disposed of," he said. "If Seguin is not captured fairly soon we will probably have to turn McGibbon loose."

Will Revise Health Program

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government's multi-million-dollar national health program is to be reviewed and probably revised within the next few months.

The program, which will be five years old next May, was designed to assist the provinces to improve their hospital and health services. When the program was inaugurated in 1948 the federal government stated it would be reviewed at the end of five years.

A Health Department official said the 10 provincial governments have been asked to outline their hospital construction plans for the next five years.

In 1948, a target of 40,000 new hospital beds was set for the first five years of the program. A total of 65,000 new beds was set as a 10-year target.

Early this month, the five-year target was reached. It now is expected that 43,000 or 44,000 new beds will be available at the end of the five-year period.

SHORTAGE OF BEDS

The official said if the provinces stick to their original plans only 25,000 new hospital beds will be provided for in the next five years. But there is a possibility the provinces will boost their original estimate in view of the continued shortage of space in some hospitals.

The federal government contributes from $1,000 to $1,500 a bed toward new hospital construction. To qualify, the hospital must receive a matching grant from the provincial government.

If the federal government's expenditures on hospital construction are reduced—they totalled $9,000,000 last year—additional amounts may be made available to the provinces for other health services.

Under the national health program, grants are made to the provinces for such things as tuberculosis and cancer control, research, mental health treatment, the care and rehabilitation of crippled children, and the training of hospital and medical staffs.

It is not yet known how much will be spent this year on hospital construction. In the first four years of the program, the federal government made approximately $13,000,000 available annually for that purpose. The actual expenditures ranged from $2,223,356 in 1948-49 to $9,166,471.

GIVEN TO PROVINCES

This year, the government put all the unspent amounts at the disposal of the provinces. Coupled with the regular annual grant, the amounts made a total of $30,673,733 available this year for hospital construction.

So far projects have been submitted covering expenditure of approximately $16,000,000.

The total amount made available to the provinces under the national health program in 1948-49 was $30,123,369. Only $7,660,774 was spent that year. Since then the amount available has increased steadily to a total of $53,900,000 for 1952-53. Expenditures for this year may total $35,000,000.

105 Executions

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Prison Bureau said today 105 executions were carried out by civil authorities in the United States during 1951. With the exception of 1950, when there were only 82 legal executions, this was the smallest total for any of the 22 years in which national tabulations have been made known.

Sees Cars Cheaper In '54

MONTREAL (CP)—Sir William Welsh, official of the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders of Britain, said in an interview yesterday that automobiles will be more expensive this year, but there is a good chance prices will start dropping by 1954.

"It all depends on the national defence and re-armament program of the western nations," he said. Equipment cut-downs in Britain were responsible for increased costs there.

Sir William attended the annual convention of the Federation of Automobile Dealers of Canada.

James L. Cooke, British car distributor in Toronto, told delegates at the closing session earlier that the British automobile industry will have 10 per cent of the Canadian market in the next 10 years.

He said more than 220,000 British cars will be sold in Canada every year.

E. C. Row, president and general manager of Chrysler Corporation of Canada Ltd., predicted there will be a car for every 4.3 persons by 1961, instead of the present 6.7.

C.N.R. Expects Its 1952 Net To Be Lower Than Last Year

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian National Railways told the Board of Transport Commissioners yesterday it expects its 1952 net on Canadian operations to be lower than last year.

It gave this evidence in support of a railway application for higher freight rates, saying its net railway operating income in Canada—the big item on the C.N.R.'s books—will be done to an estimated $19,916,000 from last year's $21,761,000.

The prospective income figure would fall short of meeting the government line's fixed charges of about $24,000,000 a year, though it will be reinforced by a few millions from United States lines. The U.S. figures were not placed before the board.

The fixed-charges figure was revised downward only at the last session of Parliament, in the hope of having the company break even in normal years. Previously, it had to pay some $46,000,000 a year in interest on obligations held by the government and public.

Parliament also ordered the C.N.R. to pay income taxes like any other corporation, but from the figures submitted the board yesterday it appeared the $2,300,000 system may have only a tiny surplus—or none at all—on which to pay tax despite prospective highest gross revenues in its history.

Earlier in this week's hearings on the railway application for a general eight-per-cent boost in rates, the Canadian Pacific Railway said its net earnings this year are expected to fall about $6,000,000 short of meeting the $46,600,000 figure allowed it by the board to cover fixed charges, dividends and surplus.

Urges Stronger Strike Opposition

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Jamieson Bone, president of the Ontario Property Owners Association, said last night that "every unreasonable strike from now on should be met with an equally-determined lockout; and cudgel attacks, where the police are not allowed to interfere by a cowardly government, should be met with pick-axes."

"If the law of the jungle must prevail as it does in places," he said in a speech to the London Property Owners Association, "then let's go to it: An eye for an eye."

Mr. Bone, former mayor of Belleville, attacked labor unions in urging property owners to change "a number of serious abuses" by being "properly organized."

He criticized high taxation and subsidies to farmers, saying they received "a totally unwarranted handout of $65,000,000 to cover their own bad guesses on the grain market."

No Help Given Mrs. Tong From City Hall

TORONTO— Robert Macaulay, M.P.P. for Riverdale, told a board of control meeting Tuesday that the widow of Segt. of Detectives Edmund Tong had received nothing from the City of Toronto since her husband's death. Mrs. Tong had not even got a letter officially recognizing her husband's death, said Mr. Macaulay.

He added that Mrs. Tong was voted an annual pension of $2,700 for the next 10 years, but so far had not received one payment, nor had she been granted anything from the special citizens' fund collected through the city treasury.

After her husband's death, there were statements that Mrs. Tong would receive her husband's salary for the rest of her life, but the amount promised her by the city was not nearly equal to the salary her husband got, said Mr. Macaulay.

Mayor Lamport asserted that in Mr. Macaulay's statements there appeared to be a desire to cause a disturbance. He said the matter could have been discussed privately rather than brought to a public board meeting.

Mr. Macaulay urged the board to extend the $2,700 pension to Mrs. Tong for her lifetime or until she remarries. He said her young family prevented Mrs. Tong from working and the city's support would probably be necessary for some time.

The mayor told the board payments had been made to the widow through the Compensation Board and the police benefit fund. Mr. Macaulay replied that this was true, but claimed that these were funds to which Tong had contributed during his life.

Finance Commissioner Lascelles said that a method of providing the family with permanent financial protection was being sought through money from the Tong fund.

The mayor said the city's treatment of the detective's widow had been wonderful. He had personally visited the detective in hospital, sent him flowers, and had attended the funeral.

Mr. Macaulay said that until last Wednesday Mrs. Tong had not had any indication of her economic future. He added he was not discussing the amount of money—but the duration and issuing payments.

Leaving Army By Hundreds Plan Recruiting Campaign

OTTAWA (CP)—With Special Force Korean veterans leaving in the hundreds, the army tumbled to its lowest strength in eight months during August, the Defence Department reported yesterday.

A big autumn recruiting drive is in the cards to try to regain the ground lost in three successive months in which the army's manpower has gone down instead of up, mainly because of discharges for Korean veterans after their 18 months' special service. Half the original 10,600-man Special Force now has been discharged.

The three forces as a whole went backwards in August in the movement towards the 100,000-man mark a big milestone in the drive for 120,000 by 1954. Actually, the navy and air force kept on gaining but the army's losses more than offset their advances.

At the end of July, the three forces as a whole had 99,067 men and there were predictions that they would hit 100,000 by October. At the end of August, the total had shrunk to 93,358. Preliminary indications for September are that the army still is losing ground but that the over-all totals will swing back close to or beyond the 99,000 mark again.

The army discharged about 2,000 men in August. It recruited 614 and suffered a net loss of 1,400. Its strength went from 40,586 in July to 48,176. In late September, it was still going back.

The lowest previous total for 1952 was January's 47,479.

Drug Dissolves Blood Clots

NEW YORK (AP)—Discovery of a drug that apparently can dissolve blood clots was announced yesterday to the American College of Surgeons.

It may open the door to great new possibilities of life and pain saving—but it's far too early to tell.

Blood clots forming or lodging in veins and arteries, cause heart attacks, brain strokes, blockage of lungs, and swollen, painful legs, the "milk legs" of new mothers.

The drug, credited with some dramatic results against milk leg and arthritis, is trypsin, a natural enzyme or potent chemical agent.

The first announcement of its use was made by Mrs. Irving Innerfield, Alfred Angrist, Alfred Schwarz and Wilfred Ruggiero.

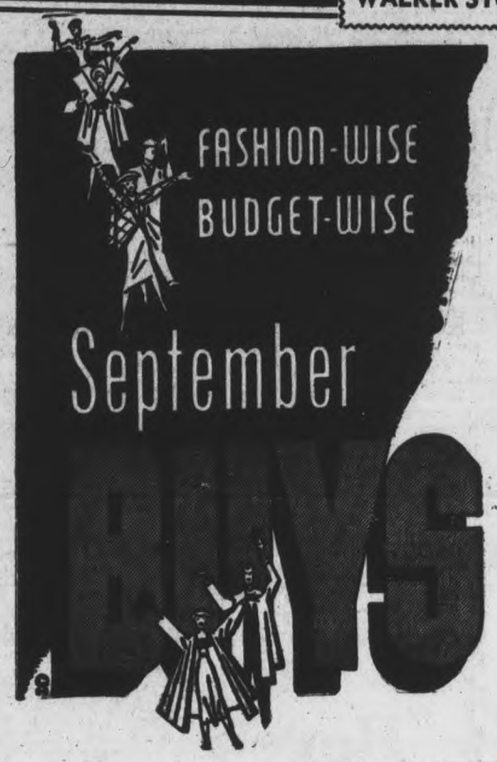
Few Canadian Applications Children Adopted In U.S.

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier E.C. Manning said yesterday the Alberta child welfare branch places some children with American families for adoption because there are no applications from Canadian families.

He said at a press conference that while there is a long waiting list of Protestant families wishing to adopt children, "the very opposite is the case with Catholic families."

The premier said about 250 Roman Catholic children under five years of age are wards of the province awaiting adoption. The law requires that children born of Catholic parents go to Catholic homes when adopted and Protestant children to Protestant homes.

ANSWER CRITICISM



He was answering criticisms o the child welfare branch's adoption practices. Earlier Health Ministe W.W. Cross said only about 1 children are placed annually in th United States against 600 to 70 given homes in Alberta.

In 1949, a royal commissio which investigated child welfar administration recommended tha the placement of children in th United States be discontinued.

Premier Manning said Alberta is not the only province allowing children to be adopted by American families. Quebec has an arrangement with several states to take children, he said, and children are going from Ontario for adoption in the United States.

AWARE OF CHRISTMAS

Today—Sept. 25 . . . count them to Christmas! Ontario has crossed the seasonal border into autumn. September so far has escaped a severe frost, but some of the maples are taking on color as if carelessly sprayed with amber and rust. Warkworth fair is Friday (26th), and usually at that date those hills or northern Northumberland have changed to the golds and browns of the fall. This week the woods are still green excepting the patches that are samples of what is to come.

Court Hears Dispute Over Payment

A $400 civil action is being heard at a special sitting of the county court, Judge John deNavarre Kennedy presiding. The dispute is over the installation of an oil burner unit in what had previously been a coal and wood burning furnace.

Plaintiff in the action is Cherney Bros., and the defendant is Randolph Fitchett of R.R. 2 Peterborough.

Myer Cherney, one of the three brothers of Cherney Bros., said that in the fall of 1949 Fitchett wanted an oil burner installed at his new home. The agreed on cost was $400.

Payment was postponed because Fitchett wanted till April, 1950, to get the money, said Cherney. And Cherney said he didn't press for payment even then because Fitchett was ill.

More than a year later Fitchett asked him to take the unit out, Cherney testified. The plaintiff said he described this as "unreasonable" and refused to do so. A civil action was later begun against Fitchett.

At noon the case for the plaintiff was not yet finished.

Walter Howell is counsel for Cherney Bros. A. M. Fulton is counsel for Fitchett.

Plan One Commission For 12 Municipalities

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto paper today quotes "an authoritative source at Queen's Park" as saying that within a month the Ontario government will announce a mandatory scheme creating a single public utilities commission for Toronto and the 12 suburban municipalities involved in the Toronto amalgamation application.

Toronto has been seeking to amalgamate the neighboring municipalities to create a city of upwards of 1,300,000 persons. Present population of Toronto proper is about 700,000.

Many Ways Open To Women To Avoid Sitting On Jury

Women of Peterborough city and county will be eligible for jury duty for the first time, beginning Jan. 1, 1953. However, none of them need serve if they don't want to. Some women's groups—intent on equality between the sexes—have been pressing for years to have women eligible for the jury panel. Because of this many lawyers and court officials are waiting curiously to see how the women respond. Except for a specified list of exemptions, under the amendment to the Jurors Act of 1951, every woman who is at least 21 years of age and a British subject may be a juror. She must be in possession of her faculties and not infirm or decrepit; and either she or her husband must have a "real property" assessment of $600 if they are city residents ($400 if they live in a village or township).

However there are plenty of loopholes for a woman who wants to avoid jury duty.

CAN JUST SAY NO

When she receives her summons she needs only to notify Sheriff John Harstone that she doesn't wish to be on the panel and she will be exempt. The notification must be within three days of the receipt of the summons.

And even though she is on the jury panel she may apply for exemption if she doesn't wish to serve because of the evidence likely to be given, or because of the issues in the trial. This exemption is valid in both civil and criminal cases.

Furthermore, in a civil case, a judge—on application of either party to the action, or at his own discretion—may order the jury to be composed of men only; or even of women only.

There is a sizeable list of women who are specifically exempt, either because of the nature of their work or that of their husbands.

Included in the list of exemptions are women 70 years of age or more, members of the Privy Council of Canada, Executive Council of Ontario, Senators, M.P.s, registered nurses, students-at-law, practicing barristers and solicitors, doctors, dentists, druggists, veterinary surgeons qualified and practicing, Armed Services, heads of municipal councils, editors, reporters and printers of any public newspaper or journal, employees in the actual working of a railway, street railway or public commission carrying or distributing electrical power or energy, telegraph and telephone operators, those under subpoena for a civil or criminal case, ministers, priests or ecclesiastics under any form or profession or religious faith (their wives included), women who are members of a religious order and who live in a convent or some other religious community.

Also exempted are the wives of judicial officials: judge, magistrate, sheriff, coroner, jailkeeper of a house of correction or lockup, sheriff's officer and constable, police officer and constable, or any officer of any court of justice.

A serious criminal record automatically bans a woman, as it does a man, from serving as a juror. Unless she has obtained a free pardon she is not eligible if convicted of treason, felony or serious crime such as murder and burglary), perjury or subornation of perjury.

One Goal, One Shirt

Curly Mason's first goal in that final period at Mimico last night cost an Ashburnham man his shirt. He thinks he has a moral claim on somebody, possibly the lacrosse team. The score was too close for nonchalance at that stage, and it happened that in the Ashburnham kitchen a five-dollar shirt was under the iron. A lacrosse fan herself, the wife unconsciously suspended action during the Mason-Ashbee-Powless raid. Her gleeful "yee-e-e" when the Timbermen scored was suddenly silenced as she resumed ironing and saw the brown stamp of the iron on the gleaming white of husband's shirt. But, "'twas a famous victory."

Nationalists Fear Reds Start Guided Missiles

TAIPEH, Formoa (AP)—The Chung Hua Daily News, official organ of the Nationalist Chinese government, said today Russia might supply the Chinese Communists with guided missiles in an attempt to smash the United Nations forces in Korea.

The Allies launched guided missile warfare in Korea Sept. 1 when they catapulted converted Grumman Hellcats from the deck of the United States carrier Boxer.

The paper also declared Russia is mustering 14 divisions and 1,300 planes for winter military manoeuvres just north of the Japanese island of Hokkaido.

Silver Mile To Help Children

Clowns, accordion players and the silver mile will be the main features Saturday of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club's observance of National Kids' Day.

National Kids' Day which is observed annually by Kiwanis Clubs in hundreds of cities in Canada, United States, Alaska and Hawaii is planned to attract more attention to the problems of underprivileged youth in the community and to raise funds to meet these needs.

The fund raising in Peterborough will be done by the silver mile. Benches will be placed at all the main street corners of the downtown section of the city for contributions.

MUSICAL TIME

During the day, members of the club in clown costumes will perform on George St. Music will be provided by local accordion players who will be stationed at various street corners. It is hoped that the Citizens' Band will also be able to take part in the day's activities.

Another important feature of the day will be a picnic outing which has been arranged for children at St. Vincent's Orphanage, the Children's Home and other underprivileged children in the city.

Members of the club are taking the children to Stony Lake Saturday afternoon, where they will be treated to a boat tour and a picnic lunch.

Stock Car Driver Taken To Hospital

HAMILTON (CP) — Larry Lawrence, 27, of Aldershot, a stock car driver, was taken to hospital last night after he was injured in a "demolition race" at the Ancaster track.

He suffered undetermined internal injuries, and hospital authorities list his condition as just fair.

He was injured in a race in which two cars line up at opposite ends of the field, and race towards each other and a head-on collision. After the crash, he did not get out of his car and track attendants had to carry him to an ambulance.

Shore Lauds Recreation Centre At Lindsay

LINDSAY — (ENS) —Eddie Shore former great defenceman in the National Hockey League and now owner of the Syracuse Warriors of the A.H.L. and the Springfield Indians, of the Eastern Amateur League last night praised Lindsay's town fathers for their foresight in establishing a recreation centre and plan in the town.

The occasion was a civic reception and welcoming dinner, sponsored by town council and the Chamber of Commerce for the Syracuse team which started training here on Monday.

Shore himself was complimented by recreation director "Red" Mitchell for the work he has done while here with his teams, in coaching members of the town minor league and for lending financial and other assistance to the league's operations. But he had a special word for the work being done among minors and juveniles by the recreation committee in Lindsay

USE EXCESS ENERGY

"A boy who spends the day playing hockey or some other sport will come home at night and feel like going to bed" said Mr. Shore. "Giving the kids something to do this way and let them work off their excess energy keeps them out of less wholesome activities. He complimented recreation director Mitchell for the job he was doing with the youngsters and for his spirit in working for their betterment. In conclusion he claimed, "if you didn't have such a recreation centre in your city, I would hate to know, or associate with, some of your younger citizens".

Twenty members of the team attended the dinner and heard Shore express his pleasure with the facilities and hospitality offered his teams during their stays here.

The two teams are now spending their third season in Lindsay. He promised that he would bring the pucksters back next year again if all went well. Lou Walker acted as chairman in the absence of Chamber of Commerce President Dave Thomson. Mayor Lamb extended the official welcome of the town to the visitors.

Customs Collector W. Miller Retires After 32 Years

Once a well-travelled hockey player and one of the best to come out of Peterborough, Walter Miller, collector at the customs house, retired Wednesday

Mr. Miller played with the Montreal Wanderers in 1912-13, after a hockey career in Peterborough, Brantford, British Columbia, and New Glasgow, Nova Scotia.

Born in Peterborough, he was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Finch Miller. His father was bandmaster of the 57th Regiment band, and his sons inherited at least a part of his musical talent. Walter Miller, in addition to his hockey ability, was also a fine trombonist.

WOUNDED IN FRANCE

Shortly after he left the Montreal Wanderers, Mr. Miller enlisted in the ranks of the 93rd Battalion. While in France he won his lieutenancy, and was wounded twice.

Returning to Canada, he took a business course in Peterborough after his discharge, and entered the customs house in 1920.

Again, as he did in the army, Mr. Miller advanced through the ranks, becoming collector on November 6, 1945. He succeeded Peter Lang, who was superannuated that year.

Changes in the tariff that have been most noticeable have been in the automobile sections. "Of course, they've got fixtures on cars now that we never thought of in the older days. They've made a lot of changes."

"You'd call it red tape, I suppose," he went on, "but I've liked it very much."

PLASTICS MADE CHANGE

But the one class of articles that had made the greatest change in tariffs were synthetics. Chemicals, plastics, and so on had only started to come into commercial existence before the Second World War. Sections that had been devoted to single articles now apply to half a dozen.

Still a keen sports fan, Mr. Miller is chiefly a fan of baseball. "Baseball games and travelling are my hobbies,' he said.

Besides his fondness for sports, Mr. Miller is an active member of L.O.L. 50 in Peterborough and of the Royal Arthur Lodge.

The Misfit

A teacher in the district apparently over-rates the value of three-syllable words in a Grade 1 class. One day this week a girl came home from school in tears. She told her parents that she, with the rest of the Grade 1 pupils, was told to stand and sing. When they finished singing, the teacher told them that all were good, but that she was excellent. "I don't know what's the matter with me," the girl said between her tears, "I was singing the best I could."

Three Injured As Bus, Car Hit At Corner

Three persons were injured slightly just before midnight Wednesday when a car and a city bus collided at Park and McDonnel Sts.

Charles McLean, 186 Rubidge St., driver of the car was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital by ambulance where he was treated for a broken nose and cuts to his face and throat.

Louis Cupoli, 548 Elm St. a passenger in the McLean car was also taken to hospital and later brought back to the police station after having a cut on his nose treated. Cupoli is charged with being drunk. He pleaded guilty to the charge today and was fined $10 and $2.50 costs or ten days in jail.

PASSENGER HURT

Mrs. Gordon Whitney, 350 Charlotte St., a passenger in the bus had her glasses broken and was taken to hospital for treatment of a cut on her left eye. After receiving out-patient treatment, Mrs. Whitney was allowed to return home.

The bus, driven by Archie Barnes, Bridgenorth, was travelling south on Park St. The collision occurred as McLean who was driving west on McDonnel St., attempted to make a right hand turn.

Considerable damage resulted to the front end of the McLean car and the bus. Constable Harold Andrew investigated.

Will Face Trial On Possessing Explosives

Youth Admits Had Dangerous Liquid Denies Threatening

William Rudyk, 19-year-old Oshawa youth, was committed for trial at the next general sessions today on a charge of having an explosive substance under suspicious circumstances.

Bail was fixed at $2,000. When he was arrested Tuesday on the charge, Rudyk was on bail of $2,000 awaiting trial on a charge of breaking and entering.

Both charges are in connection with a break in at Duffus Motors the night of April 13 when two attempts were made to blow a safe in the office.

AT GUNPOINT

Constable Gerald Emmons testified at the preliminary hearing today that he arrested Rudyk at gun point as he tried to leave a door at the southwest corner of the garage.

Constable Emmons said that while he had Rudyk handcuffed to his wrist and was waiting for a police cruiser to come to his assistance, Rudyk took a bottle from his pocket. He said Rudyk held it up and said to let him go, or he would "drop it and blow us both to pieces."

Roger Conant represented Rudyk at the hearing and called Rudyk to the stand. Rudyk said that when he was coming out of the building he had the bottle clutched in his hand.

"When he took me into the garage I told him to get away from me because if it dropped it could blow us both to bits," Rudyk continued.

He said he knew there was "a very dangerous liquid" in the bottle. He said his life was also at stake and he denied threatening the constable that he would drop the bottle.

Suits for fall, featuring a note of casual elegance, can be seen in a variety of silhouettes, ranging from the fur trimmed fall and winter type of suit to the ultra lady-like Empire style.

For, this season, jackets are longer, ending just above or just at the mid-hip with slight padding, in some, providing gentle curve emphasis. Shoulders are a trifle wider than in past seasons.

New skirts give a slim effect but all are eased by gores, a soft wrap style or pleats. Skirt pleating effects include all-around accordion pleats, pleats confined to each side of the skirt or low-placed box pleats.

WARM LUXURY

Most exciting fall suit fashion news is the fall and winter suit. This style usually includes a skirt and jacket or brief coat top in a matching snug coating fabric. Many of these new, heavier suits, have elegant fur trims that may be removable to make cleaning easier, like a collar, muff or even a lining featured in everything from beaver to muskrat. Colors, such as purple or gold, are elegant as the suits themselves.

The middy line, so popular for fall '52, is reflected in suits for the new season. The long torso effect of this line is sometimes accented by a self color and self fabric jacket hem band or trim patch pockets. Necklines, on middy suits, are, in many instances, high cardigan styles that might have a removable tab collar.

Reflecting the lady-like appeal of so many fashions designed for fall, are the empire suits and overblouse jacket suits. Detailing, just under the bosom, emphasizes the high lines of the empire silhouette, while a bloused back and fitted hips create the jacket outlook of the overblouse jacket suit.

SOFT TEXTURES

Fall suit fabrics offer a soft, textured outlook. Typical are the many gentle tweeds, the worsteds with rib, rep and slub surfaces, the many rayons, on hand, with the look of wool, and traditional flannel, favored again in all shades of grey.

Reflecting the casual elegance of new suit silhouettes are the variety of deep colors shown for the new season. Black or black accenting color, such as a maroon tweed suit with black velvet collar and cuffs, is predicited to be popular.

The greys, from the very lightest to the deep Oxford tones are back in fashion's favor for fall. And new are the browns, from benedictines to rich earthy tones, reds, from vivid rosy hues to elegant wines, and greens from soft olive tints to the very deepest shades.

Wear Challis Print Variety

Rayon challis prints are finding their way into all sort of new fall clothes, offering wonderful weight and wonderful texture.

These challis prints run the gamut from blouses, daytime dresses and children's wear to coat and suit linings. One exciting example is a travel coat of brilliant red corduroy which has been lined with a muted blue background challis print. And to make a complete go-everywhere ensemble, there is a dress of the identical challis print. And for a mother and daughter treat, a little girl's dirndl in the same print.

Many travel robes and housecoats of challis will be available this coming fall. They look new and exciting through imaginative styling.

One of the new synthetic fibres, dynel, has been blended with cotton and woven into an old fashioned challis print, as well as nosegay and tiny paisley patterns. These prints are to be found in tailored shirts and matching skirts which may be mixed and matched with solid color separates.

This printed fabric has also been designed into a pyramid housecoat, scarf dickies, scarfs and even the lining of a suit jacket that has a blouse to match. This is prophetic of the costume look, which will make big fashion news for resort wear and next spring.

Also expected to be in the print picture for fall are printed crepes, in brilliant colors, that will add spice to autumn wardrobes and do double duty under winter coats. For those who want an extra touch of fashion variety, there is a new motre print on faille and a whole group of travel prints that give a tweedy look to a heavy rayon.

New Feeling Is Entering Men's Fall Style Picture

An easy, new feeling is entering the fall style picture for men. It is called the "Silhouette" and is tailored for the many men who prefer an unstudied dress-up look, for both business and leisure, rather than a carelessly sloppy or starchy formal appearance.

Suits, coats, hats, shirts, even shoes are being made available with this new relaxed appearance.

Take the basic fabrics and colors, for instance. Soft, textured shetlands, tweeds and flannels are all predicted to be numerous. Patterns, such as understated district checks, Glen plaids, stripes, diagonals and herringbones for sports apparel, and soft finish diagonals, tweeds and cheviots for town wear, are also plentiful.

COLOR MIXTURES

Stronger richer colors will all be on hand to greet fall with new informality. Typical, of the new color palette, are the many mixtures of colors used to heighten the soft textures of fabrics, and the solid tones of charcoal brown, neutral smoke brown and many gradations of grey.

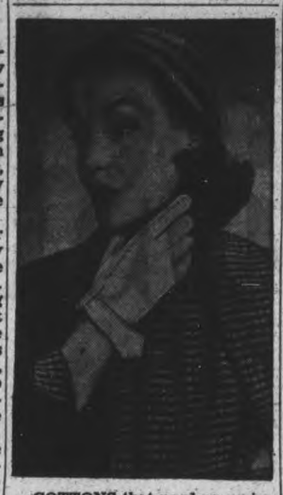
In keeping with the 'comfort' trend, suits and overcoats are designed to conform with body lines. Single-breasted styles are predominant, featuring narrower shoulders and a straighter hanging silhouette.

NARROWER BRIMS

Complementing the straight-hanging silhouettes, are the new hats, smaller from every viewpoint, with their narrower brims and tapered lower crowns. Expected to be especially appealing to younger men, are the Tyrolean and Tyrolean-influenced hats, often featured in debonair tweedy fabrics and complete with rope band and feather trim.

Shirts for business, gain their informal attitudes, by, in many instances, incorporating style characteristics of sports shirts. Increasing emphasis is being placed on the short round point and bandless collars. Some of the latter are widespread and others are button-down types. Colors, too, lend a new relaxed air to dress shirts. Predicted to be pastel favorites for fall shirts are greys, yellows, pinks and blues.

Moccasins, and moccasin-type shoes, for both liesure and business wear, as well as a preponderance of details, like lacings, heavier soles and stitching, and such tones as warm russets and golden hues, all herald the incoming of the "Silhouette" in shoes, too.



Middy Line Or Tulip Look Fashions Promise Easy To Wear Feminity

Fashion has a gentle, lady-like look this fall and appears in a variety of easy silhouettes bound to be pleasing to all.

Texture-conscious fabrics are restrained and gentle to the touch. Colors are warm and elegant.

Silhouettes follow natural lines or are designed to emphasize curves. Details, on everything from dresses to coats, etch a pretty line, bustle out, drape graciously, gleam, glitter, and in most instances, show off exquisite workmanship.

Take the texture-some fall fabrics, for example. Fur fibres are blended right in with fleeces, jerseys and suiting woollens to provide greater lustre and downy luxury.

COTTONS that need never be packed away are new for fall. New—the brief, wrist-length gloves, and cotton dress with tweed coat lined with the dress fabric.

HAND-MADE LOOK

Tweeds have lost their exaggerated rough and rugged outlook and, instead, are now spongy and gentle, often with a hand-made look. Perennially favored crepes are easier than ever to drape, and chiffons and georgettes, elegant with pleats, are ready for a romantic fall or winter's evening.

Black highlights the tone depths of the new season. It revives "the little black dress," appears alone or etched by a contrasting texture or in combination with one of the new deep autumn shades like coppery brown or emerald green.

Green becomes a fall fashion color, once more, and can be seen in every shade from olive to deep, deep green. The browns, too, make fashion color news, in a variety of tones that range from the palest of beiges to the richest of earthy tones. And ever popular grey is notable in a gamut of shades from pale misty grey to blackboard grey.

TULIP LOOK

Fashion takes hold of flares and carefully controls them to give coats a fresh new silhouette. The tulip look, with flare concentrated to the sides of the coat, appears on the fall scene. The barrel coat, another new fashion entry, is narrow at the shoulders, widens out on its downward path, then tapers again at the hem.

The Martingale belt brings back interest to new coats. When placed high, this exciting new detail innovation, takes a direct cue from Paris designs. When placed below the waistline of a coat, the martingale belt achieves a middy outlook.

Suits, casually elegant for the new season, have specially easy-to-wear lines. Jackets are longer and shoulders are wider than in past seasons. Skirts, slim in effect, have detailing, like gores and pleats, that give them generous ease for walking.

Exciting suits new for fall, are the suits made of snug coating fabrics. These, very often have rich touches of fur at the collar, as a lining, or in the form of a cuff. And, in most instances, appear in colors as elegant as the suits themselves, such as gold and purple.

LONGER JACKETS

The middy line is shown to advantage in the longer jackets of new season suits. Often a self band or trim patch pockets at the jacket hem will accent the middy look. Empire suits, with high-rising lines emphasized by details placed just beneath the bosom, and overblouse jacket suits that have bloused backs and slim fitting hips, are also to be seen in the fall suit picture.

New dresses take advantage of wandering waistlines and feature them in a sufficient number of ways to offer a pleasing selection to women of every size. High crushed cummerbund effects, low sleek torso lines, a soft natural look, cuffed middy style, and a snug-fitting corselet waistline are all to be had in fall dresses.

Also newsworthy in dresses for fall is the costume look. This too, is achieved in a number of flattering ways. Decollete necklines have little fill-ins like ascots or dickeys, that can be removed on more dress-up occasions. Other frocks have tiny molding cover-ups that remove to reveal a style that looks as though it had never been designed for a cover-up.

Fur coats, featured for the season to come, are neither too slim nor overly full, but present a most elegant appearance. In many instances, new styles accentuate the over-all softness of the season.

SEPARATES come together, this season, for a gala outlook. Here, this scoop-neck blouse is minutely tucked for a sweater effect. The circular skirt is of nylon net banded with velvet ribbon and scrolls of ruching. The underskirt has a deep flounce of nylon net.

Softened Textures Create Fashion News For Fabrics

Texture is the fashion key to new fall fabrics. This season it is softer, more luxurious with fur mixed right in with the fabric, in many instances, to lend an even greater degree of softness.

Also exciting, in the fall fabric picture, are the brushed and furry surfaces of fabrics intended for coats, the cottons that look like everything but cotton and the rich, creamy feel of dressy fabrics like silks and many of the new synthetics.

With the addition of fur fibres, curly surfaced woollens achieve a distinctive lustre and an even closer resemblance to Persian lamb. Woollens, designed for suits and the jerseys, so popular for dresses, offer a more downy feel than ever with fur included in their weaves. While fur, like weasel, mink or muskrat, used generously over new furry and long hair coat woollens, lends an all-over sprinkling of shining elegance to the fabric surface.

SOFT, SPONGY

Tweeds, always a fall fabric favorite, have lost their rough and rugged outlook. This season they're spongy and gentle, often with a hand-made look. Small, all-over effects and striking dimentional patterns do much to make tweeds more outstanding. And, in many instances, woven-in fur heightens tweed's softened expression of luxury.

Cotton, as of this fall, holds the possibility of becoming a versatile year 'round fabric. For now it is offered with the very same appearance and similar drape of wool suitings, complete to the darker colors, stripes and checks.

Many of the new corduroys employ tweed designs that again lend versatility to the use of cotton. Denim, once a specialty "down on the farm," now appears as a smart winter fabric in plaids, checks and even tweedy effects.

Fabrics, designed for dress-up occasions, are lavish to the look as well as the hand, this fall. Many have three-dimensional appearances, elegant raised surfaces, shiny and dull contrasts within the same fabric or plush quilted and embroidered effects.

Crepes, for afternoon frocks, attain an easy-to-drape manner. Chiffons and georgettes, magnificent with pleats, are ready to float through a fall and winter's evening.

New Furs Are More Elegant With Lavish Detailing

The richness of furs, featured for fall, is reflected in their newer softness, their elegant silhouettes that are neither overly slim nor overly full and the great amount of attention paid to detail.

Helping to emphasize the more gentle attitude of fall furs is the way in which pelts are manipulated in the same deft manner as suit fabrics. Predicted to be favored for this treatment are broadtails and Persian lambs in brown, black or steely grey; mink in a very deep ranch mink shade as well as the newly developed pastels; and sealskin in black or brown.

For casual wear there are a whole range of blonde furs like otter and blonde-dyed raccoon as well as nutria and ocelet or leopard.

Following the new, carefully controlled fur silhouette are neatly fitted coats, coats that are gently flared all around and those that are flat-hanging in front with fullness reserved for the back only. These incorporate shoulders that are just a trifle wider, than those seen in past seasons, but nevertheless still adhering to natural shoulder contours.

Sleeves blossom out beneath the shoulder line and assume a dramatic role on new fur coats. They are to be seen in a folded-up fashion placed well up toward the elbow and giving the same effect as a push-up sleeve. They are featured in lavish, full blown double capelet designs while others balloon out then taper at the wrist or offer wide-open cuffs that may be worn up or down.

Collars are either dramaticalyl non-existent or extravagant in variety. There are oversize rippling collars, soft pouchy effects and new-fashion middy collars. There are also cuffed-effect collars that stand away from the neck and collars created to be worn in several ways. Simulations of collars like tabs and long scarfs can be buttoned, tied or tossed over a shoulder to achieve a variety of elegantly casual effects.

Then, under it all, in furs, there is the drama of linings. Lavish brocades, sudden color contrasts, elegant prints and shimmering shantung and taffeta are all used to give furs an inside finishing touch of true luxurious appeal.

FOR THE fall bride, a traditional gown of flowing rayon satin with a smooth fitting midriff to point up a ring size waist. The departure from the tradition: the new ankle length, so perfect for formal wear later on.

Try This Recipe To Make Oatmeal And Date Cookies

QUESTION: I have been reading your column daily, and find it very helpful.

I hope you can help me out on a recipe for oatmeal cookies with date filling. I can't seem to find one anywhere.

Also, could you give me some good recipes for canning pears, say with cinnamon sticks or slices of orange and lemon.

In canning, it is always necessary when processing to have the water covering the jars? Why not just up to the shoulder of the jar? What happens when liquid boils out of the jars, but they still seal? Thanking you.—Mrs. S. G.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER:

OATMEAL COOKIES WITH DATE FILLING

Two beaten eggs, a cup brown sugar, 3 tablespoons milk, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 2 cups flour, 2 cups (or a little more) rolled oats, 1 tablespoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt. Beat the eggs, add the sugar, milk and butter. Sift in flour, baking powder and salt and add the rolled oats. Mix withh ands until of consistency to roll out. (If necessary add another tablespoon milk.) Chill. Roll out to one-quarter inch thickness. Cut out in 2½ inch cookies. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 8 or 10 minutes. Watch carefully.

When baked and cooled, put two cookies together with

Date Filling

One pound stoned dates, ½ cup sugar, juice of one-half lemon, ¼ teaspoon salt and 1 cup boiling water. Stir over low heat unutil soft or cook in top of double boiler, stirring occasionally, until of spreading consistency.

CANNED PEARS

Bartlett pears are considered choicest for canning by commercial canners. Wash and pare fruit, cut into halves and lengthwise, remove seed section and drop in slightly salted water until you have peeled enough pears to fill 4 jars. Make a syrup of 1 cup sugar to each 3 or 4 cups water, adding paper thin slices of lemon, OR small pieces of ginger root or small pieces of stick cinnamon. Bring to boiling point, and pour BOILING HOT over pears in sterile jars, filling to almost overflowing. Put on sterile tops, seal to within one-eighth turn of tight. Process in hot water bath, having water come to shoulder of jars. Count 20 minutes after water in process kettle begins to boil, having jars standing on a rack in bottom. Remove from water as soon as possible to handle jars. Tighten seal —NEVER loosen, and invert to cool.

It looks attractive to add pieces of cinnamon stick or lemon peal or ginger root to the jars of pears.

When liquid boils out of jars during process, yet jars are sealed when they are taken from water, do not loosen seal, for if jar is sealed it will keep.

ERNA'S APFEL STRUDEL

Stand your sifter in a big bowl and into it put 1 cup bread flour, 2½ teaspoons baking powder, 1½ tablespoons sugar and ½ teaspoon salt. Beat 1 egg slightly and add 3 tablespoons milk to it. Work into the flour mixture 3 tablespoons soft shortening and when it is blended enough to look like coarse oatmeal, pour the egg mixture into it and stir to make a stiff dough. Roll this out in a big sheet on floured board to one-quarter inch thickness. Spread with 2 tablespoons soft butter. Prepare 3 cups chopped pared and cored apples and mix with them 1-3 cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg. Spread this over the buttered dough. Roll up like a jelly roll, place in buttered baking dish. Erna saved out about 1 tablespoon of the egg and milk mixture to brush the top. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes or until a apples are tender. Erna says to serve it hot or cold. I liked a little piece of Baumert cheese with it.

She proudly presented me with a sour-milk spice pie on Friday last. She had carried it ever so carefully up to our house on the bus and said just "For Petuh." As well as I could interpret it this is her recipe for that:

Sleek Purses Compliment '52 Textures

Lending additional style interest to fall costumes are the many new handbags designed for the coming season.

Among the innovations welcomed by the fashion experts is the new idea of combining various leathers for surface and color interest. For example, suede is combinde with calf, patent appears with suede trim, reverse calf is accented by cowhide and kid can be had with an underlay or applique design.

Gleaming calf and suede bags will be worn to achieve an interesting contrast with the nubby and furry fabrics of this fall's suits and coats. With much fashion attention being paid to tweeds, there is emphasis on reptile bags, especially in box types, as the logical companions for this casually elegant fabric.

The feeling of elegance that fashion designers are achieving in their fall creations is reflected equally in dress bags. Among the bright, nek-for-autumn-'52, touches, are passementerie braid, fringes and tassels to go with soft, black suede bags.

And together with more accent on fine polished leathers, more attention has been given hardware details such as dainty locks and better leather-lined inside trims.

Box-type bags are expected to be more popular than ever for fall. New, softer versions, will be offered, that are rounded and contoured and lacking square or sharp corners. Box shapes will be seen in great variety, some with a very elongated and slim air, others with a narrow silhouette, and still others tall and slim in appearance.

The softer look has been carried into the design of classic bags for fall. Travel bags, for instance, will be used with great versatility, not only for travel but also for informal wear.

More Car And Air Travel Reflected In New Luggage

Time was when you thought of luggage in terms of a wardrobe trunk and at least a couple of suitcases. Now with business men hopping into town for a day and back home the next all this cumbersome luggage business is a thing of the past. People travel light.

The average business man lives literally in his brief case. Yes—the modern brief case is now made big enough to hold that extra shirt, pyjamas and a toothbrush. Of if he's going by car he hangs one of the new "Car-Sacs" in the back seat with his clothes hanging full length just as if they were safely in his cupboard at home. If his wife goes along there's a feminine version of the "Car-Sac" long enough to hold dresses uncrumpled. Made of canvas, plastic or nylon you can take your pick of plain colors or gay plaids.

As plane travel increases, particularly with the new tourist rates holding the luggage allowance down to 44 pounds, there is more and more demand for lightweight luggage. Of course as the salesman in one of our leading department stores explained, "if you want lightness in weight you have to sacrifice something—and that is strength." The heavy frames and the beautiful heavy leathers that went into luggage that was guaranteed to last a lifetime are now replaced by lightweight steel or aluminum frames, in some cases just a skeleton with canvas stretched tightly over it.

Beautiful leathers are replaced by plastics and plastic combinations. However, there are advantages in this too. Most of the new substitues are practically scuff-proof and washable, as well as being light in weight. One of the most popular is called "Sampsonite"—plastic made to look like leather and available in a variety of colors. It has proven very good wearing.

ALUMINUM LUGGAGE

Heralded as a boon to airplane travellers aluminum luggage has not proven as popular as expected. While beautifully light in weight it has been found to require considerable repairs due to dinting and springing of locks under pressure Uncovered, too, it is considered somewhat garish in appearance — while covered it weighs as much as ordinary luggage

Tweed effects continue very popular with the fair sex—particularly in the tan shades, although they are also available in other colors. By and large, natural and tan shades far outstrip other colors with both men and women buying luggage. In the nylon field little is being done except with the "Car-Sacs" mentioned above.

One of the newest and smartest luggage sets on the market was presented to Miss Canada by Supply Luggage for her trip to Atlantic City to represent Canada in the finals for the Miss America contest. It has every appearance of fine bamboo strips and is just about as light in weight. Exotic in appearance it will be easy to pick out at the customs, and its combination of plastic and rubber on a strong canvas base, gives it great resiliency to knocking about.

Another going by the innocuous name of "Daisy" is also known as very light luggage. It is soft-sided and zippered to cut weight down to a minimum. The 26-inch case weighs only 6¼ pounds, yet has a carrying capacity of 225 pounds. Known to the trade as leather-cloth it is plasticized sufficiently to allow washing and is non-scuffing.

Asked about the old favorites, a salesman pointed out that there are still enough people travelling by train and boat to demand rawhide and other good English leathers And except for the very lightweight airplance luggage they are not much heavier to make a difference.

Pared Down Hat Brims This Season

Men's hat styles won't be brimming over this year. Quite the contrary, fall-time will find men sporting narrower hat brims than ever before.

This narrow-brim trend hasn't just happened. Men have been wearing narrow-brim hats for several years. But, this year, spontaneously, men in all parts of the country, all walks of life have taken the narrow brims to heart. Too, the national swing toward two-button, single-breasted suits has had its influence on men. They found the narrow-brim styles fitted right in and complemented their new appearance.

Take the traditional centre-crease hat, for example. This model is on its way toward capturing a lion's share of the hat market. Hatters are turning it out in a Homburg-curled, back-bow, narrow-brim style. And the more formal Homburg is staging a comeback too, for dress and business.

The "casual" side of the narrow-brim picture comes in for its share of attention, also. This year's Tyrolean hats, for instance, will have less brim and more vim and yodel appeal. And, of course, their eye-catching rope bands and ornaments will be more colorful than ever.

Along with centre-creased hats, new fall fashions for younger men include: low-crowned telescopes, traditionally the sign of a "big man on campus," with extra-wide bands, perky feathers, narrow brims, scratch-finish telescopes with rope hat-bands and brightly colored feathers.

SMALL AND NEAT

Newest tie patterns, for fall, are spaced geometrics and interesting, smaller versions of modern and traditional motifs.

TWO NEW SHORT COLLAR SHIRTS featured for fall. On the left, a short, rounded collar and right, a button-down spread, short point collar. Other styles of this type include a short rounded collar with eyelets, a button-down, short rounded collar, and a modified spread, short point collar. The shirt on the right is called the "Van Ron." The model on the left is the "Van Britain."

Men's Leisure Time Togs Remove Outmoded Habits

More and more the shackles of outmoded custom are being removed from the clothes men wear. Comfort, convenience and practicality are now the important points to be considered when planning wardrobes for fall. Fresh colors and patterns are also in increased demand.

All of this is especially true in sportswear, with new fabrics and patterns leading the way to a more comfortable leisure-time. Last year's Tattersall check vests, though still most popular, are now appearing in sporting figure challis, all silk repps and with suede fronts.

Sport jackets, a classic for leisure wear this year, emphasize improved tailoring, newer fabrics combining wool with rabbit's hair, alpaca or other good "mixers." Checks, both sudued and bold, plaids and bold patterns are among the leaders, all featuring richer color treatments.

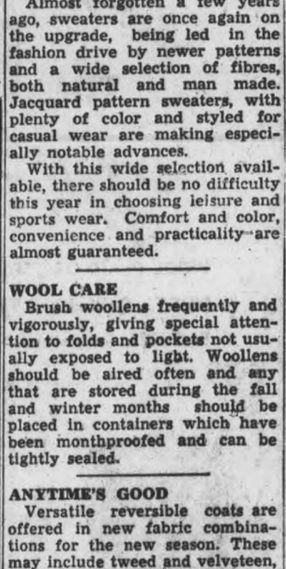
ENGLISH SQUIRE STYLE

For the man who prefers to stand in the front rank of fashion, there is the belted jacket, or Norfolk jacket. This English squire style, once so popular here in Canada, seems to be once more on the ascendancy.

Outerwear, too, is on the upsurge with the variety of fabrics and styles attending new interest. Man-made fibres in tandem with naturals can be regulated to meet any specific need desired. The addition of water repellency and zip-in linings added to the popularity increase by permitting use in almost all kinds of weather.

Leading the way is the storm, or stadium coat, with its informal good looks and down-to-cases practicalness. These are found in a variety of fabrics from smooth gabardine to nubby woollens, waist length jackets and surcoats, holding leading roles, also offer wide choices. One new model, in fact, provides a removable fur collar for change with the weather.

Almost forgotten a few years ago, sweaters are once again on the upgrade, being led in the fashion drive by newer patterns and a wide selection of fibres, both natural and man made. Jacquard pattern sweaters, with plenty of color and styled for casual wear are making especially notable advances.



With this wide selection available, there should be no difficulty this year in choosing leisure and sports wear. Comfort and color, convenience and practicality are almost guaranteed.

WOOL CARE

Brush woollens frequently and vigorously, giving special attention to folds and pockets not usually exposed to light. Woollens should be aired often and any that are stored during the fall and winter months should be placed in containers which have been monthproofed and can be tightly sealed.

ANYTIME'S GOOD

Versatile reversible coats are offered in new fabric combinations for the new season. These may include tweed and velveteen, jersey with tweed and tweed with alpaca. Contrasting a casual and dressy fabric, in this manner, gives the coat the added usefulness of good looks on both daytime and gala occasions.

A BRITISH STYLE trench coat with a double scalloped outside back yoke, double trench flaps, leather buttons and a channel for a zip-in wool liner.

Men's Shoes Follow Casual Way

The comfortable and "natural" outlook featured in men's clothing new for Fall, will also be reflected in the shoes presented for this season.

According to the National Shoe Institute, shoes to correlate will be in richer, brighter and lighter tones of leather with the styling following the same restrained trim trend of new Fall suits.

Even the grained leathers are finer in detail than the previously popular bold Scotch grains. In addition to black, Burgundy, Cherrytones, Club and Cedar Brown, Admiral Blue and British Tan will be good colors for smooth leathers.

ADMIRAL BLUE

Brushed leather shoes are coming more and more into their own for wear with suits, as well as the loafer styles and Admiral Blue is predicted by the Institute, to be the leading shade.

Reptile trims will be seen in all styles. Monk strap military type shoes are expected to be popular with the younger men and campus crowds will be wearing white buck shoes with red rubber soles.

Slip-ons, laceless oxfords, U wings, tobacco pouch and tassel moccasin are some of the terms now being used in the men's fashion field. And the demand for lighterweight, lighter looking, more comfortable shoes, is growing steadily.

LACELESS OXFORDS

The slip-on shoe has been associated with the casual as the elasticized finger gore first appeared in this type of shoe. Then came the new version which incorporated all the advantages of this gored shoe, combined with the smart style features of a town and business shoe, the laceless oxford.

U wings refer to conservative U shaped lines on the vamp of the shoe which is usually found in a street style. The tobacco pouch has stitching around the vamp and heel similar to its namesake, while the tasseled moccasin is the restyled classic Norwegian moccasin with an added tassel lace. This shoe is being accepted more and more for suit wear along with leisure wear and is also featured in black patent for formal evening dress.

NARROWER BRIM, centre-crease hats are predicted to take the "lead" as the number-one style favorite of men all over the country. This particular style is said to be flattering to both young and older men.

Men's Luggage Handy, Rugged

For the man on the go, new luggage designs offer him, more than ever, the kind of convenience and wear and tear features he appreciates most for his busy days away from home.

Handy, are the soft sided one, two and three suiters that can be had with companion bags. Some of these have snap-in, waterproof toilet kits that are especially desirable for holding damp wash cloths or shaving and tooth brushes.

Newest brief bags are multi-gusseted and roomy enough to hold a change of clothing as well as the usual business papers. Ensuring extra long wear are the brief bags that have a "cording" of plastic, in the same color as the bag leather, all around the exposed edges.

Also, sure to be appreciated by travelling men, are the garment carriers that offer a convenient way of carrying full length garments and suits for long periods of time with little wrinkling. These may be folded for carrying or left open when laying flat or hanging in the car. Most carriers have additional zippered pockets that hold folded articles. They come in a variety of sturdy fabrics, like canvas, nylon or drill, often with companion bags, in a choice of sizes that allow for extras.

Particularly adaptable for men who travel far, wide and for lengthy periods of time, are the large steamer trunks. Newest designs have zippered sections for laundry.

Reversible Seams Detail In Hose

There's a clear tang to hosiery shades featured for fall. These take their cue from footwear offered for the new season in deeper shades, like ruby red, emerald green, the brown tones and black that are complementary to fashions worn above.

To blend with the many deeper shades on hand, there are such new hosiery casts as illusion tones that match with black; exciting browns and a tawny beige created to go with ginger and spice tones; brown taupes and deep neutrals with raisin casts that go with new grape purples.

Lighter hosiery shades are also available to contrast with costume colors. These include such tones as beige taupe, gentle natural shades, shades with rosy overcasts, neutral buff tones and misty taupes.

Reversible seams are one of the new detail innovations for fall hosiery. Wear them on one side and the seam is natural. Reverse the stockings and the seam offers a dark, pencil-line contrast.

Colorful Sweaters Worn By Men As Vests

Rounding out the men's fashion picture for fall are good-looking accessory touches to add zest to outfits.

There are colorful sweaters that are styled, and worn, as vests.

Casual jackets appear in a galaxy of styles, including quilted-lined styles, ful-collared sur-coats, zip-front jackets of weather-resistant fabric with warm fur collars and ribbed waistbands, and fleece lined models.

Shirts call upon new fabrics, rather than styling, to create news.

Dacron is strong, crease-resistant, quick-drying, and needs little or no ironing.

Orlon is another "miracle fabric" being used in shirts. Orlon is warm, washable, and resists fading.

Cotton appears in men's fall sports shirts in a heavy cotton flannelette. This warm, yet washable, fabric is shown in a whole range of smart deep-toned plaids in shirts for rugged sports wear.

Pull-over sports shirts are more popular than ever and are being shown in an increasing selection of fabrics. These shirts feature knitted cuffs and waistband, usually in a contrasting color.

Well-tailored slacks made of fabric treated to resist spots are destined to be favored items in men's fall wardrobes.

Sport coats are particularly smart in richly-textured tweeds. The styling is easy and casual and the three-button, patch pocket model is tops in popularity.

Coat Dress Styled To Go Everywhere

The coat style takes over, this fall, as the important wardrobe basic.

For whether this dress is selected in a dressy faille fabric or in a more casual tweed, whether it's selected with a full or slim skirt, short or long sleeves, it can be accessorized to meet any occasion with smart good looks.

BORN BLACK, TURN WHITE

The famous shaggy Camarque ponies of France are born black, turning white later.

Lt. Ben Ackerman Explodes Dangerous Japanese Mine

Demolition of a floating Japanese mine on the Pacific Coast near Prince Rupert is the kind of work that may confront Lieut. Ben Ackerman of Peterborough. A recent experience is reported in the Victoria Times-Colonist, and is reprinted in part.

Lt. Ackerman is the son of Col. C. H. Ackerman of this city. He is named after his grandfather, the late Benj. F. Ackerman, who founded the leather industry at the corner of George and Dalhousie Streets.

"Another Japanese mine has been destroyed on the Pacific Coast.

"Lieutenant Ben. F. Ackerman, mine and bomb disposal officer of the Royal Canadian Navy on the west coast, accomplished the dangerous and tricky job of exploding the mine located on Dundas Island.

"The huge ball' heavily rusted, 'but otherwise in perfect condition' was found about 30 miles northwest of Prince Rupert on the rugged west coast of Dundas Island by Levi Freestad, a fisherman.

"He reported it to the navy last weekend, and Lieutenant Ackerman and Petty Officer Colin Drew arrived at the scene on Saturday, but because of rough seas and inclement weather they were unable to demolish the mine until yesterday.

FLOWN IN

"The experts were flown to Prince Rupert by the R.C.A.F. then taken to Boat Harbor, a small cove on the northwest side of the island, by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

"Transporting secret bomb disposal materials, the men reached the shore by rowboat, then through the jungle land and over dangerous pinnacles to locate the mine in a tiny cove.

"After a careful examination of the mine, the men figured out best means of destroying it. Lt. Asherman laid the charge that shattered it, and sent trees and rocks hurtling through the air for hundreds of feet. One piece of a log weighing about 200 pounds was found more than 700 yards from the place of the explosion.

"A huge rock, estimated to weigh 75 pounds or more, was blown 500 yards from the cove. No pieces of mine were recovered.

"The huge object which looked like a big red ball (effect of rust), contained some 350 pounds of high explosives.

"The two officers sat on a clearing in the muskeg about 1,000 yards from the mine, and watched as the steel fragments were flung into the air. Trees and rocks were blown high, and whistled into the bush. The explosion was preceded by a blinding flash, and a huge while cloud of smoke floated over the scene.

"Lt. Ackerman came to B.C. several months ago to replace Lieut.-Commander Borradaile who was killed last June when a mine he was demolishing on Bonilla Island exploded. His assistant, P.O. Donald Ross, lost a leg.

"Lt. Ackerman is a veteran of the last war. He joined the Royal Canadian Navy in Toronto in 1940, and after four years on trawlers and bangors was transferred to the Pacific Coast.

"After the war he took his discharge, but rejoined a year and a half ago to specialize in underwater swimming and diving, and took a six months course at the U.S. Naval Explosive Ordinance School at Indian Head, Maryland, before returning to the Pacific Coast. He is in charge of training naval recruits at Naden in underwater swimming and diving and demolition. This is largely the work of the "frogmen."

"Lt. Ackerman is married, has three-year-old twin girls and a two months old daughter, Lawrie."

Pump Styles Make News Popular Choice For Fall

Pumps, the people's choice for fall '52.

Pumps with detail, with contrasting color trims. Pumps with embroidered vamps and cutouts, with draping and tucking, with contrasting fabric and leather trims.

Pumps with low heels, midway heels, high heels, with open or closed toes, with open or closed backs. Each new style an exciting fashion story to correlate with the complete costume this fall.

FALL LINGERIE places emphasis on the midriff and this gown is softly styled with a gathered bodice and embroidered midriff trim.

With the trend to the "little black dress," this fall, the black suede pump, takes first place in the color parade.

RICH DETAIL

The pump also assumes fashion importance because of the rich deep textured coats and suits in the many cross-dyed wools with color on a black base. Suede pumps are handsomely decorated with jet and rhinestone beading, touches of patent, faille, velvet, satin and calf trims, fabric braids and appliques, mesh inlays, buttons and bows.

Black shoes are also news when combined with bright colors such as red or black with green. The autumn harvest colors from the palest beige to deep coppery tones, go with the new fall costumes and these sombre shades are also smartly combined with black.

The warm vibrant shade of town brown will step into fall along with important blues, deep ruby red and bright lively accents of green. Grey is a growing color, especially when combined with black. Grey flannel goes well with calf and patent trims, and beige flannel and tweedy textures are gaining in prominence.

NEW LINES

The shoe silhouette is a changing picture. Scalloped lines frame the foot, sling heels have the new higher halter type sling. Toe openings are varied in size and sometimes openings appear unexpectedly at the little toe or toward the side of the foot. Open shank pumps, those with closed toes and backs but open sides, create a lighter look.

Comfort goes with fashion as well as bacon and eggs these days. Newest innovations include the soft shoe tailored to fit and feel more like an old glove than a brand new shoe.

Keeping pace in popularity with pumps for fall, are open banded shoes in a variety of strap styles as well as elasticized bands. slings and pull-over type shoes which keep the foot comfortably and conveniently in just the right place.

THE NEW LOOK of deeply textured wool need not be confined to average or taller figures, here it is designed into a great-coat for the mature woman (left). Typical of the gracefully draped, ladylike air to autumn fashions is this afternoon dress with a corseleted torso look (centre). New for fall (right), the warm, fashion-wise coat that can be washed. The coat is made in fleece of Orlon with a high-standing collar and raglan sleeves outlined at front and back with flanges.

New Intimates Designed To Enhance Silhouettes

The middy silhouette makes fashion news for lingerie and sleepwear, this fall, just as it does for new outer fashions. Slips, petticoats, and gowns are all keynoted by this torso hugging trend that places emphasis on dramatic lines rather than lavish detailing.

Newest slips and petticoats are designed to complement the clothes above. Snug fitting middy lines, to just below the hips, fall into softly full skirts that may have feminine gores, pleats, godets, or be cut in a circular manner to achieve this effect. In some instances the hemlines of slips and petticoats are stiffened to provide crisp stand-out beneath wider skirted fashions above.

Fabrics for new season slips and petticoats include everything from tissue papery rustling taffeta to combinations of nylon tricot and woven nylon.

SIMPLICITY

It's the flattering simplicity of line that counts in gowns featured for fall. Newest are the dress length gowns, offered in a variety of the same waistlines as those being shown for daytime clothes. New low waists, high-rising Empire waists and gentle, natural waistlines are all on hand.

Some of the dress length gowns are even featured in fitted styles that are usually fashioned of gaily printed flannelette, while perky push-up sleeves, featured with warmer fabric gowns like brushed rayon and flannelette, also offer an exciting new fashion touch.

The subtle touches of trim, on both dress and floor length gowns, can be seen in delicate rufflings of shirred lace, embroidered nylon sheer and self-fabric details.

Pyjamas, designed to look exactly like sportswear, are the newest innovations for fall. These might have bright plaid shirt-like tops or snug fitting cardigan tops. Some of the trousers have tapered legs.

SKI STYLE

Typical example of how pyjamas follow the pattern of active life fashions is a bright red pajama set with a real ski print trim on the top which is styled to resemble a parka. The set is also accompanied by a pointed night cap in a print matching that of the top.

More pyjama fashion news appears in the many three-piece sets available. These include pyjamas that come with a hip-length flared coat or a pert duster that might be snugly quilted or in the same fabric as the pyjamas beneath.

Other pyjamas, offered for the new season, come with double duty tops that can be worn as blouses. One instance of this style has a flannelette man-tailored hunting shirt in a bold plaid. And yet another has a top of broadcloth, styled just like a man's shirt complete with button-down collar and cuffs.

Fabrics, predicted to be popular for fall lingerie, include nylon tricot, nylon satin and crepe, cotton in a variety of light and heavy weight weaves, and rayon challis in both demure and bold splashy prints.

Beads Twinkle With Texture

Texture for texture, color for color and line for line, this is the jewelry story for fall.

The softened textures of fabrics featured for the new season, for example, can now be dressed up with jewelry that also has a textured appearance. Typical of the textures are grooved beads and filigreed and hammered surfaces.

Providing a suitable accent for the rich colors seen everywhere many blue, topaz, bright saphhire in the fall fashion picture are the and gold shades available in jewelry.

Highlighting the color picture is the return of black jewelry, either alone or in combination with colored beads, to offset the many all black and touched with black fall costumes. Jet beads and bleaming smooth beads will be on hand, sometimes dramatically alone, often coupled with tiny rhinestones, faceted gold beads or rich looking baroque pearls.

For fashion's newest silhouettes there are bracelets galore to emphasize a pushed-up sleeve and elaborate bib necklaces to dramatize lowered necklines.

Deeper Colours Tinge Autumn

It's one against one or one with one serving to achieve an exciting new outlook for the fashion color chart this fall.

Black, for example, will be used to underscore colors in all ways and on all fabrics. It may be used as an accent mark. It may be an important part of the pattern or it may even be woven into a fabric in a tweedy effect. Usually it will be combined with such rich shades as emerald green, coppery brown or ruby red.

Making exciting color news, this fall, are the many greens in evidence. Elegant emeralds, a complete range of gentle olive tones as well as inky deep greens are all to be seen. Reds, too, make news, especially when they present a rosy outlook that has been lightly tinted by blue.

That perennial favorite grey, continues to hold its ranking position for fall '52. Still popular for grey flannel, it will also be notable when combined with a series of tawny tones that may vary from light apricot to caramel to the deep browns.

The blues look fresher than ever in a variety of shades.

DESIGNED FOR GOOD LOOKS as well as easy upkeep, this blouse and skirt ensemble offers a casually smart outlook and is one example of the way man-made fabrics are being used this fall. This ensemble is of a jersey "Dacron" polyester fibre and wool.

Versatility Marks New Knit Fashions

The textured look of fall '52's fashion fabrics, almost a "natural" for knitted designs, is a feature news point for the new season's creations along with newly popular middy lines and knitted ensembles that come in two versatile parts.

Feather-light, lacy textures, ribs that widen gradually, tightly woven surface stitching and nubby chenilles are all used to achieve the softened textures of the season.

Middy lines, in new knit fashions, are reflected in overblouse styles, that often are belted, as well as classic middy-top patterns. One style, for example, has a torso middy top with a small turtle neck and an easy going four-gore skirt.

Newest ensembles mean added versatility for fall wardrobes, for tops and jackets of these knitted styles can often be teamed with other skirts or worn over contrastings tops. Typical instances are middy tops, cardigan jackets, overblouses and slim fitting tuck-in tops.

THERE IS JUST A SUGGESTION of fall fashion news in depth in this pert dinner cap of "guinea hen" (etched) velvet. Beauty marks of jet sequins accent the little white mesh eye veil (left). The importance of the profile line is accented in a hat of gold felt (right) held snugly on the head by a band of deep grey feathers rising over the hat front to a flame-red feather wing.

Summer Shows Predict Fall Fashions For Women

Summer fashion shows have given Canadian women a good idea of what they will clothe themselves in this fall. They've been shown fashions for office wear, for the cocktail hour, and for the cool, cool, cool of the evening.

Styles for career women, for the youngsters, and for the average woman, have been paraded across a good number of stages until the basic styles are set.

Among the cloth coats in this group is a 100 per cent. wool cashmere, designed for the woman who wants a quality garment which will continue to remain good looking after long, hard wear. Boucle suits, so wonderfully practical for office wear are included, and one attractive style is designed for many jewelery changes

Winter suits are back in the fashion picture this year, and one very smart style featured in this exhibition fashion show for career women is shown in mohair looped poodle cloth. Especially for the busy woman there is a jersey blouse which matches the lining, giving the wearer a complete winter costume.

With a definite eye for the woman who must often go on to dinner or parties, directly from the office, there are a number of tricks provided in costumes. There are dresses with two belts for example a self one for daytime or crushed velvet one for after-five. Many other clever little changes such as this are seen in daytime dresses.

Many separates are included in this showing and some wonderful pieces provide many changes — by simply removing a jacket, adding a stole, or by interchanging blouses or skirts. One jersey outfit combines a full skirt, trimmed with red mosaic, and a smart little blouse, also red trimmed, which would go very well with a number of other skirts.

Nor are late-day clothes forgotten in the career girl collection of fashions. There is a party dress with the new bustline of tiny pleats and the long torso line —a little jacket makes this dress suitable for a number of occasions. Drapery adds a note of flattery to several late day dresses and one especially attractive style is featured in iridescent shantung. The skirt has two side panels of knife pleats and is shown in just-about ankle length.

A collection of well-styled, but moderately priced fur coats round out this fashion show. Favorite fur is grey lamb, which is modelled in both three-quarter and full length styles. Although mink is generally not a business-going fur, it is shown here in several jacket versions which are priced for the gal who's salary check is larger than most. Mouton is styled and treated to look like Alaska seal and fashion touches on one coat include braided cuffs and interesting sleeve treatment.

A TURBAN-LIKE bonnet of forest green felt, left, has a tall minaret crown and a deep head-hugging brim veil with blonde mesh. While at right is the newest excitement in fall millinery, the prophetic helmet shape.

Youths' Taste In Clothes Seem To Follow The Herd

Young people of today may be physically more advanced and have greater personal ambitions than the youngster of a generation ago. But when it comes to taste in clothes they are as deeply imbued with the desire to follow the herd as their fore-runners were.

Talk with a cross-section of teen-agers who have all gone back to school this fall. This is what they say they require in the way of clothes. First on the list are are sweaters and skirts. They prefer cashmeres, but only about one in 50 can buy these because of their high price. The big favorite is both price and appearance is cashmere type sweaters which retail for $5.95.

Grey flannel skirts are part of the voluntary uniform, but here they show individuality. Some like straight lines, while others like pleated or flared styles. When it comes to checks or plaids however, they are unanimous that pleated styles are the only ones to consider.

A suit is a must in every wardrobe, but these are not necessarily purchased every year. If last years' is not too beat up it'll be in there pitching for another season. Although tastes vary in suits, grey flannel is far in the lead.

All its washable, wearable qualities have not sold the average school gal on nylon for everyday wear. These they say, are just wonderful for special occasions, but for school wear the classic cotton is preferred.

There's one thing to be said in favor of our modern miss. She's no spendthrift. In spite of the fact that a large majority of the youngsters of today work, they don't buy articles which they feel are unnecessary. The only ones we encountered who were buying evening dresses were those who had worn last years' a number of times, or were planning on their first one this season.

These youngsters are not carried away by the sudden whims of fashion. Crinolines may be discarded by many of our leading stylists, but not so with the young fry. Most of them liked them under evening dressed last year, a smaller number wore them under party dresses, and nearly all intend to wear them this year.

The evening silhouette which gets the big go-ahead signal from this group is strapless with a bouffant skirt. They dreamily describe the same dress—in different colors, but invariably in the same fabric—net.

FOLLOW A DESIGN

Nor does the beauty of milady's chapeau effect them. If hats are worn for school they follow a certain design, though most younsters admit they wear them only for special occasions. A complaint of many is the "I look and feel funny in hats."

A new winter coat is considered to be a pretty big item, and a lot of consideration is given to the matter before last year's is discarded. But once the decision is made, a definite design and colors seems to focus in the minds of these young women. One youngster described the beige colored, velvet trimmed pyramid coat so clearly that I was of the impression that she had already bought it. The suggestion that this particular coat might not be available was met with an aloof and far-away smile which clearly said they she'd find that coat or know the reason why.

If your daughter is not one of the girls who pays for her own clothing you better be ready with a cheque for about $100. Not that the youngsters speak of this sum of money without the proper respect. "Gosh, my new fall clothes will cost close to $100," is the way most of them have it figured out. This won't be spent all at one time however. Main items wil be bought at the beginning of the new semester, but the search for new sweaters, will go on all year round, according to these youngsters who must possess dozens, and spend a fortune buying them.

SOFT AND LONG

Hair styles for fall, are longer and more softly fashioned with emphasis on gentle waves.

New Ladylike Air Found In Coats That Flatter

Coats, for fall, are designed to flatter every figure and every way of living.

Silhouettes are newly subdued with extra fashion excitement centred at the sleeves and necklines. And textured fabrics have been softened and refined to create a truly lady-like air.

Most newsworthy, perhaps, of the coats created for the new season, is the tulip silhouette. This features fullness, achieved by pleats or gores, which starts below the hipline. It is particularly effective, when its easy fitting lines are topped by a circlet of fur at the neckline.

The barrel, or convex silhouette, is another coat type featured for fall wear. Narrow at the shoulders, this coat gradually flares out and then tapers to a close hugging line by the time it reaches the hemline.

FITTED STYLES

Also expected to be among the top coat favorites for fall are fitted styles that may either take shape as snug, slim wraps or effect great femininity with a nipped-in waist and wide, flaring skirt.

The wandering waistline so popular in the fall '52 fashion picture is represented in coats in a variety of flattering ways. Foremost of these is the martingale belt which, when placed below the waistline of a coat back, achieves a middy outlook, and when placed high above the waistline of the coat back, takes its cue from Paris designs.

Shoulders, in many instances, are wider than those offered in past years. They may drop into a full-blown sleeve tapered and simple at the wrist, or ease into a gently bloused sleeves accented by a trim little turn back cuff at the wrist. Other sleeves bell out from the elbow. Some offer a flared cape effect, either at the wrist or just above. And others nip in, then flare out with a brief cuff treatment.

Collars are completely non-existent or dramatically large in size. Typical of the collarless neckline is the high-buttoned cardigan effect, while popular for over-size collars are wide, shoulder-to-shoulder mantle collars, which in many instances provide major style appeal for the entire coat.

FALL ELEGANCE

Details on the simple, yet elegant styles presented for fall, add to the femininity of the coats. Fringes, in self colors, are used to outline collars, cuffs and closings.

Fur trims, often removable, are used generously, sometimes as huge cuffs which are the outstanding eye-compelling feature of the coat. Both long and short hair fur trims may also be seen as little girl collars, long, slim shawl collars or short shawl collars and as neckline circles.

Exciting coat fabrics, predicted to be popular for fall, are gentled, brushed poodle cloths, fabrics softened with fur hairs, color mixture tweeds, alpaca piles that give fur-like effects, and cashmeres, camels hair and precious vicuna.

Coat colors are expected to include the entire family of green, ranging from bright kelly shades to live shades and deep bronzines; reds will cover the shade gamut from red-red to heady wine tones; browns will include earthy tones; and black, used either as an all-over motif, or in combination with other colors, as is the case for many of the new tweeds.

NEW IDEA

Excitingly new are stoles created to be worn as originally intended or wrapped around the waist, cummerbund fashion.

TWO IMPORTANT fall fashions combine in this ensemble. The textured look of tweed and the short jacket with the middy look. It is shown here over a slim black wool dress.

NEWEST SILHOUETTE for teenagers is the modified pyramid coat, a classic single-breasted loose style of grey yarn dye trimmed in contrasting velvet.

Waistline On Frocks Wandering

Dresses for fall, have a supple, easy draped silhouette with detailing and new deep colors ensuring flattery to women of all sizes.

Making important fall fashion news are the wandering waistlines seen on new dresses. These include high crushed cummerbund effects, low sleek torso lines, a soft natural look, cuffed middy style and a snug-fitting corselet waistline.

Also providing exciting fashion news are the necklines that go down, stand away or offer a gracious drape. In many instances, these lowered necklines have modest cover-ups such as dickeys or scarfs.

The new deeper shades, introduced for fall '52, herald the return of "the little black dress" which may be featured alone or with a contrasting texture outline or accented by another color. Rich dark greens have also returned to the dress fashion scene, as have all of the russet tones, and grey from the very lightest shades to the very dark smokey greys.

Making the most of new deep shades is the great stress on fabric interest for dresses. Many new synthetic blends, like nylon and dacron, for example, are featured for the new season as are fabrics that take on the appearance of others. Cottons that look like tweeds or wortseds are typical examples.

The costume look, representative of the importance of versatility to today's way of living, is much in evidence in new fall frocks. Both traditional suit dresses and one-piece styles achieve this popular look.

There are, for instance, the scarf and dickey fill-ins that are removable for dress-up occasions. Little fitted jackets come with dresses designed to look, when worn alone, as though no cover-ups belonged to them.

ONE OF THE CLASSIC black bags, featured for fall, in luxurious boarded calf, gets a little collar. The belt (not shown), also of boarded calf, has two brass bars on either side.

THE CLASSIC SKIRT and sweater set adopts a new fashion outlook. Horizontal bands of ribbing, Above, are shown on the sweater with a gentle eased fullness of skirt to achieve a fresh new air.

Generous Use Of Colour In Gloves

Combining to make exciting fashion news for gloves, on hand for fall, is a generous use of color or a lavish amount of flattering detailing on every type of glove from the very gala kidskins to the sports-minded wool knit styles.

Colors run the gamut from the new deeper fashion tones to such compelling patterns as checks, polka dots and stripes. There are deep wines, lively blues, dark greens, bright reds, yellow, a complete range of beige tones and dark greys.

Black, one of the most popular tones for fall, is often seen teamed with other deep shades such as grey, blue or brown. And whites, used for dressier glove styles, can be had delicately tinted with overcasts of mauve-pink, ice blue or grey.

Even the simplest of gloves is dressed-up for fall with eye-compelling details like a trim little button or a neat self trim.

Tassels, eyelet lacings, jaunty top bows and novel contrast patterns are all used to decorate cuffs. The gloves, themselves, are to be had emphasized with beading, embroidery, cording and many buttons. Some casual styles even come complete with matching ascots and hats.

Fall Formals Eye-Catching

Whether floor or street length, new formals for fall offer fashion news in the great array of modestly feminine cover-ups they present, and the eye-compelling attention paid to their waistlines.

Dramatic wrap-around stoles, tiny removable figure-hugging jackets and little framing spencer tops as well as miniature sleeves and straps and dainty fichu backs are all created to serve as cover-ups for the many bare-top gowns available for the new season.

Also exciting, in the new gown picture, is the great variety of waistline effects. For, on hand for fall is the low-placed middly line, snug corselet and cummerbund effects and the high-rising Directoire waistline.

Back bows, bustles and sashes make back of the gown fashion news, while a wealth of lace, velvet, rhinestone, sequin and other glittering bead trims lend to the air of fabulous femininity.

Predicted to be favorite formal fabrics for fall are rich looking jacquard taffetas, sleek satins, floating nylon net and nylon tulle and rustling taffeta. These will be featured in a wide choice of elegant colors like bright reds, vivid greens and exciting blues, as well as the always popular pastels.

New Cosmetics For New Modes

New fashions for fall can present an incomplete, even a jarring inharmonious picture, if the cosmetics worn with them have not been selected as carefully as the clothes themselves. This means that make-up shades should be those originated especially to blend with the new season's colors.

Since foundations, to be most effective, should be selected to enhance only natural complexion coloring, it is the lipstick that will do the biggest job of offering a good fashion, as well as a self-flattering contrast to the costume.

Here are a few suggestions of lipstick shades to choose for contrasting, or blending with new fall fashion colors.

Fashion's new deep shades in the blue, green, or grey family all call for a clear blue-red lipstick color. Dark reds, medium blues, blue green and the many golden browns, on hand this season, will be effective with a dark red lipstick.

Yellows, orange-reds and browns in costume colors usually call for a coral lipstick shade while the bright reds, mustard tones, greens and russet shades might be contrasted with a clear orange-red lipstick.

A true red lipstick could be selected for teaming with dark reds, blue, dark greys, beige and brown costumes. And a rosy blue red lipstick could be used with costumes featuring electric shades of blue.

THE STOLE has a new look and is fashioned with a cape shaped back and softly scalloped collar.

FALL SEPARATES come together with great ease with so many coordinated designs on hand. Typical is the reed-wale corduroy vestee and pin-wale corduroy skirt, above. It can also be had with a jacket and short coat.

THE COUNTRY-WIDE TREND to "living-at-home" has helped to introduce a completely new type of wardrobe. Typical of this is the peddle-pusher ensemble shown Above.

Fashion Trend Leads Up To Coronation Year

"Coronation" appears to be the trend in fashion this winter.

Fall showings of London, Paris and New York imports by Toronto's leading department stores pointed up the big event of next spring.

One outstanding model was an ivory satin court dress designed by Hartnell, the Queen's dressmaker. Its chief feature was a court feather design embroidered in gold, silver and diamente.

Over all was a peeress robe as worn by a countess with 2½ rows of black seal tips on the cape. A style note said the coronet is always carried in the hand, never worn, but is held over the head at the time the crown is placed on the Queen's head.

Supple fabrics that reveal the figure, belts—to indicate the changing waistline—were outstanding features in another display.

Favored colors for fall were shown as deep wine, reds, dark greys. Brown-black combinations were given attention. Moss green also was among the favored.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Cookies That Will Carry In Children's Lunch Box

Did you know I am an actress? Uh huh. Among my other scrambled if doubtful accomplishments, I'm acting in a religious pageant, and I'm not going to tell you who I am in it because you might just possibly find a flaw in my armor and poke fun. I'm a sensitive little violet.

Because of rehearsals and because of pickling season (the latter of which nearly produced a panic amongst you) I've neglected our precious school children.

Because I love the kids so much, usually bright and early on the first day of school I blossom forth with ever so many ideas for packing lunch boxes and for preparing nourishing lunches for the cherubs. But this September you had to remind me. I am ashamed.

I'm making up for it, though, today and tomorrow.

Today I am giving you cookies that will carry and that have extra goodnes in them and that taste wonderful—just as any self-respecting cookie should taste to lunch-hungry eager children.

Tomorrow you will find sandwich fillings in this space.

ORANGE DROP COOKIES

One-half teaspoon each soda and salt, 2½ cups sifted cake flour, ½ cup shortening at room temperature, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon orang rind, ½ cup unstrained orange juice, ½ cup chopped walnuts or cocoanut or ¼ cup of each. Sift together the first three ingredients. Cream the shortening and cream into it the sugar, eggs, and rind, beating very well. Stir in flour mixture alternately with the orange juice, then mix in nuts or cocoanut. Drop by teaspoonfuls, having dipped the spoon in water, 2 inches apart onto greased cookie sheet. Bake about 10 or 12 minutes until golden, at 400 deg. Fahr.

BUTTERSCOTCH COCOANUT BARS

Three-quarters cup flour, sifted, ½ teaspoon each baking powder and salt, ¼ cup soft shortening, 1 cup well-packed brown sugar, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup shredded cocoanut that has been broken up a little, ½ cup shredded cocoanut not broken up, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 1 tablespoon sugar (white). Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder and salt. Cream the shortening and into it mix the sugar, egg and vanilla with vigorous beating. Stir into them the flour mixture and 1 cup cocoanut. Spread in pan which has been lined with buttered paper—pan should be about 8 x 8 x 2 inches. Mix together the cocoanut which is left (½ cup) and the 1 tablepsoon each butter and white sugar. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 35 minutes. Cut while warm in pan into bars or squares but cool in pan.

HONEY-COCOANUT DOUBLE-DECKERS

(Clip this one! You will have trouble keeping any for the bridge club or women's association meeting. They are winners in anybody's community).

Rich Cookie Dough (sour cream): Five cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup shortening that has stood at room temperature, 2 cup white sugar, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup thick sour cream. Sift together sifted flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Cream the shortening well and beat into it vigorously the sugar, eggs and vanilla. Mix in sour cream, then sift in the flour mixture a little at a time. Chill. Roll out on floured board to ⅛ inch thickness. If you have a cloth-cover for rolling out cookies on your bake board it is ideal for these. Cut into 3-inch rounds. (Use scalloped or star cutter for special occasion). Place half of these rounds on unbuttered cookie sheet, place scant teaspoonful of filling (below) on them, and cover with remaining rounds, then press edges together with fingers or floured fork. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for about 8 or 10 minutes or until a delicate gold.

Filling. Mix together ½ cup each sugar and water, 1-3 cup honey, ¼ teaspoon salt. Stir in 3 cups cocoanut (shredded is best) and cook over very low heat until cocoanut absorbs most of the syrup—about 10 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in ½ teaspoon vanilla and 1 tablespoon butter. Cool before dropping onto unbaked cookie rounds (see above).

I could keep this up for a long time—but think you had better let me know if you want more cookies.

Sun Will Shine On Raincoats

Newest fashions in rainwear are designed to bring sunshine to the heaviest downpour. Bright colors, like vivid blue, or coral red, in exciting fabrics, such as fine pinwale corduroy or iridescent taffeta, all help to create this cheery mood.

New rainwear silhouettes, in many instances, feature jaunty bloused backs, full, full skirts and flattering collars that may be dainty petal style or oversize designs that can be worn in a number of ways. Many of the new raincoats also have matching hats and belts.

THIS WOOL WORSTED one-piece Canadian-made coat dress has a slight back fullness and rounded hip treatment.

Hats Are Designed To Give Pleasant Pampering Look

Hats, new for fall, whether from an exclusive designer or a popular "bar," are designed to give a pleasant pampering look. Encouraged by the widespread acceptance of textured surfaces, milliners have multiplied their fall variety of silhouettes by the use of new materials and combinations.

Newest of the silhouette trends is a tendency to make crowns deeper, in many cases completely covering the back of the head or fitting well down at one side or both.

For the devotee of the dressy little "cap," this look of greater crown depth is largely achieved by shaping the calot in compound curves that fit deep at one side and high on the other to reveal the hair at the front and back.

DEPTH ILLUSION

Bonnets, too, sometimes have merely the illusion of depth which is attained by the use of long scooped or visored brims that start well up on the brow, dip down to cover the tips of the ears and swoop forward.

Turbans and berets look both deeper and sometimes higher by artful arrangements of their folds.

Another important silhouette movement accents side-to-side width. The milliners like the wide-eyed charm of a hat with width at the temples, balanced or asymmetric in line.

Many of the shallow young shell shapes look new for fall with rolling bicorne brims and soft drapery from side to side. Dramatic black velvet, velour and plush, usually in solid black or navy velvet, velours or hatter's plush are featured for these.

FITTED DOWN

Profile hats continue to be a major silhouette. For fall, they are fitted deeply down over the right ear and sharply angled upwards by soaring feathers or other trimmings high on the left, or dip daringly down at the right with a long, forward-moving drapery or fold.

In the mood of autumn elegance, the softly rippling "Garbo" casual becomes increasingly important for daytime wear. Deep-piled felts and velours, frequently trimmed with a band or buckle of jet or jewels, make these nonchalant shapes dressy enough for almost any daytime occasion.

Because it has such a wonderful velvety surface and takes so well to color, velours is again one of the favorite fall hat materials. "Vis-a-vis" felts that have one sleek flat side and the other napped will be seen most often, this fall, in monotone combinations that make the most of texture contrasts without introducing a second color.

"Fancy" velvets, as well as the familiar panne and Lyons types, are another favorite. One of the most interesting of these novelty velvets has a contrasting silk back and is etched in a pattern that allows the contrasting under surface to peek through

TEXTURED FABRICS

Felts, with a content of rabbit's hair or angora, have a wonderfully soft look both in solid colors and in neutrals flecked with touches of contrast. One new fall felt is pure white with a delicate frosting of black angora woven through it. Still another has a curly knotted surface like chinchilla cloth. Hundreds of tiny silk French knots, in matching or contrasting shades, cover another.

The fall color range of millinery is infinite. Clear reds and light winy reds; copper, russet and vivid orange; gold, sharp yellow and warm beige tones; deep forest greens and pale greyed mossy shades; vivid peacock, navy and ice blues; cyclamen and reddish purples; charcoal and smoke greys are among the most popular. Black and a bright shade, or bold black-and-white looks newer than solid black, except for very dressy cocktail and evening hats.

Fur Production Declines But No Scarcity Of Coats

OTTAWA (CP) —Canadian fur production will decline this year, but dealers here say there still will be plenty of luxurious fur coats and neckpieces.

The Bureau of Statistics reported today a reduction in the Canadian fur farm population of fox and mink, particularly fox.

As a result the Bureau estimates production of standard, silver and new type fox pelts will be down by more than 40 per cent. from last year. And standard and other mink pelt production will be lower by more than five per cent.

The Bureau didn't give the reason for the big reduction in the fox population. But one prominent fur dealer said fox is not so much in demand and he presumed lack of demand resulted in a cut-down in fox breeding. Neither could he see a five-per cent. reduction in the mink pelt having much effect on the market.

The Bureau said that at the start of this year there were an estimated 12,700 adult foxes on farms, 44.1 per cent less than the 22,700 on farms at the beginning of 1951. The adult mink population at the beginning of the year was 219,400, a drop of 7.8 per cent from the 238,000 on farms a year earlier.

As a result said the Bureau, output of standard silver and new type fox pelts is estimated at 23,700, down 43.3 per cent. from the 1951-52 season estimate of 40,800 pelts. Production of standard and other kinds of mink pelts is estimated at 498,900, down 5.2 per cent. from the 1951-52 estimate of 526,000 pelts.

The Bureau said that of the 1952-53 season fox pelt yield, 17,200 will be standard silver, compared with 33,900 for this type in the previous season. Some 6,500 will be new type fox pelts, of which 7,900 were produced in the 1951-52 period.

The mink pelt yield this year will be composed of 327,700 standard, 87,300 silverblue, 62,300 pastel and 21,600 of other kinds. The 1951-52 yields were 375,499 standard, 77,500 silverblues, 55,300 pastel and 18,000 of other kinds.

HAIR FASHIONS are a little longer for fall with sleek waves brushed softly back in an easy-to-manage coif.

UMBRELLA BATH

It's a good idea to give umbrellas a thorough shampoo from time to time. The bathtub is as good a place as any. Open the umbrella and brush it to remove dust or grit. Go over the outside and inside with a soft brush dipped in thick lukewarm soapsuds. Give extra attention to creases. Next turn the shower on to rinse it, or pour clear water over it. Leave it open to dry.

Elaborate Styling Evident In Autumn's Bridal Gowns

Brides-to-be, planning fall weddings, will have an elegant choice of gowns awaiting them. These are designed for the most part, for flattering wear on the "Great Day," then for storing away for a daughter's or granddaughter's proud wear at some date far in the future.

The heirloom quality of new bridal gowns is portrayed in their traditionally elaborate styling, their many elegant detail touches and in the sturdy, yet floatingly lovely qualities of the nylon tulle and nylon net fabrics being used for so many of the new bridal creations.

Whether she decides upon a floor length or new shorter style gown, this fall's bride will discover many designs created over a dress that will also give her pleasing wearing possibilities during her honeymoon and even at later gala occasions.

STOLES, JACKETS

Two-part bridal attire, of this type, may have an extravagantly tiered overskirt, it might have a long sleeve, mandarin jacket covering a decollete gown or it might be designed with a matching ethereal net stole.

Also excitingly new for bridal attire is the middy silhouette which, in one instance, is defined by precious seed pearls around the hips.

Newly rounded cathedral or chapel length trains are featured on many full length bridal gowns. Other elaborate touches include eye-appealing glitter such as sequins and seed pearls or such rich additions as side panels, aprons, detachable fichus and double bodices achieved with double folds of fabric.

LAVISH DUETS

Nylon tulle and net, being introduced for fall and winter bridal wear, is sometimes featured alone but more often it is combined with such seasonal fabrics as lace, satin, velveteen, taffeta, and faille.

Typical example of this combination might be a satin dress covered with a lace trimmed net over-frock.

Although, gleaming white is still very much in favor for the bridal picture, there are also a number of pretty pastels now available. They include pink, pale blue, mint green, and topaz.

Fashion Show Prize-Winners

A variety of lovely door prizes has been donated by local merchants to be given by the St. Peter's High School Alumni at their fashion shows this week. Winners of the main prizes Wednesday evening were Mrs. Allan Holmes, Mrs. Bud LaBranche, Mrs. Harold Roth, Miss Nancy White, Mrs. M. Judd, Miss Helen Strano, Miss Ruth Panter, Miss Galvin, Mrs. Doris, Mrs. F. Kylie, and Mrs. Don Pierce. The master of ceremonies was Mr. George Sullivan, assisted by little Mary Fraser. Draws took place during intermission. Later there were ten pairs of nylon hose for lucky ladies in the audience. Similar prizes are on hand for tonight's show.

MRS. E. J. SHEEDY (centre) is the convener of the fashion show which was enjoyed by more than 400 on its first showing Wednesday evening in the new St. Peter's auditorium. She is a member of the newly formed St. Peter's High School Alumni, as is the commentator Mrs. William McTeague (left). One of the 13 models is Mrs. Max Rishor (right) here wearing a black and gold cocktail gown and showing her "pony" hair-do.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

St. Peter's Alumni Presents Entertaining Fashion Event

Credit for producing a thoroughly entertaining evening of fashions goes to Mrs. E. J. Sheedy and her committee of members of the St. Peter's High School Alumni. They arranged for an outstanding parade of the season's newest styles in clothing, millinery, jewellery, make-up and hair styling—then provided the comfortable seating of the new school auditorium where hearing and seeing are unhindered.

The models they chose, some from their own alumni, display the ensembles with exceeding charm and ease, which put the audience of more than 400 Wednesday evening in a receptive and appreciative mood. They may even give a better performance at the second and final show tonight, when a fuller house is expected. (This handsome new auditorium seats 900.)

The show is staged in a way that gives a satisfying time to appraise the general effect of each costume. After the commentary, models step into one of three huge portrait frames and remain posed while two others are parading. Attention is directed to style points throughout the show by Mrs. William McTeague whose voice became familiar to local radio listeners when she was Miss Catherine Doris.

One sees unexpected color in this show. It is in the hair and in the jewelry. Hats glitter too with clusters of sequins and one created for special dress-up events is covered all over with sequins. The effect of make-up individually suited to natural coloring and type is visible.

Notable changes in silhouette in the fall coats are caused by "pyramid" collars and skirts with extremely full flares from the hipline. New coat sleeves are called the Dutch sleeve and the wrap-around. A princess style in purple wool looked particularly well. Teal blue was the color of several coats, one with wide cuffs of grey persian lamb.

Fur highlights were a mink stole that can be buttoned into sleeves—lovely with cocktail and evening dresses—a full length coat of grey persian lamb, and the popular three quarter length in black persian lamb, styled with the graceful four-tiered back. Jackets were in mink, squirrel and practical muskrat dyed starlight blue.

ELEGANCE KEYNOTE

Elegance is the keynote of the after-five dresses this season. This was exemplified in a simple black crepe dress with brilliant buttons and jewelry with a hat of shining black velvet, the crown outlined with white daisies, centred with rhinestones; and, in different mood, by black taffeta with a six-tiered skirt and three-quarter sleeves, met by filmy black gloves. (The latter dress was worn with the sequin hat and mink stole.)

The coat-dress outstanding was in red ottoman with a pyramid collar and wrap-around sleeves. A deeply shirred waistline was shown in copper taffeta, the cumberbund waistline on a straight-lined black broadtail dress, and the Empire waistline and pleated skirt again in copper taffeta.

Favorite for dining and dancing evenings in Peterborough is the "cocktail" dress. From this show the choice might be a copper and black huge check taffeta with strapless bodice, gold-threaded black taffeta with effective use of the horizontal line in the jacket, or a lovely model in blue shot taffeta with a detachable sheer stole forming short sleeves. For formal evenings navy is a new color —it was shown in taffeta, but the irresistible gown yet is the frothy, bouffant white net (four underskirts) with moulded taffeta bodice and a cover-up jacket in silver cloth, complemented with brilliant jewelry.

The bridal gown featured a billowing skirt of net and an open throat lace bodice and the headdress was small, of lace and satin. Bridesmaids' frocks were in peacock blue, cocktail length with evening decollete topped with tiny jackets.

Daytime dresses, teamed with unusual hats and smart accessories, were on simple lines, the color being important. Red wool looked cosy yet distinctive with a black velvet vestee and taffeta lined the full, flared skirt. Purple wool was striking, and a turquoise poodle cloth was highlighted with tan and gold braiding on collar and peg-hipline.

Teen-agers fashions were very attractively shown by Miss Janet Estlick and Miss Rosemary DeNoble. For glamour they chose grey, proving this color has no age limit. It was slate grey taffeta in a full skirt with a black velvet evening blouse, and silvery grey shot taffeta in an afternoon tea dress. A party dress was pink and blue check sheer. For day wear it was royal blue wool with black velvet trim and a black velvet hat.

The TV suit caused a sensation. Modelled by Miss Eleanor Jobbitt, it comprised tight fitting slacks, buttoned below the knees and an easy blouse, both in black velveteen and belted in gold.

Sportswear choice was a charcoal grey poodle cloth skirt and grey jersey blouse with batwing sleeves. In the "rain or shine" set it was a reversible plain and hound's tooth check coat and visor type hat.

Mature figures of five foot five and under were typified by Mrs. J. C. Donnelly and Mrs. Gus Torney who modelled suits, coats and gowns particularly styled to flatter.

The other models are Miss Jackie Rose, Miss Eleanor Collins, Miss Joyce Campbell, Mrs. M. Lasenby, Mrs. N. Ibbotson, Mrs. Max Rishor, Mrs. Claire Sullivan and Mrs. Kenneth Harrison.

Assistant to Mrs. Sheedy in convening the show was Miss Vivian Sullivan. Mrs. F. J. McNulty was in charge of properties and Mrs. W. Harle of decorating and the stage setting was done for them by Mr. Vern Watt. Miss Betty Meagher and Mrs. Ed. O'Toole were in charge of ushering and tickets were handled by Miss Helen Strano and Mrs. James Dunn. Miss Madelyn Whaley and Miss M. Pepe were in charge of wardrobe.

85 Friends Visit The Anson House

Board members, staff and residents of the Anson House held a cheerful "open house" Wednesday afternoon to about 85 friends. Tea was served in the board room where the table was attractively laid with a lace cloth and centred by a large silver bowl of multi-colored baby zinnia. Gladioli, zinnia and Michaelmas daisies brightened the other rooms.

Co-conveners were Mrs. F. Hills and Miss Claire Mason. Receiving with the president, Mr. James Hamilton, was Miss Laura Davidson, Mrs. F. M. Somerville and the superintendent, Miss A. Robinson.

Pouring tea were Mrs. F. M. De la Fosse, Mrs. R. R. Hall and Mrs. G. R. Langley. Looking after the guests were Mrs. G. S. Cameron, Mrs. F. E. Hooper, Miss Helen Munro, Miss Lillian Morrow, Mrs. C. C. Pilon, Mrs. W. A. Graham and Mrs. C. Galbraith.

Omemee Friends Shower Bride-Elect

OMEMEE (ENS).—A shower, organized by Mrs. W. Lang and Mrs. W. D. Weir for Miss Gwendolyn Graham who will be married Saturday was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Lang. Mrs. Lang and Mrs. Weir were assisted by Mrs. D. Griffin, Mrs. H. Sanderson, Mrs. H. Hill, Mrs. C. Reeds, Mrs. Margaret Rich and Mrs. R. Brooks.

Mrs. Weir, chairman of the program, led the group singing, with Mrs. Rich accompanying on the piano. The program included two comic readings by Mrs. V. E. R. Zufelt; a solo by Mrs. E. A. Cornell; an instrumental by Mrs. I. Connell, and a trio by Messrs. T. Pogue, A. N. Weir and W. D. Weir.

As an introduction to the presenting of the shower gifts Mrs. Zufelt pinned a corsage on Gwen's shoulder and addressed her in poetry composed for the occasion. The gifts were rolled in on a dinner wagon.

Those present were: Mrs. R. Thorn, Mrs. H. Burke, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. C. Lance, Mrs. C. Reeds, Mrs. E. A. Corneil, Miss M. E. Corneil, Mrs. Richard James, Mrs. Burt Pogue, Mrs. A. Afternoon Tea Launches Membership Drive

Launching of the annual fall membership campaign of the Civic Hospital Women's Auxiliary took place officially Wednesday afternoon. All canvassers were invited to afternoon tea in the nurses' residence so that the board members might meet them and express thanks personally for the use of their time and services.

President Mrs. W. E. Fanning and membership convener Mrs. E. Chambers received at the door. The attendance was even larger than anticipated and seating accommodation was somewhat taxed.

Mrs. Fanning, in a brief address, explained the function of the Women's Auxiliary and called attention to the exhibits of some of the ladies' committees who work each week in the hospital. These included the travelling tuck cart, the travelling library and the boottees given each new baby. She outlined in some detail the other services which could not be exhibited, such as the physical therapy, decorating, visiting and buying of special equipment.

It was emphasized that it is the 25c membership fee collected through this campaign that pays for these extra services and pleasures for the hospitalized patient. Last year nearly 5,000 members were listed and it is hoped to have a substantial increase in number this year—more patients create more expense.

Mrs. Chambers gave some instructions to the canvassers. She particularly asked them to get correct house numbers as the numbering has been changed in some parts of the city. She also asked that they work as liaison officers of the Auxiliary and take time to tell householders of the work that is being done.

The tea table at the front of the room was colorful with the orange of Chinese lanterns and bittersweet as the centrepiece. Mrs. Ian McRae and Mrs. R. R. Stewart and Miss Margaret English and Mrs. L. G. Dobbin presided in turn. The refreshments were served by board members.

Black-Charlton

The wedding was in Lakefield Presbyterian Church Saturday afternoon of Doris Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Charlton of R.R. 4, Lakefield, to Edward Bruce Black, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Black of Lindsay.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. Kaye and Mrs. Kaye played the wedding music. Miss Jean Clark was soloist and sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white lace and bouffant net over satin, and wore a fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet or red roses.

Miss Twen Simmonds of Little Britain was her maid of honor, dressed in pink, Miss Margaret Calberry and Miss Barbara Charlton as bridesmaids were in blue and yellow and flower girl Marie Black was in mauve. The gowns were all of net over taffeta and they wore headdresses of feathers and net to match. Bouquets of golden glow gladioli and roses were designed to match each gown.

Glen Black of Lindsay attended the groom and ushers were Murray Everson, Lindsay, and Ross Calberry, Lakefield.

The reception was at the bride's home where her mother received in a royal blue velvet gown and hat, wearing a pink rose corsage. The groom's mother was in royal blue taffeta and matching hat and wore red roses.

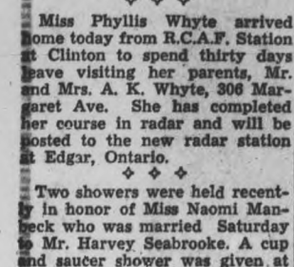
Leaving later on a trip to Buffalo the bride wore a navy suit with grey accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Black will live at R.R. 2, Oakwood.

Ask Tax Removed On Tea, Coffee

TORONTO (CP)—Removal of the 10-per-cent tax on tea and coffee was asked yesterday by delegates attending the fifth annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Consumers.

A resolution asking for a survey of the nutrient value of prepared cereals also was approved at the final session of the two-day convention.

A motion condemning strikes which coincide with harvest time and their effect on food supplies and the cost of living was tossed out.



Mrs. W. R. Walton Jr., of Oakville, was re-elected president of the organization which speaks for 13,000 women across Canada and more than 15 national women's organizations.

Canadians spent $7,837,000 for bakers' doughnuts in 1950, compared with $4,677,000 in 1949.

Cinderella Dress Worn At Office Can Also Fit In For Party Wear

PARIS—A Cinderella dress that goes, if not from rags to riches, at least from office to partied, is a featured creation of Henry a la Pensee's new autumn collection.

The costume is almost the answer to a working girl's prayer in the way it combines practicability with glamour.

The dress is a tuck-in bolero and wrap-around skirt style. For daytime wear, the side it turns to the public is of plain grey surah silk. When reversed, the demure office suit becomes a fascinating pleated dress in white dots over a chartreuse silk background.

The only hint of the double life the costume is designed to lead when it is worn grey-side-out is a wing-collar of chartreuse silk peeping over the round neckline of the grey bolero and cuffs of chartreuse facing the elbow-length straight sleeves.

The tiny cloche is also a two-timer. The crown is grey silk matching the office dress; the brim is the chartreuse silk. Push-down chartreuse gloves go with either the day or the night life of the costume.

On hand for fall and winter are these new gloves, keyed to ready-to-wear fashions. Striped gloves (upper left) are brand new, are pure wool, come in many color combinations. Lattice treatment is used (lower left) for four-button double-woven cotton gloves. Both new and unusual (center) is this glace leather shortie mottled with color. Shown here is the pale yellow against black. Melon treatment appears (upper right) on white, six-button gloves in hand-sewn cotton. A new fashion angle is provided (right center) in these blonde cotton gloves with oblique line and single, covered button. Nylon is used for elbow-length gloves (lower right) with doeskin-like, plush finish. Straight and narrow, they are sleekly contoured to the arm.

Gloves Add Glamor In New Silhouettes

The well-gloved hand for fall and winter is sleek and slender, dipped in glowing color, thrust into nylon or wool or double-woven cotton.

Both the shortie and the longer glove appear in silhouettes that are contoured closely to the hand, often have oblique cuff treatments to relieve stark simplicity, are always graceful and minus bulk.

In the fall collections the emphasis is on side treatments. Lattice motifs, demi-cuffs, apple-shaped melon treatments are a few. Partly-open side seams detailed with shirring, French coins or buttoned tabs are new looking.

For both daytime and evening wear, soutache braidings provide luxurious touches. Braidings are used in trianguar shapes, bracelet motifs and modified cuff treatments.

Woollen gloves spring a number of surprises. One high fashion glove in wool has the look of pebble-like boucle, a new effect in both depth and texture. Woollen gloves are on hand in stripes, checks and herringbone mixtures, a far cry indeed from the mittens on a string that we used to wear to school.

Llama wools in many lengths return for fall and winter, as do the string shorties and handmade wool strings that combine warmth with smart appearance.

Even the wool-lined leather glove has taken on new life. This year, many of the glace and suede gloves are hand sewn, have sidewalls and fourchettes filled in with soft wool in contrasting colors.

Color flows through the new glove collections, turning in shifting emphasis from sapphire to teal, from topaz to rose wine, from bright red to a dark, brilliant green.

DOROTHY DIX

Don't Waste Time, Drop Man Not Anxious To Marry

DEAR MISS DIX: Four years ago I met a man whom I grew to love. In the meantime, I have learned that he is divorced and has no intentions of re-marrying. He has warned me that waiting for him to change his mind would be futile. He does, however, occasionally show signs of affection and leads me to believe that he may reconsider his decision.

I am 33 and he is 37, so this is no childish infatuation. I have tried going with other men, but they don't interest me. How can I persuade the man to marry me, or should I try to forget him? Do you think if I continue to impress him with my good intentions he will learn to care more for me?

ELLEN.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: One of the most tragic wastes in nature is the amount of love expended by fine women on men who are unworthy of even one good thought. Why despicable men have so much appeal to good women is a mystery that will, I guess, always be shrouded behind the Iron Curtain of human affections.

A WORTHLESS CHARACTER

Such a man is the one with whom you have become involved, Ellen. He is an absolutely worthless character, and you are being very foolish in continuing to see him and hoping to marry him. It will never, never happen. The present status of your relationship is naturally satisfactory to him. You are providing companionship, adoration to feed his vanity, probably good home-cooked meals, all without his having the slightest obligation to you. One of these days, along will come a less submissive creature who will attract hfim by the very fact that she is less docile. She'll not be satisfied with the indecisive treatment that has kept you dangling for four years, and the wedding bells will ring. Be assured, however, she will have caught a heel and no good will come to her from him.

Dry your tears, Ellen, and face facts squarely. Where you can so clearly see a hopeless future, why expect miracles to change it? Better to wait for a good man to come along. End this aimless relationship before your heartache turns into a physical breakdown. There are worse fates than being lonely, and one of them is marriage to a scoundrel, or waiting around patiently until he decides to cast you off. Call the turn on him and do the breaking up yourself. At least your pride will be saved, and your hurt feelings will soon be healed.

DEAR MISS DIX: All my life I have been plagued with an ugly nose. Where can I get information on plastic surgery?

ANNE A.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Either the general hospital or the eye and ear hospital in your city will supply the information you wish.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: After three years of marriage, my husband has asked me for a divorce. He is interested in another woman, and I told him I wouldn't stand in his way. We have been separated three months. Recently I met two boys and we have become very good friends. Would it be all right for me to date them? I feel I am entitled to a little happiness too. I'm 19 years old. M.J.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If promiscuity is your idea of happiness, perhaps you are entitled to it. However, it would be very unwise to follow your inclinations. You probably want to make up for all the fun a too-early marriage cost, but wait until your divorce is granted. For one thing, if you are seen dating other men, your conduct will seriously affect any legal claims you might make to money or property.

Of Interest to Women

What's Right?

You can't teach your dog not to jump up on your guests.

WRONG: Explain each time that you have tried to teach him not tojump on guests, but have not been able to.

RIGHT: Keep him away from your guests.

Boys' Training School Staff Starting Pay $1,600 a Year

COBOURG.—The grand jury at the assize court took the instructions of Mr. Justice J. L. Wilson seriously when he commented that a properly functioning grand jury could render a definite public service. They commenced their inspection duties on Tuesday morning and presented their report Wednesday afternoon to Judge M. A. Miller, who was delegated to receive the report in the absence of Mr. Justice Wilson, who returned to Toronto after the assize court docket folded up abruptly on Tuesday afternoon. The grand jury presentment read as follows:

"Ontario Training School for Boys, Cobourg—A well run and efficient institution reflecting great credit on W. T. Little, the superintendent. We can suggest nothing except a review of salaries for the staff. The starting salary is $1,600, which is $200 to $300 less than a guard at the Don Jail. We feel there is more human salvage in these boys than in older men in prison and feel that it warrants more inducement to qualified men than previously offered.

"Children's Shelter, Port Hope —This institution is very well run and is kept in a very clean condition. We noted that the upstairs and some downstairs rooms need decorating and would recommend low recessed bath tubs in place of the old-fashioned high tubs now in use. These are obviously difficult to bathe some children in. The infants' playroom, off the kitchen, needs plastering, decorating and also some modern play-room equipment. The kitchen is large, but very poorly laid out. We feel that a larger electric refrigerator is needed and that oil burners in the two present coal furnaces would ease the burden and supply more efficient heat. The snow fence around the outside play yard is in need of replacement and outside of two broken swings and a very poor sandbox, there is no amusement for the children.

SALARY INADEQUATE

"Training School for Boys, Bowmanville—We were very favorably impressed with this institution. The staff present a neat appearance and have an efficient air about them. Everything we saw in our extensive examination of the property from the classrooms to hospital and gymnasium, are clean, neat and very well equipped. However, we have one very important recommendation to make: the salary scale seems very inadequate for the type of supervisors and teachers required for this very important work. We recommend that a review of this situation be undertaken.

"Counties Gaol, Cobourg — We were escorted through this building by the Governor, Mr. Allin, and found everything satisfactory. Prisoners were all interviewed and informed us that all had received preliminary hearings within the specified time. A three-way sink is a necessity for this institution. We understand that the staff of the jail at the present time consists of five; upon close questioning, we were informed that this is one less than formerly. We doubt if this economy is in keeping with security measures we feel are necessary. We recommend that this matter be looked into.

"Cobourg General Hospital — This hospital is clean and neat and apparently efficiently operated. The matron, Mrs. Vingrass, mentioned new equipment she felt would be in order and her suggestions seemed quite reasonable.

"Health Unit, Cobourg—We found this building rather crowded and very much in need of screens. Outside decorating is in progress and the inside needs decorating. Repairs to the chimney should be made.

"House of Refuge—This institution is by far the most unsuitable building of all listed for inspection. Mr. W. J. Duncan and his staff are making a conscientious effort under great disadvantage, in a building totally unsuited for its present use. The main centre hall on all floors is gloomy, the general atmosphere is depressing. Built for 65 inmates, it now houses 96. The toilets are clean but in poor condition, the old high tubs very difficult for elderly people to use easily. The great number of steps necessary in a building where three levels are used, presents a problem for both staff and patients. In lieu of a one-storey building, we feel installation of an elevator would facilitate matters. The floor in the men's room is broken and should be repaired. The furniture is not comfortable and we believe that organizations in the counties would undertake replacement by comfortable and practical furniture for those people in the twilight of life. The lighting in laundry is poor, two bulbs being the only sources of light. Fluorescent fixtures would greatly improve this condition.

"The beds are sagging badly. We feel that a newer bed and spring would survive the long use required, give greater comfort and be more practical than continual replacement. This institution has long served its purpose and, while we appreciate the tax burden, we feel that a new structure should be provided at once. The comparison between the conditions under which the boys in the two Provincial institutions are living, and the inmates of the Ontario Hospital against this county home for the aged of these two counties, is not one of which we can be proud.

OVERCROWDED

"Ontario Hospital — Cobourg — This provincial hospital under Dr. Moorehouse, appears to be very efficiently and happily run. It is obviously overcrowded, having a capacity of 300 patients with over 500 presently accommodated. New steam tables are required in the kitchen and we are told that the heating is not totally adequate in very cold weather."

Elevator Blast Won't Change Shipping Plans

OTTAWA (CP)—Destruction of the second largest grain elevator at the Lakehead yesterday will not alter a decision to concentrate for the next month on shipments of iron ore, R. W. Milner, federal transport controller, said today.

The elevator destroyed by explosion and fire had a capacity of about 8,000,000 bushels. This will slow the movement of grain to the Head of the Lakes, since this compares with a rated grain capacity at the Lakehead of 90,000,000 bushels. Transport officials describe this as a practical, "working capacity" of about 70,000,000 bushels.

However, an intensive drive is under way to move as much iron ore as possible down the Great Lakes before November to make up for the tie-up in shipments of ore during the United States steel strike. This will mean fewer vessels being allocated for movement of grain cargoes.

It still is planned to move an estimated 35,000,000 bushels of grain during October, and after the drive to deliver ore to the steel mills is complete, the shipping will concentrate on grain.

Rev. Sisco Takes Warkworth Call

WARKWORTH (ENS)—The Rev. A. L. Sisco, formerly of St. John's United Church, Tweed, will be moving to Warkworth October 1 to begin his pastorate on the Warkworth charge, which consists of the three appointments: St. Paul's, Warkworth; Dartford; and Oak Heights.

Mr. Sisco has served on the Tweed charge for the past seven years, coming there from Millbrook where he was minister of the United Church for 11 years. He has served as chairman of the

REV. A. L. SISCO

Peterborough and Belleville presbyteries, the latter in the 1950-51 period; and he attended the general council in 1942, 1950, 1952.

Mr. Sisco succeeds the Rev. H. G. Lester, who has been pastor of the Warkworth charge for the past eight years and who has accepted a call to Shawville, Que., in the Montreal-Ottawa conference.

The induction service for Mr. Sisco will take place in St. Paul's, Warkworth, on Friday evening, Oct. 3, with the Rev. G. J. A. Whitehorn of Seymour, chairman of the Cobourg Presbytery; the Rev. Dr. D. M. Smith of St. John's, Campbellford and the Rev. J. E. Griffith of Castleton taking part in the service, and will be followed with a social hour to meet Mr. and Mrs. Sisco.

They also will study the department's facilities and meet British pensioners living here. The group will discuss imperial pensions problems with various veterans' organizations.

Fair-Goers Laud "Best Show"

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—"One of the best fairs yet" was about the way the average fair-goer summed up the Campbellford fair on Wednesday afternoon.

Weather was cool but mostly sunny, and the grounds were crowded most of the afternoon, with the crowds dwindling as the sun began to sink lower on the horizon, taking with it much of the warmth in the air.

Horse races and horse and cattle judging took place on Wednesday, with entries in most classes quite heavy.

A special event of the afternoon was a ladies' auto driving contest, in which the ladies jockeyed their cars into parking spaces and drove them out again. When the event was over, each of the cars had the same number of fenders and bumpers with which it had started, which appeared to surprise many of the male spectators. Top honors in the contest went to Mrs. Bruce Barnum. Mrs. George Fisher was second and Miss Jean Rannie, all of Campbellford, placed third. The prize for the special event was donated by Grant Anderson of Campbellford.

2 Psychiatrists Disagree On Bell's Sanity

WELLAND (CP)—Two psychiatrists disagreed last night on the sanity of Carl Alexander Bell, charged with killing his stepmother. Their evidence ended testimony in his murder trial.

The case is expected to go to the jury at noon today following arguments by counsel and the judge's charge. Bell is accused of murdering Mrs. Dorothy Bell on the night of Aug. 28 by stabbing her in the back with a paring knife.

The defence introduced a signed statement by Bell after Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan earlier ruled the statement inadmissible. He later granted counsel's application that it contained essential materials for Bell's full defence.

Chief Constable C. R. Pay of Niagara Falls testified the statement was taken in police headquarters immediately after Bell's arrest about an hour after the stabbing.

Dr. A. M. Doyle, Toronto, testified that his examination of the accused led him to conclude Bell was mentally ill, that he had disturbance of mood, suffered delusions and perhaps hallucinations.

Dr. Charles S. Tennant expressed the opinion the accused was neither mentally ill nor mentally defective.

Lambton, Brant Take Honors

AYLMER (CP)—Top honors in the annual red and white show of the southern Counties Ayrshire Association yesterday were taken by Lambton and Brant counties. The show was the main attraction on the last day of the Aylmer fair.

Brant county placed first in the county herd competition. Marilyn Hardy, 9, of Cainsville, won in a class of 14 junior showmen, all under 12 years. W. H. Green and Son of Brantford had the grand champion and reserve grand champion females.

The grand champion male and senior champion male were shown by R. W. Harrison and Son of Sarnia. They also exhibited the reserve junior champion male.

Jack Griffin of Woodstock showed the reserve junior champion female.

Young Driver Sentenced

GUELPH (CP)—Magistrate F. Watt said yesterday that if he had his way, no one under 21 years of age would be granted a driver's licence. He expressed his opinion in pronouncing sentence on William Clark, 17, of Preston, convicted of dangerous driving after an accident Aug. 8 in which two Preston boys were killed. He fined Clark $100 and costs or three months.

TO SERVE IN FRANCE—Leading Aircraftman Wilfred L. Cummings, of Peterborough, a munitions and weapons technician with the R.C.A.F.'s 430 Squadron at North Bay, is among personnel moving to Europe on Monday when three R.C.A.F. Sabre-jet squadrons will fly the Atlantic via Greenland, Iceland and Scotland to Gros Tenquin, near Metz, in northeastern France. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley B. Cummings, 75 Hunter St. W. The two other squadrons in the movement are 416 Squadron, Uplands, and 421 Squadron now based at St. Hubert, Que. On arrival at Gros Tenquin, the three squadrons will bring Canadian fighter strength in Europe to six squadrons, half of Canada's proposed air contribution to NATO. Three squadrons have been stationed at North Luffenham, England, for some months. The peacetime presence of Canadian fighter squadrons in France will mark another milestone in R.C.A.F. history as will the Atlantic crossing, en masse, of more than sixty aircraft in "Operation Leap Frog II."

Fight Over Cemetery Ended In Court

TORONTO (CP)—A fight over the moving of a suburban Scarborough church cemetery which lasted two years ended yesterday when Judge Ambrose Shea granted a final certificate of clearance to the Emmanuel Presbyterian Church.

During the fight, relatives of persons buried in the cemetery formed a committee to protest that a power shovel was used in clearing and that police were called out to keep back the crowds that gathered to watch.

Charge 6 Ontario Municipalities Pouring Sewage Into Lakes

LANSING, Mich. — (CP) — The Michigan Water Resources Commission has charged that six Ontario municipalities are pouring untreated sewage into the Great Lakes system.

Commission officials say they will protest the alleged action of Windsor, Sarnia, Chatham, Sault Ste. Marie, Amherstburg and Wallaceburg Oct. 6 to 10.

Loring F. Oeming, chief engineer of the water commission, told a meeting of the body Tuesday that the Ontario government refuses to enforce regulations covered by treaties with the U. S. because the cities plead poverty.

Milton Adams, secretary-manager of the water commission, told the body that cities on the Michigan shores of the Great Lakes also claim poverty but under the commission's orders "are making great progress in abatement of pollution." He said:

"Port Huron, right across the St. Clair River from Sarnia, is spending $3,500,000 to cleanse the river and Mt. Clemens has completed a $2,000,000 disposal plant. Marysville is spending $1,000,000. Canada is supposed to be so prosperous nowadays that its money is worth more than ours. The province of Ontario should take action if the cities cannot."

Calgary Plant Becomes Leading Ammonia Producer

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One of Canada's leading producers of ammonia and ammonium nitrate fertilizers is the Alberta nitrogen department, chemicals and fertilizers division of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada Limited.

The Cominco plant six miles south of Calgary annually produces some 90,000 tons of ammonia, using part of it to produce 70,000 tons of ammonium nitrate fertilizer and shipping the remainder to Trail, B.C., for the manufacture of more fertilizers.

A part of the Calgary plant production is marketed in Canada but the major portion is shipped to the United States.

COMPLEX MACHINERY

The plant itself, established in 1940 by the federal government and purchased following the war by Cominco, is a complex array of towers, tanks, gas holders, pipes, gauges and compressors, although it uses the simple ingredients of water, air, natural gas and electric power.

In its basic production, the Alberta nitrogen department produces hydrogen by the reaction of steam and natural gas in the presence of nickel catalyst. This hydrogen contains such impurities as carbon dioxide and carbon monoxide. The latter is treated with steam to form carbon dioxide and more hydrogen.

A second process recovers the nitrogen and the hydrogen and nitrogen then are compressed and purified. Carbon dioxide is scrubbed out by water in tall towers and the waste is returned to the river.

TO LIQUID AMMONIA

The purified hydrogen and nitrogen pass into converters where, in the presence of an iron catalyst, they combine under high pressure at high temperatures to form ammonia gas. Cooling condenses this gas to liquid ammonia.

The gaseous ammonia is reacted with nitric acid and through this process concentrated ammonium nitrate is obtained. It is from this that fertilizers are produced.

If required, the plant could manufacture chemicals for explosives.

One-Year Student Top-Flight Painter

VICTORIA, B.C. (CP)—A 23-year-old artist who took his first art lesson less than a year ago is being hailed here as a top flight painter.

George Lee was in hospital suffering from a serious chest ailment when he took his first lesson in drawing from Mrs. C. F. Swannell, the hospital therapist.

Recently provincial museum authorities here were so impressed with his paintings of Indian masks and other native relics that they put some of his best works on exhibition at the museum for several weeks.

Wilson Duff, museum Anthropologist, said he has not seen better pictures of the type.

Shunting Freight Kills 3 Women Outside Sudbury

SUDBURY (CP)—Three women were killed this morning and a man injured in an automobile-train collision just a few hundred yards outside the city limits. A car proceeding on the Capreol road, collided with a Canadian National Railways train just after one o'clock this morning. Dead: Mrs. L. Kirkbride, of Minnow Lake; Mrs. B. Crowe of Sudbury and Mrs. Alphonse Kirkbride, of Minnow Lake. St. Joseph's hospital officials report the condition of Alphonse Kirkbride, the fourth occupant of the automobile, as good. He was believed to have been driver of the vehicle.

The car in which the four were driving was struck by a shunting freight train.

H. R. Nelson of Sudbury, fireman on the locomotive, said he could see no reason for the accident.

"I saw the car coming. It was only going 25 or 30 miles an hour which isn't too fast — it didn't slacken or gain speed at all."

There is a clear view from the road both ways along the track.

Bomb Placed On Plane Mexico Believes

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Investigators said last night they believe a mysterious explosion which nearly wrecked an airliner in flight was caused by a bomb placed in the baggage compartment by a person who had taken out a large insurance policy on one of the 17 passengers aboard.

The blast blew out one side of the two-engine DC-3 after it took off from here Wednesday for Oaxaca. Several passengers were injured by flying metal. The pilot, his instruments blown out, brought the plane down at the nearby Santa Lucia military air base.

The investigators said orders had gone out for the arrest of the person—whose identity they would not disclose—who recently insured one of the Mexican passengers for a large sum of money.

AMONG INJURED

Among those injured were Dr. Henry Mankin and his wife, Gertrude, of Berkeley, Calif. Mankin, who suffered a broken foot, said an inspection of the lesser injuries to his wife's legs led him to believe the explosion was caused by gunpowder.

The investigators said the suitcase containing the bomb fortunately was placed near the outer skin of the plane so that the greater force of the blast went outward.

SIMILAR ACCIDENT

A time bomb in a commercial plane in Quebec cost the lives of 23 passengers Sept. 9, 1949 Two persons have been hanged for murder for their part in the explosion and a third, a woman, is awaiting execution.

A parcel containing a home-made bomb was placed aboard the aircraft with other luggage when it took off from Quebec. An argument between J. Albert Guay, Quebec jeweler, and his wife delayed the plane and the explosion occurred over Sault au Cochon instead of over the St. Lawrence River, where evidence of the crime would have been lost.

Volcanic Blast Scatters Boats

TOKYO (CP) — Yellow smoke belched three miles into the air today when the volcanic Myojin reef exploded, scattering rescue boats searching for a missing survey ship with 31 men aboard.

The volcano — named after the fishing boat Myojin which sighted it — rose out of the sea last week 200 miles south of Tokyo.

Five Japanese patrol boats and three United States planes combing the area around Myojin reported still no sign of the 210-ton survey vessel Kaiyo Maru, missing since Wednesday with nine scientists and 22 crew members.

Rescue boats plowed away from the reef at full speed when it exploded at noon, sending sulphurous slush into the sea for a mile around the red-hot islet of ashes. The volcano has been percolating and spouting molten lava and ashes ever since it appeared.

Maritime officials fear the survey boat may have been swamped and sunk by a giant wave after a volcanic explosion early Wednesday or, if it had gone close in to the reef, might have been bombarded with molten rock from the eruption.

Zarubin Quickly Joins Capital's Social Whirl

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin, new Soviet envoy to the United States, lost no time in joining the Washington social whirl.

A few hours after he presented his credentials to President Truman yesterday, Zarubin attended a party at the Norwegian Embassy honoring Prime Minister Oscar Torp of Norway.

Zarubin impressed other partygoers as a more affable diplomat than his predecessor, Alexander S. Panyushkin. He chatted about such matters as his previous visits to the United States, his study of the English language, his previous assignments in Canada and England and non-controversial subjects.

Zarubin was ambassador to Canada at the time of the spy trials. The royal commission investigating espionage cleared him of any implication in a ring supplying secret information to Russia.

Tries Getaway Man Wounded

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Victor Taylor, 28, of Toronto, suffered a fractured left arm last night when shot by an R. C. M. P. constable near here while allegedly attempting a getaway with United States cigarets smuggled across the Niagara River.

His condition today was reported as serious.

Police said Taylor was attempting to drive away when the bullet hit his elbow. He lost control of the car and struck a tree.

Police are also holding another man and a woman.

THREE CHARGED

They are Taylor's 51-year-old brother, Fred, and the latter's wife, all of Toronto. The three have been charged with smuggling cigarettes.

Police said Victor Taylor was waiting on shore when he saw R. C. M. P. officers. He allegedly went to warn the occupants of a boat in the river.

An R. C. M. P. inspector said a man in the boat dived into the water and swam away. A woman climbed out on shore and escaped.

Police later located Mr. and Mrs. Taylor in a car in the area.

Witnesses Afraid, Mau Mau Unpunished

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Members of the secret Mau Mau society, pledged to drive out the white man, have committed brutal crimes but go unpunished because witnesses are afraid to give evidence, Attorney-General John Whyatt said yesterday.

Charges against more than 100 Africans, suspected of being members of the black magic society, have been dropped recently because witnesses have either disappeared or been frightened into changing their stories, he added.

He told the legislative Council of this British colony that at least six natives who refused to take an oath of allegiance to the Mau Mau had been strung up from rafters until unconscious. Women had been dragged from their homes and beaten until they agreed to join.

One man who gave evidence had been strangled and the hut of a village policeman had been set on fire, killing three members of his family. Another daughter of his was missing and believed killed.

He was introducing legislation designed to wipe out the Mau Mau and other semi-political organizations which threaten the government. The council will vote on the eight-point bill today.

The bill would make all native organizations of more than 10 members subject to a licensing law and the movements of known Mau Mau members would be restricted.

Accuse French Authorities Of Hushing Sub Details

TOULON, France (Reuters)—French naval authorities today were accused of trying to "hush up" the cause of this week's submarine disaster, in which the French sub La Sibylle carried 48 men to their deaths at the bottom of the Mediterranean.

The Paris newspaper Auorore said a news "black-out" had driven people to suppose that an attempt was being made to hide responsibility.

The Franc-Tireur said the Sibylle had already had a diving accident during the present naval exercises off the south of France.

Some of her crew, before embarking for the last time, had told friends the sub was damaged and unsafe.

The mother of one of the sailors in the Sibylle, Mrs. Janice le Gal of Rheims, was quoted as saying: "My son told me that the submarine recently nosed-dived suddenly and that the crew had enormous difficulties in getting it back to the surface."

The newspapers also critized the variety of equipment and the age of the French navy's 19 submarines. Most of them are former German U-boats or, like the Sibylle, on loan from Britain. The newspapers said this made it difficult for the French crews to familiarize themselves with their equipment.

U.K. To Buy 115,000,000 Bus. Of Wheat

Said Slightly More Than Amount Bought In 1951-52

OTTAWA (CP)—The United Kingdom has agreed to buy 115,000,000 bushels of wheat from Canada during the 1952-53 crop year under the international agreement, it was announced today.

The figure includes wheat sold in the form of flour.

This is slightly more than the 113,000,000 bushels purchased by the United Kingdom under the international wheat agreement in the 1951-52 crop year, said Trade Minister Howe in a statement announcing the deal.

SLIGHTLY LOWER

"It is somewhat lower, however, than the total purchases of wheat and wheat flour by the U. K. from Canada in that year, which included additional purchases on a class two basis and residual portion under the international wheat agreement."

"Class Two" wheat is wheat sold outside the terms of the international wheat agreement, at a price higher than the maximum set by I. W. A. The amount Canada sold on this basis to the U. K. last year has not been disclosed.

Under the I. W. A., the maximum price for wheat is $1.80 a bushel in United States funds — currently about $1.72 Canadian.

Stevenson Plans Discuss Fund

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Governor Adlai Stevenson promised today to speak up about his controversial fund for supplementing salaries of Illinois officials as he prepared for 11,000 miles of rugged campaigning through 17 states.

The Democratic presidential nominee's campaign manager, Wilson Wyatt, said the Illinois governor "will have something further to say" about the special fund that has become a target for a heavy bombardment from the Republican campaign.

So far, Stevenson has declined to reveal how big the fund was, who contributed to it, or who got what amounts from it.

What he has said about it boils down to this:

Although there has been no secrecy about the fund, it would be a breach of faith to name those who benefitted from it. The fund was set up with money left over from Stevenson's 1948 campaign for governor, plus some donations since. It has been used for gifts to a few persons Stevenson has appointed to state office. As a result, competent men, who could not have afforded otherwise to give up better-paying private positions, have been drawn into state jobs.

2 Rochester Visitors Killed By Train

HAMILTON (CP) — Two visitors to Canada from Rochester, N.Y., died this morning as a result of an accident in which their 1952 automobile was hit by the Toronto-St. Catharines fruit train, at the crossing of Fruitland side road and the C. N. R. track.

They were the only persons in the car. Neither was identified immediately.

Rescue 9 Men Marooned On Ice-Cap

LONDON (Reuters)—Nine British airmen, marooned on a Greenland ice-cap for more than a week, were rescued today by a ski-equipped plane.

The Air Ministry said it had no details of the rescue except that all the men were taken off. A terse radio mesage from the U.S. air base at Thule, Greenland, summed up the operation: "All out."

The men had been on the ice-cap since last Tuesday when their plane crashed. They had been on a mission to drop supplies to a British exploring expedition in Greenland.

SAVED TREK

Today's operation saved the men from a 200-mile trek hrough Greenland's desolate wastes. If attempts to rescue them by plane had failed, they would have had to walk out to the British expedition's main base camp.

The men had been living in the waterproof fuselage of their damaged plane. Originally 12 men were stranded. Three injured, including a United States Air Force officer, were taken off Wednesday by an Albatross amphibian plane fitted with jet-assisted take-off equipment.

8 Sportsmen Go On Trial

PARRY SOUND (CP) — Second day hearings in the case against eight southern Ontario anglers charged with a total of 33 violations of the Game and Fisheries Act opened here today under Magistrate F. C. Powell.

Yesterday, at Burks Falls, Magistrate Powell ordered the trial moved here. No reason was given but it was assumed the odor from numerous fish and the warmth of the tiny courtroom were contributing factors.

George Laver of Cooksville, deputy game warden, was charged with taking 127 lake trout with gill nets and having more than 10 lake trout in his possession. Further charges included: Using gill nets in Tims Lake in Algonquin Park and unlawfully breaking a beaver dam.

John Kidd of Inglewood, a former magistrate, was charged with taking 127 lake trout with gill nets, having more than 10 lake trout in his possession and using gill nets in Tims Lake.

Dr. William Stubbs, Caledon veterinary, was charged with taking 127 lake trout with gill nets, having more than 10 trout in his possession and unlawfully breaking a beaver dam.

Others facing similar charges: Lockwood Stubbs, Alton; Dr. Jas. Thomas, Caledon physician; Gordon J. Breden, Orangeville town councillor, William Ferguson, former town councillor at Orangeville.

Had First Snow

TIMMINS (CP) — The first trace of snow fell today in the Porcupine area. It followed heavy rain last night and melted on contact.

Warn Boyd's Wife Keep Back From Prisoners Bench

TORONTO (CP)—The wife of Edwin Alonzo Boyd was warned today to keep away from the seat immediately behind the prisoner's bench when she entered the courtroom where two alleged members of her husband's gang are being tried for bank robbery. In another courtroom, the murder trial of Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson neared completion and the Crown expected to wind up its case today against the two charged with the fatal shooting March 6 of Toronto Detective Edmund Tong.

The slaying was one incident in a list of other crimes against the pair. For eight days they were Canada's most-wanted criminals after their escape two weeks ago from Toronto's Don jail with Edwin Boyd and William Russell Jackson.

Today when the doors of the other courtroom opened an attendant told Mrs. Boyd to proceed to the "far end" of the room. She smiled and went there but later moved back toward the dock. Her husband had not arrived at that time.

A policeman moved quietly toward her and directed her to move back again.

GO TO JURY TODAY

The bank robbery charge against Joseph Jackson and Allister Gibson were expected to go to the jury today. Norman Boyd is charged with helping his brother while a fugitive and with receiving the stolen bank loot.

Edwin Boyd has pleaded guilty to the two counts against him and now awaits sentence.

In the courtroom today Mrs. Gibson sat on one side of Mrs. Boyd. On the other sat Irene Boyd, a missionary and sister of the brothers. She dabbed her eyes frequently with a handkerchief.

The Crown finished its case yesterday against Joseph Jackson and Gibson. No defence witnesses were called on their behalf but two appeared for Norman Boyd.

When the court adjourned for the day in the Suchan and Jackson trial, a Montreal detective was testifying how Suchan was shot and captured in Montreal last spring.

Det.-Sgt. Albert Dauphin told how Montreal police went to an apartment in the Croydon Apartments

Lie Decides Retire In '54

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Secretary-General Trygve Lie has decided to step down from his $40,000-a-year United Nations post Feb. 1, 1954, at the end of a three-year extension of his term, and retire to Norway. Some day he would like to be prime minister of Norway.

This was disclosed today by persons who know the mind of Norway's former foreign minister. He has been boss of the 4,000-man U.N. secretariat since 1946.

When he leaves, he will get a lifetime pension of $10,000 a year, but he cannot hold public office until he has been away from the U. N. for five years. Lie now is 56.

Lie's intentions came to the fore as U. N. officials studied a draft of a staff reorganization scheme which would abolish the posts of eight assistant secretaries-general, each paid $22,000 annually, and would create three deputy secretaries-general, each at a considerably higher salary.

Lie was said to have described this plan as his "last will and testament." Some of his assistants foresee opposition from countries which could not expect to have a deputy under the new arrangement.

Seize Sweep Receipts

MONTREAL (CP)—Police raided a west-end home last night and seized 2,400 sweepstake receipts, a number of reports and a file containing the names of 300 sales agents across Canada. Police said a summons will be issued against the man living in the house. His name was not released.

Would Pool Resources To Develop Colonies

STRASBOURG, France (AP)—The Consultative Assembly of the Council of Europe last night approved a plan for its members to pool their resources for the development of European colonies and dominions and to share in the rewards.

The "Strasbourg Plan" proposes to create a vast new trading area embracing the British Commonwealth, Western Europe and its overseas territories, and matching either the Soviet bloc or the United States in economic power.

It would enable West Germany, which has no colonies, to help create new sources of raw materials in backward territories. It also would bolster colonial peoples against Communist penetration by lifting their living conditions and help take Europe off the receiving end of United States aid.

TORONTO (CP)—A fortune in gold stolen yesterday at suburban Malton airport is likely already in the United States gold market where it would bring more than $300,000, investigators said today. Police estimate that the legitimate value of the gold, which was in transit from Toronto refineries to Montreal and thence to England, at $215,000. Special investigators of the Canadian National Railways — whose duties cover operations of Trans-Canada Air Lines, which was transporting the bullion—Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Ontario Provincial Police worked throughout the night on the disappearance but were unable to say how the gold was stolen.

"It just seemed to vanish," said one officer.

Police said they could not trace the gold after it was signed for by a T. C. A. cargo agent at Malton when it arrived there by Brink's Express from the refiners

First reports yesterday placed the loss at $300,000. Today police estimated the loot was $215,000.

EMPLOYEES QUESTIONED

Some of the cargo employees, who underwent questioning most of the night, said the gold was taken as far as the loading station near the Montreal-bound plane which left at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday. Others contended it wasn't in the cargo room when they went to load it.

It wasn't until 9:30 last night that the general alarm was sounded. T. C. A. investigators, apparently hoping that the valuable cargo had been merely mislaid, did not notify police until about 3:30 p.m.

That meant the thieves had a start of about seven hours — enough for them to get it across the border, police said.

LEFT UNGUARDED

The gold was left unguarded in the shipping room and officers said the robbery was "as simple as ABC."

The man had only to walk in, pick up the cases and load them on a truck or into the trunk of an automobile.

Restaurant Operator Killed In Holdup

SOREL Que. (CP)—Provincial Police reported today a 32-year-old service station and restaurant operator was shot and killed last night at nearby Yamaska East by two men during an attempted holdup of his restaurant.

They immediately launched a search for two young lumberjacks reported to have been in the district yesterday.

Aurelien Houle, father of two children, was killed by a single blast from a sawed-off shotgun when he attempted to prevent the two from robbing his wife in their restaurant, which adjoins the service station.

Mrs. Houle reported that one of the men visited the restaurant yesterday and bought a soft drink. Last night, as she was counting up the day's receipts, two men entered and demanded the cash. She called for her husband who tried to disarm the men. In the struggle, the sawed-off shotgun discharged, fatally wounding Houle.

Re-elect Mosher CCL President By Big Majority

TORONTO (CP) — A.R. Mosher today was re-elected for his 13th term as president of the Canadian Congress of Labor.

The 71-year-old veteran labor leader met only left-wing opposition. William L. White of the Vancouver Marine Workers, nominated by the left-wingers, met a crushing defeat.

The vote was 737 to 85 in favor of Mosher, C. C. L. founding president.

Donald MacDonald defeated William Mahoney to retain his dual position of secretary-treasurer and organizing director.

MacDonald, who had been considered the underdog in a gruelling battle for votes, edged Mahoney by 45 votes. The count was 455 for MacDonald and 410 for Mahoney.

MacDonald stepped into the chief executive officer's job following a C. C. L. internal squabble last year which ended with the resignation of Pat Conroy, now Canadian labor attache at Washington.

Mahoney, assistant to steel union boss C. H. Millard, had the backing of the big unions in the fight to grab the pivot job from Macdonald. But splinter groups from the big steel-auto and packing house unions as well as the apparently solid backing of MacDonald's own union, the United Mine Workers, was enough to swing the vote in MacDonald's favor.

Announcement of MacDonald's election was met with wild applause. The big fear among some C.C.L. groups was that if Mahoney had won, it might have meant encroachment on the little unions by the big international union groups.

Wrong Man Held As Deserter

FORT DIX, N.J. (AP) — An honorably - discharged veteran whom the United States Army mistakenly held as a deserter for 14 days headed home today.

There was no official explanation by Fort Dix authorities as to just what caused a series of mix-ups that led to the detention of Herman Miaski, 23, a member of the reserve since being discharged in 1948.

Miaski's troubles hinged on whether he was sent an order to report to active duty in 1950. Army records, according to the public information officer at Fort Dix, indicated at first that the order was sent. Miaski said he never got such an order.

On Wednesday, the adjutant-general's office in Washington advised Dix authorities there was no evidence the Rennselair, N.Y., veteran had been called back to service and ordered him released pending an investigation.

Before the order for his release came through, Miaski was plucked off a job Sept. 10, and turned over to military police as a deserter. He spent the next two weeks in jail.

Allied Planes Down 56 Jets

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — United States Sabre jets today shot down four Communist MiG jets in the first air batles in four days, the U. S. Fifth Air Force said.

The dogfights boosted the September toll of Russian-built jets to a record 56 destroyed. The old monthly mark of 44 was set last April.

The air force said the swift Sabres also damaged four MiGs in battles with 16 Red fighters east of Sinuiju, south of the Yalu River. One damage claim was not confirmed.

The United States Eighth Army said Communist troops probed Allied outposts north and northeast of the Punchbowl on the eastern fronts Thursday night and early today. Six times the Reds fell back under withering mortar fire.

Say Cheaper Meat Expected Now Support Price Cut

TORONTO (CP)—Meat industry officials said yesterday that housewives should pay less for beef and pork this fall and winter, following the Ottawa announcement that the government is lowering its price supports on hogs and cattle. The 10-cent-a-pound drop on beef which chain stores in this area put into effect following the announcement was heralded by many meat packers and buyers as "only the beginning." Prices should drop "substantially" they said. Steak sold yesterday in Toronto stores for 79 cents a pound, 10 cents below last week's price and 20 to 25 cents lower than this time last year.

In making the announcement of a $2 drop in beef support prices and $3 on hogs, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said he hoped the drop would not be reflected in falling prices. If the U.S. embargo against Canadian livestock and meat is not lifted by April, the support price will go up again.

The action, it is hoped, will stimulate Canada's export meat trade, which would keep prices up for the farmer and remove the present glut on the Canadian meat market.

Baby Found Dead In Bed Of Infection

Kenneth Patrick Lynch, 16-month-old son of Cornelius Lynch and the former Bertha O'Connor of Belleville died suddenly in Peterborough Wednesday.

The baby was found dead in his bed early Wednesday morning by his aunt, Mrs. Ambrose Clancey, 392 Rogers St., who was keeping him for a short period for her sister. Coroner Dr. Herbert Young pronounced death due to severe infection.

Mr. and Mrs. Clancey believed the baby to be in good health and had no idea that there was anything wrong until Mrs. Clancey found him Wednesday morning. Dr. W. J. W. Gamble was called and the baby rushed to the hospital, but did not respond to treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynch have one other son, Terry, 10 days old. Mrs. Lynch is formerly of Peterborough and daughter of Mrs. Ellen O'Connor of Peterborough and the late Mr. O'Connor.

The funeral was held Thursday in Belleville and burial was in St. James' cemetery, Belleville.

Expect Announcement Of Pipeline Deal

SARNIA (CP) — An announcement of an all-Canadian pipe line to bring Alberta's natural gas to the east is expected today following a meeting of Premier Manning of Alberta and Premier Frost of Ontario in Toronto.

Premier Frost said last night he is anxious to get the project started. Premier Manning said Alberta is ready to send to other parts of Canada its surplus of natural gas.

A Toronto newspaper says the gas should be flowing into Ontario by 1956.

Both premiers attended the official opening of the new $23,000,000 refinery here of the Canadian Oil Companies, Limited, at which Trade Minister Howe forecast that "not many years distant" Canadian Oil production will meet all Canadian oil requirements, rather than the present one-third.

Both premiers referred to the natural gas question in speeches at the official opening. Mr. Frost spoke of Ontario's need for Alberta's natural gas. Mr. Manning said his province had proven reserves of 7,000,000,000,000 cubic feet.

Australian Gov't Sells Interest In Oil Refinery

CANBERRA, Australia (Reuters) —Prime Minister Robert Menzies announced today that the Australian government has sold its controlling interest in Commonwealth Oil Refineries Ltd., to the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, which thus becomes sole stockholder in the distributing and refining enterprise.

Anglo-Iranian plans an immediate expansion program, including a new refinery in Western Australia which will be able to provide 40 per cent of the country's petroleum requirements.

Menzies' announcement in the House of Representatives drew an immediate attack from Opposition leader Herbert Evatt, who claimed A.I.O.C.'s payment of £2,762,506 for the government's 51 per cent of the stock was "gross undervalue."

Menzies said the new refinery will be built at Kwinana, near Fremantle. It would have a capacity of 3,000,000 tons a year and should be operating by 1956.

Truman And Zarubin Exchange Assurances

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman and the new Soviet ambassador yesterday exchanged coolly formal assurances that the people of the United States and Russia have only the friendliest of feelings toward each other.

The envoy, Georgi N. Zarubin, presented his credentials at the White House and had a meeting of about five minutes with the President. Indications were that it was strictly in accordance with diplomatic protocol.

Zarubin, an impassive, heavy-set man of 52, was transferred to Washington after serving six years as envoy to Britain. He was ambassador to Canada at the time of the spy trials.

Zarubin declared "it's not true" that Moscow is carrying on a hate-America campaign. Otherwise he brushed aside the questions of reporters without even a "no comment" and headed back to the Soviet embassy.

City Council

a penalty in the case of such action not being taken.

Section 386, subsection 52, of the Municipal Act provides for the establishment of municipal parking lots. It says that bylaws may be passed "for acquiring, establishing, laying out and improving land where such vehicles may be parked and for erecting buildings for such purposes thereon, and for regulating, supervising and governing the parking of vehicles thereon provided a fee is charged and collected for such parking."

METERS ALOWED

In this section there is no mention made of how the fee is to be collected; whether parking meters may or may not be used. However, a later section provides for the use of parking meters. In addition, no penalty is mentioned.

Subsection 1 of section 492 of the Municipal Act says that the council of any municipality or the board of commissioners of police may pass bylaws to provide for the imposition of "penalties of not more than $50 upon every person who contravenes any bylaw of the council or of the board passed under the authority of this act."

Those are the two sections of the act which provide for the establishment of the parking lot and for a penalty.

A copy of the letter written by Mr. Fair to the city council, and one of a letter to the Examiner are re-printed here:

LETTER TO EXAMINER

"Dear Sir: I a enclosing herewith a copy of a letter which is self-explanatory.

"Parking meters on the highways are intended to be used for the purpose of regulating traffic on the highways and not as a means of revenue; (a popular misconception). Municipalities may establish parking areas "provided a fee is charged and collected for such parking." See the Municipal Act, Chapt. 386, Subsec. 52 R.S.O. 1950.

"I am of the opinion that it is not within the legislative powers as granted under the Municipal Act for a municipality to pass bylaws to provide for a penalty, by way of a fine, for over-parking the parking time paid for in advance in a municipal parking lot, but may charge such additional sum as the overtime warrants. I am informed that people are receiving summonses and paying fines when ticketed for overtime at the meters in the market square, now the municipal parking lot. I therefore submit that this is not only unfair but illegal for the city to so impose upon the public. A man will pay a dollar fine in preference to incurring the expense of fighting a legal issue."

LETTER TO CITY CLERK

"Dear Sir: It occurred to me that the City Council should at this time consider the advisability of discontinuing the use of parking meters in the market square. Someone is going to challenge the legality of a summons to Police Court and the notice of the fine for over-staying the period of time provided for in the amount of money he deposited in the meter.

"It might be well to refer the matter to your City Solicitor as I am of the opinion that your bylaws in respect to parking on the highways do not apply to municipal parking lots. See sections 386 (52) and 388 (107) Municipal Act Chapt. 243 R.S.O. 1950.

"If the city is paying wages to a man, as I believe it is now, to put tickets demanding a dollar fine on parkers' cars as soon as the time runs out on the meter, the money could be much better and more happily spent as wages for a manager and a charge made for the length of time of parking."

Mau Mau Raid Leaves 300 Cattle Dead

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Mau Mau, a native brotherhood pledged to drive the white man from Africa, today staged a raid on farms in Nanyuki area 100 miles from here, leaving 300 cattle dead or mutilated.

They made their foray while the legislative council for the colony was meeting here for an emergency debate on recent atrocities blamed on the secret society.

Reports of the raid said about 14 natives attacked cattle herds with knives and clubs, slashing them and smashing their skulls. One cow was found with its legs hacked off. On one farm a building was set afire.

The legislative council considered a bill introduced yesterday by Attorney-General John Whyatt to smash Mau Mau and other secret societies. Among other things the bill would make all native organizations of more than 10 members subject to a licensing law.

WITNESSES DISAPPEAR

Whyatt told the council yesterday that charges against more than 100 suspected Mau Mau members had been dropped recently because witnesses either disappeared or were frightened into changing their stories.

He said at least six natives who had refused to take the Mau Mau oath of allegiance had been strung from rafters until unconscious. Women had been dragged from their homes and beaten until they agreed to join.

E.R. Davies, a member for African affairs, today gave a list of offences ascribed to Mau Mau.

They included 23 murders. Some of them were carried out by burning huts while people were inside. There were also 12 assaults, one church desecrated and one mission attacked, he said. The organization was also responsible for four suicides "by people opposed to Mau Mau who were so terrorized that they hung or drowned themselves."

T.C.A. officials declined to comment on the case with the exception of a brief statement by Dennis Barclay, T.C.A. public relations officer, who said:

GOLD "MISSING"

"As far as T.C.A. is concerned, the gold is just missing. We have no official knowledge that it was stolen. Nor do we know exactly what it is worth."

The gold was taken to the airport Wednesday afternoon by Brinks, Inc. They turned it over to T.C.A. cargo handlers who signed for it and placed it in a wire-netted cage, similar to a bank teller's. The cage was locked with a small padlock, but no guards were placed in the vicinity.

POLICE 'DISGUSTED'

Police said they had warned T. C. A. to take more precautions following two break-ins within the last two months at the air terminal 18 miles northwest of downtown Toronto. Police said apparently nothing had been done and one high official said he was "disgusted" at the theft.

Police linked the disappearance to the $80,000 gold robbery in Sudbury two months ago when thieves took the gold from a railway station platform. Another large recent robbery was the $125,000 left of gold ingots from the East Malartic Mines.

In Montreal Trans-Canada Air Lines officials said the bullion reported missing from Toronto's Malton airport was destined for the United Kingdom for trans-shipment to an undisclosed destination.

A spokesman said the gold was to have gone to Heath Row airport, outside London, but the company is not permitted to indicate the eventual destination of gold shipments.

It was learned that one man, an unarmed express employee usual takes a wheel truck full of consigned goods 120 feet from the cargo shed to the plane. Goods are then placed in one of the compartments of the plane.

GOLD UNGUARDED

Officials said an employee took some of the gold boxes from the shed and started to wheel the truck to the waiting plane. At the beginning of the runway — 50 or 60 feet from the plane — the employee left the shipment alone for three to four minutes while he went to the post office to pick up mail for the flight. The post office is about 60 yards from where the gold was left.

Police have not as yet ascertained whether the gold was taken by a gang of fast-working thieves who raided the wheel truck while the employee left it alone; if the six missing boxes ever left the express shed; or whether there is a posibility of the gold theft having taken place in Montreal.

Investigators said they believed there had been an inside tipoff for the robbery. It was felt the job was the work of a well-organized gang.

Aly Khan, Rita Hayworth Have Big Time In Paris

PARIS (Reuters) — Aly Khan and Rita Hayworth slept late this morning after a big night together last night.

The playboy Prince and his movie star princess came home together at 3:30 this morning after taking in dinner at Maxim's and a late show at a Montparnasse night club.

Aly dashed 500 miles from the south of France yesterday for the sudden reunion with his estranged wife who arrived Wednesday after following the Prince across the Atlantic.

No one is saying anything official about a reconciliation yet, but the two slept under the same roof for the first time in months.

Ever since she got off ship Rita has been picking up where she left off — moving into Aly's house in the fashionable Paris suburb of Neuilly, driving Aly's car.

The Prince, heir to the millions of the fabulous Moslem leader, the Aga Khan, seemed tireless yesterday. He took the wheel of one of his sleek cars and drove at breakneck speed the length of France from Cannes to Paris. Then he drove from place to place in Paris with Rita at his side.

Must Always Be Ready To Talk With Reds—Jessup

TORONTO (AP) — Philip C. Jessup, United States ambassador-at-large and one of State Secretary Dean Acheson's chief advisers, said today "we must always be ready to talk to the Soviets in the hope that some day they will really be ready to negotiate."

Jessup, in a speech prepared for a meeting here of the Toronto Women's Canadian Club, reviewed at length the difficulties of negotiating with the Russians.

Although modern history affords several examples of aggressive totalitarian regimes," Jessup said, "the Soviet Union is the first great nation which, since the opening of Japan to the west in 1853, has shut itself off from the rest of the world behind an Iron Curtain.

"When you combine the three factors — the nature of modern war and modern weapons, the existence of a great military power which operates as a great conspiracy for world domination, and the fact that this power is completely shut off from the rest of the world and operates in total secrecy—you have an indication of why a simple prohibition no longer meets the need of the world community."

This referred to Soviet proposals to outlaw atomic weapons.

In negotiations over atomic control and disarmament, Jessup said, the Russians have not been aiming at real agreement but at bringing about "our disarmament without paying anything for it."

Prices Continue Weaker On Exchange

TORONTO (CP) — Prices continued to weaken today in early afternoon stock market trading, but most losses were small.

Volume for the first three hours totalled 1,108,000 shares and covered a fairly narrow list of selected issues.

In the base metals section, Coldstream suddenly became active in early afternoon and dropped 45 cents in a turnover of about 17,000 shares. Higher-priced issues were generally mixed while other recorded a majority of losses. United Asbestos gained.

Senior golds turned firm in early afternoon and juniors also gained as MacLeod and East Malartic added pennies. A number of prospects traded actively, most for penny losses. Gunnar, New Delhi, and Chimo followed this pattern.

Western oils recorded a majority of small losses but a few leading issues gained.

The exchange's 1 p.m. indices showed industrials down .25 at .25 at 318.81, golds up .64 at 88.11, base metals down .42 at 185.72 and western oils down .11 at 126.23.

on Cote de Neiges where Suchan was shot and captured the day after Tong was shot. He and three other policemen secreted themselves in Suchan's apartment.

He said: "Within a few seconds I saw a man enter the living room. He made a draw with his right hand from his left hip.

The court then adjourned before Dauphin finished his testimony.

DOORMAN TESTIFIES

Earlier, Edward Allard, doorman at the Croyden Apartments, identified Suchan as a man known to him as Victor Lennoff who occupied an apartment with his wife on the third floor.

Mr. Allard described a male visitor to the Lennoffs' apartment as a man wearing a dark moustache and horn-rimmed glasses. Questioned by the Crown, he said the man he remembered didn't look exactly like Jackson.

Much of the afternoon was taken up with presentation of evidence from seven Toronto policemen as to the manner in which an identification line-up was handled Aug. 6 at police headquarters.

Suchan and Jackson were members of the line-up and 12 witnesses were taken to view them in a line-up room to try and establish identification.

TRADED VIOLIN FOR GUN

A snowy-haired Violin-maker, George Kindness, said Suchan, whom he knew as Val Lesso, a musician, had visited his shop frequently over a period of years. He testified that Suchan traded him a violin for cash and a revolver—the gun the Crown says killed Tong.

Five taxi drivers who carried the two men in relays from Port Credit to Hamilton the day Tong was shot, testified as to the identity of Suchan and Jackson.

Railways Ask Provincial Motion Refused

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Pacific Railway today asked the Board of Transport Commissioners to reject a motion from eight provincial governments calling for dismissal of its application for an eight-per-cent increase in freight rates.

John L. O'Brien, senior company counsel, said evidence presented the board by the railways this week has fully shown the need for the $40,000,000-a-year increase.

He opened the railways' final argument in the case a day after counsel for the provincial governments — all except Ontario and Quebec — had entered a motion of non-suit at the close of the railway evidence. The provinces did not submit any evidence — for the first time in the post-war rate hearings — and were to rely on argument later today.

In making the motion yesterday, provincial counsel said the railways had not established that an emergency existed in their finances to justify their application for an "immediate" increase.

UP TO BOARD

Mr. O'Brien contended today that they did not have to show this. It was up to the board, he said, to determine if their rates were "just and reasonable" and, if they were not, to adjust them.

But he added:

"There never has been presented to this board a case where it was more evident that, if immediate relief is not granted, the board will necessarily be faced with the necessity of a decision upon an application for much more substantial relief at a date not too far away."

The railways, he said, are faced with the "very definite prospect" of paying higher wages to the great mass of their employees — a reference to current negotiations over wage demands of their 125,000 non-operating employees.

It was possible, he said, that the wage increases would have to be paid retroactively.

Without taking the wage question into consideration, he said, the Canadian Pacific would fall short of meeting the earnings figure earlier designated by the board as reasonable for it in 1952. Should the eight-per-cent increase be granted by Oct. 15, it would miss the $46,600,000 earnings goal by $4,000,000.

Dog Owners Fined $34 Failed To Pay Tax

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS) — Seventeen owners or harborers of dogs, all of whom failed to procure a license for the animals, were charged one dollar court costs and had to pay the $2 license fee at police court here Thursday.

One case was dismissed when the defendant claimed he did not own a dog, and had not owned one for the past three years. The man had purchased a license for the past three years anyway, even though he said he did not own a dog. The case was dismissed.

Judges Praise Cheesemakers At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — A large display of locally produced cheese occupied a large portion of the space allotted to commercial exhibits at the Campbellford fair on Wednesday.

William P. Moore of Campbellford, dairy instructor for the Campbellford and Peterborough districts, was in charge of the display. He said that while the production of cheese was down from last year, due to the loss of the export market, the number of entries at the local fair remained about the same as in other years. Campbellford usually displays more cheese than any other annual exhibition in the district. Last year there were more entries in the Campbellford fair than there were at the C.N.E., but this year, Toronto, Ottawa and London exhibitors increased. There were 91 exhibits at the C.N.E., 93 at the London exhibition and 53 at Campbellford.

Mr. Moore said there is a great deal of cheese now in cold storage. The quality of the cheese is as good or better than ever, and the interest taken by the makers in finishing the cheese was quite evident on Wednesday.

The judges said the finish on some of the cheeses was the finest they had ever seen, showing that interest in producing a fine product is being maintained by the makers.

Murray Heath of Campbellford, an annual exhibitor, walked off with most of the red first prize tickets on Wednesday, and also won the Royal Bank Special, a silver tray for the finest cheese in the display.

Judges on Wednesday were: George Pollard of Stirling; Jack Wilkinson of Tweed, R. H. Gilian of Belleville, J. M. Bain of London and the director was William P. Moore of Campbellford.

R.C.A.F. Band Presents Polished Concert

The R.C.A.F. Training Command Concert Band from Toronto, under the direction of its conductor, Flying Officer Clifford Hunt, gave a distinguished performance Thursday night at the Brock arena.

Approximately 500 came out to see and hear this highly rated 45-piece concert band.

The band was brought to Peterborough under the auspices of the R.C.A.F. 428 Wing. The proceeds will go to the Peterborough Air Cadet Squadron which is sponsored by the local wing.

POLISHED AND PRECISE

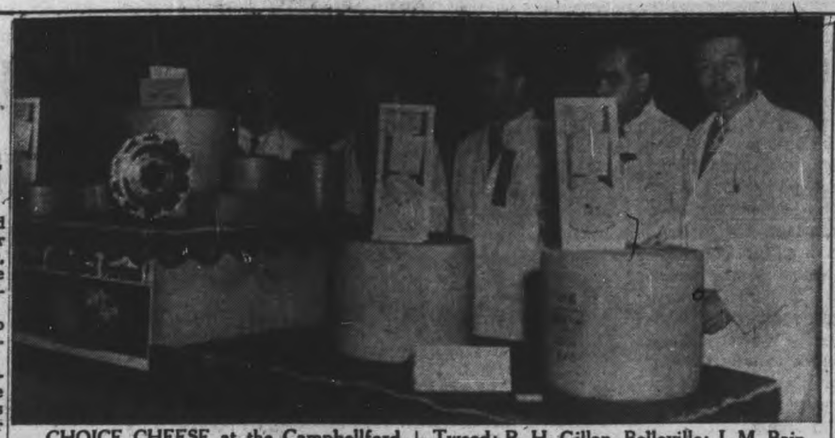
The program, ranging from opera overtures to a medley of Cole Porter songs provided listening variety as well as an opportunity for the band to display the full scope of its versatility. The group's performance was polished and precise at all times.

Understandable at its best in selections of martial music, the band was also quite equal to the controlled and subdued playing required for such works as The Afternoon of a Faun, by Debussy.

An interesting feature of the program was the playing of the tone poem, Tap Roots, a special arrangement for concert performance of background music written by Frank Skinner for a Hollywood film.

WM. PERYER CONDUCTS

Special honor was paid to William Peryer, band conductor in Peterborough for many years and past president of the Canadian Bandmasters' Association, at the concert. He was brought to the platform to conduct the band when it played the march, Imperial Echoes, by Safroni.



Other selections played by the band were: the Overtures to Weber's opera, Oberon, and Gilbert and Sullivan's, Iolanthe; Bolero, by Mozcowski, and Voices of Spring, by Strauss.

The two soloists of the evening, Sgt. Ken Moore, cornetist, and Musician Tom Magee, tenor soloist, gave commendable performances which were well received by the audience. Sgt. Moore played the demanding cornet solo, Ecstasy, by Leonard B. Smith and was brought back to play, Bless This House, by Brahe.

Musician Magee sang E Luceuan Le Stelle, from Pucini's opera, La Tosca, and, Homing.

The single blot on the evening's performance was the excess of volume sometimes caused by the public address system. This was particularly noticeable during Musician Magee's singing.

During intermission William Thompson, commanding officer of the Peterborough Air Cadet Squadron, outlined the activities of the squadron since its inception and explained the purpose of its organization. "We are primarily interested in developing good citizens," Mr. Thompson said.

Fire Opening Barrage Communist Peace Offensive.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Opening barrages of a gigantic world Communist peace offensive will be fired this week-end The thunder of the propaganda guns will mark the first phase of a new Soviet tactical assault upon the United States.

From about 30 countries — those in Asia and those such as Canada and Latin America bordering the Pacific — delegates have assemmunist China, to do the bidding of bled in Peiping, capital of Comthe Moscow-Peiping axis in this latest campaign.

The countries "represented" by the Communist-inspired delegates have a population of more than 1,500,000,000 and cover two-thirds of the earth's surface. Some countries such as Australia and Japan, have forbidden passports to prospective delegates.

BEGUN IN JULY

Plans for this assault were concocted in July, under Soviet guidance, at the conference of the Communist World Council of Peace in Berlin. The Peiping meeting is a curtain-raiser to the mighty peace offensive which reaches its climax Dec. 5 in Vienna with a World Congress

There is little doubt that the offensive is tied in with the decision of Moscow to summon an all-union congress of the Soviet Communist party Oct. 5, the first in 13 years.

The major attack is in Asia. One goal is the expulsion of U. S. influence. The ultimate goal is Communist domination of all Asia. In the future are plans for domination of the Middle East, Africa and South and Central America, a long-range program among those aims is the engendering of economic crises in the west.

ADOPT RESOLUTION

Here is what will take place in Peiping.

The "Congress of Partisans in Defence of Peace in Asia and the Countries of the Pacific Ocean" will dutifully adopt resolutions as follows:

1. Against remilitarization of Japan. Demanding withdrawal of all occupation forces.
2. For the outlawing of war propaganda.
4. For "peaceful solution" of the Korean conflict and other conflicts threatening world peace.

TO BLAME U.S

5. For development of international trade on "the basis of equality and mutual advantage," for development of cultural relations among countries, for steps to raise living standards of countries.

All these will be depicted as Communist goals thwarted by U. S. warmongers and aggressors.

W.C.T.U. Takes Poke At TV In Taverns

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A poke at television and other "inducements to drink" in taverns was taken today by a National Women's Christian Temperance Union officer.

Mrs. Blanche Butts Runion of Evanston, Ill., and St. Louis urged state legislatures to follow the precedent of the Province of Quebec in banning inducements in taverns as "lures for drinkers." She spoke at the opening session of the 78th annual W. C. T. U. meeting here.

Mrs. Runion said the law in Quebec bans shows of any kinds in taverns to attract or hold customers.

Use Of Sand Beaches Would Halt Erosion

TOLEDO, O. (AP)—The use of sand beaches is the key to halting erosion along the Great Lakes, the chairman of an erosion committee reported last night.

State Representative Richard H. Wood, chairman of the Ohio program division's sub-committee on shore erosion, made a report before the Great Lakes conference of the American Shore and Beach Reservation Association.

Woods said the time for surveys is past and construction now is needed. Sand beaches, said Woods, absorb damage caused by storms and violent waves.

Must Move Town

RUTH, Nev. (AP)—This little eastern Nevada copper town is to be moved so miners can dig beneath it. John C. Kinnear, Jr., general manager for Kennecott Copper Corp., said one-half the town of 1,200 persons will be shifted to a new site by next summer. The other half will be moved the following year. The company wants to go under the present townsite to dig a new shaft.

MONTREAL (CP) — Increased tram and bus fares set by the Montreal Transportation Commission Sept. 8 went into effect at 5 a.m. today. The Quebec Public Service Board ruled yesterday it has no power to hold up the increases, which raised the price of three tickets to 30 cents from 25 cents.

Counties' Health Unit To Visit 46 Schools

COBOURG (ENS).—Commencing next Monday, the health unit staff will embark on a two month immunization campaign which will take place at 46 rural schools in Brighton, Murray and Darlington townships. Infants and children will receive three inoculations during the three clinics which will be held at each school, the periods being three weeks apart.

The health unit points to the value to whooping cough incoulations for infants and pre-school children. In the occasional case where an inoculated child gets whooping cough, it has been found that in most cases the attack is mild.

The health unit also give lockjaw inoculations in combination with immunization against whooping cough and diphtheria, or alone.

Condition Better

COBOURG (ENS).—Condition of eight-year-old Shirley Linton, who was taken to the Hospital for Sick Children with a fractured skull over the weekend, is much improved, the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Linton, were informed Thursday. The youngster fell off her tricycle last week and apparently suffered no ill effects until a sudden lapse into unconsciousness revealed her condition was serious. An emergency skull operation was performed in Toronto to relieve the pressure caused by internal bleeding.

Vets Enter University

TORONTO (CP)—The first veterans of the Korean war have registered at the University of Toronto. They are Larry Moore, 20, of Kitchener, who served with the Princess Patricias, and Peter M.G. Grant of Toronto, who served with an ambulance unit. Veterans of the Korean war receive the same benefits as Second World War veterans.

'Thru Rain, Snow . . .'

EDMONTON (CP)—A New York firm, advertising itself as an "international publishers' representative," tried hard to, but didn't, fool Canada's postal officials. A letter, addressed to "General Manager, Albert Daily Newspaper, Alberta, British Columbia," reached its intended destination—the Edmonton Journal—without difficulty.

U.S. Officials See Ray Of Hope In Mossadegh's New Message

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States officials saw some hope today — but not much — in Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's latest proposal for settlement of his country's oil dispute with Britain.

The Iranian premier's tough note —he appeared to imply his country might go Communist unless his demands were met—was received here yesterday, addressed to President Truman. It was in the form of a copy of a detailed set of counter-proposals which he addressed initially to Prime Minister Churchill of Britain.

TOUGH ON THREE COUNTS

The message to the two western leaders was considered tough in three respects:

1. Mossadegh rejected as "inequitable" a joint settlement plan which Truman and Churchill placed before him Aug. 30:
2. He waved the apparent Communist threat;
3. He gave only 10 days from today for an answer.

The implied threat to yield to Communism was seen in this paragraph:

"In the present circumstances the Iranian nation may follow one of two roads; Either it should endeavor to improve the social conditions and ameliorate the situation of the deprived classes, something that would be impossible without the income from oil, or, if this road should remain blocked, it should surrender itself to probable future events which would be to the detriment of world peace."

The principal reason for hope among U. S. experts now is that Mossadegh has not closed the door to a settlement.

SETTLEMENT UNLIKELY

However, the odds against a settlement still appeared almost overwhelming.

The western powers thus found themselves in a position of uncertainty over what Iran eventually would be prepared to accept in the way of a deal, if anything The basis of Mossadegh's proposition was that claims for compensation by the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company as a result of Iranian nationalization of oil 18 months ago could be determined by the International Court of Justice at The Hague.

Mossadegh, however, laid down a number of conditions. One would limit A. I. O. C. claims to compensation for actual loss of physical property, thereby eliminating any claim for loss of profits.

But what is regarded here as the most difficult obstacle is a demand that Britain pay Iran an advance of £49,000,000 which A.I.O C. had been accumulating to pay increased royalties to Iran under an agreement which the Iranian Parliament never ratified.

Mossadegh has always contended this money really belonged to his country. Now he has insisted that it should be paid in pounds sterling convertible into dollars.

Sewage In The Great Lakes

The Michigan Water Resources Commission will make formal complaint that the Canadian municipalities of Windsor, Sarnia, Chatham, Sault Ste. Marie, Amherstburg and Wallaceburg are pouring untreated sewage into the Great Lakes, in defiance of a treaty made with the U.S. The complaint will be made to an International Joint Commission which meets in Washington in October. We hope that serious attention is paid to this complaint and that the offending municipalities are compelled by the Ontario Government to desist.

* * *

We express this hope not because we wish to annoy Windsor, Sarnia, Chatham, Sault Ste. Marie, Amherstburg and Wallaceburg, but because we think that everything possible should be done to arouse the whole of Ontario, and the whole of Canada, to the iniquity and wastefulness of our present methods of dealing with sewage. In far too many cases municipalities dump sewage which is raw or partly processed into watercourses and lakes. The effects of this practice are easily seen; lakes which once were clear and beautiful are becoming weedy and unpleasant; rivers are too foul to use for boating and swimming. And—which appears to us to be the greatest crime of all—organic material which should be returned to the land is being washed away, so that impoverishment of the land is inevitable and is already far advanced in many districts.

* * *

When are we going to wake up to the fact that ordinary sewage can be treated, without great expense, in such a way that it can be returned to our soil in the form of fertilizer? This continent is not so rich in fertilizer that we can afford to throw it away. Indeed, we see more and more chemical fertilizers being produced to make up deficiencies which are caused by this very waste of the most natural and immediate fertilizer—sewage. The establishment of a sewage farm which will turn municipal waste into a dry, odourless, organic fertilizer is not an expensive project as municipal projects go; such sewage farms can be managed at a profit to the municipality, and if they are too small to be profitable they can at least be made to reduce the cost of sewage service. Milwaukee maintains a sewage farm which produces a fertilizer which is very widely sold in Canada. What is wrong with us, that we have to import human dung from Milwaukee? Have we none of our own?

* * *

This is a realm in which stupidity has ruled for a century. Having at last, after many centuries of filthy neglect of sewage problems, learned not to throw our sewage into the streets, we have taken up the almost equally lunatic habit of throwing it into our waterways. It is time we advanced a step further and learned to put sewage where it belongs—on the land from which, in the beginning, it came. When we have done that for a time we shall hear less about soil erosion and exhausted land.

Fall Has Begun

International councils meet in high or cantankerous diplomacy. Wars flare and fade and the Korean war goes on. Union leaders threaten strikes. Reds threaten the unions and worry American politics. Presidential candidates criss-cross their nation. Guided missiles fly into space and cars crash on highways. Escaped robbers and killers are trapped, and small boys are trapped in their hideout. So the news runs; and yet the Fall descends as usual and life goes on to its wintry sleep there to gain strength and force for spring renewal.

Fall rains come to make their contribution to the new planting season. Fall wheat shows green through the stubble. Leaves take on the tinges which will make the trees splendid in a fortnight. The crops are gathered, except for some of the roots and gourds able to withstand a nip, and some churches will celebrate the harvest festival on Sunday.

Now is the time when farmers plan their crops of next year, and gardeners begin afresh for a finer display in 1953. Even discounting autumnal colours and wistfulness, the Fall has virtues endearing to those who like to work outdoors. It has not the impatience of Spring, the hot lust of summer, or the briskness of winter; it is a long, slow season beginning with mists and mellow fruitfulness, passing through grey and quiet, rain and dark earth, to the freeze-up. And if there is no garden or farm to occupy the time, one can fall back on deer and duck-shooting, which has the virtue of providing air and exercise with little harm to man, deer or duck.

Does Politics Harm The Intellect?

We have followed with keen interest the arguments advanced by the Canadian Bar Association to show that the appointment of judges in Canada should be what it calls "non-political." To be frank, we think the Association may wish that the appointments were more political than they are, for Conservative lawyers who aspire to the bench have in many cases abandoned all hope of achieving that eminence. But discussion of that aspect of the matter is fruitless. Let us be content to take the Bar Association at its word and examine the implications of the word "non-political," which it has used so freely.

Precisely what is wrong with politics? In what way does a lawyer's participation in politics unfit him for promotion to the bench? Is politics a shady and disreputable pursuit? Does it debauch and rot the intellect? Is the fact that a judge is a Liberal or a Conservative any more likely to influence his decisions than the fact that he is a Roman Catholic, an Anglican, a member of the United Church, or an agnostic? Precisely how does the Bar Association justify its holier-than-thou attitude toward politics in this matter, when provincial and Dominion politics is riddled with lawyers? Messrs. St. Laurent, Drew and Frost are lawyers and they are in politics; is it suggested that if any one of them were to be raised to the bench tomorrow he would not make a first-rate, unbiased judge? What is all this nonsense about politics, anyhow?

If a man wants to be in the public service—on the bench, for instance—and yet has no political opinions strong enough to make themselves noticeable, the likelihood is that he is a gutless time-server, on the lookout for a safe job and a pension. We do not want men of that stamp on the bench. We want men of conviction, and also of sufficiently supple intellect to set their personal convictions aside in the interests of even-handed justice.

The present method of appointing judges may not be the best, but it is not the political activity of the appointees which discredits it. When the Bar Association talks about politics, it talks about an avocation, an enthusiasm and a craft without which this country could not exist for a day.

Still Missing

Everybody has ancestors of some sort, even if they are only grandparents. There are perhaps a dozen families in Britain, an authority on genealogy says, who can really and truly trace their ancestry back to the Norman conquest without resort to guesswork and jumping of generations. We have heard of people who claim even more ancient lineage; was it not asserted by Senator Taft's press agent that he counted Mark Antony among his forbears? But the greatest prize of all awaits the man who can prove that an ancestor of his was the first true Man, as distinguished from an ape.

Many years ago it was fashionable to talk about the Missing Link—the creature which bridged the gulf between man and ape. Many contenders for that title have appeared since Darwin suggested that man might have evolved from an ape. One of them was a creature called Proconsul; he did not swing about in trees, but on the other hand he appears to have walked on all fours. Another was an ape who could control fire; his scientific name is Australopithecus Prometheus. But an unmistakeable Missing Link has not yet been found, and a fortnight ago the London Zoological Society discussed the matter in detail.

We hate to seem reactionary, and we would not dream of trying to teach scientists to suck eggs, but we suggest, very humbly, that perhaps there never was a Missing Link; perhaps Man was always a separate species. After all, Darwin did not say that men were apes in the beginning; he merely suggested that it might be a good plan to explore that idea.

Perhaps scientists have been misled by the undoubted resemblance which some men bear to apes. Perhaps they think that man's power to make mischief and destroy things would only be possible if he had an ape somewhere in his family tree. But it is not out of the question that whatever power put apes on earth could have improved on the ape and made Man, as well. Apes, so far as we know, are just as they always were. Man, on the contrary, goes on from strength to strength, or from folly to folly, whichever way you look at it.

NOTES AND COMMENT

On his 100th birthday, Dr. Henry Bottrell, an Englishman, says "All this talk about dieting is piffle." Any centenarian from an insurance company like to reply?

King Farouk is reported to be bored with the Island of Capri. Yet Capri is world famous for its natural beauties. Perhaps they are not the kind of "natural beauties" the King can appreciate.

"If the payment of income tax were placed on a voluntary basis, how much tax would you pay?" asks the Kitchener Record. We won't answer because we think it vulgar to boast about one's patriotism.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

COBOURG AND COBURG: Nobody knows where the second 'o' in Cobourg's name comes from. The town is named after a Princess of the Royal House of Coburg—no second 'o'. I have recently inspected two early maps of Upper Canada (110 years or more old) and notice that both spell the town's name 'Coburg'. The extra 'o' may therefore have been due to local incorrect spelling, later given official authority. Such mistakes do get sanction. The only reason that the English language has an 'h' in 'ghost' is that a fifteenth century Flemish printer of the Bible in English, who did not know English and spoke thickly (as Flemings do), stuck in an 'h' in the phrase 'Holy Ghost', The Old English is 'gast'; German also has no 'h' in the word. And German has no second 'o' in Coburg.

YESTERDAY I met a man who said: "I've been punctured".

I quickly learned that it was his hand, not his ego, which had been punctured. His ego had in fact been inflated by the puncture—for he was going about town importantly with his hand swathed in impressive bandages, and what wasn't encased in gauze was coloured blood-red by some medicant or antiseptic. The wounded man had punctured his hand to a depth of three inches and a hair's breadth from the thumb nerve—believe this or not—by spearing himself on the pointed end of a grave-yard flower container; the kind usually jabbed into hallowed ground, not into the human hand. It seemed to me a silly sort of way to be wounded.

The sufferer looked grave and informed me that he had had from his doctor (a) a local anaesthetic (b) forceps and scissors used to cut away the skin, to make the wound bleed (c) a needle full of anti-tetanus serum on the arm (d) a bucket full of penicillin on the rump (e) pills to make him sleep, if needed. If they were not necessary he could return the little box of pills and get it taken off the bill.

I mention this man and incident because it holds two or three lessons for us all. 1. A puncture type of cut can be dangerous and needs care, because it does not bleed. Bleeding ordinarily is a cleanser. (The doctor—no doubt to entertain his patient while preparing the injections—said that he had seen only two deaths from tetanus; both the final results of improperly cared for punctures). (2) Always make the best of a good wound—it impresses people and increases one's importance. (3) Any doctor who will take back unused pills is a good egg, and no yegg.

SIR: Can the Utilities people turn off one's power just because one has not paid one's bill for power used?

ANSWER: They can and do, whether the One be Imperial Potentate of the Rockborough Club or Charon to St. Peter. Juice is juice, whether consumed by the high and mighty or by the meek and lowly. Thoroughly democratic. Did not God deny light to Milton?

RANDOM NOTES: The first drive-in bank in Canada was opened in Montreal this week, in the Town of Mount Royal. In addition to the drive-in wicket, the bank has a parking lot at the rear of the building for those who wish to do business inside the office. All very convenient for customers and the Boyd gang.

A lady I know is a member of the Fruit-of-the-Month Club, an American enterprise. Her fruit delivered in Peterborough this month was a box of a dozen peaches, each one the size of the ball used in softball games—about five inches in diameter. The small Niagara peaches were green peas beside them. They were grown in the state of Oregon. Lovely, luscious fruit, but despite elaborate packaging each one was damaged through bruising, right to the core. There was probably not a good mouthful in each peach. Which shows that the best fruit of the month is home-grown; cabbage for instance.

The unsuccessful candidates in the New Brunswick elections, and the McNair administration have lost little financially. The sessional indemnity in the province is only a thousand dollars; Cabinet Ministers get salaries of $3,500 a year, and Premier himself only $5,900.

In Ontario members get a sessional indemnity of $2,600, plus expense allowances of $1,300 tax free. Cabinet Ministers get all this and $10,000 a year; the Premier gets $14,000 additional to his indemnity as a member of the Legislature.

New Brunswickers must have a high democratic sense of public responsibility to offer themselves as candidates and even cabinet ministers at the going rates of indemnities. Premier-designate Flemming is probably not concerned about pay. He is a lumberman, secretary-treasurer and manager of a company, president of two others and a director of three more. He has also the distinction of being Past Grand Chancellor of the Knights of Pythias.

MORE QUESTIONS: As the column betrays, Alpha is short of questions. Now that he is back in circulation he hopes that readers will again keep him primed, as they have so kindly done in the preceding four years. The heading of this column indicates that questions and information on local lore, malicious and friendly, ancient and modern, curious and momentous, will be welcomed.

✧ ✧ ✧

FOR THE RECORD: Newfoundland is nearer Ireland than it is to Ontario. St. John's is 1,600 miles from Ireland and more than 1,800 from Peterborough. By inference—and distance—Newfoundland people must be more like the Irish than they are like Peterburians, which may be just as well for all parties . . . To make one people of a country which extends as far as Newfoundland is from British Columbia is really to break the bonds of nature. Yet it is being done. And now that Canada stretches to Newfoundland, is it too far a stretch of the imagination to think that Ireland may be the next Canadian Province?

FAIR COMMENT

A religious speaker was expounding on the great work of the Church to a motley crowd in Hyde Park. Some of his remarks infuriated a grimy proletarian who worked his way to the front. Looking contemptuously at the speaker, he snarled: "The Church is supposed to have existed for two thousand years and yet look at the state of the world."

The speaker looked intently at his interrupter and said quietly: "Water has existed for two million years, yet look at the state of your face."

How The Queen Spends Her Day

By SIR OWEN MORSHEAD, Librarian of Windsor Castle

PERFECTLY distracted with work of all kinds, boxes, letters, private and official, telegrams, questions, people to see, etc., till I am really quite bewildered and exhausted.' Thus wrote Queen Victoria in her diary one evening in 1885, after forty-eight years' experience of sovereignty. Although much has changed in the intervening years, one thing in the Sovereign's life remains constant, and that is the continual arrival and departure of the despatch boxes which form the means of communication between the Palace and the various departments of state. 'Did my boxes,' is the constant refrain of King George V's diaries.

Wherever the Sovereign may be, the day opens with a session with one of the private secretaries, more often with two; and each will bring a sheaf of letters calling for consideration, decision, action, or the expression of a view. Not until these are disposed of can the particular engagements of the day be undertaken; and the boxes leave behind them reports and memoranda to be studied. In the evening again, between tea and dinner, there may be a second session. Replies will have been drafted, fresh communications will have come in; and thus the business of state goes forward, whether Parliament is sitting or in recess, whether the Sovereign is in London or enjoying what others might call a holiday in the country. It is this mass of correspondence and reading which conditions the Sovereign's day; and the peculiar nature of the burden lies in its continuance without intermission all the year round.

THE PRIVATE SECRETARIES deal, in the main, with the government departments, both at home and overseas; and they compile the schedule of future engagements, often for a year or more ahead. Many matters of business fall to the Lord Chamberlain, the Keeper of the Privy Purse, the Master of the Household, and the Crown Equerry, who likewise bring their quota of problems for decision. But when all is done there remains a substantial volume of letters which only the Sovereign can write, not only to members of the Royal Family and personal friends but messages of encouragement and interest to those who act in her name overseas, and expressions of congratulation or condolence, both public and private.

The correspondence disposed of, there will ordinarily be interviews during the rest of the morning. A Privy Council consisting of some half-a-dozen persons may be assembled in an adjoining room to receive the Sovereign's consent to a number of regulations framed by departments of state: this is no longer a deliberating body, and its proceedings will not take long. Next we may reasonably picture an official coming in to discuss the arrangement for a series of functions, perhaps in the course of a two-day visit to an outlying part of the country. At midday, so the engagement book will record, the Foreign Secretary will be coming to introduce a new Ambassador to present his letters of credence. And before lunch the Home Secretary may bring a new Bishop to do homage.

Thus will have passed a busy morning (rather busier than usual), calling for continued fresh mental adjustments, and perhaps not a little discreet preparation: a round of interesting and stimulating contacts, from which, however, the relaxation of a quiet luncheon in the family circle will prove a welcome respite. Or it may be that the Ambassador will have remained to lunch; or a Governor-General about to return to his post overseas; or a leading statesman visiting London from one of the other countries of the Commonwealth. For the precious link which the Monarchy maintains with the other great communities in our family of nations is always kept in mind, and it is thus that the Sovereign can best get to know contemporary personalities and keep abreast of problems and trends.

During the greater part of the year, when the Court is in residence in London, the afternoon is often devoted to some public occasion at which the presence of the Sovereign is sought. Not infrequently there will be a reception of some kind at the Palace or a visit to some institution.

IT IS SAID that the Sovereign reigns but does not govern; and this is a truth conveniently expressed. It is the Sovereign, however, upon whose shoulders rests the responsibility of choosing who shall govern when it comes to selecting a new Prime Minister. Thereafter, when the new administration is formed, actions are daily taken in the Sovereign's name, and many of these require previous consent. Thus no longer, since the time of King Henry VIII, does the Sovereign journey in person to Westminster to approve bills which have passed both Houses of Parliament; but the Royal Assent is still essential, for without it the bills would remain inoperative.

When a convenient number of bills is ready the Lord Chancellor takes the Sovereign's pleasure upon the appointment of three peers of the realm to act as Commissioners, for the special purpose of signifying the Royal Assent to the proposed legislation; and the ceremonial which thereupon ensues in the House of Lords, in the presence of both Lords and Commons, is one of the most picturesque and curious in the whole range of pageantry associated with the crown. For the rest, the connection between Palace and Parliament is close and continuous.

Again, it is to the Court of St. James' that every Ambassador and Minister is accredited; and equally our own diplomatic representatives abroad receive their commissions from the Sovereign, who customarily sees them before their departure. When a new appointment is in contemplation the Foreign Secretary will suggest a name to the Sovereign, who will initial the submission if approved. Presently the formal Commission will arrive for signature, together with a letter addressed to the head of the state concerned. Although the Sovereign is nowadays spared the laborious task of signing the warrant of every commissioned officer in the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force, the personal link between the Monarchy and the Armed Forces of the Crown is closely cherished on both sides. The Church, too, holds the equivalent of its own parliament under the Crown, and needs the assent of the Sovereign to the appointment of bishops and deans. The judges likewise, upon the advice of the Lord Chancellor, receive their appointments from the Monarch.

As the fountain of honour, the Sovereign is concerned in the award of decorations for public service, and personally invests most of the recipients in a series of ceremonies within the Palace. There are, indeed, certain Orders which are left to the unfettered discretion of the Sovereign, such for instance as the historic Order of the Garter, the highly esteemed Order of Merit—and naturally the Victorian Order which is awarded for personal service to the Royal House.

If, in the course of this brief survey, I seem to deal unduly with the affairs of this particular country, let me not be misunderstood. The Sovereign is, as we all acknowledge with pride, Sovereign equally of our sister-nations within the Commonwealth. Communications from overseas governments do not pass through Whitehall but come direct to the Palace, and they constitute a considerable proportion of the day's work.

There are other fields which demand attention; and if the problems which they raise are less momentous, our own experience teaches up how peculiarly teasing the minor things in life can be. The Royal Household is a large structure, comparable in itself to a department of state; and although it works with harmony and precision there are questions to be considered relating to retirements and appointments, with all the other issues, personal and financial, in a large administrative machine.

✧ ✧ ✧

THEN THERE ARE the various estates appropriated to the Crown, from each of which arise matters for daily consideration. There are the two official residences, Buckingham Palace and Windsor Castle, both filled with treasures of every kind, which form the province of specialists appointed for the purpose. In addition, there are the two country estates of Sandringham in Norfolk and Balmoral in Scotland; these belong privately to the Sovereign, and they need all the attention that any other landowner devotes to the affairs of his property.

The Sovereign, moreover, is the head of a large family, the various members of which are inevitably public figures whose actions are continually in the public eye. Delicate personal issues are likely to arise, and it is necessarily to the Monarch that these are referred for decision.

Such, then, are the duties inseparable from the Crown, assumed at the outset of a new reign and laid down only with life itself. They must somehow be reconciled with the demands to which all of us, whatever our station, are subject: the calls of family life, the need for recreation, the fluctuations of personal health. It is inherent in the Sovereign's life that hardly a feature in the long pre-arranged programme of engagements can be changed without inconvenience and disappointment to many thousands of people: and this pressure of public obligation can as little be disregarded as the very continuity of the work to which I have alluded, and to which I would return. Although no two days in the life of the Sovereign may be alike, each closes upon a number of problems considered, with the certainty of numerous others in the boxes on the morrow.

Letters To The Editor

HAVE FOUNDATION OF GOOD FAIR

Sir: What should an Exhibition consist of, a midway and grandstand performance?

It was with deep concern that I read Disappointed's letter in the September 22 issue of your paper. It is my opinion that if the horse racing, cattle show and farm equipment were omitted, the Exhibition would lose considerable interest, not that I thought it was a wonderful fair, rather far from it. But why take away the foundation we now have; instead let us add to it.

As for one of the Directors being a cattle man (which is quite correct) I think it is a step in the right direction.

I would suggest (if I may) that if Disappointed didn't like what he saw in the Exhibits, he come down next year on children's day and get lost in the midway.

Yours truly,
PEBBLE ON THE BEACH.

REWARD SCHOOL PATROL?

Sir: I have a suggestion I would like to make. It is in regards to the children who are doing the active work in the School Patrol. They are doing a wonderful job and should be commended for it. I'll bet the parents and the police are proud of the way they are doing the job. I realize that these children are getting a lot of valuable training in Safety and Courtesy, but, what else? At the same time they are saving the city at least $1,000 a year. Would it not be a nice gesture on the part of the City Fathers to set half of this aside and take these kids on a trip? Or if this money is to be spent on some other project what about one of our Service Clubs doing something like that? After all these kids will be out on their corner, rain or shine, and it can get pretty cold standing on a corner for half an hour in zero weather. I have one child but she is an infant so I have no axe to grind.

Yours truly,
A TAX PAYING TRUCK DRIVER.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal: for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.

The light of the body is the eye; if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light. But if thine eye be evil, thy whole body shall be full of darkness. If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness!

No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon. (Matt. 6: 19-24.)

Carson Believes Actors Need To Break Away

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There comes a time when every actor should make his own declaration of independence, Jack Carson says.

The Canadian-born comic made his own two years ago when he broke with Warner Brothers after 11 profitable years.

"It was very nice making a fortune with the studio," said Carson, "and I could have stayed there and continued making big money until 1954. But sometimes you have to start thinking about your career and not just the money you're making.

MARKING TIME

"I realized two years ago that I wasn't getting any place at Warners, I was their handyman. Whenever they needed a few laughs in a picture, they'd say, 'let's get good old Jack.'"

Since leaving the Burbank lot, Carson, a native of Carman, Man., has made a big splash on the television scene, performed in his first New York play, "Of Thee I Sing," and is currently appearing with Esther Williams in "Dangerous When Wet." He added that the moola has been as abundant as ever.

"But even if I made less money," he argued, "it's worth it to have the independence. I can do television, plays, pictures, theatres — anythin I want to—instead of tying my entire future to a movie contract."

LONG FIGHT

Carson said his freedom came after a long wrangle with studio boss J. L. Warner. "At first he wanted me to pay $250,000 to get out of my contract," the actor recalled. "I just laughed at him. Then he gave me a script I didn't want to do. We called it quits, with no money involved. I think J.L. still likes me."

Carson says he has no regrets. "TV gives you a tremendous audience. And the money is very comforting, too."

Atomic Carrier Brings Changes

NEW YORK (AP)—A U.S. navy department official describes a forthcoming atom-powered aircraft carrier that he said will revolutionize the navy as did the change from sail to steam.

John F. Floberg, assistant secretary of the navy for air, wrote in the current issue of Collier's that it will have "a virtually unlimited cruising range at full speed."

He said the ship "will carry from 100 to 120 of the most powerful planes and will be able to launch them four at a time when it becomes necessary to get them into the air in a hurry."

Hashish Smugglers Take Up Challenge

CAIRO (Reuters)—Egypt's "Syndicate of Hashish Smugglers, Traders and Smokers"—an "underground" movement for 33 years—publicly declared itself yesterday with the slogan "hashish is less harmful than whisky."

"Whisky drives you crazy while hashish makes you happy," said the syndicate in a letter to all leading Cairo newspapers. It was signed by President Habib Allah ("Allah's favorite") and protested against the war declared on hashish by Premier Mohammed Naguib, who has threatened the death penalty for smugglers and 15 years at hard labor for addicts.

South African Problems Will Spark Fireworks

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—A climax in the bitter relations between South Africa and the United Nations is expected at the coming United Nations General Assembly.

Prime Minister Daniel Malan's threat this week to withdraw South Africa from the U.N. if it continues "meddling" in South African affairs comes up smack against an Arab-Asian demand that the whole question of the strained race relations in South Africa be brought before the U.N. as a threat to international peace.

Sixteen Arab and Asian countries have submitted their demand and the fight on whether it will be a subject for the Assembly will break out at the Assembly opening Oct. 14.

These countries point to the unrest in South Africa displayed in the resistance by both natives and some white South Africans against the tightened racial secregation legislation brought in by Malan's government. South Africa is bound to argue that this problem is of domestic concern only—the U.N. Charter calls for the international organization to leave internal problems to the country concerned. But the Arab-Asian group insists the problem has international effects.

OTHER PROBLEMS

This will be a new South African problem in the U.N. but there are two other questions affecting South Africa still on the agenda which have caused plenty of fireworks in the past—Southwest Africa and treatment of Indians in South Africa.

At the last Assembly, South African delegates walked out temporarily during discussions on Southwest Africa.

For years India and Pakistan have been hitting out in the U.N. at South Africa's treatment of some 300,000 persons of Indian origin now living in South Africa. This group comes under the racial secregation laws of the Malan Government. India and Pakistan urge that they be given equal rights in South Africa as they were promised when they first came to the country. The U.N. has attempted to arrange a roundtable discussion among India, Pakistan and South Africa on the subject, but to no avail.

The other problem is that of the former German colony of South-West Africa put under the guardianship of South Africa after the First World War. Southwest Africa, a resources-rich area about half the size of British Columbia, is the only such area in the world which has not been brought under the jurisdiction of the U.N. trusteeship system. The U.N. has demanded since 1946 that South Africa make this move. South Africa refuses and indicates that it would like to absorb the territory.

CANADIAN STAND

For the first time in the history of the question, Canada last year voted with the majority of U.N. members, in effect chastising South Africa for her refusal. In the numerous previous votes in the assembly on this question Canada abstained.

Handling of these questions, at the coming Assembly will be difficult for the Western powers and the Commonwealth in particular. The West will be faced on the one hand with the need for unity which Malan's threat does not help, and on the other with the necessity of placating the Asian-Arab group whose demands on similar questions are becoming bigger.

Faked Pregnancy, Kidnapped Baby

EUTAW, Ala. (AP)—A woman whose longing for motherhood led her to fake pregnancy admitted yesterday that she kidnapped a three-month-old baby after killing three of its brothers and sisters and bashing another's head in.

Mrs. Mattie Smarr, 27, a Negro, was arrested at her home in Birmingham. The missing baby, unharmed, was in bed with her, said Sheriff Frank Lee.

She stuffed pillows in her clothing to give the illusion of pregnancy, officers added.

Lee said murder charges were filed against the woman in all three deaths.

OAKVILLE (CP) — The local Recreation Commission is bankrupt so there will be no community program this winter, Chairman Ralph Crack blamed the town council for reducing the commission's budget this year from $7,000 to $4,000. Activities have been suspended for the rest of the year.

"Mystery Man" To Contest Mayoralty In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Reports that a "mystery man" will contest the Dec. 1 mayoralty election against Mayor Charlotte Whitton on a male-supremacy platform threw the city into a tizzy today.

The mystery man's candidature was reported by radio station CFRA Wednesday night.

The radio report said the candidate's slogan will be "a woman's place is in the home," that he is a Second World War veteran and that he has the blood of a Canadian Prime Minister in his veins.

That brought the comment from Miss Whitton: "He must be most mysterious because a study of the Prime Ministers of the past 50 years shows that he must be either very, very elderly or the alternative is too horrible to contemplate."

As for the mystery candidate's slogan, Miss Whitton said: "If he would say a woman's place is in the House (of Commons)—with a capital H—I would really be concerned about such a candidate."

The only support for reports that such a candidate really exists came from D. Roy Kennedy, public school board chairman.

He said he had heard about the candidate before the radio broadcast.

INGENUITY KNOWS NO END — The young Parisienne at left is undecided whether or not to string along with this musical instrument which made its debut at the autumn exhibit of new inventions in Paris. It is displayed by its inventor, Pierre Devitry, a taxi driver.

Urges Britain Industrialize "Hungry Areas"

LONDON (Reuters)—Dr. John H Fremlin, British atom scientist, said yesterday Britain should make a great effort to industrialize the "hungry areas" of the Commonwealth such as India and Pakistan by developing nuclear power sources.

Writing in a monthly magazine of the Atomic Scientists' Association, he said the big populations of the Far East are increasing much faster than their food supply while in Russia and the west food supply is increasing faster than population.

"In Britain and elsewhere exists knowledge that would, if applied, solve this problem. An educated, industrialized India would find no difficulty in feeding twice her present population. And here the development of industrial power from atomic energy could play an outstanding part.

"Power sources not needing large, continuous fuel-supplies would enable development of industry and, not less important, of Indian technicians. . . in a way which would otherwise be impossible."

Fremlin said there is a clear case for saying Britain should put major resources into the effort, and added that Britain could not hope to live indefinitely by exporting to America.

The F-86E Sabre jets will take off Sept. 29 on a leapfrog movement to Gros Tenquin, France, as part of Canada's air division contribution to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Hold Conference On City Hall

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa yesterday conferred with Prime Minister St. Laurent to request, it was reported, federal government co-operation in building a city hall.

Prime Ministers since R.B. Bennett have opposed city plans to build a city hall beside the police and fire station within sight of the National War Memorial. The federal government wants the area to remain a parkway.

Mayor Whitton was reported to have told Mr. St. Laurent that the city never promised not to use the site for a city hall but only to discontinue using it for police and fire stations. Ottawa has been without a city hall since it burned about 20 years ago.

No announcement was made following the meeting.

Great Placement Kicker

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — For a washed-up "old man" Joe Aguirre is some shucks as a football player.

The guy who "hasn't enough sense to quit" the game and a Winnipeg Blue Bomber discard today is the western conference's second-highest scorer with the runner-up Edmonton Eskimos. His size 12-E boots are propelling the 33-year-old American to one of the best seasons in his 17-year football experience.

The rise and decline—and rise—of The Toe is the success story of western football this season.

Two years ago he went to the Bombers after a big-league career with the professional Philadelphia New York Yankees. He won the western scoring title plus All-Star selection.

HIRED BY ESKIMOS

Bombers let him go this year and it appeared to be curtains for Joe in Canadian football. He was on his way out when Eskimos hired him, primarily as a line coach, but injuries to key linemen sent him into action as a regular at his old outside position.

That was the tonic Joe needed. He played in only four of the Eskimos' first six games and before people realize it the old pro's name was on top of the western conference scoring race with four touchdowns, four singles and 10 converts for 34 points.

Joe now is tied for second place with Winnipeg-born Bud Korchak of the Blue Bombers in the unofficial scoring. Each has 44 points, one less than import Bob Shaw of Calgary Stampeders.

LOVES THE GAME

"I haven't got sense enough to quit," says The Toe. "They'll probably have to kick me out to get rid of me."

His six-foot four-inch frame carries about the best conditioned 225 pounds of any of the Eskimos.

Joe never did any kicking He learned his placement booting in school and picks up singles when his field-goal attempts go wide.

"It feels mighty good to be back playing," he says.

SETTLES IN EDMONTON

Aguirre came to Edmonton last November, took a construction job and moved his wife, two sons and a daughter in to stay. "There's more new industry here and I intend to settle here even after football."

The likable veteran is popular with his teammates.

"Easy-going," says lineman Jim Quandamatteo. "Joe's the easiest guy in the world to get along with."

As for Eskimos' head coach Frank Filchock's feelings, well:

"Just wonderful, Joe is."

BOOT STILL BOOMING—Joe (The Toe) Aguirre, 33-year-old football veteran, keeps his size 12 "E" boots in placement-kicking form at an Edmonton Eskimo workout. After 17 years in football, Old Joe is still tops and he says he won't quit until he's kicked out. He came to Edmonton this year as line coach and early in the season went into action at outside (end). He led the Western Conference scoring after six games. That's halfback George Festeryga holding the ball.

Great Day For Reynolds As Yankees Edge Boston Red Sox 3-2

By ORLO ROBERTSON, Associated Press Sports Writer

This is flag day for New York Yankees. A victory over the Athletics at Philadelphia tonight would give Casey Stengel's men their fourth straight American League Pennant—a feat in major-league history accomplished only by Joe McCarthy's 1936-39 Yanks and John McGraw's National League Giants of the Roaring '20's.

To wrap up the pennant and earn the right to meet Brooklyn Dodgers in the World Series opening next Wednesday at Ebbets Field, Stengel will choose southpaw Eddie Lopat to oppose young Harry Byrd of the Athletics.

Lopat, back in the groove after suffering back miseries during the summer, has won his last five starts for a 10-5 record. Byrd, beaten 1-0 by the Yanks last Sunday, carried a 15-14 record into the game.

CLEVELAND IDLE

The runner-up Cleveland Indians are idle until tomorrow, when they open a two-game final series in Detroit.

Trailing by 2½ games, the Tribe can hope only for a complete collapse by the champions and two triumphs by themselves over the Tigers. Such an outcome would throw the race in a tie and force a one-game playoff in Cleveland Monday.

Allie Reynolds, the strong-armed righthander, assured the Yankees of a tie yesterday as he joined with Hal Newhouser in producing the outstanding performances of the day. Reynolds' 3-2 conquest of Boston Red Sox went a long way toward making each Yankee player some $5,000 to $6,000 richer.

Newhouser, in the twilight of his 14-year-career with Detroit Tigers, posted a 3-2 victory over St. Louis Browns that was the 200th win of his major-league career.

REYNOLDS AGAIN

It was a great day for Reynolds, who a year ago this week pitched a no-hitter against the same Red Sox to clinch the Yanks' 1951 championship. Yesterday he also drove in the winning run with a ninth-inning single to rack up his 20th win of the season, yielded eight hits, walked three and fanned eight to increase his league-leading strike-out total to 161.

It was his first 20-win since coming into the majors in 1943.

Home runs by Hoot Evers in the second and by Ted Lepico in the fourth got the Sox off to a 2-0 lead. The champions finally broke through for a tally in the fifth on Gil McDougald's 14th round-tripper of the season. Mickey Mantle's triple and Joe Collins' Texas League double produced the tying run in the sixth.

That was the way it remained until the ninth when Irv Noren drew a walk from Sid Hudson. He moved to third on McDougald's sacrifice and Billy Martin's fly. Reynolds slammed a single to send Noren home with the winning tally.

569 SEE GAME

Only 569 fans—smallest crowd in Briggs Stadium's history — saw Newhouser strike out eight and walk only one in joining the small group of pitchers who have won 200 games. Only two other active pitchers—Bob Feller and Bobo Newsom—are in the group.

PETES' COACH — Hockey-wise and popular Jim Ellis has agreed to act as coach of the Petes' senior "B" club again this season. The former star defenceman here and in the States has coached both the Petes and the Legion (later the Eagles) in this group, and is respected by players of both of these clubs. The combined team representing Peterborough this year should be a strong one.

The only day game in the National League saw New York Giants clinch second place with a two-run ninth-inning rally that brought a 3-2 victory over Boston Braves. Relief ace Hoyt Wilhelm, taking over in the ninth from Jim Hearn, was credited with his 15th pitching triumph.

Billy Johnson's double and Solly Hemus' single in the last of the ninth gave St. Louis Cardinals a 4-3 victory over Cincinnati in the only night game. The triumph left the Cards four games back of the Giants with three to play.

Remember When—

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Franchises of Ottawa Senators and Philadelphia Quakers of the National Hockey League were suspended at a meeting of the league executive 21 years ago today and players of the two clubs were ordered distributed among the other teams. Ottawa, however, came back in 1932 to play another two seasons in the big loop.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Comes a note about Morley Howe, young ball played Ed Murphy sent to the Petes from the Maritimes this past summer — though he didn't play long here ere pulling out. Played the outfield later for Smiths Falls, winners of the St. Lawrence League. They beat Prescott in semi-finals and Cardinal for the loop tilt. In the finals, Howe smacked out 15 basehits in 26 trips to the plate, being cleanup man. He was hitting .352 when he left the Petes early in July. Howe has played at shortstop, too, for the Smiths Falls Royals, the town where Knotty Lee — remember when he managed the club here? — has a busy tavern. Royals had hoped to play the Petes in O.B.A. senior "B" playdowns, but the locals have called it a season.

* * * * * *

A look at the football picture up this way shows our Orfuns off to Kingston tonight in O.R.F.U. action, as Ghosts play in Oshawa. The Raiders come here next Friday. St. Peter's are idle yet in the Catholic Conference, St. Jerome's of Kitchener having a weekend schedule opener 'gainst St. Mike's in Toronto. Both P.C.V.S. grid squads commence schedule play here tonight, meeting Oshawa opposition. Juniors tangle at 6.30, with the seniors jarring each other two hours later in Riverside. Football followers shouldn't pass up any home games as the gridiron huskies have a real short season each autumn. It's sandwiched in between summer and winter sports.

* * * * * *

Ah, That Looks Better!

Jim Ellis has agreed to take over the coaching again of the Petes' puckists, with Johnny Russelle back as manager. A good combination. The players' meeting the other eve saw a hefty turnout, including most of last year's Petes and a number of the 1951-52 Eagles — though some fellows were working and some playing lacrosse. Among the former Eagles on hand were Keith Montgomery (definitely one of the best and most colorful players in the city), Joe Rochetta — who must be reconsidering retiring — Toodie Greenlaw, Reg. Stewart, Freddy Mortimer, Bert Hill, Gord Fennell, Johnny Richlark and maybe one or two we've missed. This bodes well for a strong combined club in senior "B" hockey here in an enlarged grouping this coming winter.

* * * * * *

If the weather is right tonight, lo and behold a great throng or multitude will bulge the walls 'round Miller Bowl. On account of home fans could see the Timbermen take the Eastern Canada senior lacrosse finals in this 8.45 scrap. Moving then into Mann Cup finals. A local loss would mean another trip to Mimico to play Toronto Yorks at least once more. Needless to say, the Thorpe team will be giving it the old college try before Peterborough fandom, and it shapes up as a terrific tilt. Folks here didn't see the Petes win it last semester, the final being on the road, so this is the time for the local lacrossers to come through. These occasions are something to remember for years to come.

They Discuss Highlights

Scribe John Macdonald of the Toronto Star called Russ Slater, Curly Mason, Harry Wipper and Moon Wootton the Petes stars in the Mimico melee. He said: "Yorks came up with a hard-hitting and close-checking game in which the verdict was in doubt till the end. Petes were severely hampered when Ike Hildebrand was given a match misconduct early in the second for beefing at the referee." The Tely's Bun Morganson remarked: "It was chips-down lacrosse with man-for-man checking but the game was free of fights and deliberate roughing. The play that actually won the game for Peterborough came when Ross Powless intercepted Don McPhail's pass intended for defenceman Johnny Hewitt."

Hockey plans for three of the Timbermen are a bit obscure yet. Bob Thorpe expects his final release from the Buffalo organization simply by writing to the A.H.L. president—as he has no intentions of returning to the pro game. But Nip O'Hearn and Don Ashbee have been ordered to report for puck training, and neither has done anything about it yet. Nip wants to remain on his job here and settle down, but he hopes to play goal for the Petes. If Ed Shore won't release him, then he can't play amateur. Ashbee is peeved over a wrist operation required and not okayed yet, but it's doubtful if this A.H.L. ace can get his release for amateur ranks, either. Once the pro puckists have you, then you've had it. You can't play for anyone else the rest of your life without their consent.

Vancouver Enters Mann Cup Final

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver last night entered the east-west Mann Cup lacrosse final by defeating North Shore Indians 13-6 in the sixth game of the best-of-seven British Columbia championship.

Vancouver, losers to Peterborough in the 1951 playoffs, took the series 4-2.

Vancouver's win assured them of their first trip east since 1940. They have been in the final four times in the last 10 years but each time the series has been played in the west.

GREY CUP VENUE?—This is an architect's drawing of Winnipeg's new football stadium. Construction will start this fall and the bowl-shaped $500,000 stadium will be ready for operation Aug. 1, 1953. Concrete stands will accommodate 10,000 persons and portable stands can be added to increase the capacity to 30,000.

New 10,000-Seat Stadium

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Grey Cup final, Canada's greatest sports spectacle, may be staged here within two years.

A 10,000-seat stadium will be available for football Aug. 1 next year. Capacity can be increased to 30,000 by addition of portable bleachers and eventually it may go up to 60,000.

The 30,000-crowd would be nearly 3,000 better than that of Tor- of the annual last-Saturday-in-November classic since 1940. A final in Western Canada would be the first since the east-west game was inaugurated in 1921.

CONSTITUTION CHANGE

A change in the Canadian Rugby Union constitution would be necessary to make the switch from Toronto to Winnipeg. The weather may be an important factor in any decision.

The go-ahead for the $500,000 bowl-shaped stadium—as yet unnamed—was given last April and tenders will be called next weekend for levelling a 26-acre west-end site about three miles from the downtown area. Construction of the open concrete grandstand is to start this fall.

The north-south field will be sodded in the spring and, if plans go according to schedule, everything will be set for the opening Blue Bomber home game of the Western Canada Conference late in August.

URGED FOR YEARS

Sports-minded citizens have been screaming for years for a park to replace obsolete Osborne Stadium, home of the Bombers, that holds 9,600 persons.

The Winnipeg Enterprises Corporation was formed by business men last year and the final obstacles were cleared when city council okayed the plans for the new stadium in January and the Manitoba Legislature approved an amendment to the city's charter in April. It allows the city to guarantee the principal and interest of a loan up to $500,000.

The city also granted a 20-year-title to the stadium site, a four-block area north of Polo Park racetrack between Portage and Ellice Avenues, a semi-residential area. The corporation will pay a "nominal" fee, expected to be $1 a year, for the site.

City council has exempted the land and buildings from all municipal taxes except for local improvements.

The non-profit corporation is headed by W. Culver Riley, president of the Blue Bombers, will have 11 directors, six to be named by the city. The city can take over the stadium any time it wishes and it will become the city's property at the end of 20 years.

BASEBALL TOO

A baseball section will be completed in the spring of 1954. The ball field will overlap on to the football field which will be rimmed by a quarter-mile cinder track. Floodlights will be mounted on 85-foot towers. Parking space will be available for 2,500 automobiles.

Wings Take Series Edge Royals 3-2

MONTRAL (CP)—Luck ran out for Montreal Royals last night—right in the first inning.

Rochester Red Wings defeated Montreal 3-2 to win the best-of-seven final International Baseball League playoffs 4-2 and qualify to meet Kansas City of the American Association in the Little World Series Saturday at Kansas City

Tom Lasorda, Montreal's starting pitcher, was carried from the game in the first inning after a collision with Red Wings playing-manager, Harry Walker, on the third base line.

Lasorda wild-pitched with Walker on third and as the Rochester player raced home they ran into one another.

HOAK WAVED OUT

In the same inning, third baseman Don Hoak was waved out of the game by the umpire for arguing about a decision on a call on a base-runner. In the fifth inning outfielder Wally Fiala also was waved after an argument with base umpire Joe Linsalata.

Before he was carried off, Lasorda had yielded two hits and had a two-one count on the third batter. Gill Mills came in as relief pitcher and the second Red Wing run came on two long flies. Both were charged to Lasorda, who was charged with the loss.

FABBRO FINISHES

Mills held the Red Wings under control until taken out for a pinch-hitter in the eighth. The only time he faltered was in his last inning when Steve Bilko clouted a homer. Art Fabbro finished.

Jackie Collum, Red Wing southpaw, deserved the win. He held Montreal to only four hits until the ninth when Moose Moryn connected for a round-tripper. Jack Crimian came in at this point and retired the side.

Johnny Bucha paced the Red Wings hitting attack with two, while Junior Gilliam and Moryn of Montreal also got two apiece.

"COOL CONTROL"
SNAPPING THE FOOTBALL

3 Arms follow through, then are brought back, up and out in front of chest to block opponent. Snap wrists when releasing ball. Spin and control comes from hand motion across ball when snap is made; pull up and across with right hand, down and out with left hand.

Yes, it's control that counts, in football as in every sport — control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

Bass Fishing Along St. Lawrence River

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—Striped bass fishing, the boyhood amusement of farmers' sons along a 200-mile stretch of the St. Lawrence River, is becoming a full-fledged sport with the rod and line fraternity.

Full of fight, the Quebec variety is at its best when speckled trout—the aristocrat of Quebec waters—is preparing to spawn, from late August to the end of September.

Conservationists are promoting striped bass fishing as a good way to taper off an exciting trout fishing season. It's different, say those who have tried the sport, and on the other hand it relieves pressure from trout waters, taxed heavily through the summer.

FULL DAY'S SPORT

Enthusiasts say you usually get organized for a full day's workout when you go after this fish which comes as large as 12 and sometimes 19 pounds.

Outfitters rent motorboats at daily rates and, since the St. Lawrence is a big river and dangerous in a storm, it's considered wise to have a guide. One outfitter services customers with a schooner. Most supply the tommy cod used for bait.

Surf-casting equipment, designed for the bigger species of American striped bass, has been used but any good solid fishing rod, equipped with reel, will do.

For the Quebec farmers whose lands border the St. Lawrence the development has been a welcome if startling surprise.

KNOWN AS "BAR"

From Riviere du Loup, 120 miles east of Quebec, up to Lake St. Peter, 90 miles west, striped bass is known to Quebecers as "bar" and pronounced like the English word "bore."

Farmers used to catch them, along with eels and smelts, in traps set along the shore, and sell them to fish markets. Now they make more money as guides.

The Quebec Fish and Game Department officially made striped bas sa game fish only last year, set minimum legal size at 12 inches and the fishing season between June 1 and Nov. 30. There's no catch limit.

Fish markets in Quebec, formerly flooded with under-size specimens supplied by farmers, are co-operating with the department by refusing bass weighing less than two pounds.

Striped bass is delicious to eat, roasted in butter or boiled and served with white sauce.

Making Progress In Efforts To Get Spare Parts For Humans

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — Spare human kidneys are being put into the legs of persons doomed to death because their own kidneys are failing.

The third kidney is taken from persons who have just died, or whose own healthy kidney must be removed because of other illness.

The spare kidney is put into a pocket created in the sick person's thigh and is connected to veins and arteries in the leg, to help purify his blood. The ureter or drainage tube from the spare kidney leads to a cup strapped to the thigh.

Three Boston surgeons told today of making six such kidney transplants. The spare kidneys worked for a time, then failed.

SUCCESS MAY COME

But the failure may help lead to success in the dream of some day being able to give humans new kidneys, lungs, hearts or other spare parts when vital organs become sick or damaged. One transplanted kidney worked for nearly two months, and actually survived in another person's leg for 101 days.

This new chapter in attempts to transplant human organs was described to the convention of the American College of Surgeons by Drs. David M. Hume, John P. Merrill and Benjamin F. Miller of Peter Bent Brigham Hospital and Harvard Medical School.

This week, other surgeons told of trying to transplant animals' lungs and hearts and gullets and windpipes.

All ran afoul of a law of nature: That your body will destroy any protein or tissue other than its own by creating antibodies against it.

All our organs are made of protein. If you put one person's tissue into another's body, he reacts against it with destructive antibodies. Bones and arteries and corneas of eyes are being transplanted. But the body uses them only as a scaffold, apparently, soon replacing the foreign tissue with its own cells and material.

Use Tear Gas Halt Strip Tease

VANCOUVER (CP) — Engineering students used tear gas Wednesday night to break up a strip tease act in University of British Columbia's dignified Brock Memorial Hall.

The engineers exploded tear gas pellets just as the near-nude stripper started taking off some of her few remaining clothes as an encore.

The girl, known as "Laurette," was part of a troupe of entertainers from Seattle, Wash., who were performing before 400 freshmen.

Ontario Wages Up

TORONTO (CP)—Wage earners in Ontario earned an average of $53.30 a week during August, the Ontario Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday. This is an increase of $5.39 over the same period last year.

GOOD CATCH—Three sportsmen and their outfitter, Capt. Joseph Lachance (left), Montmagny, Que., admire a string of striped bass caught in the St. Lawrence River among the islands opposite Montmagny. These fish come as large as 12 and sometimes 19 pounds.

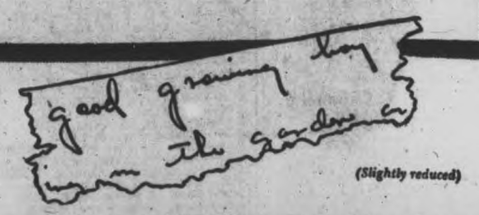
Begin Work On Campaign

OTTAWA (CP) — Some 110,000 volunteers, backed by a widespread publicity campaign, begin work next week canvassing an estimated 1,500,000 persons for contributions to Canada's Community Chests.

The combined national objective is $13,750,000 to be spent next year by 819 Red Feather services in 51 cities which operate Community Chests.

Leonard D. Headley of Toronto, chairman of the campaign's public relations committee, said newspapers, magazines, theatres, radio and television are all providing "generous support."

The National Film Board has produced a short film, "The United Way," to publicize the aims of Community Chests. The CBC and associated privately-owned radio stations are producing a half-hour feature program on the Red Feather, to be broadcast over the CBC network on Sunday, Oct. 5, starting at 7 p.m. EST.



May Move Courts

WATERLOO (CP)—The town council and Chamber of Commerce may join forces to fight a move to transfer Waterloo police courts to neighboring Kitchener. Magistrade J. R. M. Kirkpatrick had said in a memorandum to court officials and members of the bar that consideration is being given to switching the Waterloo court to Kitchener.

He is practical, creative and imaginative.

FIRST SOD WAS TURNED today on a new addition at Mount St. Joseph by the Most Rev. Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough. Built to the south of the present buildings the new section will house a modern kitchen, administrative offices and sleeping apartments. Construction will begin Monday and probably end in the spring. Bishop Berry (second from right, above) digs deeply while Assistant Mother Josepha, the Rev. Mother Anita, and the Rev. V. J. Corkery look on.

Bishop Turns Sod For New Wing At Mt. St. Joseph

The Most Rev. Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough, turned the first sod today at the site of a four-storey building to be erected at Mount St. Joseph at an approximate cost of $125,000. He was assisted by the Rev. V. J. Corkery, chaplain of the Mount and chancellor of the diocese.

Construction of the new addition will begin Monday and according to the contractors, Eastwood Construction Company of Peterborough, it will be completed by spring. The architect of the new wing is Edward J. Turcotte of Montreal.

The addition will be connected to the main building at the south end and will contain a modern kitchen in the basement, administrative offices on the first floor, 30 sleeping apartments on the third and fourth floors, and an elevator serving all floors.

Officials at Mount St. Joseph said that the building was necessary to relieve the congestion at the institution where 100 sisters live. The last building that was done at the Mount was the erection of the present chapel; it was officially opened in 1933.

New St. Jean Army College Has Long, Proud History

By STEWART NEBBS

ST. JOHNS, Que. (CP)—Students at Canada's newest tri-service college may well be proud of the College Militaire Royal de St. Jean, set up on a site with a military record dating back three centuries.

The original Fort St. Jean, starting point of several expeditions by the French explorer, Samuel de Champlain, and a battle centre in the American Revolution, echoed to the marching feet of several generations of prominent French-speaking families.

Today, young students attending the new college, designed primarily to prepare French-speaking officer candidates for commissions in the three services, will find the peaceful, winding Richelieu River much the same as centuries ago, but little of the old forts remain.

SOME REMAIN

Some of the old brick buildings flanking the parade square date back to 1837, but new and roomier buildings have been built and others are planned for an expected extension of the present one-year course to three and an increase in the student body from 126 to three times that many.

The students, from many parts of Canada but predominantly French-speaking, take their courses in the mother tongue. Their ages range from 16 to 20.

The course is mainly a science one and is designed to train technical officers. It leads to a degree in engineering.

Students wear the same uniforms as those attending sister colleges—Royal Military College at Kingston, and Royal Roads at Esquimalt, B.C.

When the students complete their course they become line officers. They may continue training for a technical engineering degree by spending two years at Kingston and then completing their training to a university degree.

Swept Off Breakwater Two Men Drowned

GODERICH — (CP) — Harvey Johnston, 19, of Toronto, and Rimmer Eakker of Auburn, drowned Thursday when they were swept off the outer breakwater of the harbor by a high wave.

The men had been building a new structure to house the fog horn. A third member of the work gang, Giuseppe Dellemo, 18, was rescued by Bert Macdonald who sped to the scene in his launch. Dragging operations started immediately.

High waves had been pounding against the breakwater as the men fought to complete concrete work. Macdonald said he had warned them earlier in the day that the waves made their position hazardous.

Eakker leaves a wife and four children, in Auburn.

Banker Worried About Discount On U.S. Dollar

VANCOUVER (CP)—L. Stuart Mackersy is one banker dissatisfied with the present high discount rate on the American dollar.

Mr. Mackersy, general manager of the Imperial Bank of Canada, now on a tour of British Columbia, said here Canadian exporters are suffering because of the high discount.

And, he has found that Americans' feelings have been hurt.

"THEIR PRIDE"

"It is not so much a matter of the dimes and nickels that it is costing the Americans, but rather that their pride is hurt," he said.

Mr. Mackersy believes Canadian and American dollars must be brought back to equal value or within one cent "one way or the other."

"Parity, or near parity, is absolutely essential," he said.

Exporters of pulp and paper, lumber, metals and agricultural products are the losers under the present high discount.

"NO AGREEMENT"

Mr. Mackersy is against an arbitrary return to parity by agreement between the governments of Canada and the United States.

Such an agreement, he said, would be "disastrous." It would put government back into the field of foreign exchange control.

Parity can be attaied without "artificial" props, he said, by a slowing of U.S. investments in Canada and a reduction of municipal borrowings in the United States.

Father Testifies Son Killed 3

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Javis Seneca, elderly father of Archie Seneca, testified in Supreme Court yesterday that Archie told him early May 11 that he had killed Lydia Riley, Herman Henry and Beatrice Henry.

Archie Seneca is charged with murder of the three and the current trial is in Mrs. Riley's death.

Javis Seneca said the son got rifle and bullets about 5 a.m. and returned about 9.

He quoted his son as aying: "Well, dad, I killed Herman last night down towards the river."

His son went on to tell him how he put the body in a car with Mrs. Henry and Lydia Riley. He said he then shot Beatrice and had Lydia Riley help him drag the two towards a gully.

"Then I shot Lydia at last."

"That is the last of that. That is what he told me," Javis Seneca said.

Rehabilitation Master Plan Drawn Up

OTTAWA (CP)—A "master plan" for rehabilitating Canada's civilian handicapped is to be drawn up for the national advisory committee on rehabilitation of disabled persons, it was announced to the committee yesterday.

Dr. G. Fred McNally, chairman of the 40-member committee, said its executive has commissioned Ian Campbell, national co-ordinator on rehabilitation, to draft the plan in time for an executive meeting Nov. 8.

The national committee ended a three-day meeting at which a series of resolutions was adopted pointing the way towards a national program for the re-establishment of the physically-handicapped.

The resolutions:

1. Recommended that the Unemployment Insurance Commission get additional staff to handle the work of finding jobs for seriously-handicapped workers.
2. Expressed dissatisfaction with the training facilities for handicapped persons.
3. Agreed that the organization of the rehabilitation program should be at the provincial level but asked for federal grants for such aspects as medical care, training and placement.

Summer Harvester Killed In Alberta

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP)—Douglas Reihl, 18, of Fort Erie, Ont., a summer harvester, was killed near here Wednesday when pinned beneath a toppled tractor.

The accident occurred on a ranch in the Box Springs district, 18 miles north of Medicine Hat.

Reihl and Richard Horton, 20, of Goderich, Ont., a companion harvester, were riding the tractor down a hill, hauling a wagon loaded with hay. Horton was driving.

The load of hay "ran up" on the tractor, jack-knifed and caused the tractor to turn over.

Beef Farmers Urged Not To Sell Yet

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario beef farmers were urged last night by a spokesman for the federal Department of Agriculture not to sell their heavy steers for the time being.

Reduction in the floor price of $2 a hundredweight announced by Agriculture Minister Gardiner yesterday applies only to steers dressing less than 700 pounds, the spokesman said. The $25 support will continue on heavy animals until Nov. 15.

Slayer Declared Sane

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP)—Army Lieutenant Coleman A. Peterson, acquitted in the slaying of a tavern owner, "by reason of insanity," was declared sane in court yesterday and released. Peterson admitted he shot Maurice Chenoweth July 30 after his wife, Charlotte, told him the bar owner raped and beat her.

Manslaughter Verdict Against Youth

WELLAND (CP) — Carl Alexander Bell, 17, was found guilty of manslaughter yesterday in the Aug. 28 stabbing of his stepmother in her Niagara Falls home. He will be sentenced Oct. 2.

Bell was charged with murder. Mr. Justice J.L. McLennan told the jury there were four possible verdicts: Guilty, not guilty by reason of insanity, manslaughter and not guilty. Commenting on the verdict, which took the jury three hours and 10 minutes to reach, he said: "I cannot disagree with your finding."

The youth was charged with murder after his father, Allan Bell, found his wife, Dorothy, 32, lying on a neighbor's doorstep with a paring knife in her back. She died a few hours later in hospital. She was pregnant.

During the trial, a statement was read in which Bell said he had had an argument with his father and mother. Later, the statement said, "I had another argument with my mother. I got a knife from the shelf in the kitchen. My mother was sitting on the couch in the front room when I stabbed her in the back."

Waits Sentence For Motorboat Slaying In B.C.

PRINCE GEORGE, B. C. (CP)—Francois Peter Dennis, who says his memory was blacked out by a blow to the head, Thursday awaited sentencing for a death-by-motorboat which followed a homebrew party on the shore of a wilderness lake.

Charged with murder in the death of William Austin — and convicted last night on a reduced charge of manslaughter — Dennis will be sentenced at the end of the fall assizes here.

Austin, 59, died Aug. 2 on Stuart Lake, 75 miles northwest of here. Dennis, 39, was arrested as he prayed in church.

REPORTED QUARREL

Austin's widow said Dennis and her husband quarreled during a drinking party on the lake's shore.

Mrs. Austin, Austin and their son Alfred, boarded their boat and headed out into the lake, witnesses said.

Austin's widow said Dennis followed them for some distance in his boat and then rammed them amidships. She said Dennis grabbed her husband by the hair and forced him into the water, saying: "I am going to kill you."

Austin's 14-year-old son testified that Dennis started the boat's motor and ran over his father.

On the stand in his own defence yesterday, Dennis said "I never remember that I killed William Austin."

Says Western Europe Will Always Need Aid

STRASBOURG, France (AP)—The European Consultative Assembly was told Thursday that even a closely integrated Western Europe will never be economically self-supporting but will always need foreign help.

This was the essence of a report of the assembly's economic committee, urging a close economic union of all European states with the overseas countries and colonial territories held by some of the Council of Europe member states.

Presenting the report to the assembly, the German right-wing deputy, Johannes Semler, said Europe will only be able to end her constant economic shortcomings by joint action of all European states in building up a strong economic potential in these overseas countries and dominions.

Plan To Aid Prisoners With Rehabilitation

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Department of Reform Institutions is planning a new province-wide organization of rehabilitation of discharged prisoners, Middlesex Sheriff R. H. Beattie said today.

A. R. Virgin, director of reform institutions will meet with some 32 representatives of district courts Crown and municipal officers, clergy, service and welfare organizations, chiefs of police, Legion officers and employment agencies, and any other societies or persons interested, for preliminary discussions of the plan.

The meeting will be held in London Monday.

Great Lakes Water Level Said Dropping

CLEVELAND (AP)—Waters of the Great Lakes may be heading towards lower levels, an erosion expert said yesterday.

The levels of the two lower lakes —Erie and Ontario—already are falling, said Col. E. E. Gesler, president of the U. S. Beach Erosion Board.

That means, he said, that probably all of the Great Lakes may fall to some degree in the future. At present, upper-lake levels are remaining about the same, he said.

In a speech before the Great Lakes conference of the American Shore and Beach Preservation Association, Gesler said these findings were contained in a preliminary study by the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

The survey also showed that more than $60,000,000 damage has been done to 3,970 miles of Great Lakes shore line since the spring of 1951.

Gesler said that in view of the probable drop of lake levels he thinks it would be unwise to build permanent structures along the shore to prevent erosion, except where damage would occur at low water levels.

Say No Such Thing As Love At First Sight

LONDON (Reuters)—There is no such thing as love at first sight, the Marriage Society reported yesterday. It is merely "an immediate overwhelming attraction to a person of the opposite sex."

People who rush to get married on the strength of love at first sight may find themselves "doomed to years of frustration."

The Marriage Society was founded five years ago as a scientific organization aiming to promote greater harmony and stability in marriage.

B.C. Man Carries Out Plan To Put Ceylon On Feet

OTTAWA (CP)—A British Columbian flies back to the Orient today to spark a $1,000,000 Canadian effort to start the modernization of the primitive fishing industry of Ceylon with gifts of three new ships, a refrigeration plant and human skills.

This latest Canadian government move in the Commonwealth Colombo Plan to build up south and southeast Asia was announced yesterday and it represented a triumph for Donald M. Haywood of Vancouver.

He is the young executive lent by British Columbia Packers, Ltd., a year ago to go to Ceylon to see what could be done to build up its backward fisheries.

He came back to Canada two months ago to sell the government on a varied program. It accepted nearly everything he sought—including diving equipment for pearls—and today he flies back to Ceylon to his wife and two children and another eight months in which the program should bloom.

Another 15 Canadians — Fishing boat captains, two fisheries scientists, people to build Ceylon's first fish refrigeration plant—will follow him as well as three new boats to put the program into stride. He did much of the work in rounding them up.

Mr Haywood, obviously fond of Ceylon and its people, told reporters yesterday his year as consultant to the government in Colombo showed him an "obsolete and inefficient" fishing industry where 70,000 men fished with hand-lines and where the island's potentially larger, off-shore fishery was untouched.

Canada is going to provide a nucleus that can chart the lines for long-range fishing and marketing policy out there, Mr. Haywood said. By February, he added, "we'll be on our way."

Ancient Indian Civilization Discovered In Northern B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prehistoric villages, hunting and fishing camps, have shown that an ancient Indian civilization existed in northern British Columbia centuries ago.

Dr. Charles E. Borban, professor of archaeology at the University of British Columbia, returned with his 15-man party yesterday to report:

"We have driven an important wedge into the hitherto unknown archaeology of the northern interior of British Columbia."

In a race against time, Dr. Borden and his associates made a search of Indian village sites in Tweedsmuir Park, 450 miles north of Vancouver. Soon the villages will be under water, flooded by a 120-mile lake behind a dam of the Aluminum Company of Canada near Kitimat.

It will be a year before the complete story of the ancient civilization is known. Dr. Borden must classify and analyze some 3,000 artifacts, piles of maps and volumes of notes he collected on the three-month expedition.

Reject Proposal CCL Set Up Newspaper For Labor News

TORONTO (CP)—A proposal that the Canadian Congress of Labor set up a daily newspaper to carry labor news across the country was rejected yesterday by a special committee on the grounds of high production costs.

Eamon Park of the Toronto Steelworkers told the C.C.L. annual convention that even in the United States, where the labor membership is far higher than in Canada, unions are finding such a venture financially unfeasible.

Discussion on the daily newspaper developed as Park delivered the C.C.L. publicity committee report. He said he found the convention press coverage, with few exceptions, "fair and quite extensive."

But he expressed concern in the way reporters and newspapers have been "overly-concerned" with the "family quarrels" in the labor movement.

"We are worried about the freedom of expression in Canadian newspapers," he said. "Dozens of Canadian communities must rely on only one newspaper for information and opinion. That is serious in itself but in recent years monopoly or near-monopoly ownership of the press has become a matter of concern for all Canadians interested in free expression in a democracy.

"The growth of centralized writing and printing of news stories which has been developed by newspaper chains and which now is being extended to the Canadian Press is seriously limiting the view points on the news available to Canadians.

"The practice of a central newspaper office writing a story—even lines—in a Toronto office which then sets type in outlying dailies can bring in its wake the destruction of the local newspaper as we have known it. . ."

British Novelist Dislikes Way Times Does Obituaries

LONDON (Reuters)—The Times of London published a letter yesterday from novelist Nigel Balchin criticizing the obituaries for which the paper is famous.

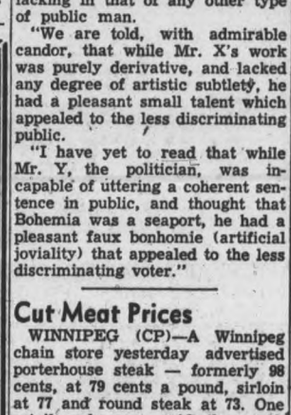
Balchin, author of "The Small Back Room" and "Mine Own Executioner," complained — "with deep respect"—that The Times' obituaries had a different approach to dead soldiers, politicians, priests and scientists on one hand and to painters, writers, musicians and other creative artists on the other.

He wrote: "the estimate of any artist is often carried out with an almost fierce objectivity, which is lacking in that of any other type of public man.

"We are told, with admirable candor, that while Mr. X's work was purely derivative, and lacked any degree of artistic subtlety, he had a pleasant small talent which appealed to the less discriminating public.

"I have yet to read that while Mr. Y, the politician, was incapable of uttering a coherent sentence in public, and thought that Bohemia was a seaport, he had a pleasant faux bonhomie (artificial joviality) that appealed to the less discriminating voter."

Cut Meat Prices



WINNIPEG (CP)—A Winnipeg chain store yesterday advertised porterhouse steak — formerly 98 cents, at 79 cents a pound, sirloin at 77 and round steak at 73. One retail spokesman said the steak price was a "leader" and not the regular price. But he added that the price is going down.

Sues Policeman In Shooting, Awarded $25

HAILEYBURY (CP)—A Rouyn, Que., miner, who sued a Teck township policeman for $25,000 damages for shooting his son two years ago, was awarded $25; yesterday for out-of-pocket expenses only.

The suit was brought against policeman Thomas Whittle by Eli Bozak, 61, who claimed $703.75 for funeral expenses and the remainder for the loss of his son, William, who, he said, would have helped support him in future years.

Delivering his charge to the jury, Mr. Justice H. D. Anger said it was the first case of its kind he had heard. Research, he added, had also revealed no similar case in the history of the court.

The shooting occurred at Kirkland Lake when Bozak tried to escape from Whittle who was taking him to a police station for questioning.

Whittle told the court he aimed at Bozak's feet, but a split second before he pulled the trigger, Bozak stumbled and the bullet caught him in the back of the head.

Haileybury is 50 miles southeast of Kirkland Lake.

Driver Cleared Of Charge In Highway Death

A dangerous driving charge against Toby Voth, 22, of Virgil was dismissed by Magistrate W. R. Philp Thursday afternoon.

The charge was laid against Voth following the findings of a coroner's inquest which investigated a head-on collision in which Mrs. Bernice Hardy, R.R. 2 Bowmanville, was killed on July 9.

The accident occured on Highway 28 about four miles southwest of the city. Mrs. Hardy was a passenger in a car driven by her son, Ronald Hardy, when a truck driven by Voth veered suddenly into the path of the oncoming car.

Ross Fair of St. Catharines defended Voth and elected summary trial on the charge Tuesday. Part of the evidence was heard, but illness of crown witness Herbert Christie of Toronto prevented completion of the trial

The crown's case was completed and defence evidence heard Thursday morning. After court was adjourned for lunch, Magistrate W. R. Philp said he had had time to review the evidence and was dimissing the charge.

He told Mr. Fair he did not have his reasons for dismissing the charge written out but he would be prepared to give them at a later date if necessary.

Ronald Hardy said he remembered nothing of the trip from Bowmanville to the scene of the fatal accident after the caution light at Welcome.

FOLLOWING TRUCK

Voth said he was following a Hydro truck out of Peterborough and that there was a tractor trailer in between the Hydro truck and the truck he was driving. He said that the transport pulled out to pass the Hydro truck and then he saw a car and a trailer with a boat on it parked on the north shoulder of the highway.

There was a man standing behind the boat and trailer, Voth said and "the next thing I knew the Hydro truck was right in front of me." He said he saw "the impending collision" with the rear of the Hydro truck and applied his brakes and swerved to the left "as the only way out."

"I just got out into the other lane when I saw the car coming. Then I guess I shut my eyes when they crashed," Voth said.

The driver of the Hydro truck, Herbert Christie, said he did not intend stopping when he passed the car and boat trailer but just took his foot off the accelerator. Voth said he believed the Hydro truck had slowed down because the driver intended stopping to see if the man standing behind needed assistance.

BENEFIT OF DOUBT

Where the driver of the Hydro truck and Voth differed in their stories, crown attorney John A. Bradshaw said he felt Voth should be given the benefit of the doubt.

Mr. Fair, in urging an acquittal, pointed out that "Voth had to make an immediate choice. It may well be a more skilful driver could have done some other act but the result might not have been avoided even in that instance." While admitting there may have been some inattention on Voth's part in directing his attention to the boat and trailer, Mr. Fair said Voth did react in the manner a "normal and prudent man would, faced with the same situation. He succeeded in coming almost to a stop in less than 100 feet," Mr. Fair added.

Students Council Elected New Activities At St. Peter's

St. Peter's High School students plan to make the most of the new gym and auditorium in the new school across from the high school. This year they have organized a student council, boys' and girls' athletic associations, which will produce more student activities for a better school spirit. In previous years the school has elected a president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer, but this year St. Peter's High adopted the students' organization plan now followed in the majority of Ontario collegiates and high schools.

An election campaign this month was hotly contested before the students elected Jack Richardson as president, Joanne Kearns as vice-president, Gordon Whatman as secretary, and Margaret O'Keefe as treasurer of the students' council.

Joan Begley, Robert Hickey and Betty Szammers will be councillors. These students will also serve as chairmen of standing committees such as social functions committee, Betty Szammers, religious committee, Joan Begley, publicity committee, Bob Hickey, and novelties committee, Joanne Kearns.

Member societies of the council are the B.A.A. (Ronald Board), G.A.A. (Rosemary DeNoble), Key Club (James Feeley), a dramatic club and choral club; the last two have yet to be organized.

The students, besides electing the students to the council, will be represented at council meetings by form representatives who will help make decisions. These students are Laverne Jones, Pat Masterson, Garry Kearns, Frances O'Reilly, Frank Gooley, Winnifred Maloney, John Martin, Paul Board, Bill Forestell, Frances Dory, Nancy Armstrong, Gerald Beresford and Peter Clancy.

With the new facilities for games and other entertainment, Jack Richardson said that more student activities are planned. Again this year the students will sell magazine subscriptions to raise money for their school fund. The fund helps pay football and basketball expenses as well as other student activities.

Besides basketball games, the first the high school has played "at home," (in previous seasons games were played at the collegiate), regular Friday night teen-centre will be held in the gym. Each class takes a turn conducting the evening's fun. Movies for students on Saturday night are also in the offing.

Charge 2nd Man With Rustling

LINDSAY (ENS) — A second man appeared in Lindsay police court this morning charged with attempted rustling of twelve head of cattle from two Fenelon township farmers.

Joseph McDermott, 59, of Beeton, was charged with the same offence laid against Glen Saunders of Shelbourne of attempting to steal six head of cattle from Wm. English, and six head from Clifford Worsely of Fenelon township.

Police reported during Saunders preliminary hearing, at which he pleaded guilty to one charge of attempted rustling and also one of falsely reporting a stolen truck, that another man had been with him in Lindsay at the time of the alleged theft. During the course of investigation, McDermott was arrested in Beeton.

McDermott is a cattle drover by trade. This morning in court he was remanded for a week on the charge.

A lunch was served following the meeting.

Illness Hastens Retirement Of CGE Veterans

Retirement of Daniel Gooley and Reuben Mowry, two members of the C.G.E. Quarter Centruy Club was announced by the company Thursday.

Illness hastened the retirement of both Mr. Mowry who has been off work since May and Mr. Gooley who worked until vacation time.

Mr. Gooley, a veteran of the First World War, joined the C.G.E. in October 1922 and was employed in the armature department for the 30 years of his service with the company.

WORKED IN LUMBER CAMP

Before joining the Peterborough Works after going overseas with the 93rd Battalion, Mr. Gooley farmed for a time. He began working at the age of 14 in lumber camps in the county and he also helped build the Nassau dam and powerhouse.

Mr. Mowry is the second of four brothers, all with more than 25 years' service with C.G.E. to retire.

He first joined the company in 1907. In December 1925, Mr. Mowry rejoined the company and began his 27 years of consecutive service in the wire and cable department. In recent years, he has been canteen attendant in the department.

Policeman Off Duty Knocked Off Bicycle

A truck making a left-hand turn which blocked her view was blamed by a woman driver for an accident Thursday evening in which an off-duty policeman was knocked off his bicycle.

Constable W. A. Scott had the skin scraped off his right knee and arm when he was knocked to the pavement by a car driven by Mrs. Edith P. Jones, 139 River Rd.

The accident occurred on George St., at Park Hill Rd. Constable Scott was travelling north and making a left-hand turn to go west on Park Hill Rd.

Mrs. Jones said she had been going east on Park Hill Rd., and stopped for the stop sign. After signalling for a left-hand turn, she told constable Harold Andrew, who investigated, that she started to go north on George St. At the same time, she said a truck was making a left-hand turn to go south on George St., and blocked her view.

Four Light Trucks In Intersection Crash

Only property damage resulted Thursday evening when four light trucks were involved in an accident at Aylmer and McDonnel Sts.

One vehicle was stopped on Aylmer St., ahead of two others which were stopped abreast facing north waiting for the red light to change.

Stephen Scarsilla, 493 Albert St., travelling west on McDonnel made a left hand turn to go south on Aylmer St., and in making the turn, Scarsilla clipped the rear of the first truck driven by Harold Blodgett, 378 Welsh St.

The Scarsilla truck then struck the front ends of the other two trucks, driven by James Fitzpatrick of Bridgenorth and Donald Illerbrun of Guelph.

Constable Arthur Beardsmore investigated.

Group Studies Attempts At Conservation In District

On a five-day tour of conservation projects throughout the province, 70 conservationists took time out Thursday night for a dinner and social get-together at the Empress Hotel.

The tour which began Monday noon and ends today with a luncheon in Belleville is sponsored by the Ontario Department of Planning and Development.

Purpose of the tour is to acquaint the representatives of the 15 conservation authorities in province with what is being done by the various authorities to prevent erosion by floods, encourage reforestation and to promote other conservation measures.

Some of the highlights of the five-day bus tour have been a panel discussion of "Soil and Water Relations" at O.A.C., a visit to the Beeton Reforestation and Reservoir and the seed extraction plant at Angus.

Thursday the group started the day with a visit to the Bradford co-operative cold storage at Holland Marsh, then visited the Heber Down Farm at Brooklin.

CONTOUR PLOUGHING

A. H. Richardson, chief conservation engineer of the planning and development department, who is accompanying the group on the tour, points out that farm planning is another phase of the tour and the Down Farm at Brooklin is regarded as a model. There, the conservationists saw the results of contour ploughing, strip cropping and long term crop rotation programs.

In other years, the conservationists visited conservation projects in Ohio, New York State and other parts of the United States, but this year Mr. Richardson says the department decided to plan the tour so as to show what is being done in the men's home province of Ontario.

He reports that several of the group who have taken previous tours consider this one the most interesting and informative from the viewpoint of getting ideas they can apply in their own districts.

Thursday afternoon, the group stopped off for a visit to the Durham County Forest headquarters and the Ganaraska Forest.

To wind up the tour today, they will first see the results of marsh pollution at Highway 7 from the Deloro mill; later they will be visiting O'Hara's Mill and just before noon ,the tour will end at Thomasburg where the conservationists will see what is being done to preserve thin and boundary soils.

The department of planning and development supplies the buses for the tour and the conservationists pay their other expenses while on the trip.

City Council Exceeding Power Fining Cars On Parking Lot Says Lawyer

Section of Municipal Act Which Permits City-Owned Parking Lots Does Not Allow Penalties—W. J. Arthur Fair

Arguing that city council is exceeding its powers in imposing fines for overtime parking in the market square lot, W. J. Arthur Fair, Q.C., has written a letter to council, suggesting that the parking bylaw be referred to the city solicitor. Mr. Fair is of the opinion that a municipal parking lot should be operated on the same basis as a privately owned lot. He agrees that a fee should be charged, but says there should not be a fine. He feels the satisfactory way would be to have an attendant in charge and have the motorist pay only for the time he overstays.

The section of the Municipal Act that permits the establishment by bylaw of parking lots by a municipality is not a punitive one, says Mr. Fair. In other words, it is not a section which allows penalties.

City clerk E. A. Outram said he believes Mr. Fair's argument is wrong. City council has passed a bylaw establishing the parking lot, and the bylaw was in accordance with the section of the Municipal Act that permits establishment of a parking lot.

PROVIDES FOR PENALTY

Mr. Outram cited another section of the act which provides for a penalty of not more than $50 for contravention of any bylaw passed by a municipal council or board of commissioners of police.

Mr. Fair argues that it is "not within the legislative powers as granted under the Municipal Act for a municipality to pass bylaws to provide for a penalty, by way of a fine, for over-staying the parking time paid for in advance in a municipal parking lot, but may charge such additional time as the overtime warrants."

"I therefore submit that this is not only unfair but illegal for the city to so impose upon the public."

He said he had no argument with the use of meters to collect the fee that must be charged under the Municipal Act. But he felt the city had no right to impose a penalty for over-staying time.

Mr. Outram remarked that any bylaw which compels a positive action by a citizen also compels

Table Shortage Not Reported Alderman Says

Alderman Stanley Longhurst said today he knew nothing of any shortage of tables for vendors at the Market at Rink and George Sts., as claimed by market clerk Harry Gabbutt.

Mr. Gabbutt is quoted as stating that tables owned by the city are falling into disrepair and before long, vendors may be obliged to bring their own.

SOME TAKEN HOME

According to Mr. Gabbutt, the shortage is being aggravated by absent-minded vendors who in their hurry to get home after Saturday market unthinkingly throw a table owned by the city on their trucks or trailers and take it home with them.

Mr. Longhurst said that in the spring a delegation of farmers met with council to discuss the possibility of getting "better accommodation" at the market but that he had received no complaints about the number of tables not being sufficient. He said council had not discussed buying any additional ones.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

County Plowing Match Wednesday, Oct. 1 at Fred Campbell's Farm, North Monaghan....Corn Overflows Ontario's Silos....Hereford Digest Sees Embargo Prolonged.

Rains this week should put Fred Campbell's land in prime condition for the county plowing match Wednesday, Oct. 1, near Brealey's School, about two miles west of the city.

Give Henry Batten and his executive a sunny day, as Hanlan Payne says, "we ought to have a big turnout and a fine match."

Horses have become vestigial in the 1952 prize list. Only one class remains to them, and it's the first one on the bill. Last year, class 2 was also for horses, but the two have been combined.

Tractors monopolize the rest of the program. It is another case of the Arab and his camel. The horses are now almost entirely outside the tent, and the prize money allotted to them has been clipped to $12, $9, $6 and $3, as compared with the tractor distribution: $15, $13, $10, $8 and $5 in each of the mechanized classes.

Entries are due by 9.30 a.m. Wednesday, and the seven classes are to be completed by 3 p.m. in time for the general utility class. For this tractor event, one hour and 15 minutes are allowed for approximately half an acre for two-furrow plows. This contest begins at 3 p.m. Its committee are: Alex Huston, Robert McAdam, Howard Quinn, Vern Campbell, C. E. Moore and Stuart Hall.

An added special class is provided for teams of two boys who are connected with the Farm Machinery Club. Plows are to be examined for their adjustment, a factor that has been emphasized in the Club of which R. G. Gregg of the Ontario Department of Agriculture has been in charge, assisting Frank C. Paterson and Ken Best. Specified land is to be plowed in limited time. This class stresses utility and precise plowing knowledge. Five prizes range from $20 to $10. They are team prizes.

Seven special prizes complete the awards. Mr. Batten is president of the county association and Frank Paterson is secretary.

The main rule is that competitors must be members of the Peterborough Plowmen's Association. Meals will be served on the grounds.

Surplus of Corn

Frequent topic of Lambton farmers' conversation is: "What's going to happen to the hog and cattle markets?"

This quotation is from the weekly review of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. One answer to the question not only in Lambton but elsewhere in the province is the reduction in the price support levels as reported from Thursday.

The reduction in the price support of hogs is effective Jan. 1, from $26 to $23 per hundred pounds; and on cattle Nov. 15, cut from $25 to $23.

Winter wheat is showing good growth, and is expected to produce a protective top by the time heavy frosts come.

The corn crop is exceeding capacity of Ontario's silos all the way across the province. In Bruce: "Most farmers have an excess of corn."

Perth County: Silo filling is at the peak, and an excellent crop has been harvested. North Simcoe: Corn is an unusually heavy crop. Northumberland: Corn is probably the best yield in a decade.

Wellington: Temporary silos are being construted to take care of the surplus corn. Renfrew county is ensiling a "very heavy crop of corn."

The crop that looked lean and straggly at midsummer made a wonderful recovery in the later period of the season, through Labor Day. Russell says: "Some excellent quality second-cut hay is being put into silos." Prescott: "A few pure bred cows are being sold around $225 to $275."

The U.S. Embargo

Judging by recent announcements from sources of the cattle industry whose voice bears considerable influence with key policy makers, says the Canadian Hereford Digest, it seems apparent that a prolonged period of waiting may follow before access to American markets is permitted for both pure-breds and commercial sales.

The American Cattle Producer is quoted as follows: "The Canadians should understand that such a course would be a highly dangerous one," referring to an early opening of the border. "We have recently established in the case of the Mexican outbreak what is considered by most experts as a safe procedure, which is that a year must elapse after the last outbreak before we can safely accept imports from an affected country."

"For our welfare, and this applies as well to Canadians, we must insist that such a procedure be applied not only to Canada but to any other country that has an outbreak, even if it does cause financial pinches. Any shorter period could mean disaster to the great livestock industry of this country. Our experience 25 years ago taught us that the virus can linger in the soil many months. In Texas the disease broke out 283 days after the last infected animal on the premises was killed. In California the virus remained alive 345 days."

This situation, says the Digest should be borne in mind when operations for the current year are being planned, as the general trend of public opinion seems to be against an early removal of these barriers. It is a reasonably safe assumption that these conditions will still be in existence when bull sale time arrives in the spring.

Show 155 Ayrshires

Twenty members of the Howick-Huntingdon (Quebec) Ayrshire Club showed 155 of their Red and White cattle at the Havelock Fair in the Huntingdon district. The judge was Ralph E. Lewis of Mooers, N. Y. By comparison, Ottawa Central Exhibition attracted 12 exhibitors of 135 Ayrshires. A report says breeders were amazed at the quality of the show "in spite of the absence of the Cherry Bank herd of P. D. McArthur & Son. Both breeders thought the show should be confined to breeders who do not regularly take part, as they do, at the major national exhibitions."

Midway Flaw

"There are many Londoners who will agree that the sideshows on the midway were an insult to our intelligence." That is the opinion of R. A. Knighton, writing to the editor of the London Free Press about a suggestion that the Western Ontario fair needs more space.

"Why does such valuable space have to be wasted? If the owner of the midway attractions can do no better in the future, then I would recommend that he send only rides. I know that the midway helps to create the carnival atmosphere of the fair, but I think the executive should stipulate that it must be worthy of their valuable space.

"They could move the games of chance out into the infield of the race track. The people who insist on donating their hard earned money to the welfare of the operators could still be taken care of, but many others would not be tempted to play. (Isn't it illegal? Or is there a special law for fair week?")

The writer assumes that midway booths offer games of chance. If they do, they have improved vastly, because the element of chance has been gimmicked heavily and even controllably in the traditional "carny" outfits.

Norwood Fair Provides Big Program

G. A. Brethen, president of Norwood Fair—Monday, October 13, Thanksgiving Day—is shooting again at an attendance of 25,000. And behind that shining target is the Norwood quest for a Departmental Class B rating.

Directors have more than ever emphasized the broad agricultural background of their Exhibition. They have been generous with the prize money, totalling more than $7,000, including: Horses $1,700, cattle $2,654, sheep $345, swine $324, poultry $352.

Secretary - treasurer Gordon Parker better have a barrel full of cash on hand to pay off at the end of the day if any of the exhibitors are disinclined to wait for the mailing of their cheques. For instance, the prize money in the harness horse class starts off like this: Clydesdale team, first $25, second $20, third $15, fourth $10, fifth $5.

Horsemen of the district are not likely to pass up that kind of change at the last fair of this fall.

The advertising bills say: "We expect the biggest and best exhibit of horses ever staged at Norwood. Prize money doubled; $100 stake for the best heavy horse, Clydesdale, Percheron, Belgian or waggon horse to be shown on the line at the close of the show. Similar stake ($100) on light horses.

The prize list is an attractive booklet, 64 pages, with a cover of bronze sheen. It must have entailed a great deal of work in its preparation.

Two pages are devoted to the Fair's feature this year, the English Yorkshire Swine project, which includes the sale of 15 of the 30 pigs that were bought as weanlings and distributed among 15 junior farmers of East Peterborough. This story has been told several times.

Prof. R. G. Knox of O.A.C. is coming to Norwood for the judging of these animals. The auction begins at 3 p.m.

The directors are offering $500 for the afternoon's horse races. The card consists of three harness races, free-for-all, 2.22 and 2.27 classes; two pony races, half-mile; road horse races.

Another attraction is a horse drawing contest for "the championship of Central Ontario," sponsored by Norwood Lions Club. Prize money is $125, split five ways, $50 down to $10.

At the entertainment stand: Havelock Kilties' Band, Barber Shop Quartettes, Old-time Fiddlers, Square Dance Competitions. Tommy Mason is M.C.

The parade of champions is at 4 p.m., but the opening parade from the centre of the village is at 12 o'clock noon.

The Peter March midway show provides rides and other amusements. All of which, and it is only a partial summary, outlines the breadth of the Fair's program. It is a big undertaking, and with fine weather the attendance may break into five figures.

Buyers Rejecting Wheat Infected With Smut Did Industry "Good Turn"

When Quaker Oats frowned this summer on deliveries of new crop wheat showing smut infection, they probably helped the cause of better seed more than anyone realized in the first reaction.

That was the opinion expressed to The Examiner the other day by Robert Armstrong of Cavan, president of Peterborough Crop Improvement Association. Probably it was not a deliberated statement, but Mr. Armstrong remarked that the mill news may have had more immediate and practical effect than the efforts of the Association in twenty years.

Reports from a dozen or more district farmers who specialize in growing registered and No. 1 commercial fall wheat indicate that they found a ready market for their substantial crop this season. That area reaches down to the Durham lakefront, somewhat beyond the radius of the local market, but there and over in Hastings, according to Stewart Bowman of the Federal Department of Agriculture, growers had no difficulty in selling their supplies of seed wheat. And a further observation was the livelier interest in seed that was cleaned, and treated for smut.

Mr. Armstrong was one of those who had about two hundred bushels left on his hands in the week before the Exhibition, and by that Saturday he was sold out. Other growers reported a more or less similar experience with satisfactory evidence of quickened interest in sowing good seed.

Peterborough Crop Improvement Association has been impressing on farmers the advantages of a clean crop. Its membership and many other farmers of this area have been putting that policy into effect, as a matter of course with them, because it was dictated by common sense and the eventual payoff, at home and in the market when buyers opened the cheque book for value delivered.

There was a story at Dewart Milling a year or so ago, spiced with a touch of humor, about the rejection of a truck load of wheat so rankly infested with smut "you smell it coming." In the market it was a minus quantity. At Quaker Oats this season patience with infected wheat ended one day, but with this difference, the news got abroad in a report of some incidents of rejection.

As the president of the Crop Improvement said, it didn't do a bit of harm, which was an understatement of Mr. Armstrong's real meaning, "maybe it did a lot of good." That opinion was not pointed in the direction of the many farmers who give their fall wheat treatment against the fungus enemy plus the assistance of a thoroughly prepared seed bed.

Beyond their company, however, there are some who are indifferent or willing to take a chance at the possible expense of their work and investment. Literally the day of judgment is when the loads of wheat are submitted to the buyers, and as related, the verdict can be: take it home, or milder words to that effect.

Fall wheat does well in this district, as often mentioned at Crop Improvement meetings. To a considerable extent it is a cash crop that deserves the care that generally guarantees top price to the grower. The business farmer doesn't gamble on the quality of his wheat yield. He has to contend with enough risks over which he has no control, and when he is advised that can control wheat, and at a pittance of cost, he does something about it.

Then at harvest time, he can look the buyer in the eye. More than one comment has affirmed the Armstrong opinion that the Quaker ultimatum on smut "has done the industry a good turn."

Harry Kennedy Reports To Maple Breeders On His Tour Of U.S. Units

As a member of Maple Cattle Breeders' Association and also one of its directors, Harry Kennedy, of Cavan, returned from a tour last week of breeding units in the United States, "quite pleased with our own establishment and the service it is providing for our farmers."

The intinerary of members of the Maple executive, including the veterinary technician, Dr. Campbell McKay, included Penn State College; Clarion breeding unit in northeastern Pennsylvania; Tiffin, Ohio; Michigan State College at Lansing, and Woodstock, Ontario.

"There were nine of us, travelling in two cars," Mr. Kennedy told the Examiner. "Stewart Whittington, of the Peterborough group of Maple Association, and myself represented this section. He is also a director and was the only beef man in the party. The purpose of the tour was to see what they are doing and learning across the border, and to gather any ideas which might be useful to us from the experience of the big units we visited.

"I felt that our farmers would like to know something about this trip, and I am passing the information on to them as breeders like myself.

PENN'S EXPERIMENTS

"At Penn State we spent half a day with Dr. Elmquist who is one of the foremost authorities on artificial breeding in the western world. We enquired into their feeding methods, their results and their general practice and setup. Penn State College is engaged mostly in experimental work. One of their staff is a Japanese veterinarian, Dr. Tenabi. They are building a fine new barn that will give them accommodation for a total of 300 bulls. That indicates the extent of their experimental work.

"At Clarion there are 83 bulls, and some 120,000 cows are owned by the members of that association in the northeastern section of Pennsylvania. We were through their barns, enquired about their method of distributing semen, visited their offices and were well received.

Clarion unit has some bulls of Canadian breeding. One thing we learned was that the conception rate this season in Ohio and Pennsylvania was not as good as our own, largely on account of the dry season. They had very little rain for two months and a half. In our territory, best results have been in Northern Ontario where the summer rainfall was more than we got in this part of the province.

We spent a day travelling from Clarion to Tiffin, Ohio, calling on some of the breeders along the way. The Tiffin unit supplies the northern part of the state. It is managed by Max Drake who has visited and lectured over here.

BIG TIFFIN PLANT

Tiffin plant is thoroughly modern in barns and laboratory. Michigan State College supplies semen for all that state. Their premises comprises six to seven thousand acres. One of their Hereford bulls is the best I have ever seen. The college paid $20,000 for a one-quarter interest, and he looked to be worth the money. Michigan State College has 200,000 cows on their service list. Add Tiffin 150,000 and Clarion 120,000 and the total is not much under half a million.

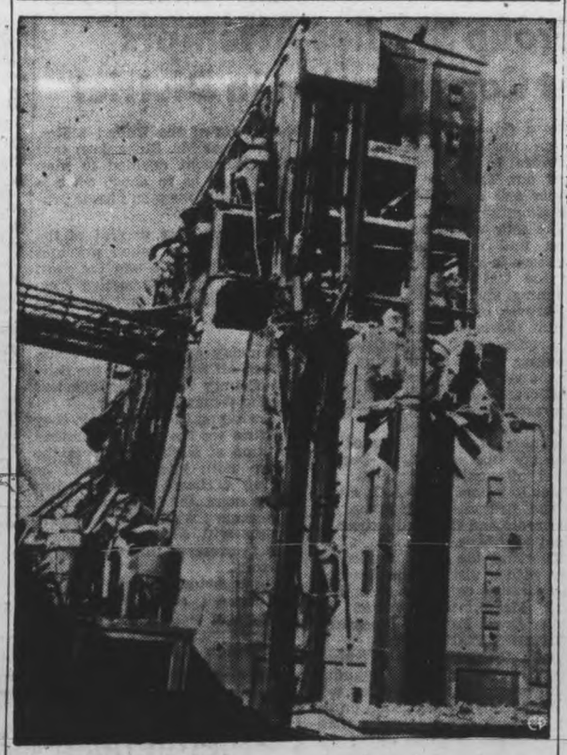
At these units and also at Woodstock, the report was just about the same, breeders say they are well satisfied with the results from artificial insemination.

Another general impression is that we saw a lot of bulls, dairy and beef, that did not look as if they'd add any particular value to our own stock. Probably at Michigan their beef sires were outstanding. I have mentioned that particular Hereford as an exceptional animal, and they have two Shorthorns that should stand out in any company.

MAPLE COMPARES WELL

I think our own pedigrees compare exceptionally well with what we saw in the States. We have better controlled breeding, and it appeared to me that they don't keep up line breeding as closely as we try to do.

Another impression is that they are not selling to as many top breeders as we are at Maple.



Woodstock has good bulls, and a new laboratory they built this year. We met Bob Bell, who was at Peterborough with Frank Paterson. He was delighted to meet our party, and especially the two of us from around Peterborough, Stewart Whittington and myself.

One purpose of our trip was to get information about animals that might be available to us when our directors are looking around for any new stock.

As a breeder I felt well satisfied with our own unit, our conception rate and general progress in the comparatively short time we have been operating."

TRAINS FOR MATCH—Mayor A. David Simpson of Stratford, who plans to enter the mayors' plowing contest at Carp, Ont., Oct. 8, climbs aboard a tractor for the first time in his life. He will be competing against Toronto's Mayor Lamport and Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa. He is shown driving while his coach, 16-year-old Wyne Shackleton, gives directions. Farmer Alex Rae measures the width and depth of the furrows.

ELEVATOR BLAST—Shattered wreckage of the Saskatchewan Pool Elevator No. 4A at Port Arthur is shown after an explosion and fire which left four men dead, two missing and 14 injured. The blast, similar to one which wrecked a nearby elevator in 1945 killing 23, shook the whole Port Arthur waterfront. Damage was estimated as high as $3,000,000.

DOROTHY DIX

Boy Friend Objects To Girl Going Away To College

DEAR MISS DIX: For the past two and a half years I have been goin steady. in the near future I plan to go to college several hundred miles away where I will live on the campus. However, my boy friend objects and says if I really loved him I would change my plans. I could go to a college close enough so that I could live at home. He thinks I should do so and save money for our marriage. Do you think his ideas are right?

REN

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I think a boy who is more concerned over the money you can save than over the education you receive is a questionable matrimonial prospect. If he is willing to sacrifice your best interests now, what do you think your chances are of having any independence after marriage? Think it over.

✧ ✧ ✧

SHOULD SHE TELL?

DEAR MISS DIX: Some time ago I had a love affair with a man who ultimately left me because he wanted to marry someone else. The other woman is a fine person with an unquestionable character. She trusts this man implicitly. He does have a personality that would charm anyone—as I well know. I don't want to tell her out of resentment or hurt, but I know the man is unworthy of her and she will never be happy with him.

E.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your intentions may be of the best, but the girl will never listen to your warning. Your own affair is over and done with, and there's no use evoking it for a futile purpose. If there were any assurance that the girl is sensible enough to profit by your experience, I'd tell you to go ahead and try save her from an unhappy marriage, but you must be the judge of the possible outcome. Don't sacrifice yourself needlessly.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My mother insists that I be home at ten o'clock when I have a date. My boy friend's father gets home late so we never can get an early start for the movies, ball game or other activity. Even thirty minutes extra would help.

BEVERLY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Ten-thirty is not an unreasonable hour for home-coming, but the extra thirty minutes probably wouldn't satisfy you very long. Couldn't the boy's family make a concession on the other side of the program, and let him out a bit earlier?

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married eleven years and have two children. Since my husband came home from service, he has changed considerably, but I have been able to manage with him. However, three weeks ago his mother was found dead, which was a severe shock to him. Since then he has done nothing but sit around; I can't get him to talk at all.

MRS. M. D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Give your husband time to recover from his mother's passing; one doesn't recover from so severe a shock in a short time. If the difficulty continues, I suggest that you have him see a psychiatrist. The Veterans' Administration will suggest one for you.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am very much in love with a boy 21, three year older than I . We went together over a year, then broke up and he married someone else. Now he and his wife are planning a divorce. He wants me to go out with him, but I don't know whether to wait until he has the divorce or not.

D. G.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Better wait, or you'll be one of that vast army of women who are patiently eating their hearts out waiting for men to get divorces that somehow or other never do seem to materialize. In the meantime, look around for another boy. Don't waste your youth waiting for a vacillating, and not too worthwhile, young man.

Fall And Winter Silhouette Found Neither Too Full, Nor Too Slim

PARIS (AP). — The 1952 fall and winter silhouette, as decreed by French fashion experts, is a compromise that should suit most figures: Its neither too full nor too slim.

Hems have dropped to 12 inches from the floor.

First pictures of the new creations are being released this weekend, a month after the first fall showings in Paris. This release was set by designers here to minimize copying before the Paris fashion experts have completed their foreign sales.

Women who like tight belts will have to turn to Christian Dior this season. Other designers leave the waist loose and low for a middy effect.

Daytime necklines are modestly high, but they get lower and lower on cocktail, dinner and dance dresses.

Dark and sober colors lead the field. Black, dark grey, brown and beige predominate, with some dark reds, purples and blue-greens.

Rough tweeds are favorites for suits and coats, often trimmed with beaver or other fur collars and cuffs. Other fabrics are luxurious velvets and laces.

Trimming gimmicks are nearly non-existent. Griffe puts a blanket veto on all buttons and belts. Balenciaga creates the most barren effect of all with collarless and lapel-less jackets and coats. Costume jewellery is mostly small and discreet. Hat trimmings follow the same trend.

In evening dresses the designers have been influenced by the coming coronation of Britain's Queen. Ball gowns have billowing Elizabethan skirts and voluminous cloaks or stoles go with them. Often enough, they're made or trimmed in royal purple.

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Lamb Stew Recipes Said Common As Good Cooks

The ways of making lamb stew are as diverse as the number of good cooks in Canada, and, remember — their number is increasing every day.

I think the majority of you will agree that lamb stew is best with dumplings, and that when they are in season and the price is within reason, green beans give it a just-right flavor and color.

Breast of lamb is ideal for stewing, for it has enough fat for the searing process. Neck lamb is also good.

LAMB STEW WITH DUMPLINGS

Order 1½ lbs. breast lamb and wipe it with damp cloth and cut into 2-inch pieces. Sear in heavy hot frying pan. If you move it around in the pan at first enough fat will form to prevent sticking. If you add fat the finished stew is too greasy. When some fat has formed in pan add 2 large onions sliced, and when these are just a little bit browned add 3 cups boiling water. If your pan is not big enough transfer to stewig pot. A Dutch oven is ideal for this dish. Cover and simmer 1½ hours. Remove cover and add 1 teaspoon salt, 2 large carrots cut in dice, 1 cup diced turnips, 1 to 1½ cups cut up green beans, and if desired ½ to 1 cup parsnips diced and 1 cup tomato. Simmer for another hour. Then add potatoes cut in large dice, and more salt if needed and some pepper to taste. Simmer until potatoes are tender. ANNUAL CONFERENCE of the Woman's Auxiliary, Deanery of Peterborough, was held all day Thursday in All Saints' Anglican Church. In this picture are (left to right) Mrs. C. H. Thackeray, president of the hostess Auxiliary, Mrs. Bernard Steen, president of the Lasswade W.A., Mrs. Frank Edgar, the Deanery officer who presided, and Mrs. H. E. 450 At Deanery Conference Hear Missionary Addresses

Four hundred and fifty ladies were in attendance for Holy Communion at All Saints' Anglican Church Thursday morning and for the annual conference of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Deanery of Peterborough which followed. Communion celebrant was the Rev. M. P. Poble, rector of the church.

Address of the morning session was by Miss Greta Clark, former missionary in Kaifeng, China, who is now working among the Chinese in Toronto. "Look Up" was her topic, followed by the question "What are you doing about it?"

"Chinese entering Canada are turning to Communism here," she stated. "We don't seem to do a thing about it. Are we really concerned?" Miss Clark asked in prayer that the attitude of Canadians may be changed.

At noon-day luncheon the Rev. Dr. Stevens from England, travelling for the Bryon Green Mission which is to be in Peterborough October 23rd, told the ladies there are three choices open to people today: War and Destruction; Totalitarianism; or "a new people in a new world."

He gave the definition of a Christian as a person "To whom Christ is essential." He said the purpose of his Mission is to create more people of this kind.

Afternoon speaker Miss Clair Heller of Toronto, a converted Jewess, startled the assembly by reminding them that the word Gentile was the original word for heathens. She called her listeners Christian Gentiles and herself a Hebrew Christian.

Miss Heller described how she came to know Jesus as the Messiah of Israel just eight years ago, and emphasized that no one had ever told her of Him except the one Anglican rector to whom she talked many times before her baptism. "I had not rejected Jesus —because I had never known of Him" she said. She urged Christians to accept their responsibility to bring this word to the Jews and quoted from the message to the Gentile Christians in Romans "How can they call on Jesus when then know nothing of it?" She added the reminder that the whole of the Scriptures was written by Jews.

She further scored the Gentiles for their judgment of the Jews by Christian standards. "You expect Christian behaviour of them, which is wrong, for they have no forgiveness of sin. You are the 'chosen people,' chosen to reveal God to all those who do not know him."

First Hebrew Christian to graduate from the Anglican Women's Training College, Toronto, Miss Heller took posts in Montreal and then in Nathaniel Institute in Toronto to work among the Jews. She is now associated with the Student Christian Movement in University of Toronto, working at her studio. She is an artist and sculptor and spent years before her conversion in whole-hearted study of the art.

At the meeting of the Evening Branches of the W. A., the Junior Auxiliaries and the Girls' Auxiliaries, attended by 75, Miss Heller played recordings of the Christian services which she conducts for a group of more than 20 young Jewish people.

Another speaker at the evening meeting was Mrs. R. J. Potts, Diocesan Board president of the Evening Branches, from Toronto. She urged a continuance of the work and prayers of this section.

Mrs. Horace Ashmore, president of the Diocese of Saskatchewan, a visitor in the city at present, spoke briefly at afternoon and evening meetings. She told of the Indian Residential School at Prince Albert, Sask., with 450 boy and girl students and urged that more bales of clothing be sent for them, but asked "Don't put in heavy magazines or papers and don't put in hats."

Plea for the daughters and sons of the ladies was made by Mrs. Ashmore. "We need nurses, teachers and clergymen very badly," she said.

Chairman for the day sessions was Mrs. Frank Edgar who retired with the appointment at the end of Mrs. Gordon Rutherford of St. George's parish as the new Deanery Officer. It was decided next year's meeting will be in St. Luke's Church.

Presidents of all the Deanery branches held a short meeting in the afternoon. Reports from each branch were heard in the conference.

Norma Hughes Tells Club Work Of Council Of Blind

One of Peterborough's more successful daughters is sightless Miss Norma Hughes who has recently been made the secretary general for Ontario of the Canadian Council of the Blind. Holidaying with relatives in the city at present she will go shortly to the Council headquarters in London, Ontario, to begin her new duties. She has just completed a short course of training for the work.

Miss Hughes was guest of the Soroptimist Club at their dinner meeting Thursday evening, and explained to them the reason for forming this council, its set-up and functions.

"Canadian Council of the Blind is the organization of the blind people themselves," she stated. "Membership at present is 41 clubs of which the Louis Braille Society of Peterborough is one and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind is another." She said she believed the clubs represented a membership of less than 4,000 blind people while there are more than 19,000 in Canada, so there is plenty of work to do. She added that she had been told there are 60 blind people in the city of Peterborough and 30 in the County, yet less than 30 attend the local Society monthly meetings at Dixon House.

"Recreation is a very important piece of our Council work," said Miss Hughes. "We find that getting the blind people out for a talk together, a sing song and something to eat helps them wonderfully."

Recreation is the heading of one of the Council's five standing committees. Education is another and she advised that at present they are studying mannerisms of blind persons and expect the result of the survey to be beneficial to the Government in its training plan in the five Canadian schools for the blind.

The legislation committee is trying hard now to get improved legislation for blind people. It seeks elimination of the "means test" on the blind allowance so that blind people who are able to earn a substantial salary may do so without loss of the allowance, and also to have the allowance of $40 a month increased for blind people unable to earn extra money. Miss Hughes pointed out that a blind person's living expenses are often higher than a sighted person for the former are able to do so few things for themselves, such as house repairs.

Publicity committee of the Council sponsors White Cane Week jointly with the Institute. Blind people have found this publicity very helpful to them, the school children being particularly responsive and eager to assist a "white caner" on the streets. The committee also publishes a booklet of news of the member clubs four times a year, "The Outlook," and finds them being widely read and by sighted people as well. Fifth committee of the Council is the finance.

Miss Hughes who was born with her disability in Peterborough, got her public school education in the Brantford School for the Blind, but took her High School and her business administration course in the Peterborough Collegiate where she was one of the top students in her class throughout. She worked as a dictaphone typist at C.G.E. for a time, then decided to add a Normal School course to the list. During the war years she was a member of a local knitting club who was able to straighten out the others' work and make the socks look like socks, and the helmets like helmets. She was a great worker in the Trinity Church Sunday School and has continued such work since leaving the city.

Soroptimists showed sincere interest in the work for the blind and sought information on what is being done in Peterborough. Miss Hughes was introduced to them by Miss Myrtle Sargent and a vote of thanks was extended by Mrs. W. G. Scott.

This first dinner meeting after vacation period was attended by 24 Soroptimists, only eight members being absent. New president Miss Gene Clark presided.

Program convener Mrs. Eva Brackenridge had arranged for showing of the film "Highlands of Haliburton" and it was greatly enjoyed. She also led in the singing of the club songs, with Miss Musa Cox accompanying at the piano.

Chapter News

MUNICIPAL CHAPTER

First fall meeting of the Peterborough Municipal Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held Wednesday evening in the Y.W.C.A. Green Room with first vice-regent Mrs. George Barns presiding.

Secretary, Miss Eleanor Taylor, reported copies of 1952 National Year Book available. Each Chapter representative was given a complete list of officers and conveners of all Chapters in the city. A detailed financial report was given by treasurer Mrs. Brian Roberts.

Arrangements were made for the municipal regent, Miss Mary Medd, to attend, as a delegate, the provincial semi-annual meeting in Kitchener October 24 and 25.

Mrs. William Nash, Municipal standard bearer, gave an interesting report of her experience as standard bearer at the National Annual Meeting in Niagara Falls last May.

Mrs. W. Gordon Hall, convener of Empire and World Affairs, gave a most thorough paper on the difference between Empire study and world affairs. One of the clauses in aims and objects, of the constitution, instructs Chapters to promote the study of the Empire and current Imperial questions.

Since 1914 it has been customary for chapters to study Empire affairs dealing with such subjects as British Dominions and Colonies, India, Dominion of Canada, its government, laws, immigration and a chart of historical facts about Canada.

"It has been aptly said the Order spends generously on the education of others, but this is the only phase of the work in which we educate ourselves," she remarked.

"When the Empire study committee was formed, the chief aim was a better understanding of our Empire. Since then the world has changed and the imperative need of the moment is for an alerted public, concerned for democratic freedoms, and alarm over the trend of world affairs.

"Comparisons are potent facts in strengthening our beliefs in domocracy, so this year the Empire study committee has changed its name to Empire and world affairs."

Mrs. Hall reminded that the Order is the only patriotic body of women whose chief aim is the fostering of British ideals and democratic principals. "To our generation comes a great challenge. We will work to preserve Canada, as a land of free men, within the British family of nations, where justice, liberty and faith in God, are the inheritance of all.

"By more earnest study of the constitution and the booklet, "Through Knowledge to Understanding", members will benefit and the influence of the Order will become a still more potent factor in each community against the encroachment of evil forces," she said.

As part of the world affairs study, Mrs. Hall called on Mrs. P. C. Sanders who read an article on "The most wonderful clock in the world", Denmark's new clock called the eighth wonder of the world, a masterpiece and lifework of Danish clock-maker Jens Olsen.

Echoes secretary, Miss Jean Hamley, reported the "Echoes" will accept for publication any gloss action print of chapter activities. Chapters are asked to give their copies to her by November 1st.

Distinguished visitors and hospitality convener Mrs. W. A. Burrell has Victory League cards which are available to anyone in Canada going to England. These cards make it easier to secure concert tickets, attend museums etc., while in England.

Publicity convener Mrs. W. C. Boate informed I.O.D.E. scrap book conveners their books entered for competition must have only material of I.O.D.E. activities.

Mrs. G. Groombridge, convener of services at home and abroad reported 33 food parcels, 108 knitted and sewing articles packed and shipped to England.

Food is still urgently needed in Great Britain, however no further shipments of food packed by chapters will be shipped direct to England. As many chapters have been concerned over the high postal rates on overseas food parcels, arrangements have been made with Grayson & Co. (London) Ltd., of London, England, to pack food parcels for the chapters in England. Food for these parcels will be purchased from special British stocks, which are available for export only. Advantages will be shipping charges reduced to a minimum, more dollars for Britain and six different types of parcels available such as Family Type, Invalid Type, and Old Age Pensioner Type.

Chapters were urged to keep uppermost in their minds the word "Services." Often the greatest benefit can be secured for a needy person or family by bringing their case to the attention of the proper authorities set up in the community.

Hospital visiting has long been one of the most rewarding tasks of members.

In addition to the usual "amenities," chapters may send to provincial headquarters hard-covered books and pocket editions for shipment to Army and Air Force bases in Canada and Korea and to H.M.C.S. Shearwater and H.M.C.S. Magnificent (no magazines, please).

Chapters are urged to offer services to the Civil Defence in the city.

CLOTHING DRIVE

Clean used clothing in good repair plays a large part in our overseas relief program.

Mrs. Groombridge asks for one article of warm used clothing from each I.O.D.E. member in the city. Each chapter to pack, list contents with chapter name and deliver to her early in November. Co-operation at this time can result in unbelievable relief to thousands of men, women and children.

Funds are required for the British and European relief fund, Seamen's Amenities Fund, cigarette fund and provincial workroom maintenance fund.

Members of the Jeanette Scott chapter served refreshments.

COLONEL AGNES NEILL CHAPTER

Colonel Agnes Neill Chapter, I.O.D.E., held their first meeting of the fall season in the Green Room, Y.W.C.A. Regent Mrs. William Durant was in the chair. The flag was brought forward by Miss Isobel Shearer.

A report was given by Mrs. William Messervey on the visit to the adopted school at Belmont. The members were advised that a student nurse had entered training at Civic Hospital with the help of the bursary donated by the Chapter.

Mrs. C. Selkirk, child and family welfare convener, reported that two girls were sent to the Y.W.C.A. camp in August. A letter thanking the Chapter for the toys sent to the children at the hospital at Moose Factory was read. A further donation of $25.00 was made to send another box of toys to the hospital.

Mrs. G. Vallery advised that overseas boxes had been sent during the summer months.

The next work meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. B. Hamlin. Plans were discussed for the annual Stardust Ball to be held on November 7th at the Brock Ballroom and members were given tickets to sell.

New members joining the Chapter were Mrs. D. Huff, Mrs. G. Spicer, and Miss Muriel Adams.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. R. Huffman and her group.

Kawartha Ladies Close With Round Of "Monkey Golf" Club Champ Is B. Siddall

Closing field day for the ladies' section of the Kawartha Golf Club Thursday began like a masquerade party and then turned into a circus. It seemed to be just as much fun as either event would suggest, but laughing through nine holes of "monkey" golf was exhausting too, and a delicious noon lunch was appreciated.

Approaching and putting and driving competitions took place after a business meeting and were followed with afternoon tea and the presentation of prizes. The awards included the trophies and prizes for the year, prizes for the day and for the costumes.

Captain Mrs. Ian MacGillivray and vice-captain Mrs. Fraser Dunfield were given votes of thanks for arranging the day's program and for their selection of prizes. They in turn congratulated each winner as they handed out the awards.

Club championship winner is Miss Barbara Siddall. Mrs. Howard Woodcox is the runner-up and also runner-up for the club trophy which was won by Mrs. Dick Miller. Mrs. Miller was also silver division ringer with a 72 for the year.

The spring trophy went to Mrs. MacGillivray who also won prizes on silver division points and lowering her handicap. The consolation club trophy was won by Mrs. Dunfield.

Bronze division year prizes for reducing handicap went to Mrs. Doug Chamberlain and for points went to Mrs. J. F. Reed, the club president. Mrs. Dunfield won the first ringer score prize and Mrs. Ed Riley the second.

Day prizes for the 18-hole players were awarded like this: Silver Division—first low gross, Mrs. V. A. Selkirk; first low net, Mrs. MacGillivray; hidden holes, Mrs. Woodcox; aggregate driver, Mrs. Miller; longest drive, Mrs. Doug Anderson; approaching and putting, Mrs. Selkirk.

Bronze Division — aggregate drives, Mrs. Riley; longest drive, Mrs. Jack Condon; hidden holes, Mrs. Chamberlain; first low gross, Mrs. Dunfield; second low gross, Mrs. Condon; first low net, Mrs. A. Beggs; second low net, Mrs. Adam Sands; hidden holes, Mrs. Wm. Nash; approaching and putting, Mrs. Beggs.

A special gross prize for the day was given Mrs. Gordon Hill. Mrs. Reed won a gift for the most putts on the second hole and Mrs. Sands for low score on that hole. Special prizes for a hidden hole went to Mrs. Riley of the bsonze, and Mrs. MacGillivray and Mrs. Dunfield of the silver were tied. Mrs. Woodcox received the silver division prize for second approaching and putting.

Best costumed 18-hole player was Mrs. Dick Miller, by an unanimous decision. She came in dress suit and top hat but later changed to comic bathing attire. Mrs. John Bolton was judged the best dressed of the nine-hole players.

NINE-HOLE SECTION

Trophies and prizes to the nine-hole players were presented by their captain Mrs. Harry Hamley.

The club trophy went to Mrs. Clare McDougall and the runner-up was Mrs. Norris Williamson who was winner of the spring trophy. Point prize and ringer went to Mrs. J. Gattfield who also won a prize for reducing her handicap. Second ringer was tied by Mrs. Hamley and Mrs. McDougall.

Two consolation draw prizes were won by Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Gatfield. A guest prize went to Mrs. C. G. Shaw of Omemee.

Widow 65 Years Woman Marks 100th Year

MONTREAL (CP)—Mrs. Agnes Sanctuary of suburban Hampstead is celebrating her 100th anniversary, but you would take her for a much younger woman.

A fine looking woman, with snowy-white hair, Mrs. Sanctuary is confined to her chair, but she's lively and interested in the world and its affairs.

A widow since she was 35, she had four children, three of whom are living.

She looks at the rising generation with a good-natured eye. "Any words of advice for them?" she said, repeating a question. "I should say not. They wouldn't listen anyway. Let them find out the hard way."

Mrs. MacGillivray Named Golfers' Chairman

Officers for the 1953 season of the ladies' section at the Kawartha Golf Club were elected on the closing field day Thursday, following the reading of reports by this year's officers. Retiring chairman Mrs. J. F. Reed was presiding.

ANSWER: Now you know I love alking about my 2 under 20! ometimes I wish I didn't spill ver so much. How can you be o restrained?

ANDWICH FILLINGS

(I know you do not mean you want sandwich filling to can, but have such a good one that I will ive it. You can reduce it to one- hird and cook it in top of double oiler for 1 hour stirring occasion- lly and keep it in covered jar in efrigerator for 1 week.)

LIVER PASTE (If canned pres- sure cooker essential)

Three lbs. liver (pork or beef will do), 1½ lbs. fat fresh pork, tablespoons salt, 1 teaspoon pep- per, ½ teaspoon (or less) ground loves, 1 medium-sized onion hopped, 3 eggs, ½ cup fine dry readcrumbs, ½ cup water. Boil cups water and drop into it the roughly sliced liver and let sim- mer 10 minutes to "set" the blood. Drain reserving the liquid, cool enough to handle and put through fine knife of grinder (⅛ inch holes) with the fat fresh pork—put through grinder twice—for it must be smooth. Add the season- ings. Beat the eggs and combine with the breadcrumbs and ½ to ¾ cup of the reserved boiling liquor —this is the ½ cup required. Stir until perfectly smooth over very low heat. Filling temperature should be 140 deg. Fahr. Pack in No. 2 plain cans or ½ pint sterile jars, leaving 5-16 inch headspace. (This terminology is well known to those who have seaming ma- chine for closing tin cans and for pressure cooking them). Process 90 minutes at 250 lbs. pressure. Cool 35 minutes in running cold water. See remarks ahead of re- cipe for those who want to make this but do not want to can it.

EGG SANDWICH FILLINGS

(1) Chopped hard-cooked eggs mixed with chopped "broken" olives and French dressing (brok- en olives are an economical buy for you get a 1 lb. jar for 29 cents). (2) Scramble eggs with a little chopped tomato and grated onion and quite a bit of salt and pepper.

CHEESE SANDWICH FILLINGS

(1) Grated or process cheese mixed with chopped dates and peanuts, lemon juice and mayon- naise on lettuce. (2) Combine 2 cups grated cheese with 1 table- spoon butter, 1 teaspoon each mustard and salt, shake of cayenne, 2 beaten eggs, ½ cup milk and dash of pepper. Stir over boiling water until thick and smooth. Remove from heat, add 4 chopped canned pimientoes. Keep this covered and cold.

FISH SANDWICH FILLINGS

(1) Tuna or salmon with diced celery, chopped pimiento, chop- ped ripe or green olives (see com- ment above re broken olives), grated onion, salt, pepper, may- onnaise. (2) Shrimp, chopped cel- ery and chili sauce.

Slice raw carrots, paper thin, cover with ice. They curl.

Lamb Stew

once. Drain a minute on paper towel and serve immediately.

DUMPLINGS

Two cups flour are sifted with 5 teaspoons baking powder, and 1 teaspoon salt. Make a hole in centre of this, pour in 1 cup milk less 1 tablespoon and stir quickly with a knife until flour is just barely all wet. Immediately drop by dessertspoonfuls onto boiling stew—12 minutes before stew is to be served. Cover at once. Sim- mer gently, without removing lid, for 12 minutes.

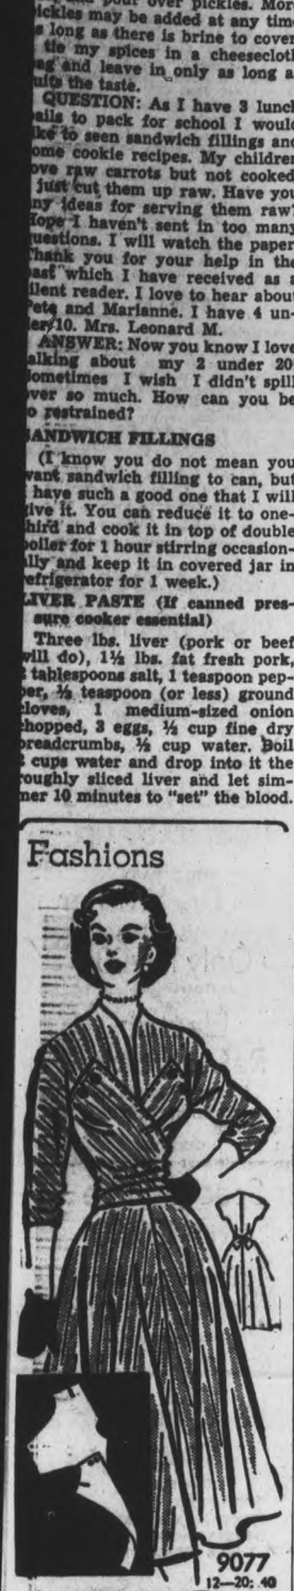
You will notice no shortening is called for. If boiled dumplings contain shortening they are very apt to be heavy. However steamed dumplings are good and can con- tain shortening.

POTATO DUMPLINGS

This is for the cooks who will take a flier. It looks very strange, pee-kool-yar in fact,—but take it from one who tried—it is a honey. In a bowl cream 1 tablespoon shortening or margarine with 1 teaspoon salt and shake of nut- meg. To this add 4 beaten egg yolks and beat again. Add 2½ cups hot mashed potato and beat well. Add 1 cup fine cracker crumbs and ½ cup sifted flour and beat until your arm is tired, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of 4 eggs. Drop onto boil- ing stew from large teaspoon. Cook 10 minutes without remov- ing lid. Instead of nutmeg you may use ½ teaspoon marjoram, which is what a famous Ottawa hostess does. Try this on the family first, then spring it on your impressionable friends.

VARIATIONS OF LAMB STEW

(1) Use rice instead of potato. (2) Add a little curry powder. (3) Let green pepper be one of vegetables—cut in rings. (4) Two tablespoons vinegar, 2 tablespoons water, 1 bay leaf, 1 clove, 6 pep- percorns overnight. This marin- ade may be added to stew if desired.



What's Right?

Someone mentions a personal problem to you—but does not ask for your advice.

WRONG: Say with decision, "If I were you I would do such and such."

RIGHT: Don't offer unasked for advice. A person can need to talk about a problem without actually wanting advice on how to handle it.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Plan Hot Food Dishes In Cooler Weather

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Cold days call for hot food.

Home economists have prepared recipes for several dishes dedicated to the cooler days that are ap- proaching.

THIS YARN-DYED dull satin dress is in night star blue with a full skirt. The half-moon neckline of this Canadian-made dress is worked into the collar and sleeves in one piece and has two rhinestone pins at the bodice. There are two pockets in the skirt and a contour belt at the waistline.

Red and green casserole is one of these. Use three medium green tomatoes, three medium red toma- toes, one large onion (sliced), two tablespoons fat, two teaspoons sugar, one-half cup dry bread crumbs, one tablespoon butter, salt and pepper.

Peel and slice tomatoes. Saute onion in hot fat until lightly browned (about five minutes). Ar- range half the red and green to- matoes, onions and bread crumbs in layers in a greased six-cup cas- serole, sprinkling tomatoes with sugar, salt and pepper. Repeat arrangement with remaining half of ingredients. Dot with butter. Bake in moderate oven (350 de- grees fahrenheit) until vegetables are tender. Yield: Four to six servings.

FIXING CUCUMBERS

Cucumbers can be fried, boiled or scalloped.

Stuffed cucumbers: Six cucum- bers (about six inches long) two cups sausage meat (one pound); two-thirds cup finely chopped cel- ery leaves; one-third cup chopped onion; 1½ teaspoons salt; one tea- spoon sage; two cups soft stale bread crumbs.

Cut cucumbers in two length- wise, remove seeds and soft por- tion with a spoon. Cook cucumbers in boiling salted water for 10 min- utes. Drain well. Brown sausage meat in a hot frying-pan. Add sea- sonings and crumbs and mix well together. Pile stuffing in cucumber shells. Place in a greased baking dish and bake in a hot oven for 35 minutes, until cucumbers are tender. Yield: Six servings.

PEACH PARADE

Most persons are eating many fresh peaches these days, but in a few more weeks they will be yearning for the juicy delight.

Here is a recipe for peach frit- ters which may help housewives put the last peaches of the sum- mer in new dress.

Peel peaches, remove pits and cut in halves. Sprinkle with a little brown sugar then dip into a sweetened regular fritter batter.

Fry a few at a time until deli- cately browned (three to five min- utes) in deep hot fat (350 degrees fahrenheit). Remove them and drain on crumpled ungreased pa- per. Serve hot.

Peach souffle is made by arrang- ing peach wedges on the bottom of a baking-dish. Pour in a souffle mixture.

And most persons never tire of peach short-cake, peach whip and turnovers.

A final yummy thought: How about a peach chiffon pie?-

Toronto Has Weather Edge Over Winnipeg

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto has an edge over Winnipeg on "football weather" for Grey Cup Day since the Ontario city was awarded the Dominion Final in 1941 as an annual fixture by the Canadian Rugby Union.

But the fans—and players—have had some rugged afternoons at Varsity Stadium in the period, particularly in 1945, 1949 and again in 1950. The weather in Winnipeg the same afternoons was ideal for football, although cold.

That's the sum-up today as a report from Winnipeg says that its new stadium, which can accommodate up to 30,000 fans by addition of portable bleachers, may be in the running to stage the last-Saturday-in-November classic. It will be ready for football Aug. 1, 1953.

Ironically, Winnipeg teams have been in two of the "off-color" finals. In 1945 the Blue Bombers were beaten 35-0 on a sticky, snow-sheathed Varsity Stadium Field. In 1950, playing conditions were the worst in the history of the East-West clash—a morass of mud and water.

In 1949, the field was a treacherous patchwork of ice-coated strips and sun-melted blotches of mud. The maximum - mimumum temperatures that day were: Toronto 24-4 and Winnipeg 28-19.8.

Here are the comparable maximum-minimum temperatures in the two cities on Grey cup day since 1940:

TWO OF THE BEST PASS RECEIVERS in the Big Four grid circuit will be showing their stuff at Montreal's Delorimier Downs Sunday, when Alouettes and Toronto Argos clash. He is rated Knobby Wirkowski's favorite pass snatcher.

Imports Get Last Chance At Weekend

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Don't be too surprised if a flock of Americans roaming the evergreen big-time Canadian football pastures steal the headlines this weekend. It's the season's last chance for many and in this business it's dog-eat-dog in order to make a living.

The clubs must trim their import lists to eight by Oct. 1 and the week-end games are the last scheduled before the deadline. Keep an eye out for the Americans, particularly those whose jobs aren't too secure, because football is their bread and butter.

The Western Canada conference and the Big Four are the only two leagues concerned with top-heavy lists of imports. The senior Ontario Rugby Football Union and the Intercollegiate group depend mainly on home-brews to carry the ball for them.

TOUGH OUT WEST

The western conference has the toughest schedule, another of those Saturday - Monday doubleheaders with Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Saskatchewan Roughriders getting the breaks by home games.

The big game is scheduled for Winnipeg Saturday between the league-leading Bombers and the second-place Edmonton Eskimos. On Monday, the Bombers meet Calgary Stampeders and Bomber fans are confident that Indian Jack Jacobs and company can throttle the Stamps.

Saskatchewan Roughriders, still on the prowl for Americans to bolster their flagging chances at a play-off spot, meet the Stamps Saturday and the Eskimos Monday. A double loss for the Roughriders, last year's Grey Cup finalists, will just about put them out of the running for the western title this season.

The second-place Tiger-Cats and third-place Ottawa Rough Riders clash at Hamilton Saturday in what shapes us as the Big Four attraction of the weekend. Both clubs will introduce newly-acquired Americans in last-minute efforts to settle on the eight they'll keep.

ALS WILL TRY

The undefeated Toronto Argonauts go to Montreal for a Sunday game with the winless Alouettes who have shown plenty of improvement since they were walloped 43-0 by the Toronto club in their first meeting this year. Argonauts, on their record of three victories and a tie, are favored to hand the Als their fifth straight loss.

The weekend schedule is rounded out with two O.R.F.U. games, an exhibition Intercollegiate fixture and three other exhibitions.

Brantford Redskins and Windsor, both without a victory in the O.R.F.U., clash at Brantford Saturday night. The league-leading Sarnia Imperials, who whipped Toronto Balmy Beach 46-0 in their first meeting at Sarnia this year, tangle at Toronto Sunday.

McMaster Marauders, trying to catch a berth in Senior Intercollegiate ranks, meet Varsity Blues at Toronto.

Other Saturday games will see Sarnia Imperials at University of Western Ontario; Ontario Agricultural College at Kingston and Loyola at McGill.

Irvin Steps Up Practice Session

MONTREAL (CP)—Coach Dick Irvin today stepped up the pace in practice sessions of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

Irvin had his regulars flying in preparation for their exhibition game against Syracuse Warriors of the American Hockey League Saturday night.

The Montreal coach said he plans to use his entire team of last season in the tilt and his most promising rookies will play with Montreal Royals of the Quebec Senior Hockey League against Cincinnati Sunday night.

All of last year's regulars with the exception of right-winger Floyd Curry and defencemen Butch Bouchard and Doug Harvey have signed contracts for this year. The three are expected to come to terms today.

3-Man Jumping Team To Represent Canada

TORONTO (CP)—A three-man jumping team will represent Canada in International competition this year at three major horse shows.

Its membership was announced yesterday by J. Lance Rumble president of the Canadian Horse Shows Association.

The team, R. W. Ballard, Lt.-Col. Charles Baker and James Elder, will ride first at the Pennsylvania National Horse Show at Harrisburg Oct. 25, then at the National Horse Show in New York and at the Royal Winter Fair here. Ballard and Baker rode last year but Elder replaces Tom Gayford.

Next year an advisory committee will plan a series of elimination contests to choose the 1953 team. This arrangement arose from criticism over the way the 1952 team was chosen.

Yesterday's Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Batting: Allie Reynolds, Yankees—His ninth-inning single scored Irv Noren with the run that defeated the Red Sox 3-2.

Pitching: Hal Newhouser, Tigers—Pitched his 200th major-league victory as he scattered six hits for a 3-2 victory over the Browns.

Bob Carley Wins Lawyers' Tourney

Bob Carley won the Edward Armour Peck memorial trophy with a low net of 36 at the fourth annual lawyers' golf tournament Thursday afternoon at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club.

About 10 local lawyers took part in the nine hole tournament in which Mr. Carley also won the low gross with a score of 51.

A colorful sweater worn by Frank Foster won him the prize for the best-dressed golfer.

W. C. Grant reported score of 65 for seven holes and was awarded the prize for the most honest golfer in the tournament.

A prize offered for the golfer having the lowest score at a "sealed hole", selected before the tournament was won by John Corkery Jr.

Judge John deNavarre Kennedy attended the banquet in the evening and presented the prizes.

L. Thackeray Leads

Lola Thackeray rolled ladies' high single of 322 as Winnie McCarrell hit top trio of 661 in the Mercantile Bowling League this week. Harold Cawker was best for men with a 286 single and 703 total. High pinnage for teams was 2972 by Braund's No. 1 squad.

Results of the night's play saw Braund's No. 1 beat Austin's 4-0 as 3-1 victories were taken by Utilities over Neill's, Nichols against A & P No. 2 team, Prudential over Crowe's, and by the A & P No. 1 crew over East City.

British Miners Make Top Baseball Team

AYLESHAM, England (CP)—A group of English miners, tutored in baseball by a French-Canadian war veteran, swept aside all opposition in their first season

Snowdown Magpies, representing the nearby colliery of the same name, won all their league matches to take the championship of their division of the South-east League, and then went on to win a charity cup from the champions of the senior division.

"An outstanding achievement, considering the majority of the players didn't know a thing about baseball a year ago," says Romeo Vincent, formerly of Granby, Que.

Vincent served in Britain during the war and came back in 1948 because his English wife, Lucille, was homesick. Last year he got the idea of organizing a team in the colliery, where he works as a diesel fitter.

The miners were enthusiastic. Practising between shifts, they quickly picked up the fundamentals. They lost their first game but since then they haven't looked back. The game now is so popular that a coal board publication says: "Baseball has replaced Kent's almost traditional cricket in the affections of many of the miners."

The teams wear regulation uniforms and some even have outfits for the bat boys. There are two United States airmen on the Snowdown line-up.

Two Cars Collide Headon Five People In Hospital

Stolen $52,000 In Car; Women Unaware

NORTH BAY (CP)—Dr. W. S. Moore of Palm Beach, Fla., has been charged with the theft of an old suitcase containing $74,000 from lumberman Shirley Clapperton of Port Loring, 26 miles southwest of here. The charge was read Wednesday to Dr. Moore by Justice of the Peace C. Taylor in a North Bay hospital where the doctor is a patient suffering from a heart attack. Dr. Moore was picked up by police at Fort Erie's Peace Bridge after a hold order was sent out Wednesday. He was driving south with his wife, Mrs. Clapperton and the Clapperton's 12-year-old son, Peter. Police said a search of the trunk compartment revealed about $52,000.

Police said the doctor is charged with stealing a suitcase containing the money from a cache somewhere on the Clapperton property. Following his arrest police recovered another $8,000.

WELL-KNOWN VISITOR

Dr. Moore was a well-known visitor in the area where he had been coming every summer for 20 years and knew the Clappertons well.

He is scheduled to appear in Burks Falls police court October 2.

"I don't believe my wife or Mrs. Moore even dreamed the money was in the car," Clapperton said Friday night. "I'm astounded that any one knew I had the money in the first place". His voice seemed tired and bewildered.

Clapperton said he had arranged for his 12-year-old son, Peter, to attend a boarding school in Florida because of a bronchial condition from which he suffers. His wife was to accompany Mrs. Moore on the southern trip and help with the driving.

"Dr. Moore stayed behind," Clapperton said. "He was supposed to go to a clinic about his heart condition. Then he was to go by air to Florida and meet the women there."

Clapperton said he discovered that the money was missing soon after the women departed. He called provincial police, who arrested Dr. Moore and ordered that the Moore car be stopped at the border.

"I believe the women are quite innocent," Clapperton said. "In fact, they have continued on to Florida in order that Peter can get to school."

Mosher, Cotterill Cross Swords At C.C.L. Divided

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's largest labor convention in history has ended on a sour note that may sabotage a major campaign to build up new membership.

Hard feelings among some of the key personalities in the Canadian Congress of Labor became evident yesterday as the week-long 930-delegate convention ended.

Murray Cotterill, president of the Toronto and Lakeshore Labor Council and publicity spokesman for Canada's powerful steel union, crossed verbal swords with A. R. Mosher, re-elected president of the 350,000-member labor body, and with Donald MacDonald, the man who sparked a major upset by retaking the secretary-treasureship for a second term.

HOT DEBATE

MacDonald returned the fire with a vigor that may have resulted from the campaign Cotterill was waging for MacDonald's election opponent, William Mahoney, assistant to the steel union boss, Charles Millard.

The verbal sword-fencing boiled up out of the Mahoney defeat after the strong men on the C.C.L.—the big union bosses of steel, auto and packinghouse—had openly backed the 35-year-old Mahoney for

Gold Robbery Baffles Police

TORONTO (CP) — Police working on Canada's biggest gold robbery have run into a stone wall.

Three days of investigation have failed to uncover any clues into the robbery of six boxes of gold bullion, valued at $215,000, from the Trans-Canada Air Lines cargo shed at Malton Airport Wednesday.

Police haven't been able to trace the 1,000 pounds of gold since a Brinks, Inc., truck delivered it to the cargo shed at the big air depot, 18 miles northwest of the city.

Conjecture that the missing gold may have been taken across the border for sale on the United States black market still remained a top theory. But at the same time, a senior foreign exchange expert indicated that the U. S. would be one of the most unlikely countries for black market gold trading.

He said it was more likely that the gold would be shipped to The Netherlands, Tangiers, Hong Kong or Syria where no import licence is required.

President Resigns In Costa Rica Crisis

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (Reuters) President Otilio Ulate of Costa Rica resigned last night after a 24-hour government crisis arising from the resignation of five military and police chiefs.

He has been succeeded by Alberto Oreamuno Flores, one of the two vice-presidents, and a strong supporter of Ulate.

The resignation of the military and police chiefs followed congressional orders for an investigation of charges of aggression by the police.

Warsaw Man Badly Hurt In Smash-up

View Partly Blocked At East City Corner Drivers Indicate

A headon smash between two cars at Armour Rd. and McFarlane St., shortly before 9:30 p.m. Friday, caused five people to be taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Most seriously injured is 27-year-old Ivan Eadie of Warsaw. He was a front-seat passenger in a northbound car and the impact with an oncoming car threw him forward and his head went through the windshield.

Still unconscious today, he is suffering from severe concussion, a possible fractured skull, and deep cuts on his forehead and face. Further x-rays are being taken to determine the full extent of his injuries.

Eadie is a carpenter, employed with General Contractor Ross Greenly. He is married and has three children.

Eadie was riding in a car driven by Ralph F. Little, 30, of Warsaw. A third Warsaw man, 27-year-old George Payne, was in the back seat.

The trio had just left the home of Earl Bell of 218 Carlisle St.

Economy Move Stevenson Plan

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Governor Adlai E. Stevenson invades Kentucky today after rounding out an Indiana campaign with a promise of "bare-bone economy" in government.

The Democratic presidential nominee also teed off on:

Republican Senator William E. Jenner of Indiana as "a man who slanders one of our fgreatest patriots and deprecates in ugly words the gallantry and sacrifice of Korea and the fight for freedom and peace." Jenner has called Gen. George C. Marshall a "front man for traitors."

CAN'T WORK MIRACLES

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as an inexperienced hand who can't "move in and work miracles with a meat axe — or with mirrors" to cut federal spending.

LIKE AN EXPLOSION—That was the way a woman described the two-car collision Friday night on Armour Rd. Five people—two or them from Peterborough and three from Warsaw village—were injured. Ivan Eadie, 27-year-old Warsaw carpenter, put his head through the windshield when thrown forward from the front passenger's seat. He has severe concussion and a possible fractured skull. His two companions in the car being inspected by P.C. Louis Rodreque (above photo) were hospitalized. So were the two occupants of the other car—Assistant Fire Chief Virgil Carr and his companion, Marie Woodhouse of McGill St.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

No On-The-Spot Investigation Of Germ Charges

LONDON (Reuters) —A British professor who was a member of a Communist-picked "international commission" which reiterated old Red charges the United Nation waged germ warfare in Korea admitted yesterday that no member of the group made on-the-spot investigations.

Professor Joseph Needham, a biologist on the staff of Cambridge University, said the commission's 300,000-word report published recently in Peiping was based on what the Chinese had told its members.

In a long and searching examination by reporters, he confessed that:

1. Though alleged germ raids were made while the commission was in China, it was refused permission to investigate.

2. The commission did not investigate a single one of the many persons said to be lying ill through germ raid infection.

3. The commission did no laboratory work on any insect said to have been dropped by the U.S.

Saw Russ Troops In Korea—Deserter

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—A captured North Korean security officer told in an interview today of seeing Russian troops at an airfield south of the Yalu River in North Korea. Lieut. Lee Dong Yup said he saw about 20 Russians dressed in Chinese Communist uniforms at Sinuiji airfield in June, 1951. He said he understood they installed anti-aircraft guns at the Red airfield, but that he did not know whether they remained to fire them. The lieutenant was Communist security officer at the Panmunjom armistice talks until he deserted Sept. 5, 1952, and surrendered.

He related also that he had heard of a Soviet pilot flying Communist jets in June, 1951, and of two last spring.

ANSWERED QUESTIONS

The 29-year-old North Korean spoke to Allied correspondents through an interpreter at U. S. Eighth Army headquarters. He calmly answered questions during a 90-minute session.

He said he had heard that Russian advisers are attached to the North Korean army officers school and were sent to various government ministries in North Korea after the outbreak of the war.

Eighth Army officers did not say whether they believed the officer.

The Communists have maintained that only the Chinese people's "volunteers" and North Korean troops are fighting in Korea except for a small Hungarian medical unit.

Gale Batters French Coast

LA ROCHELLE, France (Reuters)—A gale with winds of 80 miles an hour swept across the Atlantic coast of France overnight, wrecking property, sinking boats and snarling communications.

A house was blown down in this coastal city but inhabitants managed to escape in time.

An estimated 10 per cent of the coastal fishing fleet was sunk and another 60 per cent washed ashore.

Uprooted telephone poles and trees blocked rail and road traffic for several hours at various points.

Ships were unable to enter or leave the Gironde estuary at Bordeaux. Firemen controlled fires there caused by broken high tension cables.

Spreading inland, the gale ripped a trail across central France. Worst hit point was the industrial fair ground at Clermont Ferrand. It looked as if it had been hit by an earthquake today.

Arrest Wealthy Track Owner

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Justice Department yesterday announced the arrest of William G. Lias, millionaire owner of the Wheeling Downs Race Track in West Virginia, for deportation.

The department said Lias was picked up at Wheeling on a warrant charging that he was not in possession of a passport when he last entered the United States at San Francisco in September, 1935. It said he is a native of Greece.

Lias 52, and weighing some 400 pounds, has had a spectacular income tax fight with the government during the last several years.

Hearings now are pending on the government's contention that he still owes some $2,442,944 in taxes.

Throughout his career, as a race track operator and in other enterprises, he has generally been regarded as a U.S. citizen. The department said, however, that he came to the U.S. from Greece Aug. 29, 1909—when he was nine years old. The department contends he never was naturalized.

Turn Clocks Back

To return clocks to standard time, set them back one hour before retiring tonight. For example, if you go to bed at 11 p.m., set your clocks to 10 p.m.

Needs Long Rest, But Sticks To Lions

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Marvin Mitchell listened quietly yesterday while a physician advised him to avoid all excitement and take a long rest in bed.

Mitchell, 32, had just collapsed of a heart attack.

But he refused the doctor's advice, saying he had to get back to his job.

He left hospital attendants agape as he rode away in a taxicab explaining he's a lion-handler for Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey Circus.

Two Of Boyd Gang Found Guilty Of Bank Robbery

TORONTO (CP) — Two members of the Boyd gang—Joseph Wilfred Jackson and Allister Gibson—were found guilty yesterday of the $24,696 armed robbery of a west-end Toronto branch of the Bank of Montreal. Norman Boyd was acquitted on a charge of receiving the stolen money, but he he was found guilty of harboring his brother Edwin Alonzo Boyd, who police describe as the master-mind of the gang. Edwin Boyd pleaded guilty at the start of the trial last Monday to charges of the armed robbery of the bank, breaking jail, escaping custody and automobile theft.

Judge Robert Forsyth deferred sentencing the four until the remaining 14 charges against Edwin Boyd and others have been dealt with at the present sessions.

TO GO ON TRIAL

Edwin and Norman Boyd, William Russel Jackson will go on trial monday on charges that, while armed, they robbed the Leaside branch of the Royal Bank of Canada of $46,207, last Nov. 30. The trial of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lesso and Mary Jackson, charged with harboring, will follow next week.

SUCHAN TOO

Police have charged two others—Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson, no kin to William—with also robbing the Leaside bank, but they will not appear at the Monday hearing. They now are on trial for the murder of a Toronto detective in another court.

Judge Forsyth ordered restitution of $24,068 recovered by police at the Boyd's hideout where they were captured last March.

An R.C.M.P. ballistics expert takes the witness stand today against Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson, charged with the fatal shooting of a Toronto detective.

Crown Attorney W. C. Gibson, in his opening address to the jury when the trial began Monday, said he would show that the bullet taken from the body of Det.-Sgt. Eddie Tong was fired by a Smith and Wesson .45-calibre revolver kicked from Suchan's hand at the time of his capture in Montreal last spring.

Dr. E. C. Fielden, pathologist who examined Tong's body, said Tong died as the result of gunshot wounds and a resulting pulmonary embolism.

Belgian Infantry Beats Back Reds

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — U.S. and Belgian infantrymen today beat off 300 Chinese Reds in a fierce seven-hour battle for a hill on the Korean western front.

The Reds broke off the fight at dawn.

Allied patrols reported Chinese dead littered the battle area.

The air force announced eight Russian-built MiG jets were shot down during September by Allied pilots. The previous monthly high of 44 was set last April.

Duchess Of Kent On Way To Singapore

LONDON (AP) — The 46-year-old Duchess of Kent, aunt of Queen Elizabeth and leader of fashion for Britain's aristocracy, left by plane today for a tour of Singapore and the Far East.

She was accompanied by her 16-year-old son, the Duke of Kent whose father was the youngest brother of the late King.

Ramp Collapses Eisenhower Falls, Uninjured

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower wound up with a roaring salute from Dixie and a near mishap here last night in a campaign trip his managers pronounced "perfect."

The Republican presidential nominee left for his New York headquarters with the cheers of Virginians ringing in his ears.

Twenty thousand of them, massed on the Virginia Statehouse lawn in Richmond, howled their approval when he asserted that "nobody owns you," referring to the southern tradition of voting for Democrat candidates.

After he had completed his speech and was walking down a wooden ramp, Eisenhower was caught in the crush of a crowd surging toward him. Suddenly the ramp cracked and crashed to the Capitol steps a few feet below.

TOSSED TO KNEES

The republican nominee was tossed forward on his knees. Straightening up and brushing off his suit, Eisenhower grinned and said he was not hurt. A score of persons went down with the ramp, but none was reported more than scratched.

Eisenhower's Richmond address climaxed a day of whistle-stop appearances at Charlotte and Winston-Salem, N.C., and Roanoke, Lynchburg and Petersburg, Va.

Eisenhower's bid for North Carolina's and Virginia's votes was pitched primarily on the theme that he can "clean out the mess in Washington," whereas no Democrat could do much about it.

Export Prices Show Slump

OTTAWA (CP).—A slump in export prices drove down the value of Canada's domestic exports during August for the second straight month, the Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

Export prices, slipping since November of last year, have been consistently below those of corresponding months of 1951 since May, 1952.

However, the slump — which forced down the value of exports in July and August despite higher volume—was not great enough to bring a similar decline over the eight-month period since the first of the year.

During August, the value of exports dropped to $345,100,000 from $349,800,000 during August, 1951, and $371,000,000 during July, 1952. The July figure was down from $374,500,000 a year ago.

Substantial increases during the first six months pushed the eight-month value to $2,805,800,000 from $2,464,500,000 in a similar period last year.

Rockingham Tells Of Fighting In Korea

Former Commander of 25th Brigade To Attend Imperial Defence College in Britain

"The Communist invasion of South Korea was possibly a test to see if the United Nations were willing to resist aggression with force," Brig. J. M. Rockingham, former commander of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade in Korea, said Friday night.

He added that the Communists got their answer quickly.

Brigadier Rockingham who has been the Director General of Military Training was in Peterborough to address the United Services Institute. More than 200 were guests at his address that was made in private to members of the Institute. Today it was announced he is leaving soon to attend the Imperial Defence College in Britain.

In a short interview with the Examiner he said that the Canadian brigade in Korea is adequately re-inforced and adequately equipped.

NOT INTERESTED

He had only one criticism: "The Canadian public are not as much interested in the Korean campaign as is warranted. From this country perhaps it looks as though the Red Army and the Korean War are a long way away, but the men over there know the danger."

A husky six-footer with erect, military bearing, Brigadier Rockingham looks every inch the professional soldier. When he strode into the foyer of the Empress Hotel, unescorted, he was immediately the centre of attention. He was carrying the gnarled mahogany stick presented to him by all ranks of the 25th when he left the war zone. A silver plate attached to the stick—the inscription by a Japanese craftsman—tells of the presentation.

"My guess is only as good as the next man's," he said when discussing the peace talks at Panmonjum, "but it's obvious that the Reds have no real desire to sign a peace....They want to drag the talks out as long as they can."

Asked what he thought was the Communist strategy in these marathon discussions, he said: "Well as long as the United Nations forces are tied up in a Korean stalemate they aren't available elsewhere."

Brigadier Rockingham said he was proud of the record of the Canadians in Korea. They have captured what they have been asked to capture of enemy terri-

Reverses Goldilocks Raid Bear Takes Over House, Bed

VANCOUVER (CP)—The cast of characters was the same, but the story was reversed.

Instead of Goldilocks it was baby bear who wandered down Bear Lane in suburban West Vancouver to a little brown shingled house.

Baby Bear climbed through a kitchen window in the home of Mrs. Alex B. Plummer.

His curious little eyes brightened when he found two glasses of milk and two big apples, awaiting the return from school of Brian Plummer, 7 and Gillian, 6. Then he had a peach, taking it from beside a clock on a window sill.

Just for fun he upset a waste basket, dumping the papers on a rug, and he scattered some books around.

But Baby Bears revenge wasn't complete. Like Goldilocks, he became sleepy and hunted for a bed.

Here he departed slightly from the script. He didn't climb into one of the children's beds. He hopped on the biggest—Mommy's and Daddy's.

How long did he sleep? Nobody knows. Only Susan, the 9-year-old Plummer dog, was in the house. She didn't bother Baby Bear, she was sleeping.

Finally, the little black bear decided to leave before Mrs. Plummer returned home.

He ambled down Bear Lane, and was last seen heading for the tall timbers in the hills.

And that, children, is the story of Baby Bear's revenge.

8 Weeks In Canada Woman Disillusioned

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuters) —Mrs. Patricia Hayes, who emigrated to Canada with her husband and nine-year-old daughter only eight weeks ago, arrived back here yesterday disillusioned with life in London, Ont.

She said she was disappointed by the "lack of culture, the sophistication of the teen-age schoolgirls with their lipstick, powder and paint—and the heat was unbearable."

Her husband, Kenneth, a Canadian who had lived in Britain for 15 years, has stayed on for a time in Canada, because he will be able to save more money that way to help recoup the $1,300 he spent on the short-lived emigration.

Border's Charges On U.K. Health Irk Summerskill

LONDON (CP) — Criticism of Britain's National Health Service, attributed in reports from Chicago to Lord Horder, 81-year-old former physician to King Edward VIII, now the Duke of Windsor, has brought an angry retort from Dr. Edith Summerskill, Socialist member of parliament and former Minister of National Insurance.

Lord Horder was quoted as saying that standards of medical care had been lowered under the national health scheme and to have urged Americans to avoid the blunders made in Britain.

Addressing a meeting of old-age pensioners, Dr. Summerskill said that as a doctor who had been practising for more than 25 years, and who came from a family of medical men, she challegend Lord Horder's statements.

"British people abroad should never denigrate their own country," she said.

The people themselves, she added, were the best judges of what the National Health Service meant to them and she was sure many would recall the difficulties of other days when they had to consult their purse before summoning a doctor.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Indifferent demand and hesitation on U.S. markets contributed to an easier tone in prices Friday on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Favorable harvest weather also was a factor in the declines.

Light buying attributed to American shipper interests came out in oats. Oats and barley received the usual routine shipper support. Seaboard buying was indicated in flax, but heavier hedging kept both flax and rye prices down. Prices for Class 2 wheat and I.W.A. were up one-eighth cent.

Ballot Battle Starts In Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The battle of the ballots in the Ferryland district—beginning in a recount last November and culminating in a court-ordered by-election—ended last night with the Legislature even more heavily weighted toward Premier Joseph Smallwood's Liberals.

Provincial Affairs Minister Myles Murray polled 1,812 votes against 1,447 for his only adversary, Progressive Conservative A.M. Duffy.

The victory gave the Smallwood forces 23 of the 28 seats in the Legislature. The remainder is held by the Progressive Conservatives.

The Ferryland election was held Thursday but because of this province's unique, but slow, counting system the result was not known until last night.

BY-ELECTION ORDERED

The by-election was ordered after a series of court battles resulting from the vote in the riding in the provincial election last November.

Mr. Murray and Mr. Duffy were the only contestants in that contest, also, and the Liberal won by a scant 31 votes. He lost in a recount but the Newfoundland Supreme Court later ruled some ballots had been improperly marked and ordered a by-election.

The main issue in the contest was the government's program for Newfoundland's economic development.

Under the province's counting system, ballot boxes from all polling places are collected at a central point before the actual counting begins.

Second Will Ruled Invalid

KITCHENER (CP) —Surrogate Judge E.W. Clement today declared invalid a second will of Alexander Bauman, father of ex-Mayor Vernon Bauman of Waterloo, which left the entire estate to the ex-mayor's sister.

Mrs. Helen Taylor, the sister at whose home the elder Bauman died, supported the will in court last November. The document was contested by Mrs. Taylor's two brothers and a sister—Vernon and Wilfred Bauman and Mrs. Laura Snyder.

The three contested on grounds of alleged testamentary incapacity, fraud and undue influence.

The judge's order leaves the way open for probate of a 1946 will which divided the estate equally among the four children. However, Mrs. Taylor's lawyers said today an appeal will be entered against the judgment.

and were heading north on Armour Rd. to go home to Warsaw. At McFarlane St. they met head-on with the south-bound car of Virgil Carr of 583 Gilchrist St., assistant fire chief.

RECEIVE BRUISES

Little received a deep cut on his mouth and other minor cuts and bruises. Payne was shaken up and bruised and both his knees were injured. Both were taken to hospital.

All three of the Warsaw men are being attended by Dr. J. M. O'Brien.

Carr received scrapes and cuts on his forehead and he also injured one hand and his right knee. However he was able to walk around after the accident and supervise the removal of his wrecked car. Later he also was admitted to hospital.

His passenger, Marie Woodhouse of 209 McGill St., was thrown against the windshield, shattering it. Her injuries include a deep cut on her nose and minor cuts on her head, and bruised knees and thighs.

Miss Woodhouse was taken to St. Joseph's hospital by ambulance. She and Carr are being attended by Dr. Louis Zacks.

The accident occurred at 9:20 p.m. as Carr was coming south on Armour Road on his way to the Club Aragon. He turned out to his left following another car that was passing a city bus, parked on the west side of Armour Road.

DIDN'T SEE EACH OTHER

Just previously Little had swung north on to Armour Road from Carlisle Street and neither of the two drivers saw each other in time. They crashed just north of the intersection.

The impact smashed the front end of both cars; both windshields were shattered, and damaged vehicles bounced 10 feet apart after the collision. The steering wheel of the Little car was twisted and broken from the weight of Little's body being thrown against it.

Arnold Beatty, city bus driver, said: "I didn't see the accident; I had just pulled into the side of the road to pick up a woman passenger. Then I heard a crash.. I looked around just in time to see Carr's vehicle bouncing back to the west side of Armour Road."

A nearby resident, a woman, said the sound of the impact was so loud and sharp that she thought there had been an explosion.

Sgt. Harold Mesley and Constable Louis Rodreque investigated.

Discover Body In House; Believed Murder

MONTREAL (CP)—Police started out on a cold trail today to investigate the death of a rooming house operator whose decomposed body was discovered yesterday.

Police said Theodore Werner, 50, may have died two months ago from a beating and a piece of wood found near the body may have been the murder weapon.

A partial autopsy last night revealed that Werner suffered multiple skull fractures which might have come from a beating or a fall. A complete autopsy will be made today.

STRANGE PHONE CALL

The body was found after police received a telephone call from an unidentified friend of Werner, who said: "There is a body at 1534 Shuter Street." The friend told police that the last time he had seen Werner was last July 26 and feared something was wrong when his telephone calls were unanswered.

Police said there had been no roomers in Werner's home for about two months. Letters dated Aug. 4 were found unopened in a letter box.

The body was found in a ground-floor kitchen of Werner's mid-town house and police said blood was splattered around the room.

STRANGE ODOR

Late in July, neighbors said they noticed a strange odor, but a city health investigator said "everything was all right" after making a preliminary check. The neighbors said no rooms were searched by the investigator.

Werner, separated from his wife, was described as "a large, fierce man, who spoke to no one, bothered no one and who got annoyed when children made noise."

AMAZED AT TONG

"It was amazing Tong lived as long as he did," Dr. Fielden said. Tong died March 23, 17 days after he fell wounded on a west-central street.

Montreal police officers identified Suchan as the man shot and wounded in a fashionable apartment in Cote ed Neiges road March 7, the day after Tong was shot.

The janitor and his wife of an apartment a block away from the Croydon Building where Suchan was captured testified that Leonard Jackson was the man known to them as Fred Wilson, and that he and his wife were occupants of a single room on the second floor of the building.

SHOT TOO HIGH

Det.-Sgt. Albert Dauphin, one of four officers who hid in Suchan's apartment before his capture, testified that he stepped out from a hiding place in the kitchenette and Suchan reached for a revolver, but drew it "too high." He said he put three bullets into Suchan during the gun play that followed.

Toronto detective Jack Gillespie told how Jackson, bleeding from four wounds, limped from the dingy, one-room flat where he was captured in Montreal, and said: "Take care of my wife, John. I'd never have given up if she hadn't been in here with me."

Gillespie was one of five Toronto police officers who engaged Jackson in a 30-minute gun battle March 11. He said Jackson fired the first shot and the duel lasted about half an hour with Jackson interspersing his shots with cries of "tabernacle!"

Church Observes 75th Anniversary At Westwood

WESTWOOD (ENS)—St. Michael's Anglican church, Westwood, held a banquet on Wednesday evening in the commuity hall, in commemoration of the 75th anniversary of the building of the chuch. More than one hundred people sat down to a banquet served by the members of Christ church Guild, Norwood.

The Rev. N. Noble, of Caledon East, who was a rector of St. Michael's 31 years ago and who is now retired owing to ill health, was guest speaker. Mr. Noble phrased his remarks by reminiscing of the early members of St. Michael's.

Tribute was paid to the first members of the parish and also to the continuing faithful members. At the beginning of Mr. Noble's rectorship there were not many families; the names of which could be written on a postage stamp, Birdsalls, Elmhursts, Lancasters and Thompsons. Since then many new families have become members.

William Hood was chairman of the evening's program. Greetings and congratulations were extended by Warden James Humphries, Rev. N. Cole of Westwood United church and Mr. Thomlinson of Westwood Presbyterian church, and by the present rector, the Rev. H. S. Peasgood.

Bruce Warr sang a vocal solo, with Leslie Cameron as accompanist, and also led in community singing.

At the head table were the Rev. N. Noble, the Rev. and Mrs. H. E. Peasgood, Mr. and Mrs. William Wood, Mrs. Jane Thompson, Col. and Mrs. F. E. Birdsall, Mr. Cole, Mr. Thomlinson, Warden James Humphries and Miss L. Humphries, Mrs. William Elmhurst and Alfred Reed.

Special mention was made of Mr. MacDonald and Mr. F. Watson of St. Luke's church, Peterborough, who have served as lay readers.

Letters of congratulation were read from the Rev. P. A. Rickard of Toronto, and Rev. F. J. Pitts, of Delhi, Ontario, former rectors, who were unable to be present.

tory and have held onto their positions without fail when ordered to stand fast.

"There have been comparatively few casualties, and the fact that there is only one Canadian listed as a prisoner of war is a pretty fair indication of the high state of the troops' morale."

He said that the basic lessons of warfare remain unchanged in Korea. But the men have had to undergo the experience of campaigning in unusually hilly country. Progress is by foot and the troops have had to learn to carry all their supplies and ammunition as they go forward. Transportation is primitive, and the monsoons that bring the rains, turning the land surface into a sea of mud, make the problem of supply even more difficult.

LEARNED DEFENCE

Another valuable lesson, said the brigadier, was learning how to fight a defensive campaign. The troops were less acquainted with this battle tactic than in the more colorful tactic of constant advance.

Brigadier Rockingham was chary about speculation on what Canada's future defence commitments would be; and also on how the men to fill the ranks of the armed forces would be raised.

"The voluntary system . . . our present system of recruiting, has been sufficient to meet our commitments up till now," he said. "You can't get a better soldier than a volunteer. Take the Canadians; their record in Korea speaks for itself."

Mosher, Cotterill

MacDonald's job. MacDonald defeated Mahoney 455 to 410.

The Cotterill-Mosher - MacDonald squabble started out on a minor key—the question of boosting union dues in C.C.L.-chartered unions—but it spread like wildfire across the convention floor.

The shouting, feet-stamping convention caused Mosher to reverse his decision that a proposal to have the dues raised to $2 a month from $1.50 had been turned down by a show of hands.

The upshot was that the proposal was accepted, but when Cotterill continued his attack, this time aimed at MacDonald's organizational ability and the financial structure of the C.C.L., MacDonald fired back that Cotterill was making untrue statements.

ALL NOT UNITED

Other indications that all is not united in the C.C.L. came in the MacDonald-Mahoney vote itself. Millard apparently thought he had the election sewed up for his protege, with the big international unions behind him. But a surprise revolt among the rank-and-file of some of the unions, such as steel and auto, turned the tide in MacDonald's favor.

Millard, himself, was elected to a vice-presidency, a job he had declined to accept a year ago when Pat Conroy quit the secretary-treasureship over a C.C.L. power play in which Millard was involved.

With a steel man in the C.C.L. chief executive officers' post Millard could play a strong hand in actual organization of the C.C.L. His big complaint has been that the executive was slow in turning over C.C.L.-chartered locals to angress affiliates. 8

Rita Hayworth Dropping Divorce Case

PARIS (Reuters)—Movie actress Rita Hayworth said here today she is dropping divorce proceedings against Prince Aly Khan "for the present."

Asked whether she might resume proceedings in the future, she smiled and said: "I don't know."

She and Prince Aly Khan sat side by side on a velvet-covered sofa in the salon of their home in the Paris suburb of Neuilly.

Rita and Aly were married with extravagant fanfare in 1949 on the Riviera. But the couple did not see eye to eye on many things—such as where the wife of a Moslem prince belonged, even if she was a movie star—and separated in 1951.

Rita started divorce proceedings, but things went slowly. There was extended wrangling over how much Aly would pay her, and the figure of $3,000,000 was discussed. Rita said she wanted it to make sure their daughter Yasmin would be comfortable.

RETURNING TO HOLLYWOOD

Rita said today she will remain in Europe until February and then will go back to Hollywood to make a movie. Aly would leave Paris in a month to tour Africa and India as the special representative of his father, the Aga Khan, fabulously-rich spiritual leader of millions of Moslems.

Her husband ordered drinks for photographers and said to Rita: "They want a picture of us on the balcony, like Romeo and Juliet." Then he gave her an affectionate wink.

Aly was wearing a wedding ring. His wife was not, and explained: "I just forgot to put it on today."

Repeatedly asked if they were "really reconciled," the Prince said: "I have never made a statement about this matter, and I never will."

Want Co-ordination Transport Networks

STRASBOURG, France (AP)—The European Consultative Assembly last night gave its almost unanimous endorsement to a plan for the co-ordination of Western Europe's rail, highway and canal networks.

There was no opposition on the roll call and only one abstention, that of Belgium's Henri Rolin, who criticized the project as "too vague."

The decision represented a start on the long-discussed European transportation pool, along lines of the Schuman plan steel and coal community, which the Assembly has twice examined, only to shelve it each time.

Maurice Lemaire, former director of the French national railways, sopnsored the proposal calling for a "European Transport Council" to lay down priorities on future transportation development and take the lead in fitting existing systems together.

Settle Strike At Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP) — The 17-week strike at the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company was settled early this morning after a 16-hour marathon session between representatives of the company and United Rubber Workers' Local 113.

A spokesman of the local said that the strike had been settled to union members' satisfaction.

Premiers Hold Conference On Gas Problems

TORONTO (CP)—The premiers of Ontario and Alberta in an hour-long conference yesterday discussed problems in serving Ontario with western natural gas.

In an atmosphere of restrained optimism, Premier Manning met with Ontario officials including Premier Frost, Mines Minister Kelly and provincial economist George Gathercole. Fuel Controller A. R. Crozier also sat in.

Both premiers spoke for a national fuel policy which would assure Canada's natural resources in coal, oil and natural gas being used to best advantage.

From the discussion there appeared no insuperable barriers to Alberta gas being piped into Ontario mains by 1956. The application of the Trans-Canada Pipelines Company is scheduled for hearing by the Alberta Conservation Board next April.

MUST BE CONVINCING

One of Trans-Canada's major problems is to convince the Alberta board that the pipeline will be economically feasible.

The Edmonton Journal yesterday reported that Canadian Delhi Oil Co. is likely to receive an early go-ahead to build a $250,000,000 natural gas pipeline over an all-Canadian route for Alberta as far east as Montreal.

The paper attributed the report to Edmonton oil circles. Alberta government officials had no comment.

Canadian Firms Going Bankrupt

OTTAWA (CP)—The number of Canadian firms going bankrupt has increased steadily since the end of the Second World War.

A Bureau of Statistics report discloses that in the first six months of this year there were 848 commercial failures, an increase of 17 per cent over the corresponding period of 1951.

The number of failures has increased gradually but steadily since 1945 from a low of 260 in 1944. The total is still well below the peak year following the First World War. In 1922 there were 3,925 failures with total liabilities of $63,692,219.

There were 272 failures in 1945; 278 in 1946; 545 in 1947; 813 in 1948; 1,066 in 1949; 1,303 in 1950; and 1,399 in 1951.

The 844 failures so far this year had liabilities of $14,552,000.

Most of the bankruptcies were in general stores, groceries; drink and tobacco shops; confectionery, fish and meat; boots and shoes; dry goods; clothing; furniture; jewelry and electric apparatus.

Clothing and textiles were among manufactures hardest hit.

Painting Bridge At 350 Feet Considered Child's Play

By RENE LAGACE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—The hazardous job of painting the Quebec Bridge, sometimes at a height of 350 feet above the St. Lawrence River, is considered child's play by Gedeon Douville and his 45-man crew of painters.

Douville celebrated his 60th birthday Sept. 2 by completing another season of clambering up and down the bridge's mass of steel.

E. S. Piton, supervisor of the project, says only one fatal accident has occurred in almost three decades. That was Aug. 25, 1936, when a painter fell from a scaffolding.

"SAFE JOB"

"It's the safest job I know of," said Douville.

The bridge was built at a cost of $25,000,000 for the Canadian National Railways to link Eastern Canada to the west. Its construction cost the lives of more than 100 men when the main span collapsed twice.

A cantilever model similar to that spanning the Firth of Forth in Scotland, the Quebec's centre span is the world's longest. However, Quebec Bridge is only three-fifths of a mile long, while the Forth is more than a mile long.

LIFETIME JOB

Douville has worked all his life on the bridge—as a waterboy for construction workers, a steelworker and painter. He was there when the bridge was opened Dec. 3, 1917, and when the Prince of Wales—now the Duke of Windsor—inaugurated it two years later.

His crew undergo yearly medical checkups. New men have a tougher time passing the doctors than getting used to the heights.

Average age of the crew is 25. Each man must be able to go anywhere on the structure.

"There is a big turnover of painters each year," says Piton. "It takes two seasons before a helper becomes a full-fledged painter. During the winter, work is discontinued and many of the men take jobs with other firms and never return."

Painting is done all summer and an average of 12,000 gallons are needed to give the 66,000 tons of steel a single coating. The job takes six years, with 80 per cent of the paint laid with 12 spray-guns.

Dismiss $10,000 Suit In Dog's Death

OTTAWA (CP)—A court action claiming $10,000 in damages for the death of a two-legged dog, "Lucky", was dismissed yesterday by Judge A. G. McDougall.

Margaret Jones, owner of the Pomeranian dog which had no front legs, claimed veterinarian A. L. Kassirer was negligent in letting the dog die under an anaesthetic during treatment for its teeth. Judge McDougall ruled there had been no negligence.

The animal had been publicized in Robert Ripley's "Believe it or not" series. Miss Jones, a victim of poliomyelitis, claimed the dog was a source of income.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman said yesterday there is an increasing attempt by "old isolationists" to undermine the United Nations "and to turn back in our onward march toward peace."

Naming no names, he said attacks on the U.N. have grown bolder since the death of former Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Michigan Republican who often worked closely with the administration on foreign policy.

"The old isolationists have grown bolder," Truman said in a talk to the National Citizens Committee for United Nations Day.

"They are urging us to abandon our allies, to pull out of Europe and out to Korea, to slash our mutual security program and to turn back in our onward march toward peace."

He said the American people must withstand "the efforts of those who would play politics with security of the welfare of our nation and the freedom of our allies."

British Annoyed Cars Left Out

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian motor car manufacturers were criticized yesterday by Sir William Welsh, North American representative of the British Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders, for not admitting British cars to the two big winter automobile shows.

The shows, to be held in Toronto and Montreal next February, are sponsored by National Automotive Shows, Inc., an organization of North American automobile manufacturers.

Sir William said he was concerned "about this indication of isolationism in the Canadian automotive field."

James L. Cooke, president of James L. Cooke Ltd., largest British car distributors in Canada, said: "I am disgusted that the Canadian automobile companies are deliberately black-balling British products."

Scandinavian Planes Cross Top Of World

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Scandinavian Airlines System last night announced plans for the first California-to-Europe air service over the top of the world via Thule air base.

The U.S., Danish and Canadian governments have granted approval for exploratory fights over the shortcut polar route, S.A.S. officials said at a press conference here. The first two such flights are scheduled for November.

Regular passenger service is expected to begin about April 1. The plan calls for three flights a week from Los Angeles to Copenhagen, with stops at San Francisco, Edmonton and Thule, Greenland.

Preparedness Plans

STOCKHOLM (CP)—Evacuation plans for about 3,000,000 persons in more than 100 cities and towns have been worked out in Sweden. Under these civil defence blueprints, priority is given to children, old persons, invalids and their nurses.

9-Year-Old Drives Truck

MONTREAL (CP) — A nine-year-old youngster had a romp early yesterday in a four-ton brewery truck loaded with beer before he was caught. The boy stepped into the truck while the driver mas making a delivery and drove it three blocks through downtown traffic. Truck-driver Gerald Beaulieu told police: "He stopped at all the stop signs, too."

THE SOLDIER TAKES A BRIDE (TWICE)—Among the very few U.S. servicemen to marry in Korea is Ariman 2/C William Wheat, pictured above, with his bride, the former Lee Kwong Ja. They met in Taegu in May, 1951. Wheat proposed two months later and, after winding through the miles of military and civil red tape, they were married Christmas Day. They had two ceremonies—a Korean one at Yong-Dong-Po and a civil one at Seoul. They're pictured at left in their home in Newark, N.J., and at right in the Korean costumes they wore for their wedding.

U.S. Navy Has New Radiation Device

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The United States navy yesterday unveiled a powerful hit-and-run radiation device and said it would help speed research towards finding better defences against atomic-bomb rays.

It's a mechanical, remote-control robot in which a relatively-cheap substitute for radium can be shot through pneumatic tubes, like a cash carrier in a department store. These "cartridges" of radioactive material can bring powerful atomic rays to bear uniform on the entire body of a test animal for any desired length of time—and then be automatically withdrawn.

The device employs a quantity of radioactive cobalt costing about $6,000—but having the ray-emitting power of approximately $24,000,000 worth of radium, or more than half the world's supply of the latter.

The instrument, called a "gamma ray generator", gives off "gamma" radiation, the farthest-reaching of the highly-penetrating rays given off by the explosion of an A-bomb.

INEXPENSIVE WAY

Scientists of the Naval Medical Research Institute said the new device provides, for the first time, a handy and rather inexpensive means of irradiating the whole body of a test animal in a uniform way—roughly analagous to the way a man standing in the open near an A-bomb blast would be affected.

They told reporters that better understanding of the effects of the radiation on the entire body—as distinguished from effects on a given part—might lead to better means of treating "radiation sickness", and perhaps even lead to means of defending the body against these sometimes lethal rays.

General Electric Rejects Union Strike Ultimatum

NEW YORK — (AP) — General Electric Company claimed yesterday it turned down a strike ultimatum from electrical workers and told them to go ahead and strike. The union said there was no such ultimatum.

The company stuck to its statement, even though James B. Carey president of the International Union of Electrical Workers C.I.O., called it "a lie".

Carey said he told the company only that any action would be left up to a union conference Monday. A strike deadline, if there is one, was not revealed.

The union claims 71,000 employees in 60 General Electric plants.

PRESENT THREE DEMANDS

G.E. said the I.U.E. presented three demands which it said must be met to avoid a strike.

These called for a 5.75-per-cent wage increase retroactive to Sept. 15, seven paid holidays and reopening of contract clauses on pensions and insurance next March 15.

Replied Lemuel R. Boulware, a G.E. vice-president:

"If that's the demand, the company will have to take the strike."

Mission Circles Stage Playlet On Africa

MARMORA—(ENS)—September meeting of the Mission Circle of St. Andrew's United Church was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. D. P. Marrett. Mrs. Jarvis gave a report on the box packed for the Missionary Overseas Relief. The study period took the form of a playlette "Africa to Me". The various characters of the play were taken by different members. Miss Dorothy Airhart read another chapter from the book "Healing Hands".

A contest put on by Dorothy Airhart was won by Nina Reynolds.

Indian Braves Given Cool Reception

NEW YORK (AP)—Some 150 Canadian and U.S. Indian braves and squaws from the Six Nation Iroquois confederacy, decked out in finery and feathers, got a cool reception yesterday at United Nations headquarters.

Their spokesman, Rev. Emery J. Kocsis of Plainfield, N.J., said the Indians wanted to tell the world "the race is living race and . . . opposes assimilation by legislation or any other forms."

Their leader, Sachem Clinton Rickard of the Tuscarora reservation, Sanborn, N.Y., had a slightly different version:

They wanted to "express their resistance to the invasions of their rights" by state governments in Canada and the U.S.

U.N. officials, scenting a publicity stunt, barred reporters from the meeting. They are reported to have told the Indians, members of the Indian Defence League of America, to take up their problems with their own governments.

Saturday Church Story:

Gospel Story Is Climax Of Old Testament Hope

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

It was an ancient saying, "All roads lead to Rome."

In the world of religion and the Bible all roads lead to and from the Four Gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John.

In the Gospel story of the coming and teaching of Jesus is the climax of Old Testament hope, prophecy, and teaching. The emphasis upon righteousness and social justice, the conception of God's mercy, the vision of a world-wide religion in which, through Israel as a chosen and responsive nation, all nations were to be blest (See Isaiah 2:2-4, and many other passages) all these and many other aspects of Old Testament Religion found their enforcement in the life and teaching of the One who said that He had not come to destroy, but to fulfil.

What Jesus did in the fulfilment of that religious heritage, which as a Jew was His own, was emphasized in His parables. Religious truth had never found such clear, simple, and keen illustration and interpretation. And a remarkable thing is the universality of those storied exemplifications of truth. Though in their original Jewish setting, the Parables are independent of truth, place, and climate, and are everywhere applicable as much as when they were first uttered to the common people who "heard Him gladly."

Saint Paul, like his Master, was an inheritor of all the truth and glory of Israel in the Law and the Prophets. A devout Jew trained at the feet of Gamaliel, he remained a Jew though also he became a Christian glorying in the advantage of the Jew to whom, he said, had been committed the oracles of God (Romans 3:1-2).

Yet, though he had lived in all good conscience in his pre-Christian zeal and devotion, the Gospels and the knowledge of Jesus Christ brought into Paul's life and religion, something that had not been there before. The Thirteenth of First Corinthians, the chapter of love except for parts of the Sermon on the Mount, and some of the Parables of Jesus, seems to me the greatest sermon ever written.

The life of Tolstoy, already world famous as a novelist, was transformed into a new glory as he discovered the Gospels and gave them emphasis in such beautiful stories as, 'Where Love Is, there God Is," and such penetrative applications as in such stories as, "If You Neglect the Little Fire, You Cannot Put Out the Great One." The Gospels would transform every life of those who would concentrate on "the greatest story ever told" of "the greatest life ever lived."

Must We Shiver For The Bus Again?

If the bus company serving suburban Peterborough and outside points is following the example of the two railway companies with stations in Peterborough, it is copying one of the worst traits of its competitors. We refer to the bus and railway depots. Peterborough has needed a new C.P.R. station since the boys returned in 1919 to the city which kept the home fires burning. The chief bow to modernity which that station has made in the last half century has been to remove (a year or so ago) the two rocking chairs in the waiting room; but this only increased by two lifted items the inconvenience and discomfort of the station. Peterborough has needed a new bus depot ever since it has had what is supposed to be one: the wooden hutment at the corner of King and Louis streets. The company has promised to build a proper waiting-room and ticket office, but it is like the phantom of a new railway station—non-existent. We have heard nothing except an indefinite assurance already cob-webbed, and there is nothing reassuring about that.

* * *

Government officials say that the structural steel shortage, never very acute, is nearly ended. Anyway, new schools, church halls and auditoriums have managed to rise, so why not a bus depot? The need is real. The present place is too small, too drafty, too dingy, a discredit to the city and, we presume to suggest, to the bus company. When are we going to see specific plans and a building date? Winter approaches and another vague promise will not produce the goodwill such bland phrases are intended to create, as waiting patrons shiver outside the bus depot or sneeze and hack inside the cubby-hole.

Middlesex Goats And A Five Million Dollar Dam

In 1793 Governor John Graves Simcoe chose the site of London to be the capital of Upper Canada, and ever since London has been trying to live up to that unfulfilled possibility. It has the trappings, but not the substance of a capital: London, in Middlesex county, on the Canadian Thames. But London's fortune (or misfortune as a potential capital) is built on agriculture, and farming is not the stuff that makes capitals. However, setting aside Simcoe's choice, agriculture has made London the fine city it is, the centre, not quite metropolitan, of Elgin, Middlesex and Oxford counties.

This Upper Thames region is 92 per cent. arable and the farmers in it really make a science of their job, a work of art of their countryside, ably assisted by the natural endowment of rich soil, plentiful rainfall and good weather; it was in fact the fertile land which led Simcoe to believe that London would be the capital of Upper Canada, and impressed Colonel Thomas Talbot into initiating the Talbot settlement in Elgin County in 1803. We wish that every farmer in our own county could visit the Upper Thames farms, see how beautifully productive the district is, and how the farmers there net more than fifty million dollars a year—an average of $3,929 for each occupied farm—net income. The quality of the soil and climate has much to do with this good income; in contrast with the Upper Thames region's 92 per cent. arable land (75 per cent. of it farmed), only 28.1 per cent. of Peterborough county is cleared land. But that is not the whole story of the difference between farmers here and farmers in the Thames valley; there farming is a business, as efficient in management, accounting, equipment and science as a first class industry.

In the early nineteenth century wheat growing was the mainstay of the Upper Thames. But this denuded the soil, as lumbering then wasted our own county, and mixed farming replaced wheat. The American Civil War created a demand for beef, cattle and hogs which also contributed to the change. Today the district is the leading livestock area in the Province. Last year it produced $71,530,240 worth of cattle, swine, horses, sheep and goats. Goats. Middlesex county produced more goats than any other in the Province; ten thousand dollars worth. Dairying is of course a dominant activity in the area (including goats' milk). The largest 'condensery' in Canada is situated in it.

The Upper Thames with its 276,475 people does not exist by farming alone, but agriculture has been and continues to be the basis of its sustained industrial growth. Factories were first established to process the products of the countryside. Then came farm implements, wood products and chemicals; and railways and highways. Railway and highway development made possible other industries, for instance beer-brewing on a large scale and the manufacture of electrical appliances. During the decade 1939-49 the gross value of the region's manufactured products increased 272 per cent.; the increase for the Province as a whole was 249 per cent. The cities accounted for this increase; 387 per cent. increase in Woodstock, 313 per cent. increase in St. Thomas and 306 per cent. in London. The industries employ thirty thousand people, and London itself produces $140 million worth of manufactured goods.

As we have mentioned, development of transportation kept the district up and coming. London has a civic airport and a city-owned electric railway to Port Stanley on Lake Erie, to give its factories access to lake shipping. St. Thomas has no fewer than six railways serving it (New York Central, Chesapeake and Ohio, Wabash, Canadian National, Canadian Pacific and the London and Port Stanley electric line). The American railways use the route through St. Thomas on the north shore of Lake Erie because the distance between Detroit and Buffalo and east is shorter on the Canadian than on the American side.

The nineteenth century cropping of the soil robbed much of the Upper Thames of its forest cover and even grass roots which hold soil and water and prevent erosion. Hence the Thames and other naughty streams flood each year. A large conservation project is now under way, and so is a big dam, called the Fanshawe Dam on the north branch of the Thames north of London. This is being built at an estimated cost of $4,711,250. It is expected to be completed next spring. Five more dams—to cost, with the Fanshawe Dam, twelve million dollars—are included in the conservation plan. Rich as London, Woodstock and St. Thomas citizens are; wealthy as the Middlesex, Elgin and Oxford farmers may be, they are not paying anything like the full cost of this big conservation scheme; here in this city and county we are being assessed a share, indirectly through the money Queen's Park and Ottawa collect from the province's taxpayers.

Having larded and complimented the Upper Thames people, we cannot withhold one jibe (in view of our own country's north): there are no metals whatsoever in the entire district. Oxford County does produce substantial quantities of quicklime, used for structural materials. Nothing more.

Seven o'Clock Curtain

Several New York Theatres are trying the experiment of beginning their performances at 7 p.m. on two or three nights in each week, instead of the usual 8:30. In this they are copying the London theatres which, during the war, got into the way of beginning their performances early because of the blackout; many of them have kept this custom, which they find convenient. New Yorkers are finding an early curtain-time convenient also, and it looks as though the experiment would remain as a settled policy.

There is no special reason why a theatre performance should begin at 8:30, except that most people have finished dinner by that time. But there is no special reason why people should dine at 6:30 or 7 o'clock. Times of meals change. From Shakespeare's day until half-way through the reign of Queen Victoria most people ate their large meal of the day between three and five o'clock; very often they returned to their places of business and worked until seven or eight, afterward. Before they went to bed they had a light supper. In Queen Victoria's time most evening entertainments opened their doors at six o'clock, though fashionable people might not arrive for an hour or two after that.

Changes in domestic and restaurant service influence the hours at which people eat. In Spain, where service is cheap and plentiful, few people dine earlier than nine o'clock, and dinner at midnight is not uncommon. In Australia, on the contrary, all restaurant and hotel meals must be over by seven o'clock, as the waiters expect to be free by that time. In countries which enjoy a high standard of living and wages, it is usual for a meal to increase in expense, the later it is served.

Actors like theatrical performances to begin at seven o'clock, because it means that they are free by 10:30. Contrary to a widely held belief, many actors like to go to bed at normal hours.

The interest of this matter for us lies in the fact that what New York and London do today, Peterborough will do in a few years. We do not believe that earlier opening hours for concerts and plays would seriously inconvenience the local public.

NOTES AND COMMENT

This is the time of year when anybody who is foolhardy enough to go into the woods should at least take the precaution of shouting "I'm a man, I'm a man," at every step.

The suggestion is being made in the U.S.A. that pie should return to the breakfast table, in order to provide energy for the day's work. Austere breakfasters, of course, will stick to the old menu of fried steak and doughnuts.

The Journal of Samuel Marchbanks

SUNDAY: Visited some people today upon whose bookshelves I saw a copy of the first edition of a rather uncommon book. When I complimented them on their possession they showed no interest, and obviously cared nothing about it. This annoyed me, and I briefly entertained some chagrin that I had not kept my mouth shut and simply stolen the book. Bibliophily is the least moral of all hobbies, and my conscience, which normally works as a strict guardian angel, could probably have been squared over a bit of hanky-panky with a book. Book thieves are a special race; Sir Thomas Bodley, founder of the great Bodleian Library and in every other way a man of honour, could not be trusted with his friends' books. Cardinal Richelieu, when in power, confiscated whole libraries for his own use. Catherine de Medici was an incorrigible book-hooker, and so was David Garrick. I must count a few light-fingered bibliophiles among my acquaintance, for I have lost at least fifty books in this way. But I am glad I was too good, or too slow, to make off with it.

✧ ✧ ✧

MONDAY: Was in a tobacconist's today and had to wait for ten minutes or more while a man and woman who were ahead of me were served. They were husband and wife, and as a birthday present she was trying to buy him some Irish twist of a kind he had smoked long ago before he left the Ould Sod. But he was not easily suited; the tobacconist produced four horrible looking lumps of black stuff which he declared were all Irish twist of different brands and strengths, and the old fellow sniffed them and nicked them with his knife, and seemed anxious to take a bite of them. At last he declared that none of them was what he wanted, and bore no resemblance to the glorious twist he had smoked as a young man. But my guess is that he had forgotten that tobacco, and had glorified it in his mind until nothing would have suited him. If a hunk of the authentic twist he wanted had suddenly been put in his hand, it would have compared poorly with the dream which he had created during forty years in Canada. For his tongue and his teeth and his palate were not as they were in the past, so what power lay in the tobacco to bring back his youth?

✧ ✧ ✧

TUESDAY: Read today that one of those experts on how to be popular says that we should all "put skid chains on our tongues, and never say all that we think." Mentioned this tonight to my friend Dr. Cataplasm, the psychiatrist, who pooh-poohed it, saying that on the contrary we would all be healthier if we spoke our minds more freely. Perhaps this is so. I have often suffered from headaches, belly-aches and other aches so tremendous that they encompassed my whole body, simply because I had politely held my tongue. Yet I am not conscious that I am any more popular on this account, and indeed I find that I am slipping into that abandoned state of mind where I do not care whether I am popular or not. If popularity can only be purchased at the price of swallowing all that one really thinks, I cannot afford it. . . . Saw a girl this afternoon wearing blue jeans, upon the seat of which two masks, one of Tragedy and one of Comedy, had been drawn in white paint on each of her prominences. As she walked Tragedy rose above Comedy, and then plunged below Comedy, in a fascinating manner. "Viewed from the rear, you afford a fascinating presentment of the mingling of grave and gay in human affairs," said I to her. "It's symbolic of the ups and downs in life," said she.

✧ ✧ ✧

WEDNESDAY: The notorious bank robber, Alonzo Boyd and his confederates, were captured and returned to jail recently. As I read about their life while in flight, I decided that I would make a poor criminal. To live in a barn would not suit me, and a diet of cold pork and beans would depress me. In fact, I can think of nothing that would attract me to a life of crime except the irregular hours and the spasmodic nature of the work. Undoubtedly the phase of criminal life I should enjoy most would be planning the crimes, and the subsequent long, restful, well-fed sojourn in jail. Perhaps I could be a Master-Mind, and send my assistants to do the bank robberies; my fear and respect for bankers is so great that I am sure I could never work up enough effrontery to rob one. But a Master Mind, living comfortably in an expensive apartment and issuing an occasional clever order to the Underworld, would not have a bad time . . . Saw a sign in front of a shop which is being re-fitted, which read "Business As Usual." A schoolteacher knocked it into me in childhood that it is impossible to mis-spell this word if you think of it as "buzzy-ness". Which is easy because the busier people are, the buzzier they are likely to be.

✧ ✧ ✧

THURSDAY: To my dentist, and as I sit in his chair I look through a large window toward the spire of a church which is surmounted by a cross. This always reminds me of the inscription on Strindberg's tomb—"Ave Crux Spes Unica". I know what this means, but it is hard to put it into English. "Hail Cross, You Unique Thing" does not sound right and "Hail the Cross, It's The Only Thing" sounds like an advertisement for a patent medicine. But puzzling over this matter slightly distracts my mind while the dentist moves a small machine shop into my mouth and arranges things to suit his taste. Why such an old snorter as Strindberg chose such a pious inscription I cannot guess.

✧ ✧ ✧

FRIDAY: I see that Hollywood is going to make a film called "The Quest of the Holy Grail", from a script by Harry Kleiner and Buddy Adler. They are looking for an actor to play Sir Galahad. Hollywood has its hands full, for Galahad was too pure to look twice at a girl, and the average citizen has, I feel sure, only the faintest notion of what the Holy Grail was, or why anybody should want to look for it. The resulting film will be fascinating to students of the Arthurian legend. I shall await it with the keenest expectation, for I have long cherished a secret and heretical notion that Galahad was a pill and that his search for the Grail was pure swank. The whole Galahad business is roMANCE with the accent on the second sylable; what Hollywood specializes in is ROmance, with the accent on the first. In roMANCE the girls sit still while the boys show off, admiring them and sometimes giving them a kiss with no more zest in it than a cold fried egg. But in ROmance girls, and not Grails, are what the boys are after. When Hollywood is finished, we shall see that Galahad sought the Grail for his Mom and his Girl; why else would a red-blooded young saint take all that trouble?

✧ ✧ ✧

SATURDAY: Watched some children playing school today, and observed that while the others sat at a table and wrote industriously under the eye of a teacher, a small child walked importantly round and round, giving an occasional loud but incomprehensible shout. "Why isn't she a pupil?" I asked. "Well, you see," came the answer, "she can't read or write or sit still for very long, so she has to be the principal" . . . Talking with a friend who is a devoted pipe-smoker, I watched him rubbing a pipe-bowl up and down his nose, until it was covered with his personal exudation; he then smeared the mess around until the bowl shone. Now why is it that pipe-smokers set so much store by nose-grease as a polish? I have known scores of the breed, and they all do it. Would not wax on a nice clean rag do just as well? Apparently not. Does some special virtue reside in their noses, or is this the last vestige of some forgotten rite, picked up by early explorers from those early pipe-smokers, the Indians? Is it some propitiation of the Nose God? I was smoking a cigar, and if I had rubbed it on my nose I am sure I would have been told not to be disgusting.

Letters To The Editor

SAYS FIRE HALL COLD, SQUEAKY

Sir: Having some time to spare I decided to call at the Fire Station and say hello to the boys. I had not looked through the building for years and after reading how the City Council Members, with one exception, had paid an inspection visit to everything from soup to nuts, and having not seen a report of their visit to our Fire Hall, I became interested.

I will endeavour to give my impression of my visit which, to say the least, was not very satisfactory.

There was no heat in the building as far as I could feel and the doors had a strip of rubber under them and cold air was coming in as the rubber strip would not fit tightly on the uneven floor. I thought of how the snow will drift under these and how some other material could be used instead of rubber stripping. I imagined I could see the firemen coming back from a fire and going into a hall with no fire, with some of the radiators resting against the wall.

Now on the second floor I was surprised that what used to be a hard wood floor with waxed surface, is now a grey dull floor with no wax. I thought, well here is a good chance for some wax company to do some advertising by taking a photograph before and one after surfacing with their wax. I know it is no neglect of the firemen the floor is not waxed as they would be only too pleased to do the work. If the City Council on being economical has to do without wax, perhaps they can get a company making wax to furnish the wax as an advertisement.

I went up to the third floor, and such a floor it is! One fireman had been doing some patching but there are several squeaky and open places. This floor is not only a fire hazard but unsanitary.

What is going to be done about it? Can we afford to let conditions remain as they are until we have our firemen incapacitated from pneumonia, influenza, or a broken leg, or lying in a smouldering burned building? There is an old saying which seems to fit this situation: Why lock the stable after the sheep are stolen? The City Hall staff have luxurious offices and heat and do not suffer from working out in weather fighting fires and returning to conditions our firemen are living under. Are there some that will shrug their shoulders and say: "Oh heck, they are only firemen"?

Yours truly,
MAURICE E. KETCHESON

START NOW FOR 1953 EXHIBITION

Sir. If some of the by-gone presidents and directors of Peterborough Exhibition could have attended this year's edition of the "Ex." they would have been amazed at what little progress has been made since their time. There are still only 2 washrooms (flooded with 3 inches of water most of the time). The Midway has developed into the village carnival variety and the Grand Stand show is definitely second-rate.

Maybe the Directors of the "Ex." could enlighten us as to why the Conklin Midway is not coming to Peterborough. Is it because of the squabble with City Council back in 1941 when they tore up King Edward Park. Or is it because the Directors will not cooperate with Paddy Conklin as to the concessions he brings and the amount of money he will have to pay into the Exhibition's treasury? Apparently Lindsay Exhibition and the Conklin Shows have had excellent relations throughout the years and I understand they bore part of the cost of paving the grounds and the construction of some of the buildings.

Some local talent would improve the Grand Stand show, but let's not go too far in this direction. The sulky races might be better than some of the local talent I've seen. Belleville showed foresight in engaging the R.C.M.P. Musical Ride; they are a sure fire crowd-pleaser and if engaged next year, they would pack the Grand Stand every performance.

If we must have these sulky races (Toronto does quite nicely without them) then let them run to their hearts' content in the afternoon or early evening and have the Grand Stand cleared of the confusion by 8 o'clock. The Directors seem to have forgotten the old saying that you have to spend a dollar to make two.

Why not preparations right now for 1953 and avoid the last minute rush that was quite obvious this year.

If the present Directors can't organize a better show for four days out of the year than they did this year, let's get a new set of Directors or close up the park and plant potatoes.

PRODUCE OR ELSE

BETTER ORGANIZATION, BETTER EXHIBITION

Sir: I have read your editorial of Sept. 18th and also the letters to the Voice of the People with interest. I am not a director of the Peterborough Exhibition but I was a director the first year the fair opened after the war and I am a member of several district Agricultural Societies.

It would appear from reading the letters on the Exhibition that the general public have little knowledge of the function and operation of an Exhibition. In the first place it has to be sponsored and operated by an Agricultural Society (Peterborough's is West Peterborough Agricultural Society) in conjunction with the Dept. of Agriculture. Grants on certain types of expenditures are paid by the Dom. Government, Provincial Govt., County, and City provided the Society operates within Government rules and regulations enacted by the Government.

I have read the Morrow Trust on numerous occasions and the Peterborough Exhibition grounds are donated, for a rental fee, by H. A. Morrow as a memorial to his father, the late R. A. Morrow, to the West Peterborough Agricultural Society for its use so long as it is used for an Agricultural Exhibition. Therefore, the main function of the Fair is to create competition in producing the best seed, grains, clovers, live stock, machinery, etc., and extending to take in domestic exhibits, fine arts, etc., therefore, creating a standard of high quality merchandise for the buying public.

Only a few of the public seem to know or realize the time, effort and responsibility a director of the Exhibition leaves himself liable for when he agrees to act and is elected. Your correspondent signed "Pete" can be advised the directors are appointed from the Society Members by nomination and then elected by secret ballot at the Annual Meeting. A person can become a member by paying a membership fee of $1.00; only members may vote. A directorship is an honorary position and no director receives any compensation.

I am sure the Directors of 1952 are more interested in the success of the Fair than any of us. I had hoped that your request for suggestions on improving the Fair would bring some worthwhile letters, but the majority so far appear to be written by mud-slingers. Any person writing letters that have constructive criticism and good suggestions, I am sure, would be welcome but should be published with the writer's name. An anonymous letter is usually one of the vile type and is written with the same idea in mind as the hit-and-run motorist.

The main complaint appears to have been lack of Midway. I personally am not interested in any part of it, but if this part of the show is important, the committee who arranged for the Midway this year were badly let down. Was a proper contract signed? Did the company supply all the equipment and side shows that were contracted for?

With reference to Midways at Exhibitions, the Royal Winter Fair operates without Midway, without vaudeville, and seats have to be bought weeks ahead to see the show. At Peterborough Exhibition we had two six horse teams, several exhibits in light horse division, along with many of the cattle, sheep, swine, and vegetable exhibits which are always among the top prize winners at the Royal Winter Fair. Are the residents of Peterborough and County more interested in gambling, side shows and rides than they are in the God-created stock, the efforts of Agriculture and the Fine Arts?

With reference to horse racing, the main complaint I have heard from Town Folk, as well as Country, is "There wasn't a horse race in the afternoon." This along with the heat, I believe contributed much to lack of attendance in the afternoon. As a matter of fact most of the complaints and knockers I heard were people who had listened to hearsay and had not even attended.

We hear cries to have local talent for vaudeville in front of the Grand Stand. Not one has mentioned the Peterborough Citizen's Band which played every afternoon and evening. Many said the Band was worth the admission to the Grand Stand in itself. I have noted programs sponsored by numerous organizations on many occasions which have been comprised of all local talent, and after the best sales efforts, sufficient tickets were not sold to fill the Collegiate Auditorium, let alone the Peterborough Exhibition Grand Stand. A great Grand Stand attraction is one or two good clowns; the clowns this year were hopeless.

I have heard many comparisons of Peterborough Exhibition and Lindsay Exhibition. I believe Lindsay to be one of the best Fairs in Ontario. There you have a mixed program, vaudeville, horse racing, and exhibits in front of the Grand Stand. There, the same exhibitors display their exhibits of the same high quality (although there are seldom as many extras) but people seem to enjoy it. I believe the main reason is organization.

I was of the opinion, Mr. Editor, that the Peterborough Exhibition dragged and lacked organization. I believe there should be a paid program chairman responsible for the entire program. Each committee would be responsible to this chairman and he in turn would co-ordinate the entire program in such a way that there are no lulls as there were this year at the Exhibition. I might mention that I have been the M.C. at several of the small fairs this past year and the same number of livestock classes, with as many entries, were exhibited in front of the public from 1:30 to 5:30 in one day as at the Peterborough Exhibition in four days. Is our fair drawn out too long?

In summing up the Exhibition I could compare it to a good cake-baker who had spent much of his valuable time, talent and skill in making a good cake, but by lack or organization in the finishing and baking of his product, and buying some poor quality merchandise (the Midway) the cake fell flat.

I hope that more people with constructive criticism will write letters to you under their own names. If so, I will be glad to be at the Annual Meeting and nominate them for the Board for 1953. If they get a seconder and are elected, they must be prepared to sign a note at a local bank if the fair goes in the red, like the men of showmanship mentioned in one letter to your paper.

Yours for a better organization in 1953.

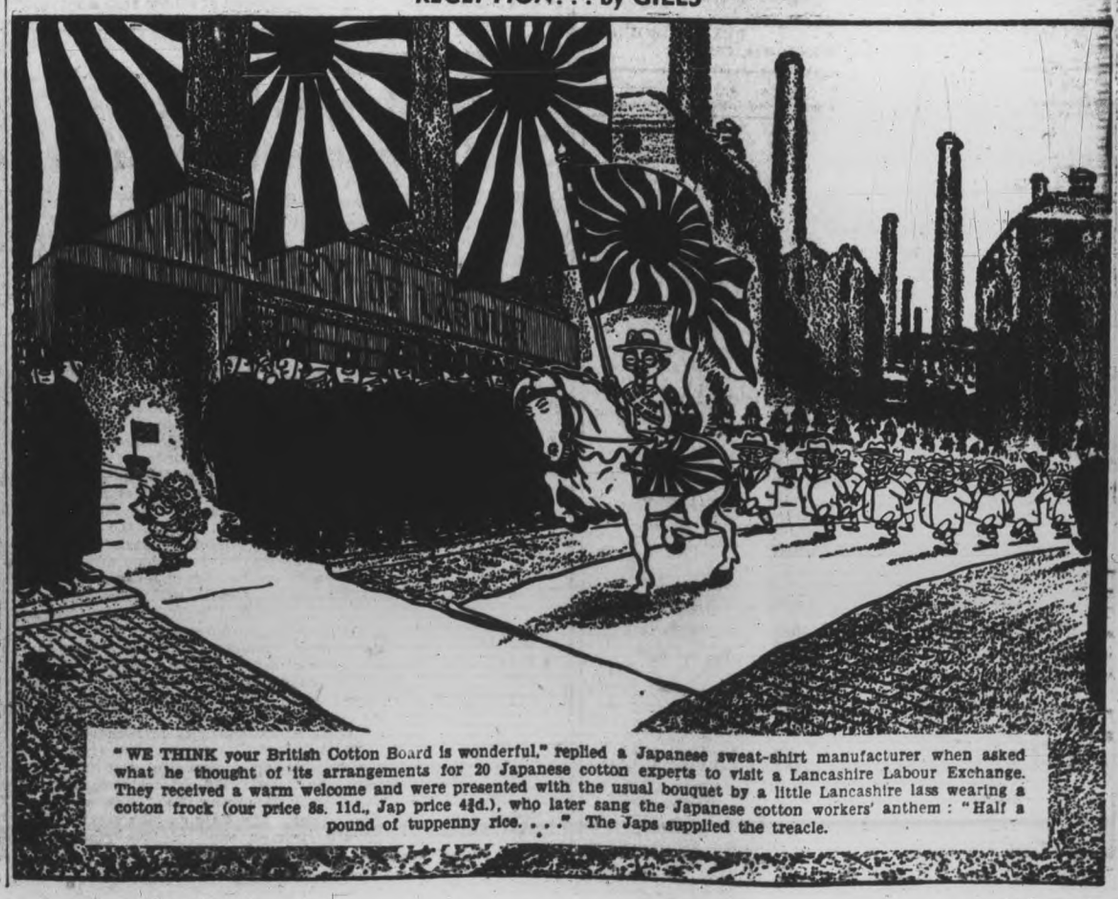
Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)



I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: nothing can be put to it, nor any thing taken from it: and God doeth it, that men should fear before him. That which hath been is now; and that which is to be hath already been; and God requireth that which is past. (Eccl. 3: 14, 15.)

✧ ✧ ✧

The Lord hath brought forth our righteousness: come, and let us declare in Zion the work of the Lord our God. . . . He hath made the earth by his power, he hath established the world by his wisdom, and hath stretched out the heaven by his understanding. (Jer. 51: 10, 15.)

Praise ye the Lord, I will praise the Lord with my whole heart, in the assembly of the upright, and in the congregation. . . . The works of his hands are verity and judgement all his commandments are sure. They stand fast for ever and ever, and are done in truth and uprightness. (Ps. 111: 1, 7, 8.)

RECEPTION. . . by GILES

"WE THINK your British Cotton Board is wonderful," replied a Japanese sweat-shirt manufacturer when asked what he thought of its arrangements for 20 Japanese cotton experts to visit a Lancashire Labour Exchange. They received a warm welcome and were presented with the usual bouquet by a little Lancashire lass wearing a cotton frock (our price 8s. 11d., Jap price 4¾d.), who later sang the Japanese cotton workers' anthem: "Half a pound of tuppenny rice. . . ." The Japs supplied the treacle.

Must We Shiver For The Bus Again?

If the bus company serving suburban Peterborough and outside points is following the example of the two railway companies with stations in Peterborough, it is copying one of the worst traits of its competitors. We refer to the bus and railway depots. Peterborough has needed a new C.P.R. station since the boys returned in 1919 to the city which kept the home fires burning. The chief bow to modernity which that station has made in the last half century has been to remove (a year or so ago) the two rocking chairs in the waiting room; but this only increased by two lifted items the inconvenience and discomfort of the station. Peterborough has needed a new bus depot ever since it has had what is supposed to be one: the wooden hutment at the corner of King and Louis streets. The company has promised to build a proper waiting-room and ticket office, but it is like the phantom of a new railway station—non-existent. We have heard nothing except an indefinite assurance already cob-webbed, and there is nothing reassuring about that.

* * *

Government officials say that the structural steel shortage, never very acute, is nearly ended. Anyway, new schools, church halls and auditoriums have managed to rise, so why not a bus depot? The need is real. The present place is too small, too drafty, too dingy, a discredit to the city and, we presume to suggest, to the bus company. When are we going to see specific plans and a building date? Winter approaches and another vague promise will not produce the goodwill such bland phrases are intended to create, as waiting patrons shiver outside the bus depot or sneeze and hack inside the cubby-hole.

Middlesex Goats And A Five Million Dollar Dam

In 1793 Governor John Graves Simcoe chose the site of London to be the capital of Upper Canada, and ever since London has been trying to live up to that unfulfilled possibility. It has the trappings, but not the substance of a capital: London, in Middlesex county, on the Canadian Thames. But London's fortune (or misfortune as a potential capital) is built on agriculture, and farming is not the stuff that makes capitals. However, setting aside Simcoe's choice, agriculture has made London the fine city it is, the centre, not quite metropolitan, of Elgin, Middlesex and Oxford counties.

This Upper Thames region is 92 per cent. arable and the farmers in it really make a science of their job, a work of art of their countryside, ably assisted by the natural endowment of rich soil, plentiful rainfall and good weather; it was in fact the fertile land which led Simcoe to believe that London would be the capital of Upper Canada, and impressed Colonel Thomas Talbot into initiating the Talbot settlement in Elgin County in 1803. We wish that every farmer in our own county could visit the Upper Thames farms, see how beautifully productive the district is, and how the farmers there net more than fifty million dollars a year—an average of $3,929 for each occupied farm—net income. The quality of the soil and climate has much to do with this good income; in contrast with the Upper Thames region's 92 per cent. arable land (75 per cent. of it farmed), only 28.1 per cent. of Peterborough county is cleared land. But that is not the whole story of the difference between farmers here and farmers in the Thames valley; there farming is a business, as efficient in management, accounting, equipment and science as a first class industry.

In the early nineteenth century wheat growing was the mainstay of the Upper Thames. But this denuded the soil, as lumbering then wasted our own county, and mixed farming replaced wheat. The American Civil War created a demand for beef, cattle and hogs which also contributed to the change. Today the district is the leading livestock area in the Province. Last year it produced $71,530,240 worth of cattle, swine, horses, sheep and goats. Goats. Middlesex county produced more goats than any other in the Province; ten thousand dollars worth. Dairying is of course a dominant activity in the area (including goats' milk). The largest 'condensery' in Canada is situated in it.

The Upper Thames with its 276,475 people does not exist by farming alone, but agriculture has been and continues to be the basis of its sustained industrial growth. Factories were first established to process the products of the countryside. Then came farm implements, wood products and chemicals; and railways and highways. Railway and highway development made possible other industries, for instance beer-brewing on a large scale and the manufacture of electrical appliances. During the decade 1939-49 the gross value of the region's manufactured products increased 272 per cent.; the increase for the Province as a whole was 249 per cent. The cities accounted for this increase; 387 per cent. increase in Woodstock, 313 per cent. increase in St. Thomas and 206 per cent. in London. The industries employ thirty thousand people, and London itself produces $140 million worth of manufactured goods.

As we have mentioned, development of transportation kept the district up and coming. London has a civic airport and a city-owned electric railway to Port Stanley on Lake Erie, to give its factories access to lake shipping. St. Thomas has no fewer than six railways serving it (New York Central, Chesapeake and Ohio, Wabash, Canadian National, Canadian Pacific and the London and Port Stanley electric line). The American railways use the route through St. Thomas on the north shore of Lake Erie because the distance between Detroit and Buffalo and east is shorter on the Canadian than on the American side.

The nineteenth century cropping of the soil robbed much of the Upper Thames of its forest cover and even grass roots which hold soil and water and prevent erosion. Hence the Thames and other naughty streams flood each year. A large conservation project is now under way, and so is a big dam, called the Fanshawe Dam on the north branch of the Thames north of London. This is being built at an estimated cost of $4,711,250. It is expected to be completed next spring. Five more dams—to cost, with the Fanshawe Dam, twelve million dollars—are included in the conservation plan. Rich as London, Woodstock and St. Thomas citizens are; wealthy as the Middlesex, Elgin and Oxford farmers may be, they are not paying anything like the full cost of this big conservation scheme; here in this city and county we are being assessed a share, indirectly through the money Queen's Park and Ottawa collect from the province's taxpayers.

Having larded and complimented the Upper Thames people, we cannot withhold one jibe (in view of our own country's north): there are no metals whatsoever in the entire district. Oxford County does produce substantial quantities of quicklime, used for structural materials. Nothing more.

Seven o'Clock Curtain

Several New York Theatres are trying the experiment of beginning their performances at 7 p.m. on two or three nights in each week, instead of the usual 8:30. In this they are copying the London theatres which, during the war, got into the way of beginning their performances early because of the blackout; many of them have kept this custom, which they find convenient. New Yorkers are finding an early curtain-time convenient also, and it looks as though the experiment would remain as a settled policy.

There is no special reason why a theatre performance should begin at 8:30, except that most people have finished dinner by that time. But there is no special reason why people should dine at 6:30 or 7 o'clock. Times of meals change. From Shakespeare's day until half-way through the reign of Queen Victoria most people ate their large meal of the day between three and five o'clock; very often they returned to their places of business and worked until seven or eight, afterward. Before they went to bed they had a light supper. In Queen Victoria's time most evening entertainments opened their doors at six o'clock, though fashionable people might not arrive for an hour or two after that.

Changes in domestic and restaurant service influence the hours at which people eat. In Spain, where service is cheap and plentiful, few people dine earlier than nine o'clock, and dinner at midnight is not uncommon. In Australia, on the contrary, all restaurant and hotel meals must be over by seven o'clock, as the waiters expect to be free by that time. In countries which enjoy a high standard of living and wages, it is usual for a meal to increase in expense, the later it is served.

Actors like theatrical performances to begin at seven o'clock, because it means that they are free by 10:30. Contrary to a widely held belief, many actors like to go to bed at normal hours.

The interest of this matter for us lies in the fact that what New York and London do today, Peterborough will do in a few years. We do not believe that earlier opening hours for concerts and plays would seriously inconvenience the local public.

NOTES AND COMMENT

This is the time of year when anybody who is foolhardy enough to go into the woods should at least take the precaution of shouting "I'm a man, I'm a man," at every step.

The suggestion is being made in the U.S.A. that pie should return to the breakfast table, in order to provide energy for the day's work. Austere breakfasters, of course, will stick to the old menu of fried steak and doughnuts.

The Journal of Samuel Marchbanks

SUNDAY: Visited some people today upon whose bookshelves I saw a copy of the first edition of a rather uncommon book. When I complimented them on their possession they showed no interest, and obviously cared nothing about it. This annoyed me, and I briefly entertained some chagrin that I had not kept my mouth shut and simply stolen the book. Bibliophily is the least moral of all hobbies, and my conscience, which normally works as a strict guardian angel, could probably have been squared over a bit of hanky-panky with a book. Book thieves are a special race; Sir Thomas Bodley, founder of the great Bodleian Library and in every other way a man of honour, could not be trusted with his friends' books. Cardinal Richelieu, when in power, confiscated whole libraries for his own use. Catherine de Medici was an incorrigible book-hooker, and so was David Garrick. I must count a few light-fingered bibliophiles among my acquaintance, for I have lost at least fifty books in this way. But I am glad I was too good, or too slow, to make off with it.

✧ ✧ ✧

MONDAY: Was in a tobacconist's today and had to wait for ten minutes or more while a man and woman who were ahead of me were served. They were husband and wife, and as a birthday present she was trying to buy him some Irish twist of a kind he had smoked long ago before he left the Ould Sod. But he was not easily suited; the tobacconist produced four horrible looking lumps of black stuff which he declared were all Irish twist of different brands and strengths, and the old fellow sniffed them and nicked them with his knife, and seemed anxious to take a bite of them. At last he declared that none of them was what he wanted, and bore no resemblance to the glorious twist he had smoked as a young man. But my guess is that he had forgotten that tobacco, and had glorified it in his mind until nothing would have suited him. If a hunk of the authentic twist he wanted had suddenly been put in his hand, it would have compared poorly with the dream which he had created during forty years in Canada. For his tongue and his teeth and his palate were not as they were in the past, so what power lay in the tobacco to bring back his youth?

✧ ✧ ✧

TUESDAY: Read today that one of those experts on how to be popular says that we should all "put skid chains on our tongues, and never say all that we think." Mentioned this tonight to my friend Dr. Cataplasm, the psychiatrist, who pooh-poohed it, saying that on the contrary we would all be healthier if we spoke our minds more freely. Perhaps this is so. I have often suffered from headaches, belly-aches and other aches so tremendous that they encompassed my whole body, simply because I had politely held my tongue. Yet I am not conscious that I am any more popular on this account, and indeed I find that I am slipping into that abandoned state of mind where I do not care whether I am popular or not. If popularity can only be purchased at the price of swallowing all that one really thinks, I cannot afford it. . . . Saw a girl this afternoon wearing blue jeans, upon the seat of which two masks, one of Tragedy and one of Comedy, had been drawn in white paint on each of her prominences. As she walked Tragedy rose above Comedy, and then plunged below Comedy, in a fascinating manner. "Viewed from the rear, you afford a fascinating presentment of the mingling of grave and gay in human affairs," said I to her. "It's symbolic of the ups and downs in life," said she.

✧ ✧ ✧

WEDNESDAY: The notorious bank robber, Alonzo Boyd and his confederates, were captured and returned to jail recently. As I read about their life while in flight, I decided that I would make a poor criminal. To live in a barn would not suit me, and a diet of cold pork and beans would depress me. In fact, I can think of nothing that would attract me to a life of crime except the irregular hours and the spasmodic nature of the work. Undoubtedly the phase of criminal life I should enjoy most would be planning the crimes, and the subsequent long, restful, well-fed sojourn in jail. Perhaps I could be a Master-Mind, and send my assistants to do the bank robberies; my fear and respect for bankers is so great that I am sure I could never work up enough effrontery to rob one. But a Master Mind, living comfortably in an expensive apartment and issuing an occasional clever order to the Underworld, would not have a bad time . . . Saw a sign in front of a shop which is being re-fitted, which read "Business As Usual." A school-teacher knocked it into me in childhood that it is impossible to mis-spell this word if you think of it as "buzzy-ness". Which is easy because the busier people are, the buzzier they are likely to be.

✧ ✧ ✧

THURSDAY: To my dentist, and as I sit in his chair I look through a large window toward the spire of a church which is surmounted by a cross. This always reminds me of the inscription on Strindberg's tomb—"Ave Crux Spes Unica". I know what this means, but it is hard to put it into English. "Hail Cross, You Unique Thing" does not sound right and "Hail the Cross, It's The Only Thing" sounds like an advertisement for a patent medicine. But puzzling over this matter slightly distracts my mind while the dentist moves a small machine shop into my mouth and arranges things to suit his taste. Why such an old snorter as Strindberg chose such a pious inscription I cannot guess.

✧ ✧ ✧

FRIDAY: I see that Hollywood is going to make a film called "The Quest of the Holy Grail", from a script by Harry Kleiner and Buddy Adler. They are looking for an actor to play Sir Galahad. Hollywood has its hands full, for Galahad was too pure to look twice at a girl, and the average citizen has, I feel sure, only the faintest notion of what the Holy Grail was, or why anybody should want to look for it. The resulting film will be fascinating to students of the Arthurian legend. I shall await it with the keenest expectation, for I have long cherished a secret and heretical notion that Galahad was a pill and that his search for the Grail was pure swank. The whole Galahad business is roMANCE with the accent on the second sylable; what Hollywood specializes in is ROmance, with the accent on the first. In roMANCE the girls sit still while the boys show off, admiring them and sometimes giving them a kiss with no more zest in it than a cold fried egg. But in ROmance girls, and not Grails, are what the boys are after. When Hollywood is finished, we shall see that Galahad sought the Grail for his Mom and his Girl; why else would a red-blooded young saint take all that trouble?

✧ ✧ ✧

SATURDAY: Watched some children playing school today, and observed that while the others sat at a table and wrote industriously under the eye of a teacher, a small child walked importantly round and round, giving an occasional loud but incomprehensible shout. "Why isn't she a pupil?" I asked. "Well, you see," came the answer, "she can't read or write or sit still for very long, so she has to be the principal" . . . Talking with a friend who is a devoted pipe-smoker, I watched him rubbing a pipe-bowl up and down his nose, until it was covered with his personal exudation; he then smeared the mess around until the bowl shone. Now why is it that pipe-smokers set so much store by nose-grease as a polish? I have known scores of the breed, and they all do it. Would not wax on a nice clean rag do just as well? Apparently not. Does some special virtue reside in their noses, or is this the last vestige of some forgotten rite, picked up by early explorers from those early pipe-smokers, the Indians? Is it some propitiation of the Nose God? I was smoking a cigar, and if I had rubbed it on my nose I am sure I would have been told not to be disgusting.

Letters To The Editor

SAYS FIRE HALL COLD, SQUEAKY

Sir: Having some time to spare I decided to call at the Fire Station and say hello to the boys. I had not looked through the building for years and after reading how the City Council Members, with one exception, had paid an inspection visit to everything from soup to nuts, and having not seen a report of their visit to our Fire Hall, I became interested.

I will endeavour to give my impression of my visit which, to say the least, was not very satisfactory.

There was no heat in the building as far as I could feel and the doors had a strip of rubber under them and cold air was coming in as the rubber strip would not fit tightly on the uneven floor. I thought of how the snow will drift under these and how some other material could be used instead of rubber stripping. I imagined I could see the firemen coming back from a fire and going into a hall with no fire, with some of the radiators resting against the wall.

Now on the second floor I was surprised that what used to be a hard wood floor with waxed surface, is now a grey dull floor with no wax. I thought, well here is a good chance for some wax company to do some advertising by taking a photograph before and one after surfacing with their wax. I know it is no neglect of the firemen the floor is not waxed as they would be only too pleased to do the work. If the City Council on being economical has to do without wax, perhaps they can get a company making wax to furnish the wax as an advertisement.

I went up to the third floor, and such a floor it is! One fireman had been doing some patching but there are several squeaky and open places. This floor is not only a fire hazard but unsanitary.

What is going to be done about it? Can we afford to let conditions remain as they are until we have our firemen incapacitated from pneumonia, influenza, or a broken leg, or lying in a smouldering burned building? There is an old saying which seems to fit this situation: Why lock the stable after the sheep are stolen? The City Hall staff have luxurious offices and heat and do not suffer from working out in weather fighting fires and returning to conditions our firemen are living under. Are there some that will shrug their shoulders and say: "Oh heck, they are only firemen"?

Yours truly,
MAURICE E. KETCHESON

START NOW FOR 1953 EXHIBITION

Sir, If some of the by-gone presidents and directors of Peterborough Exhibition could have attended this year's edition of the "Ex." they would have been amazed at what little progress has been made since their time. There are still only 2 washrooms (flooded with 3 inches of water most of the time). The Midway has developed into the village carnival variety and the Grand Stand show is definitely second-rate.

Maybe the Directors of the "Ex." could enlighten us as to why the Conklin Midway is not coming to Peterborough. Is it because of the squabble with City Council back in 1941 when they tore up King Edward Park. Or is it because the Directors will not cooperate with Paddy Conklin as to the concessions he brings and the amount of money he will have to pay into the Exhibition's treasury? Apparently Lindsay Exhibition and the Conklin Shows have had excellent relations throughout the years and I understand they bore part of the cost of paving the grounds and the construction of some of the buildings.

Some local talent would improve the Grand Stand show, but let's not go too far in this direction. The sulky races might be better than some of the local talent I've seen. Belleville showed foresight in engaging the R.C.M.P. Musical Ride; they are a sure fire crowd-pleaser and if engaged next year, they would pack the Grand Stand every performance.

If we must have these sulky races (Toronto does quite nicely without them) then let them run to their hearts' content in the afternoon or early evening and have the Grand Stand cleared of the confusion by 8 o'clock. The Directors seem to have forgotten the old saying that you have to spend a dollar to make two.

Why not preparations right now for 1953 and avoid the last minute rush that was quite obvious this year.

If the present Directors can't organize a better show for four days out of the year than they did this year, let's get a new set of Directors or close up the park and plant potatoes.

PRODUCE OR ELSE

BETTER ORGANIZATION, BETTER EXHIBITION

Sir: I have read your editorial of Sept. 18th and also the letters to the Voice of the People with interest. I am not a director of the Peterborough Exhibition but I was a director the first year the fair opened after the war and I am a member of several district Agricultural Societies.

It would appear from reading the letters on the Exhibition that the general public have little knowledge of the function and operation of an Exhibition. In the first place it has to be sponsored and operated by an Agricultural Society (Peterborough's is West Peterborough Agricultural Society) in conjunction with the Dept. of Agriculture. Grants on certain types of expenditures are paid by the Dom. Government, Provincial Govt., County, and City provided the Society operates within Government rules and regulations enacted by the Government.

I have read the Morrow Trust on numerous occasions and the Peterborough Exhibition grounds are donated, for a rental fee, by H. A. Morrow as a memorial to his father, the late R. A. Morrow, to the West Peterborough Agricultural Society for its use so long as it is used for an Agricultural Exhibition. Therefore, the main function of the Fair is to create competition in producing the best seed, grains, clovers, live stock, machinery, etc., and extending to take in domestic exhibits, fine arts, etc., therefore, creating a standard of high quality merchandise for the buying public.

Only a few of the public seem to know or realize the time, effort and responsibility a director of the Exhibition leaves himself liable for when he agrees to act and is elected. Your correspondent signed "Pete" can be advised the directors are appointed from the Society Members by nomination and then elected by secret ballot at the Annual Meeting. A person can become a member by paying a membership fee of $1.00; only members may vote. A directorship is an honorary position and no director receives any compensation.

I am sure the Directors of 1952 are more interested in the success of the Fair than any of us. I had hoped that your request for suggestions on improving the Fair would bring some worthwhile letters, but the majority so far appear to be written by mud-slingers. Any person writing letters that have constructive criticism and good suggestions, I am sure, would be welcome but should be published with the writer's name. An anonymous letter is usually one of the vile type and is written with the same idea in mind as the hit-and-run motorist.

The main complaint appears to have been lack of Midway. I personally am not interested in any part of it, but if this part of the show is important, the committee who arranged for the Midway this year were badly let down. Was a proper contract signed? Did the company supply all the equipment and side shows that were contracted for?

With reference to Midways at Exhibitions, the Royal Winter Fair operates without Midway, without vaudeville, and seats have to be bought weeks ahead to see the show. At Peterborough Exhibition we had two six horse teams, several exhibits in light horse division, along with many of the cattle, sheep, swine, and vegetable exhibits which are always among the top prize winners at the Royal Winter Fair. Are the residents of Peterborough and County more interested in gambling, side shows and rides than they are in the God-created stock, the efforts of Agriculture and the Fine Arts?

With reference to horse racing, the main complaint I have heard from Town Folk, as well as Country, is "There wasn't a horse race in the afternoon." This along with the heat, I believe contributed much to lack of attendance in the afternoon. As a matter of fact most of the complaints and knockers I heard were people who had listened to hearsay and had not even attended.

We hear cries to have local talent for vaudeville in front of the Grand Stand. Not one has mentioned the Peterborough Citizen's Band which played every afternoon and evening. Many said the Band was worth the admission to the Grand Stand in itself. I have noted programs sponsored by numerous organizations on many occasions which have been comprised of all local talent, and after the best sales efforts, sufficient tickets were not sold to fill the Collegiate Auditorium, let alone the Peterborough Exhibition Grand Stand. A great Grand Stand attraction is one or two good clowns; the clowns this year were hopeless.

I have heard many comparisons of Peterborough Exhibition and Lindsay Exhibition. I believe Lindsay to be one of the best Fairs in Ontario. There you have a mixed program, vaudeville, horse racing, and exhibits in front of the Grand Stand. There, the same exhibitors display their exhibits of the same high quality (although there are seldom as many extras) but people seem to enjoy it. I believe the main reason is organization.

I was of the opinion, Mr. Editor, that the Peterborough Exhibition dragged and lacked organization. I believe there should be a paid program chairman responsible for the entire program. Each committee would be responsible to this chairman and he in turn would co-ordinate the entire program in such a way that there are no lulls as there were this year at the Exhibition. I might mention that I have been the M.C. at several of the small fairs this past year and the same number of livestock classes, with as many entries, were exhibited in front of the public from 1:30 to 5:30 in one day as at the Peterborough Exhibition in four days. Is our fair drawn out too long?

In summing up the Exhibition I could compare it to a good cake-baker who had spent much of his valuable time, talent and skill in making a good cake, but by lack or organization in the finishing and baking of his product, and buying some poor quality merchandise (the Midway) the cake fell flat.

I hope that more people with constructive criticism will write letters to you under their own names. If so, I will be glad to be at the Annual Meeting and nominate them for the Board for 1953. If they get a seconder and are elected, they must be prepared to sign a note at a local bank if the fair goes in the red, like the men of showmanship mentioned in one letter to your paper.

Yours for a better organization in 1953.

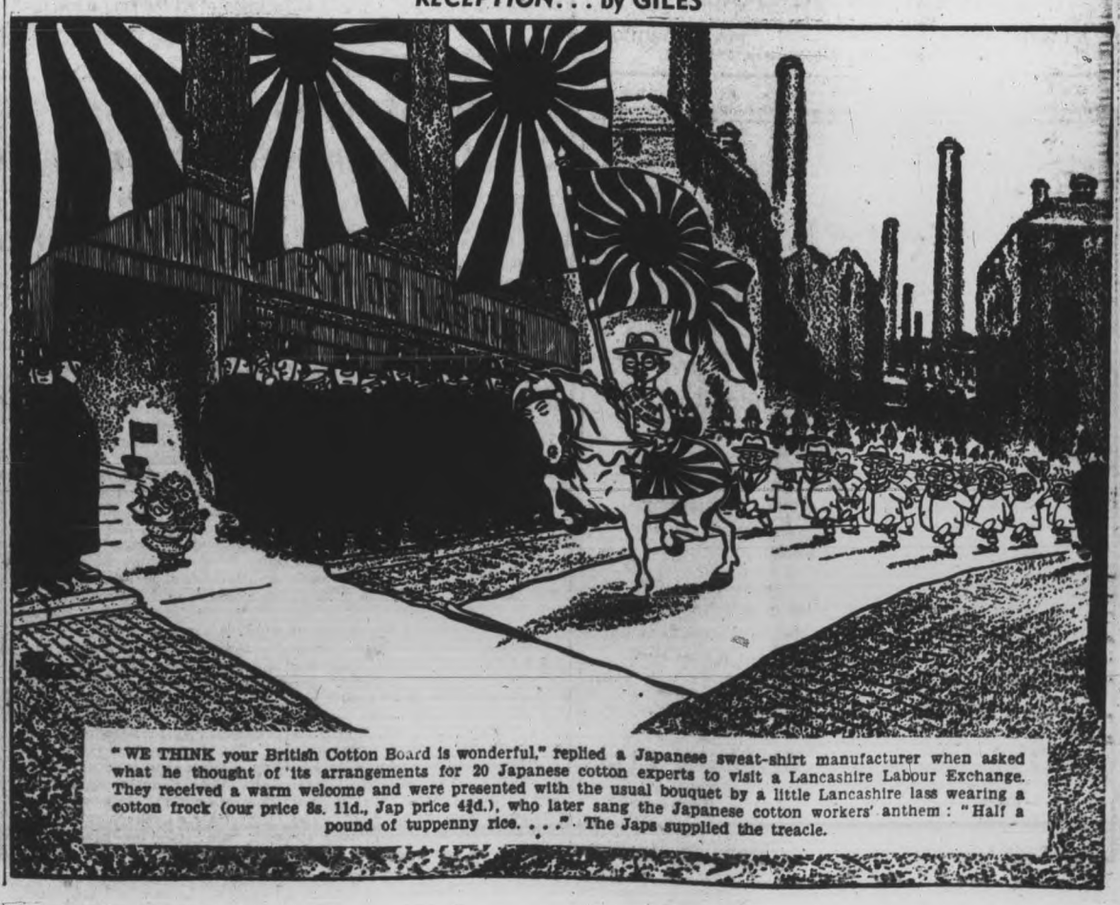
Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)



I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: nothing can be put to it, nor any thing taken from it: and God doeth it, that men should fear before him. That which hath been is now; and that which is to be hath already been; and God requireth that which is past. (Eccl. 3: 14, 15.)

✧ ✧ ✧

The Lord hath brought forth our righteousness: come, and let us declare in Zion the work of the Lord our God. . . : He hath made the earth by his power, he hath established the world by his wisdom, and hath stretched out the heaven by his understanding. (Jer. 51: 10, 15.)

Praise ye the Lord, I will praise the Lord with my whole heart, in the assembly of the upright, and in the congregation. . . . The works of his hands are verity and judgement all his commandments are sure. They stand fast for ever and ever, and are done in truth and uprightness. (Ps. 111: 1, 7, 8.)

RECEPTION. . . by GILES

"WE THINK your British Cotton Board is wonderful," replied a Japanese sweat-shirt manufacturer when asked what he thought of its arrangements for 20 Japanese cotton experts to visit a Lancashire Labour Exchange. They received a warm welcome and were presented with the usual bouquet by a little Lancashire lass wearing a cotton frock (our price 8s. 11d., Jap price 4½d.), who later sang the Japanese cotton workers' anthem: "Half a pound of tuppenny rice. . . ." The Japs supplied the treacle.

A few bird hunters have been phoning in this week to see where they could have specimens stuffed. I couldn't tell them. Have been asking around town on their behalf but, so far, no luck. Miss Elcome on Elcome Cresc., is a taxidermist of fish only. Seems to me this could be a profitable side-line for someone to take up. District hunters so far would not turn much business his way.

♠ ♠ ♠ ♠

Partridge hunters are not doing so well yet, but they have seen a lot of birds, all in plump condition, too. What we call "partridge" in these parts are really grouse, and not "ruffled" but "ruffed." They belong in the same group as Spruce Grouse (deep wet northern woods), the Ptarmigan of the tundra country and Prairie Chicken of the West's wide open spaces.

Bear Facts Bared

Quite a bit of attention was caused by a recent news story in the Examiner about the black bear that was on the loose a little more than a mile from the eastern city limits in the woodlot of Mark Burnham. The bear, by the way, is still at large though some hunters prowled the woods last weekend to track it down.

Said a bus-riding companion the other morning:

"Wish I could catch up with the beast. I love bear meat."

He went into the secret of cooking same. Apparently those who have found the meat strong did not take the precaution to grill steaks or roasts in such a manner that the natural grease drains away from the meat in the cooking process. That's something worth remembering.

The same man claims that he once sold the paws of a beast he had killed to a city Chinaman for $1.50 per paw. He didn't know what the Oriental wanted them for but someone in the know ventured that perhaps the claws were manufactured into some weird medicine or potion. Full of old scratch, eh (Sorry.)

Some other things about bears you may not have heard:

Cubs at birth are smaller in comparison with any other mammal; they weigh from six to eight ounces, are hairless, toothless, blind squealers. When they leave their nest with Mamma, having reached four or five pounds in weight, they are mighty wobbly on their pins but amazing climbers. At this stage they are the most playful of small animals and often get the be-jabers cuffed out of them by the old lady.

Older bears will eat the young of another family as readily as they would eat a fox or some other juicy morsel. They are great fishermen and when fishing is good they have been seen scooping ten or 12 suckers from a creek, first ripping the fish open for the tasty roe before devouring the flesh. In spring, too, bears will eat the bark and gum from balsam trees and dig for roots of Dogtooth violets, thistles, lillies, and so forth.

No one will ever know what gave the dog the beating that broke his right leg and badly lacerated the left front foot. Skip suspects that the dog tangled with a bear or a wolf or two in the Beaverbank Swamp east of the village. The dog is undergoing extensive repairs at Dr. Smith's kennels.

The first fly-tying club in Peterborough is in the process of being organized at this moment by a small group of city enthusiasts. I believe a meeting place has been arranged for and it is the desire of the officers to keep club membership to limited numbers, due chiefly to meeting accommodation space. There will be an expert instructor to show the tricks of the craft. Better get in on this boys and gals; it looks like a pleasant and profitable way to spend offseason evenings, swap ideas, materials and tell fish stories as long as your arm. For application phone Jim English, 5343, or Keith Pilkington, 7458. First meeting, Monday, Oct. 6.

The Priest That Got Away—Too Soon

North Water St. service station owner Johnny Russelle comes up with the best fishing story of the season, for my money. Goes this way:

A clerical friend of Johnny's, Father Frank Nagle of Rochester, came to Peterborough for some of that fabulous 'lunge fishing. Johnny knew all the spots, or should have. So-o-o, they trolled and cast all the likely places on Pigeon Lake and River, Chemong and Buckhorn Lakes for three days. Nary a strike.

The good father was more than disgusted and took off for home by car at 6 a.m. After Johnny saw him away he pushed his boat into the Auburn Reach of the Otonabee River at his front doorstep to think things over and 25 minutes later landed a 20½-pounder.

Greatly elated at breaking the hex he tried to have the highway provost had off the priest en route to Toronto to tell him the news. They didn't intercept him but Johnny is forwarding a photo to prove that his reputation has been saved.

There doesn't seem to be any use to appeal to hunters to use caution. Each weekend newspaper columns' ghastly death toll of highway fatalities are enlarged with stories of accidental shootings. Too many five-day workers, who set themselves up as experts, are afield these days. Nothing against them, mind you, but it is amazing that they do not seriously form shooting clubs through the winter and learn from experts how to handle guns.

Hunters forget, too, fall fire hazard in the woods. How can they tramp through tinder-dry forest floor cover and be careless about fires, matches and cigarette butts amazes me.

Would that they—

Smoked hand-rolled cirgarettes.
Stopped and sat down to smoke.
Used safety lighters only.
Used vacuum bottles instead of lighting lunch fires.
Knew what to do in case of fire.

TUTOR of the Pengelly family of Rice Lake, Joseph Scriven, Dublin University graduate, was author of the world-famous hymn "What a Friend We Have in Jesus"; is buried in the private family graveyard. This stone over his grave was erected by public subscription through the efforts of the Pengelly family and Ontario churchmen.

MISTS OF THE NORTH SHORE OF RICE LAKE cover the interesting past of the Pengelly family, pioneers of that area, who settled on part of a 5,000 land grant originally owned by Sir Isaac Brock, (insert) killed at the Battle of Queenston Heights, War of 1812.

Rice Lake Estates Recall Gen. Brock

By HARRY THEOBALD

The Pengelly farm in South Monaghan, several miles east of Bailieboro and overlooking Rice Lake, is one of many properties in that township, and perhaps farther west, whose deeds of ownership trace to the Crown's grant of 5,000 acres to Sir Isaac Brock.

The registry office at Cobourg, repository of the titles to the lands comprising the united counties of Northumberland and Durham, provide that evidence of original possession in brief entries recording subsequent transfers to the pioneer settlers.

The years of a century and a half, a long time in the history of this young country, have obscured the tenuous association of South Monaghan estates with the name and memory of the Hero of Upper Canada in the war of 1812-14.

Brock's brief career in Ontario suggests that he never set foot on those virgin acres of his which are at least geographically attached to Peterborough county, although separated municipally. Years after his death in action at Queenston Heights, a section of his land fronting on Rice Lake was acquired by Captain Robert Lamport Pengelly, a retired officer of the Royal Navy who arrived at Rice Lake in 1832.

The sale Friday afternoon of livestock and implements at the old homestead of Captain Pengelly, now occupied by third and fourth generations of his descendants, tends to place this central area of Ontario more closely to events that set the destiny of Canada.

DEFENDED CANADA

Perhaps it is a straining for effect and reality, but the Pengelly farm was long ago the property of Isaac Brock, and Brock in Upper Canada and de Salberry in Lower Canada held the border against invading troops from the United States. In that unity, English and French speaking Canadians made a decision in arms for the freedom and the loyalty they wished to keep. And the verdict of those days continues a century and a half later in what the world knows today as the British Commonwealth of Nations.

It doesn't matter now whether Brock ever saw any part of his Central Ontario lands. Fate assigned him no easy and comfortable years of proprietorship. And yet, he was only 43 that October day in the Niagara peninsula engagement, normally with many years of expectancy. It was on October 13th, in 1812, 140 years ago when he fell mortally wounded after a brief career that stamped his name forever in the remembrance of this country.

Brock was 32 that day at the battle of Copenhagen, when Nelson, second in command, made the dramatic gesture of obedience in putting his telescope to his blind eye, and won the day for the British fleet. That was in 1801. The following year he was sent to Canada to take charge of insubordinate troops in the colony.

He remained here until 1805, returned in 1806, later assuming command of the troops in Upper Canada, and also the administrative post of provisional Lieutenant-Governor of what is now Ontario.

ONLY REAL LEADER

In that first year of the U.S. invasion, it is said of Brock that he was the one man on either side who showed real genius of leadership. "Michilimackinac in July, Detroit in August and Queenston in October are his titles to fame and Canadian gratitude forever."

His gift of land from the Crown is said to have been 10,000 acres, half of which was in the Rice Lake area, and the other around Somerville. Date of it was sometime in those short years between 1805 and 1810.

Brock was born on the Island of Guernsey. The Pengelly family is from Fowey on the south coast of Cornwall, traditionally the home of men of the sea, including many an Englishman of the pirate ships that sailed the Spanish Main.

FIRST HOUSE BURNED

These were fancies in the course of the sale of farm goods Friday at the present home of Mrs. James Pengelly, whose husband, grandson of the Naval Captain, died in 1949. The first house he built in 1832 was destroyed by fire in 1848. It was replaced with a brick building, later enlarged.

The service of their country was one of the Pengelly traditions. Captain Robert Lamport Pengelly's father was an officer with Nelson's fleet. He was killed at Palermo and was buried there.

The South Monaghan branch of the family enjoyed long years of pastoral peace. Captain Robert Lamport Pengelly died in 1875, and was buried in the family cemetery, across a sloping field from the farm house. He was succeeded by his son, Theodore Robert Pengelly, whose son Frederick Hardy Pengelly, now 80, enlisted with the 39th Battalion for service overseas with the Canadian Expeditionary Force in the First World War. His brother, Sergeant C. A. Pengelly of Ottawa joined the Canadian Railway Corps and was killed in action July 14, 1917 near Dunkirk. His grave is in Coxyde cemetery, on the French border.

Theodore Robert Pengellys' son, James, succeeded to the ownership of the farm. At his death in 1949 he left his widow and two daughters. Mrs. Pengelly and one daughter tried to work and manage the property until lack of help and consequent personal labor forced upon them the realization that it was too difficult for womens frail ability.

FAMILY CEMETERY

In the family cemetery near the second house on the property which is occupied by Fred Pengelly and his sister, a monument was erected with funds provided by churchmen in memory of Joseph Scriven, author of the hymn, "What a Friend We Have n Jesus".

Joseph Scriven lived years ago at Port Hope. An account of his life was published in the Examiner about the time the cenotaph was erected alongside No. 28 Highway, south of Bewdley. He travelled considerably about the countryside, and lived at the Pengelly home as tutor to the family of Theodore Robert Pengelly.

The cemetery and the grounds around the Fred Pengelly place are kept trim and attractive in grass and flowers. Once there was a chapel adjoining it, evidence of the place of religion and worship in the family's way of life.

This is only a sketch from the available material, an outline that misses the incidents, the journeyings of the Pengellys in their youth, and collateral aspects through the years since 1832. The homestead is a scenic place with a broad and far view of Rice Lake, its islands and the Northumberland shore to the south.

A numerous flock of sheep grazed in its seeded pasturage, and cattle ruminated in a farther field until the last roundup for the sale Friday on the farm that first entered in the registry records in the name of Sir Isaac Brock.

THE OLDEST PENGELLY HOME — The original was burned—has been occupied by four generations of the family, from the original Capt. Robert Lamport Pengelly, R. N., to present owner Mrs. James Pengelly; implements and stock were sold at a sale on Friday.

The Birds of Prey Migrate

By MILLER STEWART

The colonists from the British Isles who settled Canada and the United States weren't naturalists. So, in naming wild creatures of America, they frequently left us in an awful tangle. They applied Old Country names to birds and beasts that had some slight resemblance to their European counterparts; the robin, redstart, and blackbird are familiar examples. And apparently all day-flying birds of prey were called hawks—if they were big enough, chicken hawks.

For some reason, they forgot many fine old English names for birds of prey, so they called harriers "marsh hawks"; peregrines "duck hawks"; the kestrel, "pigeon hawks". The medium sized birds of prey are called in England, buzzards, but here we call the vultures or carrion eaters, buzzards. Its all very confusing, because types aren't very clearly fixed in public usage.

FALL FLIGHTS

But what I want to write about here are the very spectacular fall flights of buzzard hawks—to combine both terms—that are forming in our country as I write. The bulk of these southward migrations are made up of broad-winged hawks—(a small buzzard that lives in the dry spruce forests of the north all summer); and of the larger, rough-legged hawks who prey on the lemmings and mice of the tundra. The red-tailed hawks, the red-shouldered hawks of our woodlots, the ospreys (or fish hawks) of our lakeland and the bird-catching accipiters (sharp shins, Cooper's, and Goshawks) join with the merlins, kestrels and peregrines in these spectacular southward flights. All of these birds of prey seem to sneak north in the Spring in small parties, but in the Fall they assemble in great hosts that make up one of the greatest brid spectacles in the world.

The paths taken by these flights follow very definite routes, and there are certain well-known vantage points where they can be seen every year. There may also be many places where these flights pass that are not yet widely known.

On the north shore of Lake Erie, a few miles south of London, Ontario, is one hawk flight ground that I know well. At this point last year on September 26 and 27, observers saw 20,000 broad-winged hawks, 500 sharpshins, 300 Cooper's, 400 Merlins, 10 harriers, 1 goshawk, 1 osprey, and 21 bald eagles. Many quite active bird watchers won't see that many brids of prey in a lifetime.

ABOUT SIZE OF CROWS

The broadwinged buzzard hawks who make up the bulk of the migrating birds on the days of the "big flights", are small chunky buzzards about the size of a crow. The field-marks most used in identifying them are the black and white banded stubby tail, and the short, broad wings. They migrate in great soaring flocks which rise in columns from a height of 500 feet or so, up until the birds are barely visible from the ground. These flocks wheel and soar in lofty columns, circling like a swarm of immense bees. They fly with almost no exertion, only an accasional flap of the wing—they let the wind and thermal currents do the rest.

The broadwings must marshal into these flocks somewhere in the north. They spend the summer and rear their broods in the northern evergreen forests, and winter from Florida deep into the forests of tropical Central America. The great migrating flocks pass through in two or three huge flights, and move when the wind blows strongly out of the northwest.

The true hawks — the short-winged accipters—sharp shins and Cooper's, pass through at the rate of several hundred a day, spread over a period of weeks. These raptorial hawks fly directly across the sky, with several short, quick wingbeats and a fast flap-flap-sail. They all have short rounded wings, with long, narrow tails, and they differ only in size, with th goshawk largest, and the sharp-shinned little bigger than a kestrel. Their prey is mixed, rodents and birds.

SUPREME ARTISTS OF FLIGHT

The merlins, kestrels, and peregrines too, pass through over a period of weeks, and of course they cross the field of vision with the quick, powerful strokes of the falcon tribe. It is in these migration flights that you realize what supreme artists of flight the falcons are—because they seem to fly twice as fast as the other migrants, with no apparent effort. They have a business-like way of going about their migrating, as they have about securing their prey.

The harriers or march hawks, the red tails, ospreys and eagles migrate over a wide front, and are not confined to the narrow corridor of flight that some ancestral pattern seems to hold the buzzards and falcons to.

But there are other day-flying migrants, who follow the same route. Several years ago, I spent every possible autumn weekend on the bird cliffs. It was our practice for each member of the party to take a variety of bird and count the number passing

Your Garden:

Early Fall Is Time To Plant Evergreens

By HENRY PREE.

Now is the time to prepare pits and beds for autumn planting of evergreens which, if we get a soaking rain or two, can be done with safety during the next six weeks.

The best time to transplant the evergreens is in early fall after the new growth has ripened. Planting at that time gives the plants time to become established before freezing weather.

The best soil for evergreens is a good loam, well drained, but containing sufficient humus to make it retentive of moisture. Manure is always welcome and should be well mixed with the soil. Do not place a layer of manure on the bottom of the holes. To do so invites trouble.

Rhododendrons, mountain laurel, azaleas, leucothoe and pirris are the more commonly planted evergreens and demand a well-drained acid soil. If your garden soil is not acid enough, its acidity can be increased by adding sulphur at the rate of three pounds per 100 square feet.

That would mean about three heaping tablespoons to the soil about the average plant. Merely adding sulphur will not provide a congenial home for these evergreens. The soil should be composed of equal parts of gravel, loam and humus-forming materials, like peat moss, old manure, leaf mold or rotted hardwood sawdust. It should be at least a foot in depth.

Aheaping cupful of a 4-12-4 fertilizer mixed with the soil will supply sufficient plant nutrients until next spring, when a half cupful of fertilizer should be cultivated into the soil about each plant. This goes for all types of plants, evergreens or deciduous.

Plant evergreens no deeper than they formerly grew — even an inch or two higher is better.

The old gardener is rather keen about cottonseed meal as a fertilizer and because it tends to acidify the soil recommends working a cupful into the soil about each plant.

The hole for evergreens should be dug twice as wide as the root system of the plant and be certain that there is drainage at the bottom of the hole. Set the burlapped plant in carefully, no deeper in soil than it formerly grew. An inch or two higher is better as the plant is bound to settle.

Untie the burlap, open and spread it out, fill in with good soil, firming it with a stake as you back-fill, and then water thoroughly. Be sure the earth is well settled as to leave no air pockets. Then spread an inch or so of peat moss or similar mulch on the surface to prevent evaporation of moisture from the roots.

Spray the foliage if the weather is warm, windy or dry, and make certain that the soil is wet but not soggy.

The drying of evergreens is a common cause for loss, for they have a smaller root system, compared with the large leaf area which is constantly giving off moisture.

Gardening Questions

Q.—Are the chemicals used for killing lawn and garden weeds harmful to humans and animals?

A.—2, 4-D, the most famous of the hormones used in destroying broad-leaved weeds like plantain and dandelion, is harmless to man and his animals. Potassium Cyanate, used effectively in killing crabgrass, is likewise harmless. However, there may be some doubt about the safety of phenyl mercuric acetate, likewise used to kill crabgrass.

Q.—What treatment should be given now to rose cuttings taken this summer and which apparently have taken root.

A.—They should be hardened off before winter sets in. Remove the glass jars to accustom them plants to the changes in temperature. In November, before the ground freezes, heap sand or sandy soil well above and about the plants for winter protection. Uncover about April 1.

THERE'S NO LOVE LOST between the Peterborough Timbermen and Toronto Yorks in the lacrosse series for the Eastern Canada title. The Yorks fought back again Friday night for a 10-5 win, but the woodsmen hold a 3-2 lead on games in the series. The majority of fans notice only the standout plays, and only a few spot the smaller, but sometimes more significant plays and rough work. Whenever there's a highsticking duel, someone usually gets a nasty rap. Sticks fly high (above) as Dootch Vitarelli (3) crashes a fist in a York face while Don Ashbee (10) applies the hip. The Yorker, to say the least, was slightly jarred by the blow.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Toronto Yorks Beat Petes By A Score Of 10 to 5 To Narrow Eastern Series

A disappointed crowd of 3,000 senior lacrosse fans at Miller Bowl last night saw Toronto West Yorks dump the Petes' Timbermen 10-5 to narrow the gap in the Eastern Canada final series to one game. The Petes still lead 3-2, with the sixth game in Mimico on Monday. A seventh game, if necessary, is slated for neutral grounds, unless the clubs tossup for one of their home floors. The Timbermen came up with one of their poorer games while the Yorks turned in a solid effort throughout. They had brilliant net-minding all the way by George Johnston, close and effective checking in every heat, and they fought in there to outhustle the homesters and score enough goals for the verdict. They finished strong for a 4-1 margin in the fourth after leading 2-0 in the first, 5-2 at halftime and 6-4 to end the third.

NO PROTECTION

Goalie Moon Wootton got little protection from his mates, who were loose in their checking and didn't click up to form on passing attacks. Several of the goals scored on the Moon were the result of careless checking in front of him to let rivals around defence and right in on the goal for a hot shot. The refereeing was good, and Yorks drew six of the 11 penalites. Apart from a brief fight late in the tilt, in which Harry Wipper and Les Digby drew majors, it was a clean contest.

Jim McNulty led the victors with three goals, two each going to Jack Kapasky and Ken Croft, and singles to Johnny Hewitt, Les Digby and Stu Scott. Leo Teatro helped on three, with two assists apiece garnered by Scotty McPhail, Bruce Webster and Nick Ferri. Every man on the Toronto team hustled all through, and Johnston in the cage was the individual star of the tussle.

ALL SINGLES

The Petes' goals were by Harry Wipper, Don Ashbee, Russ Slater, ou Nickle and Curly Mason. The latter, Nickle, Slater, Nip O'Hearn and Bob Thorpe each had an assist. The local squad missed Ike Hildebrand, away for hockey training. They had an even share of the play till out in the third, but couldn't fool Johnston.

Yorks struck first when Digby scored on a forward pass from Ferri, after the latter intercepted a Petes' pass at the other end of the pitch, Digby rolling right in on Wootton. Joe McNulty later drew an interference penalty and was off when Kapasky scored from Teatro. They were stalling around to kill time but suddenly shook Kapasky loose and he waltzed in without a check. Thorpe got it next for slashing but both he and McNulty were back when Scott and O'Hearn roughed it a bit to draw two minor sentences.

SCORES A QUICKIE

Wipper opened the second quarter fast with a hot shot on Mason's corner passout to whittle the count, but Croft got it right back on neat close-in combination with Teatro and Webster. Ashbee went over for slashing, and Hewitt followed for a similar sin. Don was back when Digby got the nod for cross-checking as play livened up. Later Burns hit the trail for tripping, and he was still off when Ashbee blazed an angle drive in on a passing play with Nickle and Slater. Scott roared back to get one for Toronto as he shook loose with Ferri's pass to go in unmolested and sink it. Near the close of the frame, Hewitt jogged around two defenders to blast one by the Moon without a stick being laid on the attacker. It was 5-2 then.

Jim McNulty added one early in the third from Teatro on a hard side shot inside. Mason took a long forward from O'Hearn and cuffed a quickie into the twine on the run. Digby was gated for charging and Nickle scored on a free shot to narrow it to 6-4 and cheer the disgruntled fans up some. The Petes pressed hard in this heat but Johnston was almost unbeatable.

Croft started Yorks off right again in the fourth with a bouncer from the side after Webster's pass. Toronto checked tenaciously and stalled as much as possible as the Timbermen pressed for a space. Jim McNulty finally sifted around defence to whistle the ball home. The Petes missed several passes on rushes, but Slater finally got one more for them on Thorpe's pass, leaning on a hard one into the mesh. Jim McNulty took McPhail's pass on a breakaway to pull further ahead. Wipper and Digby tangled in a corner and were chased for the rest of the tilt with majors. Just to rub it in, Kapasky scored in the final half-minute of the game with McPhail's pass.

Orfuns Smother Kingston In a Four-Point Fray To Move Into Tie For Top

Tony Kotowski's football Orfuns journeyed to Kingston Friday night for a four-point tilt with Lieutenant Fred Chess' Limestone squad and displayed remarkable speed, skill and opportunism to smother the R.C.E.M.E. boys by the fantastic score of 82-0. This victory, coupled with last week's thrilling triumph over Cobourg, places the hustling, harmonious Kotowski men up with Oshawa Raiders whom they meet here next week.

Leading the Peterborough attack in a game that saw every Orfun doing his full share, was skilful Jim Milligan, erstwhile Orillia pasing star, whose unerring arm threw deadly passes—12 in all, nine completed, five for direct major scores and the others a potent factor in an unbroken and shattering Orfun offensive, from start to finish. Milligan's longest toss came in the second quarter when he faded to his own 38 yard line and threw a 50-yard liner to Clive Naismith, who with his star mate Don McGillis, never faltered. Clive snatched the pill and took it home from the enemy 12; it was a great play. In the air as on the ground, Kingston had little success against Orfuns powerful defensive system; they attempted 10 forwards but completed only one. So effective was the victors' attack on the ground for first downs, Armstrong's toe was seldom used save on converts; whereas Kingston's best efforts accomplished little, despite Eric Rank's sturdy hoof. Incidentally, the hefty backfielder was the one possible star, of a lost cause.

BIG GROUND GAINS

Buster Jensen, who with Army Armstrong (both former collegiate stars) made some ground gains, scored Orfs first major early in the first as he burst like a rocket around right end from the K 30, eluding all pursuers. Gord Beatty, veteran star lineman, converted from placement. Five minutes later, Orfuns again hit pay dirt after a smashing attack—as fleet "Rabbit" White drove through centre 12 yards across the line; and again Beatty's convert jelled.

Smelling four more points in the offing, the men of Kotowski really opened up and as a Kingston lateral failed at quarter's end on the home doorstep, Orfs gained possession and Armstrong cracked through on first down; but the convert missed the uprights.

INTERCEPTS ONE

Jim Wilde next intercepted a forward pass and ran 32 yards for an unconverted maojr, the while the entire Orfun brigade were blocking like fiends and playing heads up football, with few penalties. A Milligan to McGillis pass brought Orfs close and seconds later "Bounce" Howe who played well, fell on a loose ball in the rival boneyard.

Two more majors by Don McGillis on Milligan passes, then the amazing Naismith play aforementioned with Army's successful conversions gave Peterborough a comfortable 44-0 margin at the half-mile post.

The second half could be written off as similar and Bob White, Naismith, D. McGillis in the third; and Bob Wilde, Hank Russelle, Armstrong and Johnny Berry in the fourth, all scored majors with three complete, to end the rout.

Kingston made several changes in their lineup for this important game; but to no avail as Peterborough combined youth and speed with a good array of experienced gridders to show Kingston fans brilliant football.

Kingston: Flying wing, Procenko; halfes, Faulkner, Bonnefant, Darling; quarter, Ritchie; snap, Nunn; insides, Fox, Pickering; middles, Orme, Glover; outsides, McDonald, Martin; alts., Aubrey, Chapman, Hebert, MacIntosh, Fuller, Ross, MacMillan, Chess Rank, Wooley, Hargraves, Whalen, Sneddon, Byrnes, Coughlin, Sproule.

Petes: Flying wing, White; halves, Armstrong, Jensen, J. White; quarter, Milligan; snap, Newark; insides, Ouellette, Fitzgerald; middles, Beavis, Beatty; outsides, D. McGillis, Naismith; alts., Howe, De Carlo, Berthelot, Russelle, Hodson, W. K. Thompson, Huntley, Wasson.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

A piece in the Port Hope paper says that Jack Reeves of the Cobourg grid Ghosts has received an offer to play hockey this winter in Holland. He is undecided about accepting it, playing for the Belleville senior "B" Redmen—would he be Huck Reeves?—or staying in Cobourg for lakeshore ice action. Anyway, it seems that they're going in more for hockey in the land of the Dutch dikes and plan to use two or three Canadian players on each team to teach the Hollanders the fine points of hockey. Our winter game is gradually growing into a prominent sport in various countries throughout the world. Countries cold enough for ice, that is.

Which reminds us that Ford Loucks, on a visit here recently from Quebec, told us something of Jean Marc Beliveau. It appears that big Jean is about the most popular young man in all Quebec now. This fabulous figure in hockey actually has a bigger following than Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadians. Latter N.H.L. club has Jean on its list and could force him to play for Canadiens—where he would be a real star and a huge attraction. But Canadiens don't dare for fear of antagonizing many thousands in Quebec, not to mention a senator or two. So Beliveau goes his own sweet way, playing amateur (?) hockey for Quebec Aces and drawing down more money that he could make in the N.H.L., counting his large salary and various sidelines.

Dyte To Head Terriers

Jack Dyte has signed as playing-coach of Orillia Terriers, who will oppose the Petes in senior "B" hockey this coming campaign. The Terriers have also signed two Barries players, Lloyd Pearsall and Danny MacDonald. Dyte is a husky defenceman, with a lot of pro experience behind him. Feelers are out for several more newcomers to bolster Terry Gordon, Murray Richardson, Ab Bowen and the rest, who played against the champ Stouffville late winter. With a swell new arena, Orillia looks for a successful hockey season. The club will sport two sets of uniforms, one away and one for home games. Their home games are on Saturdays, a break for the Petes.

Let us bow our heads and shed a few tears today. West Yorks didn't read the script or do what they were supposed to do before an audience of some 3,000 lacrosse customers here last p.m. at all. In fact they proved to be lacrosse leeches of a poisonous nature, sticking most effectively to the Timbermen in a whale of a checking display. And they cashed in on some careless defensive work by the Petes to take a 10-5 win. Goalie George Johnston had to be brilliant, at that, or it would have been much closer. Moon Wootton didn't get the same protection. An off night for the locals, and they'll really have to hustle Monday in Mimico or there'll be a seventh game—probably on neutral grounds. Petes only lead the eastern finals now by 3-2 and those Yorkers are very tough. Did something recently no other club could in two years by beating the Timbermen twice here in one season.

Collegians Looked Okay

A brighter picture was unfolded on the Riverside gridiron last gloaming when Bev Goulding's senior P.C.V.S. pack racked up a 40-0 group victory o'er the Oshawa Combines of two collegiates in the Motor City. A strong line had much to do with the win, plus an alert backfield, and the Garnet and Greys promise to be plenty potent once more after a rebuilding job. Oshawa appeared pretty inexperienced, at that. The junior joust was a good one, Oshawa and Al McQuarrie's Collegiate crew battling to a scoreless draw. Locals could have won by kicking for singles several times, but tried for the bigger counts. Stew Brooks turned in a nifty hoofing and running display for P.C.V.S.

Local Orfuns ran roughshod over Kingston Tanks in the Limestone City last e'en to pump out an 82-0 intermediate O.R.F.U. win Yes, it was 82-0 if the old adding machine didn't slip a cog or two. A sound grid chore by Tony Kotowski's charges on the one hand and an ineffectual effort by the army chaps on the other made for the one-sided score. Tanks lack coaching and knowledge of fundamentals. Orfuns' veterans, along with those classy Orillia additions and such speedy youngsters as Armstrong, Jensen and Beavis, rolled relentlessly through the Tanks' shaky defence, whilst Jim Milligan completed nine of 12 fine passes, five going directly for majors. They led 44-0 at the half as everyone got in on the deal in a heads-up performance. The win ties Orfuns for top spot, and they tackle Oshawa Raiders here next Friday.

P.C.V.S. Seniors Capture Opener Over Oshawa As Junior Squads End 0-0

Steam-rolling along the ground and flying through the air, Bev Goulding's P.C.V.S. Garnet and Greys smothered an inexperienced Oshawa Collegiate's Combines team 40-0 Friday night at Riverside park. In the first game, which opened the collegiate football season, the Garnet and Grey juniors, coached by Al McQuarrie, played to a scoreless tie with Oshawa C.V.I. Both games were league play. Much of the credit for the seniors' win was due to the line which charged on the attack, opening gaping holes in the green Oshawa line. Through these holes Murray Grafstein, Spin Hope, Jack Corbett, Don Scriver, Dave Langhorne and others poured through time and time again for lengthy gains.

Oshawa bettered the Garnet and Grey in the passing department but couldn't cash in for a major score. Quarter Keith Sutherland opened up the second half with a passing attack to Ron Harris and Nig Carnwith with spreads and short passes over the line. But twice in that half, Corbett intercepted passes which helped stem the air attack of the red, gold and green.

GOOD KICKING

Spin Hope's lofty kicks, also some by former junior Corbett, helped the P.C.V.S. cause, pushing the Motor City squad deep into their own end. Ron Harris' kicking was only fair, considering the whole Garnet and Grey line surged through often; a couple of high snaps didn't help either in the second half.

A 22-yard dash by Scriver started P.C.V.S. away in the first quarter. Langhorne, Grafstein and Hope carried the ball up to the Oshawa line where Scriver plunged across. Langhorne converted for a 6-0 score.

A blocked kick late in the first set the Garnet and Grey up, for their first score in the second quarter. Again P.C.V.S. rolled along the ground with Scriver, Grafstein and Langhorne carrying, finally Grafstein scoring the touchdown and Langhorne converting.

SHOVED BACK

Minutes later a kick by Corbett shoved Oshawa back to the touchline. Harris' kick went only to the 35 of Oshawa; there Corbett was roughed and 15 yards awarded P.C.V.S. Bob Craw then zig-zagged to the one-yard line where Corbett went over easily for a major and Langhorne converted.

From the kick-off Harris fumbled, the ball bouncing into Craw's hands at the Oshawa 40. Barry Hollingsworth ran for 12; again Oshawa received a roughing penalty of 15 yards. This set Corbett up for his second major which went unconverted for a 23-0 score at the half.

USED PASSES

The Garnet and Grey opened the second half with a passing attack, first Langhorne to Grafstein for 22 yards, then after two plunges, a Hope pass to Bob Craw in touch territory for a five-pointer.

Just before the third quarter ended Hope punted to Sutherland behind the line; he fumbled and Ted Sanders recovered on the Oshawa one-yard line. On a quick opener Langhorne scored; he also converted, making the score 34-0.

Late in the fourth a bad snap which sailed over Oshawa's Fisher's head on the third down gave P.C.V.S. possession on the Oshawa one-yard line again. Scriver scored easily, Corbett converting for the 40th point.

JUNIORS GOOD

Outlook for P.C.V.S. junior football looks good as they featured good running and kicking in their scoreless duel with Oshawa. Several times the Garnet and Grey could have kicked for single points, but chose to gamble for a major score.

P.C.V.S. worked well under quarterback Terry Roberts who is known primarily for his basketball. But Stewart Brooks, a newcomer, swept all the glory with a standout running and kicking game. His punts which were a good match for any in the senior game gave P.C.V.S. an edge on the day.

On the ground Dave Coit was strong along with Ross MacKenzie, Bob McKinney and Bob Keating. The line was fair, weak on the tackling especially in the first half, but strengthened later.

A 50-yard punt by Brooks set the Garnet and Grey in scoring position in the late stages of the first qparter as Oshawa's kicking failed. The P.C.V.S. squad worked to the 10-yard line but were stopped when trying for a major score.

PASSED UP SINGLES

P.C.V.S kept Oshawa inside the 25-yard line practically throughout the second quarter, thanks to plunges by McKinney and Brooks. But they couldn't score. Twice near half-time the Garnet and Grey could have kicked to deadline for points but didn't.

The second half followed a similar pattern, the Garnet and Grey keeping the Oshawa team hemmed in, but they didn't take the opportunities for single points, which would have been enough to win.

Pennant Means Costly Shave

CLEVELAND (AP).—A pennant for New York Yankees concerned no one more than bearded tavern owner Lloyd Culp. A shave for at least another baseball season would cost him $400.

Culp, 40, started the beard in May, 1951, when he bet businessman Tommy O'Toole $400 he wouldn't shave until the Indians took a flag. Now, glancing at the beard, he thinks about 1953.

In 16 months the beard has grown heavy and black to a 10-inch length.

"Keeping a beard is not an easy task," Culp told a reporter yesterday. "I have to wash it ev y other day or it itches, and I'm all the time getting it caught in things."

Confed And Grove Tie

In a recent Public School senior soccer match, Confederation beat King Edward 4-1. It was 2-1 for them in the first half in the scrambly play, with the second half much better as positional plays marked the action. Confederation scored two more, but King Edward was pressing near the finish as the game was fast and a little rugged. Ferguson, Doleman and Rollins shone for the winners. Teams:

Confederation— Rollins, Overholt, Warner, Doleman, Brown, G. Kimball, Ferguson, Freelove, J. Kimball, Steele, Trotter, Moffat, Moore, Quick.

K. E. — Waldie, Livingston, Murduff, Heard, Markwick, Elmsley, W. Rowe, R. Rowe, Walling, Tushingham, Warner, McCullough, Jones.

Referees — H. Wilson and W. Dawson.

Confederation Wins

Grove and Confederation tied 1-1 in senior school soccer on Friday in a fast, rather rough encounter, with some fine passing and kicking seen. Hargreaves scored in the first on a dribble which the goalie kicked at and missed. Confederation had more play in the second but could only notch one toward the end when J. Kimball booted in Steele's passout. Doleman Overholt, Merrett, Simmons and Hargreaves all shone. Teams:

Grove: Davey, Keene, Merrett, Griffin, Casey, Patterson, Hargreaves, R. Wood, Simmons, Sherry, Copping, Heard, Duncan, L. Wood.

Confed.: Rollins, Overholt, Warner, Brown, Doleman, G. Kimball, Ferguson, J. Kimball, Freelove, Steele, Trotter, Moore, Moffat, Quick.

Referees, V. Cunningham and L. Bird.

Ghosts Beat Raiders

OSHAWA (CP).—Cobourg Galloping Ghosts last night blanked Oshawa Red Raiders 10-0 to move into a tie with Peterborough for the lead in the intermediate Ontario Rugby Football Union series. Red Alexander started the scoring in the first quarter with a field goal. In the third session Don Hatt passed to Boyd Hendry who went over the line for a touchdown. Art Jones converted. Later in the quarter, Jones scored a single.

Yankees Clinch League Pennant

By RALPH RODEN, Associated Press Sports Writer

World series foes, for the first time in five years, will be well rested when the 1952 classic opens in Brooklyn next Wednesday. New York Yankees made that certain last night when they defeated Philadelphia Athletics 5-2 in 11 innings to clinch their fourth straight American League flag and their 19th in the last 32 years.

The Dodgers have been taking things easy since Tuesday when they nailed down the National League pennant. Not since 1947 when the Yanks and Dodgers breezed home have pennant races in both leagues been decided before the final game.

Last year the Dodgers and New York Giants wound up the regular season tied for top honors and the miracle Giants went on to cop a best out of three playoff series to win the pennant. In 1950 Philadelphia clinched the National League pennant on the last day of the season.

In 1949 both the Yanks and Dodgers won their pennants on the final day of the season. In 1948 Cleveland captured the American League pennant by beating Boston in a one-game playoff.

TIE RECORD

The Yanks tied a record in baggetting their fourth straight championship. Only other teams to win four consecutive championships were John McGraw's Giants of 1921-24 and Joe McCarthy's Yanks of 1936-1939.

Billy Martin was the man of the hour for the Yanks. The scrappy infielder singled with the bases loaded and two out in the 11th to break a 2-2 tie. A third run scored on an error.

Home runs accounted for the game's other runs. Irv Noren and Mickey Mantle connected for the Yanks off Harry Byrd, the A's strong-armed rookie righthander. Gus Zernial drove in both Philadelphia runs with a four-bagger off Ed Lopat in the sixth inning.

Lopat was in hot water throughout the game, yielding 11 hits. He was relieved by Johnny Sain with two out in the ninth. Brilliant fielding, especially by Phil Rizzuto and Noren, saved Lopat.

In the other other American League games, rookie Hershel Freeman pitched Boston Red Sox to a 3-1 victory over Washington and Saul Rogovin hurled Chicago White Sox to a 6-2 two-hit triumph over St. Louis.

The Dodgers tuned up for the series by beating Boston Braves, 8-4. The Brooks used most of their scrubs but the lone regular who played the entire game, Billy Cox, had a big hand in the victory. Cox knocked in three runs in a homer and single.

The triumph gave the Yanks a three-game lead over the runner-up Indians and made it impossible for the Tribe to overhaul the Bombers as both teams have only two games left to play.

In other National League games, the Giants trounced Philadelphia, 8-0, Cincinnati downed Pittsburgh, 5-0, and St. Louis swamped Chicago 10-3.

Stengel Has Trouble Keeping Secret

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Casey Stengel, triumphant pilot of the four-time American League pennant-winning New York Yankees, was trying his darndest today to keep secret his opening day World Series pitcher against Brooklyn Dodgers. But he was doing a bad job of it.

Stengel, despite characteristic doubletalk, gave every indication that the pitcher in game No. 1 Wednesday will be Allie Reynolds, the Yankees' only 20-game winner.

"I'm not sure yet," was the cagey old manager's reply to the query last night. "There are a lot of factors to be considered. First, the fellow has to be the most rested. Second, he has to be my strongest, most durable. Third, he should be my best, the most dependable."

THAT'S REYNOLDS

These qualifications fit Reynolds to a "T." With Vic Raschi due to hurl a few innings in tomorrow's finale against the Athletics here, Reynolds figures to be the most rested member of the Big Three which includes Raschi and Eddie Lopat. Allie defeated the Red Sox in Boston Thursday night. Lopat pitched yesterday.

Reynolds, 34-year-old righthander has been the big man of the pitching staff, getting the most important assignments and winning the big games. Besides the 20-8 won and lost record, he leads the league in strikeouts and owns the best earned-run record of any pitcher.

TOYING WITH SWITCH

Chuck Dressen is toying with a unique switch of his Brooklyn pitching staff for the opener—Joe Black to start and Preacher Roe in the bullpen.

Dressen isn't yet ready to name a starter for Wednesday. He'll wait until Monday.

But he hints that Black may be the man.

"I had Preach warm up before the game," he said in the clubhouse after yesterday's game. "He said his back was fine. Told me he could pitch one day and relieve two days later."

"Carl Erskine told me the same thing. That was what I wanted to know. I didn't have to ask Black. He's always ready every day."

Dressen said he would prefer to pitch the left-handed Roe with his control stuff and home run ball in the Yankee Stadium where fielders have a better chance to catch long fly balls. But the Preach hasn't appeared in a game since Sept. 19 at Boston. That would make him available to open in Brooklyn.

"If I start Black I may have two men in the bullpen," said Dressen. "Roe could relieve if we needed him and still come back for the first game in the Stadium."

The Birds Of Prey

through for an hour. Bluejays were going over in great noisy flocks, flying from each clump of wood to the next, stopping to rest and chatter even if the interval between woods was only a scant furlong or so. We estimated that they were passing through at the rate of 700 per hour, and that the flight continued for over three weeks.

American goldfinches were going through for all of this period at a rate of about 500 per hour. And below the level of the cliff, we suddenly discovered that ruby-throated humming birds were passing through at a rate we estimated at some seventy per hour. This, the tiniest of all birds, (it's an inch shorter than a house wren), makes the great journey from Northern Canada to Mexico with its tiny wings beating at a rate of 55 to 75 beats per second, a confused blur that the eye can hardly follow. The most incredible thing about its migration is that it is known to cross the Gulf of Mexico non-stop, an open-seas crossing of 500 miles.

There are other points on these great migration flyways where concentrations of migrating birds are to be seen in both Canada and the United States. At Scarborough Bluffs on Lake Ontario, just east of Toronto, the hawks, buzzards and falcons pass through. At Hawks Mountain in the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania, there is a well-endowed observation sanctuary, where these flights can be studied.

Last year I saw one column of broadwinged hawks pass over Sturgeon Lake at a great altitude. I have seen such columns at Holland Landing, and I have a hunch that at least part of these hawks pass along the Kawartha route, if we only keep an eye out for them.

Chicago Picks Up Laprade For Waiver Price Of $7,500

GUELPH (CP). — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League yesterday advised New York Rangers that Edgar Laprade, a Ranger star for several seasons, has been picked up by Chicago Black Hawks for the waiver price of $7,500.

The announcement took Ranger Manager Frank Boucher by surprise.

"Only the night before I was assured by Laprade that he was coming back to us," he said. "I asked him to return when Don Raleigh broke his wrist. Laprade said he would fix up his business and be with us in a few days. And then today I get a telegram about this waiver business."

Laprade decided to give up hockey this season and concentrate on a business in Port Arthur.

During one point of the negotiations, Laprade notified Boucher that he would like to have his amateur status restored. But Boucher replied that this could not be done because Rangers had invested too much money in him.

Laprade finally signified his intention to be placed on the voluntary retired list and Boucher gave his consent.

The normal way a player is traded on a waiver is that the team wishing to trade puts up the player. Then the lowest team in the league the previous season has first bid. If the lowest team doesn't want the player, the second lowest has the privilege. In this case, Boucher said, the Rangers did not put Laprade on the waiver list. Boucher said Campbell committed an error in requesting waivers.

Rangers will appeal Campbell's ruling, Boucher said.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

GUELPH (CP)—New York Rangers announced yesterday that four of their regulars, defencemen Allan Stanley and Jim Ross and forwards Paul Ronty and Jack Stoddard, have signed their contracts.

They are the first players to come to terms with Manager Frank Boucher while the team is in training here for its National Hockey League opener with the Red Wings in Detroit Oct. 9.

Stanley and Ross formed a successful backline combination last season until Stanley suffered a shoulder separation. Ronty, after a slow start in his first year with the Rangers, wound up as the team's third leading scorer. Stoddard, obtained in mid-season from Providence, is a strong candidate for a right-wing berth.

NORTH BAY (CP).—Critical views of pre-season exhibition hockey games were voiced here by Detroit Red Wing players on their way to Pembroke for their sixth and seventh exhibition matches with Chicago Black Hawks.

Injuries, penalties and fights have marked the exhibition tour of Northern Ontario since is started at New Liskeard Sept. 18. Hawk player Jim Enio suffered a fractured cheekbone and concussion, Red Wings' Ted Lindsay received a cut over one eye in a tangle, while other casualties included Chicago's Bill Mosienko and Fred Hucul and Detroit's Gordie Howe.

"We could lose a player like Howe in these exhibitions," Lindsay said. "Chicago could lose three or four and it wouldn't be as bad as us losing Howe."

Another Detroit player said his club was talked into going on tour by Bill Tobin, Chicago general manager, but Tommy Ivan, Detroit coach, "sure doesn't want any more of them."

In one game Lindsay clashed with his old Detroit linemate, Sid Abel, now coaching Chicago. Abel jumped on the ice to try to break up a fight and tangled with Lindsay.

Wings Hold Hawks To Scoreless Draw

PEMBROKE (CP). — Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings fought to a scoreless draw last night in a pre-season exhibition game. The outcome left the National Hockey League champions with a one-game edge in their Northern Ontario series against the Hawks.

The Red Wings have won two, tied three and lost one. The two teams meet here again tonight in the arena which has been Chicago's training camp.

Biggest cheers went to the two netminders, Detroit's Terry Sawchuk and Chicago's Al Rollins. In the second period Rollins stopped three hard drives in a row and minutes later got a glove on John Wilson's long shot through a maze of players.

A third-period fracas touched off a scrap among fans for a short time. Al Dewsbury and Tony Leswick were given major penalties and Bill Gadsby, Glen Skov and Larry Zeidel got minors.

May Let Musial Pitch Just One Game

ST. LOUIS (AP). — Versatile Stan Musial of St. Louis Cardinals, alternately an outfielder and first baseman in recent seasons, may get a chance tomorrow to pitch against his rival for the National League hitting championship.

Cardinal manager Eddy Stanky disclosed yesterday plans for the bit of nonsense for the club's final game of the season—if the Cardinals have clinched third place before then and if League President Warren Giles approves.

Musial will be shooting for his sixth league hitting championship in the three-game, season-ending series with Chicago Cubs that started last night at Sportsman's Park. He had a .336 average before today's game, with Frankie Baumholtz of the Cubs trailing by seven points.

"That's right," Stanky said, "if those ifs come true, I'll let Musial pitch against Baumholtz at least one time. Wonder if Frankie would like to pitch to Stan, too?"

Musial is no stranger to the mound. He broke into pro baseball as a pitcher. But he hasn't pitched since an arm injury 12 years ago turned him from a class D Pitcher into one of the greatest hitters in the major leagues.

Acadian Fishing Port Caters To Tuna Tournament Anglers

By JACK BRAYLEY

WEDGEPORT, N.S. (CP)—This little Acadian fishing port, advertising itself as the world centre for big game fishing, is as happily surprised at discovery of a new fishing hole as it was 17 years ago when tuna, the curse of commercial fishing nets, became a bonanza.

The new spot, closer inshore, provides insurance for bad days on Soldier's Rip, the wide streak of tidal turbulence heretofore considered the premier spot in the world for hooking and battling big bluefins that go to more than 1,000 pounds.

It was only by luck that a sportsman stumbled on Soldier's Rip. Michael Lerner of New York was touring this Acadian land on the southwest tip of Nova Scotia in 1935 in search of a new big game fishing area. Fishermen told him they were plagued by tuna that boiled into the coastal waters in thousands to demolish nets, destroy traps and cause thousands of dollars worth of damage annually.

SPECTACULAR HAUL

Lerner hired a boat and in one day hooked and landed 21 big fish weighing up to 800 pounds apiece. Since then Wedgeport has switched from the tough, backbreaking work of commercial fishing to the more genteel business of big-game fishing. And a good number of the herring that used to be caught and marketed for food now go to the sportsmen for bait.

But until this year nobody thought of fishing anywhere but on the Rip, 12 miles out at sea and off the shore of the outer Tusket Islands. These are small bare spits that for decades have been the year-round home of flocks of unattended sheep which live on the sparse grass in the open season and edible seaweed in winter.

It was found by Lerner and his successors that from July to October the Rip was crowded with these monster fish, that they were there for the taking and that the price for guides, gear and boats runs high. For instance, it has been estimated that tournament fish can cost the international competitor, who often comes from places as far away as New Zealand and Chile, up to $50 a pound—all expenses considered.

ANGRY TIDE STREAM

The Rip itself is a six-knot, tidal stream about a mile wide in which the tuna feed on herring and mackerel. The tidal disturbance at this spot is aided by a submerged plateau over which the water drops as the tide falls away. It causes a churn of angry white water that is plainly marked on the wide sea.

Sportsmen, fishing the Rip, are given an extra handicap when the stout Cape Island boats they use dodge and twist in the turbulence and give the impression of shooting rapids.

During the ninth international tuna tournament, recently won by Cuba, fishermen got impatient with luck on the Rip and listened to the call of the nearby wide Tusket River mouth where commercial fishermen were harpooning large kills daily. So for the first time the tournament—started in 1937 and looked upon as the world series of big game fishing—moved to the river mouth where most of the 1952 tournament fish were landed.

TO BE USED AGAIN

Chief guide Elson Boudreau is convinced that for bright weather—such as experienced this year—when tuna are notably elusive on the Rip, the river mouth will be used. Recent experience has shown the big bluefins respond in quiet waters in bright weather, but are more wary in rough water under the same conditions.

Tuna are known variously as albacore, horse mackerel or tunny. They are the largest, most powerful fish and are imbued with an indomitable fighting spirit and 60-mile-an-hour speed. Sportsmen are given a battle that sometimes lasts half a day and leaves the victor exhausted.

This little port's economy has switched almost completely to sport fishing. Its 2,000 population make their living in some aspect of guiding, boating or catering for the visitors.

It derives its name from the wedge-shaped cape on which it is located at the mouth of the Tusket River. Some of its families are descended from the veterans of Napoleon's Grand Army and names like Boudreau, Leblanc, Comeau, Goutrou, Pothier and Doucette are common.

Army Warns Veterans Souvenirs Dangerous

OTTAWA —(CP) — The army warned overseas veterans yesterday they may be taking "potential killers" into their homes in the form of souvenirs.

Headquarters said soldiers persist in bringing weapons and explosives home as souvenirs even though this is forbidden and even though it may cause deaths.

The army said it has de-fused and disposed of hundreds of such souvenirs "as a public service" and will continue to do so for anyone.

Are Our History Books Wrong?

Challenge Claim Of Royal William

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. (CP)—Do Canadian history books need revision?

Michael Dwyer, 75, self-styled history student and former provincial mines minister, doesn't say as much, but he has challenged the accuracy of Canadian students' reading material.

The Royal William, for instance, wasn't the first steamship to cross the Atlantic, despite what the history books say, according to Mr. Dwyer.

If he's correct, and weeks of research have convinced him that he is, it would make Canada's Royal William commemorative stamp, issued in 1933, look pretty silly.

The same would apply to the commemorative plaque in Ottawa's Archives Building, and, of course, all the history books from Pouch Cove, Nfld., to Shushartie, B.C.

"NEGATIVE INFORMATION"

Mr. Dwyer, the stocky Irishman who directed rescue operations in the Moose River mine disaster in 1936, says the Royal William claim was simply founded on "negative information." He says:

"For example, Columbus believed until the day of his death that he was the first sailor to cross the Atlantic, and thousands of other people believed the story simply because they had never heard anything different.

"It is now fairly well established that Eric the Red had dinner with the Micmac Indians of Cape Breton, after crossing the ocean, 500 years before the keel of the Santa Maria was laid."

Then comes the first ship to cross the Atlantic by the use of steam—or assisted by steam. The names of several ships arose: The Savannah, Sirius, Curacao and Royal William. All were sailing vessels fitted with auxiliary steam engines. Canada backed the Quebec-built William.

HISTORY BOOKS WRONG?—The first steamship to cross the Atlantic, despite what all the history books say, was not the Quebec-built Royal William (shown), according to Michael Dwyer, 75-year-old former mines minister of Nova Scotia. He says the Royal William claim was simply founded on "negative information" and that the 124-ton steamer Cape Breton slipped into North Sydney, N.S., with British supplies two weeks before the Royal William sailed from Pictou, N.S., on Aug. 18, 1833.

"The documented evidence," says Mr. Dwyer, "is that the Royal William sailed from Pictou, N.S., on Aug. 18, 1833, rigged with three masts and a full set of sails. Her paddlewheels were powered by steam engines.

SAILS HANDY

"In a blow off Newfoundland, her foremast was carried away due to stress of wind on her canvas. The log says that one engine was disabled for 10 days and, of course, the captain took full advantage of his sails in the meantime.

"But two weeks before the Royal William sailed, the 124-ton steamer Cape Breton slipped into North Sydney, N.S., with British supplies for the mines at Sydney Mines and Stellarton, both owned by the General Mining Association, London, England.

"After discharging some cargo, she then proceeded to Pictou with supplies for the Albion Mines at Stellarton. The Cape Breton, commanded by Capt. W. F. Donkin, was actually in Pictou harbor a few days before the Royal William sailed. She may have even extended a line towards assisting her to deep water."

The Cape Breton, a sturdy vessel, 108 feet in length and constructed of seasoned English oak in England, made a trial trip to Charlottetown a week later and covered the 60 miles, according to newspaper reports of the time, "quite easily in 5½ hours." Few modern ferries are doing better.

She was sold in 1838 to Samuel and Joseph Cunard and made several trips to London before being lost in 1857.

So-Creds Favor Non-Canadian

OTTAWA (CP)—The 10-man Social Credit party at Ottawa favors a non-Canadian as Governor-General.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, says one of the first acts of a Social Credit government would be to appoint a prominent Briton or a distinguished citizen from a sister country of the Commonwealth as Governor-General.

The appointment would be made at the conclusion of the term of Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, whose appointment this year marked the first time a Canadian has held the post.

Mr. Low, whose party now draws its entire federal membership from Alberta, said he believes the appointment of a Canadian to the post was a mistake.

Canada Has Waged War One Day In Four In 40 Yrs.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said yesterday that within the last 40 years Canada has had to wage war in approximately one day out of four.

He made the statement in a luncheon address to delegates of the France-America Committee. The delegates attended the recent centenary celebrations of Laval University in Quebec and thehn visited Montreal and Ottawa.

Mr. St. Laurent spoke of Canada's traditional ties with Europe and the heritage received from the original settlers of this country.

Speaking in French, he added:

STARTLING PROPORTION

"It was to defend such valuables that during the 40 years of the life of your committee Canada has had to wage war approximately one day in four. Reduced to such simple terms, the proportion is startling. You have known similar anguish because your soldiers and ours have always been brothers in arms.

"To prevent another catastrophe, the North Atlantic powers have united in a mutual defence treaty.

"It is up to you to breath life in this treaty, to create a community spirit where none exists and to develop it where it does exist."

The greatest breadth of North America is along the 52nd parallel of latitude in Canada.

Ballet Film Evokes Mixed Reaction

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON (CP)—Ottawa's Guy Cote, assistant director with the National Film Board of Canada, may find his ears burning. People in London are talking about his "Between Two Worlds," a novel ballet film without words.

The film made its debut at the Edinburgh Festival and was given a private showing in London. The preview audience seemed divided in its reaction.

Danced by Utte Lemkow, husband of film star Mai Zetterling, the film tells the story of a blind artist living in an abstract world of his own imagining.

Against a kaleidoscopic background of moving color schemes and colored masks, he takes the audience through his blind world to an operating room where his sight is restored.

WEIRD ENDING

Instead of a happy landing, the film winds to a climax where the artist, terrified by the new world of sight, loses his own personality completely. From a colorful world of gay patterns he descends to beating against grey walls and walking down endless corridors to an ever-receding light ahead.

Cote directed "Between Two Worlds" while attending Oxford University on a scholarship. The idea for the film came from American artist Sam Kaner, who advanced the proposal in a conversation over coffee cups, later acting as producer and set designer. It might have gone no further, but for a visit to Oxford by Miss Zetterling. The star sold the idea to her husband, who took over the choreography and persuaded 26-year-old Cote to take the director's job.

During his Oxford term, besides taking a first in chemistry, Cote successively ran the Film Society, the Film Group and the university ski team. His first venture in film-making was in 1949 when he produced, co-operated and edited "Sestrieres 1949," a documentary on skiing.

AMATEUR VENTURE

"Between Two Worlds" is an amateur production financed by donations, grants and private subscriptions. Costing just over £1,000, it was shot in five weeks in a gymnasium in Cheltenham, Gloucestershire—the only "studio" the company could afford. Tehnicians and stagehands were local amateur stage enthusiasts.

The picture has greatly appealed to the artistic minded. Its progress as a secondary film of futuristic design is still in question, but all who helped in production are eagerly awaiting its reception by the general public.

Pravda Calls U.S. Envoy 'A Slanderer'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Communist party newspaper Pravda attacked United States Ambassador George Kennan Friday as a "slanderer disguised as a diplomat."

The newspaper charged that Kennan was guilty of conduct improper for an ambassador in giving a statement to correspondents in Berlin comparing the situation of western diplomats now in Moscow with that of diplomats interned in Germany after the outbreak of the Second World War.

In an editorial Pravda also declared untrue the U. S. ambassador's statement that social relations between Americans in Moscow and Russians had been broken off recently.

Kennan told reporters at Berl Sept. 19 that recently Russians ha been forbidden all social contact with Americans in Moscow.

Recalling his experiences in Germany in 1941-42, Kennan said: "had the Nazis permitted us to walk the streets without having any right to talk to any Germans, that would be precisely how we have to live today in Moscow."

Beatrice Lillie Has Fun In New Show

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK (AP) — Beatrice Lillie, the unpredictable comedy actress, decided she was going to have a lark. She wanted to have a gay adventure on stage that would be as much fun for herself as it might be for the audience.

She has succeeded merrily, as she has demonstrated on the stages of summer theatres for the last nine weeks, and next Thursday she brings into the Booth theatre this folderol revue entitled "An Evening with Beatrice Lillie."

Miss Lillie says it is the type of show where "the audience wanders backstage, into the dressing rooms and you never know whether the ones you bump into backstage are paying members of the audience or whether they are performers waiting to get paid.

Her style of comedy is so individualistic that she doesn't feel the need of acquiring a copyright on her acts. She can play for audiences either on the fringe of a burlesque-show inclination, or she can be intellectual with humorous overtones.

EXPLOSIVE PAIR

In her current show Miss Lillie appears with Reginald Gardiner. It is not the first time that this suave explosive pair have exchanged sword thrusts in a mood designed for laughs.

"When Mr. Gardiner and I played together on Broadway before, Miss Lillie said, "it was in a musical called "At Home Abroad." I did a telephone sketch about a housewife trying to check an order with a bewildered department store clerk concerning a 'Mrs. Blodgen Blagg buying two dozen double damask dinner napkins.'

Miss Lillie was born in Toronto where her mother, who was a gifted concert singer, had hopes that Beatrice would become a soprano in a church choir.

Miss Lillie did sing in church until, as a dignified vestryman explained, "she became too liberal with her gestures to convey the ideas about which she was singing."

In assembling her material, some new and some from past shows for "an evening with Beatrice Lillie" Miss Lillie said she was touched by several memories about her career which were recalled.

One concerned a time when she left the church choir and went to London, still convinced she was well on her way to triumphs as a serious singer. She was granted an audition with an eminent concert impresario. For some reasons she still cannot explain, Miss Lillie recalled that she stepped forth and sang "The Next Horse I ride On I'm Going to be Tied On."

White Man's Heart Found Less Efficient To Negro's

JOHANNESBURG (CP)—A South African anthropologist started a controversy among his color-sensitive countrymen when he said here that coronary thrombosis, and not "black nationalism," is a potential killer of white civilization.

Other scientists disagreed with the statement of Dr. M. W. D. Jeffreys, senior lecturer in social anthropology at University of Witwatersrand, that thrombosis, rapidly becoming the No. 1 killer among whites here, would eliminate white men and leave the Negro heir to western civilization.

Basing his pronouncement on studies at the university's medical school, Dr. Jeffreys said the Negro, especially where his heart is concerned, is physically an improvement on the white man who has a less efficient "mammalian heart."

"Negro hearts have a large, extra branch from the left coronary artery," he said. "In other words, the Negro heart has a better blood supply."

OTHER ADVANTAGES

In addition the Negro has in his blood a peculiarity known as the sickle cell, not found in whites, giving him a decided advantage in survival. Dr. Jeffreys said the white man shared his ancestor with the other mammals, as indicated by a similar bone structure. But the Negro had bones of different quality and texture.

"Negro bones are lighter and stronger—they can be described as ivory type—and the Negro skull is both thinner and stronger than ours," he said.

Dr. Jeffrey added: "The European heart just can't take the pace of modern living. The Negro has a better heart. These are the facts and I prefer to leave it to others to draw conclusions."

Replies were immediate. A leading Johannesburg doctor, while agreeing that thrombosis is increasing among whites, could concede only that the heart peculiarity enabled Negroes to excel in physical prowess. But as a short-cut to the inheritance of all—"never."

An eminent heart specialist said that instead of inheriting civilization the Negro instead would inherit the white man's worries, social and business tensions, ulcers—and thrombosis. He noted that the thrombosis reflected only his freedom from the strain of life—the intellectual stress and killing pace, said this expert.

Acheson Says He's Misquoted

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dean Acheson accused Gen. Dwight Eisenhower Friday of misquoting him on his attitude toward the defence of Korea prior to the outbreak of the Korean war.

Acheson told a press conference that, as army chief of staff, Eisenhower had been "wholly in accordance" with views on Pacific defence which Acheson set forth in January, 1950, and which Eisenhower, now running for president on the Republican ticket, assailed in a speech at Cincinnati last Monday.

Eisenhower's Cincinnati talk was an attack on what he called Acheson's mistakes and on "incompetent" leaders and foreign policy. Much of this criticism was based on a speech which Acheson made to the National Press Club here in January, 1950, when the state secretary outlined a defence perimeter in the western Pacific which included such places as Japan and the Philippines but did not include South Korea.

To his press conference today, Acheson read from a statement, authorizing direct quotation, and beginning with the charge that Eisenhower's account "tortures the facts." He added "it says things I didn't say and omits things I did say."

Deny Air-Crash Deaths Caused By Safety Belts

LONDON (AP) — An American doctor took issue Friday with a British medical report the blamed some recent air-crash deaths on passengers' safety belts. The American said that as a result of the report many passengers on United States airlines are not fastening their belts.

Dr. Eugene F. Dubois of Cornell University Medical College wrote to the British Medical Journal to answer Dr. Donald Teare.

Teare examined the bodies of victims of a plane crash at London airport in 1950 and decided that more than one-half the 28 deaths were caused by "acute flexion of the body" at the point where passengers were gripped by their safety belts.

This finding was included in an official report widely published in the U. S., Dubois wrote, and "thousands of airline passengers became apprehensive and fastened their belts loosely if at all."

Dubois said medical data gathered by Cornell from hundreds of air crashes showed that safety belts rarely contributed to injuries. He added that a study of the investigation into the London crash deaths showed the injuries were "typical of those in severe crashes in which seats or safety-belt anchorages fail."

Belongs To Employees

MONTREAL (CP) — Tips belong to employees no matter how given and no agreement to the contrary is valid, Mr. Justice E. Fabre Surveyor ruled Friday in a Superior Court judgment.

He awarded Anne Fedorki, former hat-check girl at Montreal's Mount Royal hotel, a total of $582, with interest retroactive to April, 1947, and costs. She had sued for $3,126 from the hote.

TOP FRENCH LABOR LEADER Leon Jouhaux, winner of this year's Nobel Peace Prize, paused in Montreal recently just long enough to assure newspapermen that Communist strength in French labor union was on the decline. Mr. Jouhaux, president of the anti-Red General Federation of Labor and director of the French Federation of Labor, is touring Canada and the United States to discuss labor problems and the international situation with union and political leaders in the two countries. Winner of the Nobel prize for his work this year in dealing with problems of labor, Mr. Jouhaux was nonetheless unwilling to discuss the labor picture in Canada. But he was willing to disucuss the situation in France where, he said, Communist influence had suffered a series of setbacks since 1947, the year the anti-Communist General Federation of Labor was formed. At left in photo is Claude Jodoin, president of Montreal Trades Labor Council.

Sulfas Help Bright's Disease Caused By Acute Infections

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

Nephritis, or Bright's disease, is a result partly of inflammation and partly of degeneration of the kidneys. It interferes with some of the functions of the kidneys.

Richard Bright, for whom the disease is named, was born in Bristol, England, in 1789, and was graduated from the University of Edinburgh in 1813. He was one of the famous men attached to Guy's Hospital in London, which is one of the famous voluntary teaching hospitals situated in that city.

His classic report on nephritis appeared in 1827. In it he pointed out the connection between dropsy (or edema), the presence of albumin (a kind of protein) in the urine, and hardened or shrunken kidneys.

He even found that there was an excessive accumulation of a substance called urea in the blood of patients with the particular condition which he was studying.

Nephritis, unlike a great many other disorders of the body, is not really a single disease. It can come on without any apparent cause or it can follow acute infections such as scarlet fever, tonsilitis or pneumonia.

Just how these infections produce Bright's disease — and they do not always cause this difficulty —is not quite clear.

There is often quite a long time between the acute infection and the appearance of the first signs of nephritis. It remains for future research to discover the way in which nephritis is brought about and to improve the means of preventing this complication.

The trouble in the kidneys is not always the same. Sometimesc one part of the kidney is damaged more than another. Sometimes the damage seems to be so slight that it halts before symptoms begin to show up.

At other times the condition may progress gradually over a period of months or years, destroying more and more of the functions of the kidneys. When this happens there is a constant worsening of the symptoms.

A reader asks if the drinking of beer has anything to do with nephritis. Beer alone probably can not cause a true nephritis, but if taken in considerable quantity, it throws an added burden on the kidneys, and would therefore be considered inadvisable, as a rule, for a person with Bright's disease.

It looks as though there will be fewer cases of nephritis in the future because several of the diseases commonly causing it, like pneumonia and scarlet fever yeild quite well to the sulfa drugs or penicillin. This hoped-for result should show up as time passes.

Mr. Brethen, a well-known figure in the district's agricultural circles, is a former member of parliament and one time vice-president of the United Farmers of Ontario. He is president of the Norwood Fair, a position he has held for six years.

He and his wife, the former Bertha Jane Knox, were married in 1902 by the Rev. Robert Taylor, minister at Norwood Methodist Church. At the time of church union in 1925, the church became a United Church.

Bridesmaids were Florence Taylor (later Mrs. John Potts, Kamloops, B. C.), and Edna Waters (later Mrs. Norman Pickard, Port Arthur). Flower girl was Elsie Knox, now Mrs. Herbert Macfarlane of Keene. John Potts of Norwood was best man. Today, only Mrs. Florence Potts and Mrs. Macfarlane survive.

The Brethens have three daughters: Mrs. C. H. Cavers (Rita), Toronto; Mrs. Lyle R. McMillan, Alliston, and Mrs. R. H. Ingram, State College, Penna. There are five grandchildren.

Mr. Brethen is the son of the late William Henry Brethen and Elizabeth Jane Clysdale, and Mrs. Brethen is a daughter of the late John Knox and Anne Evans. Their parents were all pioneer residents of Asphodel and Norwood.

PROGRESSIVE PARTY

From 1921 to 1925, Mr. Brethen was M.P. for East Peterborough, having run on the Progressive ticket. The Progressives were an agrarian party, formed first in western Canada. With their 31 members, they held the balance of power in the Commons, and parliament was dissolved in 1926 by W. L. M. King when the Progressives threatened revolt. However, when the Conservatives under Arthur Meighen were elected, the Progressives repudiated Meighen's ministry.

Mr. Brethen was member until East Peterborough was removed as a constituency by redistribution in 1925.

Early connected with agrarian policital parties, Mr. Brethen was an active force in the organization of the United Farmers of Ontario. When an executive was elected, in 1914, E. C. Drury was president, Mr. Brethen was first vice-president.

SOLD HERD

Once one of the county's premier Holstein breeders, he sold his herd in 1918 for one of the highest average herd dispersal prices ever paid up to that time in Canada. He retained a few animals, but sold the rest of his herd in 1937. His herd held several Canadian butterfat records.

For more than 10 years, starting in 1915, Mr. Brethen was a director of the Canadian Holstein-Friesian Association. He was also manager and owner for some years of the Hillcrest chick hatchery in Norwood, retiring only a year or two ago.

For more than 40 years a director of the Norwood Fair, Mr. Brethen was elected president in 1946, after the fair had been inactive during the war years. He is one of the men responsible for building the fair up to its present prominence.

Both he and his wife have been members of the choir of Norwood United Church (formerly Methodist) for more than 50 years. Mr. Brethen is also clerk of session of the church.

Urge Deanery W.A.'s Adopt W.A. Minister In Athabaska

GORE'S LANDING —(ENS) — The 30th annual conference of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Church of England in Canada, deanery of Durham and Northumberland, met in St. George's on the Hill on Thursday. The theme of the deanery this year is "Pray without ceasing".

At the 10:30 celebration of Holy Communion, 103 communicants were present. The Rev. C. H. Boulden of St. Mark's Church, Port Hope, was the celebrant, assisted by the Rev. Warren Turner, Bowmanville, the Rev. J. M. Crisall, St. John's, Port Hope, and the rector, the Rev. A. W. Smith.

Mrs. Rorke of Cobourg St. Peter's Church, spoke on the literature which was available. The members then had a box lunch in the Rice Lake House.

The afternoon meeting commenced shortly after one o'clock and 122 members were present for this session which was presided over by Mrs. M. J. Underhill, deanery officer, of Bowmanville. The president of St. George's W.A., Mrs. R. J. Meggs, welcomed the guests.

The following churches compose the deanery: Bewdley, Bowmanville, Brighton, Cobourg, Colborne, Gore's Landing, Grafton, Harwood, Newcastle, Orono, Perrytown, St. John's Port Hope, St. Mark's, Port Hope.

The highlight of the afternoon session was the missionary address given by Dr. Rowland Hill, rector of St. Barnabas' Church, Toronto, and former Dean of Athabaska.

Dr. Hill gave an interesting address on his work in this far northern community. He said that just a year ago, he had attended a W.A. meeting at the home of Mrs. Hunchuk, a Ukrainian, now a Canadian citizen and a good worker in the Anglican Church. The air was cold and nippy, with lots of wild ducks around the ponds, and the roads were quite greasy from recent rain. The women reached their destination in three tractors, two trucks and Dr. Hill's car. There were 12 present, all dressed in blue jeans and parkas, as some of the tractors had women clinging on behind the drivers. Dr. Hill called it a church of all nations, as Polish, German, Americans' and Ukrainians were present, but they were all bound together in Christ. That day, they had received a bale from Kingston and were delighted, as they were about to hold a rummage sale and it was a bit difficult to get sufficient for the sale. With the contents of the bale available, they re-made articles which they sold for 25c and 50c thereby making their contribution to the missionary funds.

Dr. Hill described the diocese of Athabaska which was large enough to hold the whole of Southern Ontario and which comprises the northern half of Alberta, from 25 miles north of Edmonton and from B.C. to the border of Saskatchewan. There are three deaneries. One in the north-east corner in which is the town of Athabaska Landing, the other two have Grande Prairie and Peace River. Years ago when the fur traders went into this wilderness, the church followed and missionaries tried to teach the natives how to raise their food from the land. The church finally arranged for missionary farmers. The first Indian school principal, the Rev. William Brick tried to grow grain in 1912 in the valley of the Peace and was so successful that he sent a sample to the World's Fair in Chicage and won first prize for it. In the 30's when grain was selling for 15 cents a bushel and the depression was on, it was noted that the people of this northern territory although they could not sell grain, always had food enough. They never had a crop failure. The farmers from drought-ridden Saskatchewan started to trek to this wonderland in caravans, plodding along with their goods to the Peace River country. They had no money but could feed their children and eventually they became good citizens. They found the Anglican church already established to minister to them. As the years passed, they built better homes and better roads, then the Second World War came, stopping everything.

Now a new era has opened up since the war. Bulldozers and machinery for cutting down trees came in, and hundreds of returned men settled here, opening up northern Alberta. With the modern machinery, they were able to clear 40 to 50 acres a year. Last year, 80,000 acres was brought into cultivation. A paraplegic, Canon Bob Newman, receiving $1,800 a year, drives through this territory, covering 120 miles between High Prairie and Slave Lake, once a month. He is not married and although badly crippled is able to drive these distances which takes him a week to 10 days at a time visiting.

Recently, oil developments have come into this area creating lots of problems. Dr. Hill's parish of 1,400 has now grown to 3,000. Approximately 150 families give $2,000 a year for their allotments. The church is growing in spite of difficulties. He suggested that each W.A. adopt a W.A. in the mission field and also adopt a minister in the field. In this way, the missionary spirit is developed and the workers are greatly helped Mrs Underhill thanked Dr. Hill for his inspiring address.

The next address was given by Mrs. Thorne, Toronto, corresponding secretary of Toronto Diocesan Board. She said the W.A. was organized 67 years ago and one of the tenets of the W.A. was that prayer comes first. She sketched the various departments of the W.A., relating to literature, the need of the Living Message in each W.A., study book, social service department Dorcas department, in which the sewing needs of boys and girls in Indian schools were pledged by the W.A. early in its history. The first Indian boy to be so clothed by the W.A. was named "Joe Fire Long Ago". There are 18 Indian schools with children under 12 years of age, in which the W.A. provides all clothing and bedding. The first bale was sent in 1888. It was responsible for building a school. In 1951, there were 146 bales sent. Mrs. Thomas spoke of the pledges given by the various W.A. and that this money was used to pay the salaries of missionaries which are so very small. From the pledges also, bursaries are provided up to $9,000. These are for children of missionaries and poor people who live in regions without schools. In 1952, there were 49 children receiving bursaries up to $250 each.

Mrs. Thorne also spoke of other W A. funds which are so necessary to maintain, the extra cent a day fund; United Thank Offering Fund which pays for the training of women in Anglican training colleges. The largest registration is this year with 23 .... One third of money received from this fund also goes towards pensions of women missionaries. The fund amounted to $39,000 this year, in small contributions received from all over Canada.

The collection taken during the afternoon meeting was $67 and the appeal voted upon was to send this money for the Anglican Women's Training College.

Mrs. Guigar, Cobourg, introduced the new deanery officer, Mrs. Powell of Port Hope Dr. J. B Benson, Port Hope, and Miss B. MacIntosh of Newcastle spoke briefly, thanking Mrs. Underhill for her excellent work as deanery officer for four years. Mrs C. K. Rorke of Cobourg invited the deanery to St. Peter's Church, Cobourg, for the 1953 meeting. W. A. members from Colborne and Grafton moved a vote of thanks.

The Rev. A. W. Smith invited the gathering to tea at the Rice Lake House. St. Anne's, Bewdley and St. John's, Harwood, were hostesses with Gore's Landing, for the deanery, as all three were organized as W.A.'s 25 years ago, by Mr. Crisall of Port Hope, who was rector of this parish at that time.

WOOL JERSEY for the younger set has a tucked bosom and a ribbon tabbed collar. This Canadian design has embroidery circling the slightly flared skirt.

SHAKE OUT

Hankies and combs stay more sanitary when carried in a handbag that is dirt-free inside. Shake out loose flecks of powder, lint and bits of tobacco. Leather and plastic-coated interiors sponge off easily with warm soapsuds. A brushing with thick dry suds will remove dirt clinging to fabric linings.

Woman Directs San Diego Zoo Of 3,700 Animals

MONTREAL (CP)—Mrs. Belle Benchley, of San Diego, Calif., who recently visited Montreal, has 3,700 members in her family.

She likes the gorillas — "If I pass them three times in a row without waving, they feel hurt"—but she loathes the chimpanzees.

As director of San Diego's zoo, however, she can't afford any prejudices. During the annual convention of the American Institute of Park Executives she took time out to describe her life among the wild beasts.

"I'm director, zoo keeper, animals' godmother and housekeeper," she says. "Each morning they greet me with squeals and even when I pass in a car they squeal for attention."

The koala bears in her zoo need a special kind of mothering, Mrs. Benchley says. They eat new leaves from old eucalyptus trees. A special eucalyptus grove had to be set up to fed them. To top it off, to get the rare animals out of Australia a special Act, of Parliament was passed.

When Mrs. Benchley became interested in animals she didn't know anything about them except what she had read in books. Now her zoo rivals those of New York and London and last year more than 1,230,000 persons came to see her "family."

COOKS DESERVE POOR REPUTATION

British Palates Dulled To Tastes Of Good Cooking

LONDON (CP)—Writing in the journal of the British Association of Teachers of Domestic Subjects, Helen Gloster, an Australian domestic science teacher, said Britain deserves its reputation for poor cooking.

Miss Gloster, who spent six months touring many of the country's restaurants and hotels, said rationing has little to do with the low standard. "The food offered to the travelling public is on the whole monotonous, tasteless and uninteresting," she said.

Among other things she criticized the excessive use of fish and chips. "Do Britons know no other use for a potato?" she queried.

When asked her opinion on the preparation of salad, poultry and vegetables, she said lack of imagination and the same sauceless monotony existed everywhere.

"Britons themselves seem unaware of the poor standard," she said. "They have had it so long they just accept it as a matter of course.

"Over a period of years their palates have become dulled and unaccustomed to tasty food."

DOROTHY DIX

Worthy Plan For Couple To Adopt A Second Child

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 19, my husband is 25. We have been married three years and have a little boy 17 months old. We had our second child two weeks ago, and he lived only eleven hours. I can't have another baby. We would like to adopt a baby sometime soon while our little son is still young. We think children should grow up together and we both love children.

My mother-in-law doesn't want us to adopt a baby. She thinks we will always show a prefrence for our own. While my husband and I know that it will be more natural for us to care for our own, we still think we can love an adopted child. We have our own farm and can provide a good home. My doctor has offered his help in finding a baby for us.

JOAN M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Yours is one of the most heart-warming letters I have had in quite a while. If all young people were as conscientious and thoughtful as you and your husband, divorce courts would go out of business in no time.

YOU SHOULD SUCCEED

You have a fine idea in your wish to provide your son with a sister or brother, and there is absolutely no reason why it shouldn't be successful all around. Your mother-in-law is dead wrong to say it would not work, since it has proven gratifyingly possible for many a couple in circumstances similar to yours. I would advise you to wait until your doctor says you are physically fit to take on the added responsibility. The recent loss of your own baby has doubtless taken much greater toll of your health than you, at the moment, suspect. Take your time, but don't give up the idea.

One of God's greatest blessings, and one wich, strangely enough, many people don't believe, is that we are not limited in our capacity for love. Though you probably will always have a shade more affection for your own child, it is the actual care and rearing of a baby that endears it to parents. So you'll learn in time that there is almost no difference—perhaps there will be none—in your feelings about the two youngsters.

I recommend for your reading a book that has the full approval of the Child Adoption Committee. It is called "The Adopted Family," is published by Crown Publishers of New York, and sells for $2.50. The authors, Florence Rondell and Ruth Michaels, have written the book in two volumes—one for the parents and one for the child. You will find the work most helpful.

Good luck to you and your family; don't be deterred from your fine plans.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Bob and I have been going together for several months. He is 17, I am 14. He claims I should prove that I like him by giving up all my other friends. Since I can only see him once a week, that means I would have to give up all other dates. Should I?

BARBARA

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are much too young to be tied down to one boy. Don't let Bob's selfishness deprive you of all the fun a teen-ager should have. You shouldn't feel compelled to "prove" that you like him, anyway. He should take your friendship for granted, without exacting unreasonable promises.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am very fond of the boy I go with, but he insists on kissing me in the movies whenever we go. I don't like this, but am too bashful to tell him so

A. B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are quite right to object; however, since you have already permitted him to kiss you in the movies, you'll have a bit of a job convincing him that you really do object. You must learn to make your convictions clear, even though you are bashful. Tell him you won't go with him again unless he behaves as you wish. He may get peeved for a while but he'll get over it.

ST. PETER'S

St. Peter's Parent-Teacher Association met in the Social Centre Tuesday night, with President Mr. Max Glover presiding. Rev. Sister St. Paul opened with prayer.

Mr. Gordon Touzel played an accordion medley of old favorites.

Mr. J. C. Doyle, Separate school inspector, was speaker. He talked concerning mental health in the school.

Attendance prizes were won by Sister Anna Grace's grade 4 of St. Peter's School and by Mrs. McDonald's grades 5 and 6, St. Mary's School.

Lunch was served under the convenership of Mrs. M. Readman, assisted by the room mothers.

ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST

The annual commencement exercises of St. John the Baptist School were held Wednesday evening in the school auditorium under auspices of the Parent Teacher Association. The auditorium was filled to capacity for the occasion with parents of pupils and guests, who were received at the door by the president, Mr. F. P. O'Connor and vice-president Mrs. R. Shaughnessy.

Master of ceremonies was the Rev. G. O'Sullivan of Immaculate Conception parish.

Father O'Sullivan spoke to the graduates stressing the fact that a milestone had been reached in their lives and from now on they would have to begin making their own decisions on both large and small affairs. He also indicated the great need for education so that one day they might take their place as leaders in society. Finally he pointed out that material things alone do not necessarily make a life successful. To that must be added the spiritual side and life in this world must be a preparation for life in the next.

The presentation of diplomas and prizes was made by the Rev. Dr. F. M. Grant, parish priest. He also gave a short talk to the graduates, stressing value of education, both spiritual and secular. Prizes for top students donated by Sr. M. Garnier and the C. W. L. were won by: Evelyn Haznik, Gail Collins.

Program for the evening was highlighted by vocal selections by Mr. Anthony DeNoble, piano selections by Mr. Heribert Muchel and the school choir under the direction of Mr. Michel.

Lunch was served to graduates and guests by Mrs. C. Boulter, social convener, and assistants. Tea was poured by Mrs. J. R. Epping and by the past president Mrs. H. J. McLarnon.

Readers' Saturday Column Conducted by Mary Moore

Thanks from me to all of you grand gals who sent in that recipe I asked for for Pickled Baby Corn on the cob. I copied them out for my own file (for everyone was different) and forwarded them to Mrs. Louise V. L.

QUESTION: Last year I made 9-day pickles combining cucumbers, onions, cauliflower and red pepper. The first three vegetables kept wonderfully well, stayed crisp and nice, right up until they were used this summer. However, the red pepper, in the process of simmering, faded and came away from the skins. Now here is my problem—how can I have the beautiful red color in my pickles, like I see sometimes in sweet pickles in the stores? Could I by any chance skip the simmering of the pepper?

My husband would like to make "Elderberry Wine." Do you have a recipe.—Isabel D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If the peppers are cured in a strong brine for 10 days you may add them to the kettle 1 minute before bottling time—be sure they boil 1 minute. Strong brine: ½ cup salt to 1 quart cold water.

ELDERBERRY WINE

(This recipe uses antiquated terms but I think experienced wine makers will understand it.)

Gather the berries when quite ripe, on a dry day; pick off stems and thoroughly bruise them. Strain the juice and let it rest in glazed earthenware containers for 12 hours to settle. Allow to every pint of juice 1½ pints of water, and to every gallon of the mixed juice and water 3 lbs. sugar. Place over heat in very large kettle and when it is just ready to boil stir in 4 slightly beaten egg whites to clarify it. Let it boil for 1 hour. Let it cool to lukewarm in ordinary room temperature and place in it a piece of white bread toasted and spread with compressed yeast to 1-16 inch thickness. Pour into perfectly clean cask. Be sure to hold back with strainer the coagulated egg whites to which much of the sediment clings. Toast with yeast stays in juice. Bung lightly until fermentation ceases. Bung tightly and let stand two months. Bottle, seal and let stand 1 year.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: I clipped this recipe and started to make it up and discovered it did not say how much milk. Will you kindly correct this for me as it sounds good.—Mrs. Charles J. H.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The recipe you enclosed is not one of my recipes (as if I knew all the little darlings by heart!) but the amount of milk in it would be 1 cup. I have returned it to you. I will give you my recipe for Raisin Bread with which you mgiht like to compare it.

RAISIN BREAD (with yeast)

One cup scalded milk, 3 tablespoons shortening, ¼ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 yeast cake (or envelope granular yeast), 4½ cups bread flour, 1 cup raisins. To scalded and cooled-to-lukewarm milk add the shortening, sugar and salt. Dissolve the yeast in 2 tablespoons water. (If granular yeast is used follow directions on package and reduce amount of milk by the amount of extra water used for soaking yeast.) Add yeast and water to first mixture. Stir flour with spoon before measuring it. Add 2 cups flour and beat it in until smooth. Cover and stand in warm place to rise until doubled. Knead again. Form into loaf and put into buttered loaf pan. Cover and stand in warm place to rise until doubled. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 55 minutes.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: I'm in trouble with my pickling . . . when I pour the hot syrup on them the first time they all shrink. Do tell me what is the reason. I have over a gallon. I used . . . . recipe for nine-day pickles.—Mrs. Leo P.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: As I'm not familiar with the recipe you used I can only guess. There are 4 major causes of shrinking: 1) cucumbers were not pickled soon enough after gathering 2) brine too strong 3) too much sugar used 4) vinegar too strong. I am mailing you detailed instructions for brining pickles and for making 9-day pickles.

THE KING'S MAN, a missionary motion picture produced in Angola, Africa, will be shown for the first time in Peterborough at St. James' United Church, Sunday, at 7:00 p.m. "The King's Man" is the life story of Rev. Frederico Mussili who is presently a minister in Angola. Many who attended the World Conference of Christian Education in Toronto, 1950, will remember Frederico Mussili who came as a delegate to Canada at that time. Rev. Anson C. Moorhouse, M.A., B.D., of the United Church Committee on Missionary Education recently returned to Toronto after supervising the production of "The King's Man" in Angola. He will be guest minister at St. James' United for the morning and evening services this Sunday. Mr. Moorhouse is the son of Rev. A. E. Moorhouse who was a former minister of St. James' United Church. Rev. Mussili and Rev. Moorhouse may be seen in the above picture which was taken during the production.

BISHOP AT ANNIVERSARY

His Excellency Bishop Gerald Berry will be attending the ceremonies in Toronto this weekend marking the 100th anniversary of St. Michael's College. On Monday, graduate priests from Peterborough will be assisting James Cardinal McGuigan at a high mass.

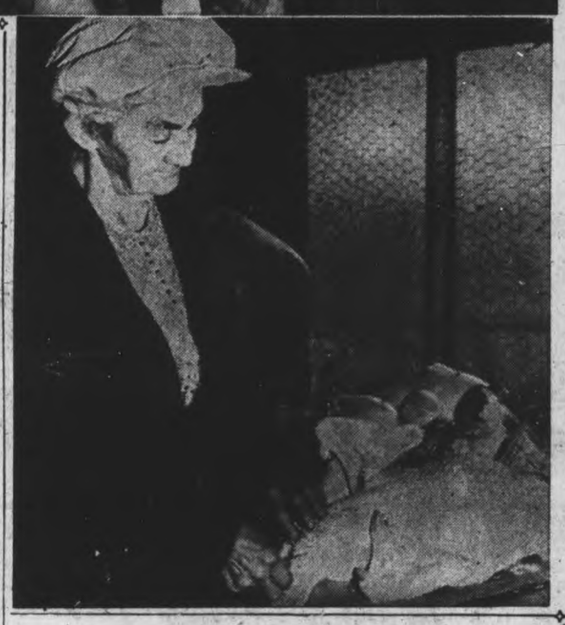
HARVESTING DELAYED

Western grain harvest has been delayed again by intermittent rains, as reported in the CNR crop review from Winnipeg Friday. Only in the last two or three days has it been possible to resume combining and threshing in many sections. Two or three weeks of good weather are required before the western work is finished.

PLAN INDUSTRIAL SITE

City Engineer Chalmers and William Burnie, industrial commissioner, have been authorized to prepare a plan of the city's industrial site west of Erskine Ave. This proposal comes from the industrial committee of which Ald. J. A. Dewart is chairman. They met Tuesday.

C.G.E. PROMOTIONS



J. M. Hales, manager of parts sales at the C.G.E. works here left Peterborough this week to assume his new duties as manager of product planning, power transformers at the company's head office. Gerald B. Warman has been promoted to manager of parts sales, the position formerly occupied by Mr. Hales.

ANY LARGER?

Flower garden enthusiast, R. W. (Bud) Lloyd, 121 Hilliard St., wonders if anyone has a chrysanthemum which measures four inches in diameter. This year he has one bloom, grown from seed sent from England two years, which spreads out for four inches. An ordinary Canadian bloom is two inches wide.

IT'S THANKSGIVING TIME in two weeks and that means turkey-killing time on the numerous turkey ranches in the Peterborough district. This week neighbors and relatives gathered at Ken Lefler's in Otonabee township for a week-long turkey-killing bee. The farmers killed 500 birds, all the Beltsville variety, a small, white-feathered bird (top left photo). Lefler used a sharp-pointed knife, piercing the brain, rather than the old chopping axe; he prepares a turkey (top right) for the jab. Neighbor Stewart Dawson and Mrs. Lefler (middle left) pluck the turkeys, doing between 50 and 75 a day. An aunt, Mrs. Annie Forse from Norfolk county had the job (lower left) of pulling pin feathers, a tiresome but necessary task. Lefler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Lefler, Norfolk county (lower right) cook and look after the children while the job is on but take time out for some carved turkey and pie—(Examiner Staff Photos)

Tire Rim Breaks Arm

Changing tires can be a hazardous job, as William Beatty, 67, R.R. 4, Peterborough, found out for the second time in recent months, Friday afternoon. He was removing a tire in a Brock St. tire repair shop when the tire blew out. The rim blew off, breaking his right arm, and causing brush burns on his leg and cuts on his hand. Last spring he received minor injuries in a similar accident. He was admitted to Civic Hospital for treatment.

Use Of Riverside For Rugby Recommended

Use of Riverside Park for Collegiate rugby, practice and games was recommended to the council Friday night by the property committee in a motion by Aldermen Rehill and Black.

"That's what the park is for" Ald. S. J. Black commented. "The boys have got to have some place to play."

Request for PCVS squad was made by G. W. Craw of the Board of Education and K. S. Wightman, Superintendent of Schools.

Since the Oval has been closed to games, for sod recovery, the Collegiate team has been practicing at Morrow Park. Transportation is at the rate of $250 or more a year. That was the experience a year ago, Mr. Wightman said.

MAJOR SPORT

"Quaker Oats let us use their park, except when it is wet, and the teams get some practice in front of the school. Rugby is a major sports activity. It is carried on by practically every school in the province," Mr. Wightman said.

Request of the deputation was that Riverside Park would be most convenient.

Ald. Rehill asked "what about St. Peter's," and it was suggested that they seemed to be suited with the accommodation at Morrow Park, even if it was a little farther.

George Dormer and John McPhee, representing men's softball league, suggested that another two rows of seats be placed around the Ashburnham Bowl, and also that a stouter fence be set up separating the upper and lower levels of that section of the park.

These details were written into Armar Butcher's book for consideration when the parks budget is up for 1953.

Ald. P. J. Anglesey presided and with him were Aldermen Young, Rehill and Black.

Newsman Honored

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — David J. Wilkie, Automotive Editor of The Associated Press, was honored yesterday by the University Press Club of Michigan and the University of Michigan Department of Journalism. More than 200 newspaper editors and guests joined at a luncheon in paying tribute to Wilkie for his 50 years' service with AP.

Law Doesn't Cover

WASHINGTON AP)—It is not disorderly conduct to call someone a dirty name over the telephone here. Judge Frank Myers yesterday acquitted Miss Frances Morris, 23, who was accused of using obscene words in telephone conversations with Mrs. Maude Kiatta, 37. The conversations concerned were about Mrs. Kiatta's husband, whom she has sued for divorce. Judge Myers concluded "that the use of the telephone as a means of conveying profanity, indecent and obscene words is not disorderly conduct within the meaning of the statute which the court believes is directed at conduct in public places."

Two Injured As Truck, Car Collide

Couple On Holidays Treated By Doctor North of Burleigh

Two people were injured and property damage amounted to $2,500 late Friday afternoon when a new Buick and a dump truck collided at Highways 28 and 36.

Mrs. Josephine Rector of Indiana, one of three occupants in the Buick, had a bottom tooth knocked out and her right finger was cut.

Herbert Oppenheimer, 39, another passenger, received a cut on the top his head, and he was knocked out temporarily.

Neither Oppenheimer nor Mrs. Rector were hospitalized. They were treated by Dr. Lloyd Bailey of Lakefield and then were taken to Bridgenorth where they are vacationing.

TRUCK TURNED OVER

The accident occurred about 5 p.m., Friday, north of Burleigh Falls. The new car, driven by Stephen Rector, 51, of Indiana, drove southeast into the intersection of Highways 28 and 36. It collided with the side of a three-ton dump truck being driven north on Highway 28 by Gerald Donaldson, 21, of R.R. 2 Warsaw.

The gravel-loaded truck continued on up the highway for 31 feet, out of control, and turned over. Donaldson was not injured.

The dump truck, owned by Frank Coyle of Lakefield, received $1,500 damage. And the new car, owned by Rector, $1,000.

O.P.P. Constable George Louth investigated.

TTC Men Accept Terms

TORONTO CP)— A wage increase of three cents an hour has been accepted by some 4,700 employees of the Toronto Transportation Commission. Street-car and bus operators now will get $1.51 an hour, the highest rate in Canada. General Manager H. C. Patten said there would be no immediate increase in fares but "it may be impossible to avoid a fare increase eventually."

Award Agencies Share Of Fund

The division of the money collected in the 1951-52 Red Cross and Community Fund campaign was anounced today by Alex Elliott, chairman of the board of directors.

A total of $81,675 was divided between the nine agencies taking part in the fund. The fund was only about $25 short of its $85,000 objective and the remainder of the total collected was taken up in operating expenses.

The budget was drawn up by the budget committee and approved by the board members at a meeting this week.

MOST TURNED OVER

The greater part of the allocations have already been handed over to the agencies. The remainder will be turned over when the instalment collections are completed.

The amounts budgeted to the agencies are as follows: Children's Aid Society, $7,750; St. Vincent's Orphanage, $4,500; Humane Society,, $400; Canadian Institute for the Blind, $5,300; Salvation Army, $5,800; Y.M.C.A., $16,000; Y. W. C.A., $13,500; V.O.N., $4,625; Navy League, $1,000; Canadian Red Cross, $22,000.

Return To Standard Time Recalls Founder Of System

And now we return to Standard Time. What is Standard Time? Why is it Standard?

The standard time system in use all over the world was the invention of Sir Sandford Fleming, after whom Fleming Place in Peterborough is named. Sir Sandford was not a Peterborough man (he was a Scot and his home was principally in Ottawa) but he married in 1855 a daughter of the late Sheriff James Hall. Sir Sandford also did a survey of the town of Peterborough in 1846; his plan can be seen in Public Library files.

SCHEME DEVISED IN 1878

Fleming was a civil engineer and devised the scheme of standard time in 1878 as a device for simplifying the chores of the authors and readers of railroad timetables. Until then, or rather until 1884 when the new system was widely adopted, every district or large community in the world had operated on its own local mean time and every railroad in North America had its own time system or, if it were long enough, systems. Wherever these systems overlapped confusion was compounded.

Sandford's idea (he became Sir Sandford only after his system was found to be workable) was to adopt 24 standard meridians 15 degrees apart around the earth, starting from Greenwich, England. Each meridian was to be the centre of a time zone and within each zone the time was to be uniform. The time would change by one hour in passing from one zone to the next.

Since the adoption of Sir Sandford's idea there are only seven time zones in Canada. They are Newfoundland, Atlantic, Eastern, Central, Mountain, Pacific and Yukon and they are respectively 3½, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 hours slow on Greenwich Time.

D.S.T. PROPOSED

About 40 years after Standard Time became accepted a Chelsea, England, builder named William Willett proposed the idea of Daylight Saving Time. He wanted clocks put ahead 80 minutes in the summertime to give people more daylight hours for sports. A Daylight Savings bill was presented to the House in 1908 but it wasn't until a year after World War I started that Willett's idea became law in England. Then the clock was set ahead 60 minutes (not 80) for the summer months so that people would get to bed earlier and get up earlier in relation to the sun's rising hour so that they'd use less fuel for light.

Before the Second World War Daylight Saving Time was a matter of local choice in Canada. For almost three years during the war it was compulsory, not only for the summer months but all year 'round. Since September 30, 1945, it has once more been a matter of local choice, as it is in Peterborough.

Before the war it was customary to have plebiscites at the New Year's day civic elections, asking citizens whether they wanted Daylight Saving Time next summer or not. Now the Council makes the decision without a referendum to the people; they know that it is popular among most citizens.

Sir Sandford Fleming died in 1915 at the age of 88. He was Chancellor of Queen's University for 35 years, and Fleming Hall, one of the engineering buildings at the university, is named for him.

500 Turkeys Killed In Week-Long Bee

By DON GRANT

There are quilting bees, barn-raising bees, honey bees and now turkey-killing bees. Neighbors of Ken Lefler, in Otonabee township, took part this week in a week-long turkey-killing bee in which 500 white turkeys were killed, plucked and dressed for distribution to Central Ontario stores for Thanksgiving sales. Three and four neighbors a day worked at the Lefler farm. In return Mr. Lefler will help them with work on their farms later in the year.

Most turkey breeders plan to kill and sell for the Christmas season, but Lefler looks to Thanksgiving for his sales, planning to make a specialty of Thanksgiving birds.

SMALLER BIRDS

This year Lefler has planned 500 birds for Tranksgiving and another flock of 500 for Christmas. All these birds are Beltsville turkeys, a small white-feathered variety which generally weigh between eight and 15 pounds.

Turkey farming on the Lefler farm is a husband-wife business, said Lefler, adding, "she works just as hard, maybe a little harder than I do. She does everything that a man does, works the tractor, forks hay, feeds, kills and dresses the turkeys for sale."

Lefler feels that he couldn't handle the large flock, besides doing other work, "unless she was beside me."

But the two alone are not enough when the time for killing the large flock rolls around. They have to have extra help; this comes from Mr. and Mrs. Leo Lefler of Norfolk county and the neighbors. Mr. Lefler's father and mother cook and look after the children while the bee is on.

During the week Mr. Lefler expected about 12 neighbors to have assisted in the kill. They averaged between 50 and 75 birds killed a day. The whole process, killing, plucking and pulling pin feathers takes considerable time.

"The work is strictly a neighborhood affair," said Mr. Lefler. "About a dozen will help and I will repay them with an equal time's work; Boy, I owe them quite a few days."

Killing a turkey is not as bloody and gruesome as some people believe. If you're picturing an axe lopping off the poor bird's neck, you're all wrong. Actually the new process is quick, neat and helps the plucking.

PIERCE BRAIN

The new way is piercing the bird's brain with a sharp knife; death is instantaneous, no pain, no fuss. This method of killing sets off a nerve chain reaction in the bird which causes the feathers to hang loosely, enabling the plucker to strip the bird quickly. It takes only a few minutes.

After the stripping job is completed, the birds are stored in a chilled room, then distributed to a large chain store which services customers in Kingston, Peterborough, Oshawa, through to Orillia. From there everyone knows the rest, to the buyer, to the roasting pan and oven, and finally to the Thanksgiving dinner table.

Ski Club Sponsoring First Aid Courses

Skiers never know when first aid training will come in handy. Knowledge of what to do when injuries occur can be extremely valuable and the Peterborough Ski Club is again sponsoring first aid courses in conjunction with the local branches of the Red Cross and St. John Ambulance Brigade.

A minimum of 15 people are required before the courses begin and club officials are hopeful they can find a sufficient number interested in taking the six weeks' course.

Classes will be held Monday and Wednesday evenings from seven to nine.

Summer Time Ends

The City of Peterborough will return to Standard Time at 2.00 a.m., Sunday, September 28th.

It is suggested that all citizens should turn their timepieces back one hour before retiring this Saturday night, since the city will be on Standard Time on Sunday.

Unused Doorway Becomes Handy Bookshelf

Conversion is a fine challenge for the handy husband around the home, whether he starts out with an old-fashioned house or a re-made apartment.

The challenge lies in what to do with left-overs. For some reason, people seemed to need a lot more doors in the old days than they do now, and when you take over for modern living you're bound to find a lot of potential space eaten up by doorways that are either gaping frames or paneled-over monstrosities.

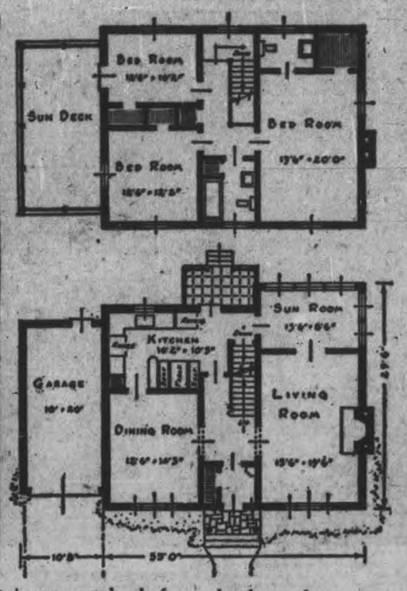
A friend who's a newspaperman, and therefore has a lot of books to stow away where he lives, converted leftovers like this into handy recessed bookcases and even added a shallow cabinet underneath.

First thing he did was to get rid of the latch-plate, the remnants of hinges, and the wooden lip against which the door closed. After this surgery was accomplished with screwdriver and chisel, there were an amazing number of coats of paint to come off to bring everything down to the level of the unpainted wood exposed by the wooden lip.

MEASURE CAREFULLY

Next come the shelves and the stirrups they'll rest on. This takes careful measurement. For a doorless bookcase, have the shelves cut to the exact depth of the door frame. If you want doors, they can be bought ready-made and cut roughly to size. But subtract their thickness from the width of the shelves to be enclosed. One good arrangement is a bookcase-and cabinet combination — the lower shelves enclosed, the upper ones open.

Lengths of three-quarter inch quarter round, screwed against the frame, make good footholds for the shelves.



TRIM TO FIT

The doors follow the shelves into place. Some planing and sandpapering is going to be necessary to make them fit. Also, it's wise to trim a little extra—so the doors will fit just a little loosely. Remember the paint will add some thickness.

The last, triumphant step is fitting the back panel. One large sheet of plywood should do it. And, if you've measured properly, it will sit flush against shelves and frame alike. But before screwing it into place, have someone hold it there for a minute while you run around to the other side and trace the centre of each shelf with a pencil.

Drill a screwhole at each centre mark you've made. Now the panel goes up, you screw it into place—and put a screw through each of the centre holes, good and tight. This eliminates the possibility of any crack between shelves and panel—and also gives the shelves a centre support, as well as support on the sides.

HOUSE No. 476—The town of Mount Royal, Quebec, is well known for its fine homes, and the one above, designed by architect Leonard N. Booth, is an excellent example. From sundeck to breakfast nook the house has a friendly, family air to it. Although no room is particularly large, each is in every way adequate. The house has a traditional centre-hall plan, but the stairway, set back from the front door, overcomes a fault many homemakers feel is all too common with this plan. The kitchen has the much sought-after L-plan, with window over the sink and a handy breakfast table. For information, write Home Building In Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

Landscaping Needed Touch For New Home

Landscaping is a necessary part of a new house. It provides an attractive setting for the house, increases the value of the property and makes comfortable and convenient outdoor living possible.

The proper arrangement of flowers and shrubs can lend eye-appeal to a home and garden and express the individual character and tastes of the family owning it. Certain basic plantings are needed on any small property—trees for shade, flowering shrubs for background, seasonal flowers for that extra touch of color, and evergreens for both appearance and protection from winter winds. Of course, the actual landscaping pattern will depend on cost, individual wishes, and the surface features of the property.

A good, long-term landscaping plan will allow you to develop your property from season to season in keeping with what you can afford. The first step is to decide how much foliage is needed for shade. A large maple will provide protection from the sun in summer, and a dash of color.

LOAN FIRMS

These are life insurance or trust and loan companies that have agreed to lend money for the construction of houses under the terms of the Act.

A list of these companies may be obtained from any office of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. There are two ways in which you can attain ownership of a house under N.H.A. You may purchase a house built for sale by a builder or you may have a contractor build a house for you. If buying a house already built, you make your down payment to the builder and assume the existing mortgage. In this case it is necessary to consult the lending institution that handled the builder's loan to learn what is required of you as the buyer. If you hire a contractor to build a house for you, it is your responsibility to arrange the financing and also supervision of construction from start to finish.

Under the N.H.A. a prospective home-owner may borrow up to 80 per cent of the lending value of the house and lot. Lending value is the appraised value of the house and lot or the owner's estimated cost of the lot and construction, whichever is the lesser. The maximum loan obtainable for a one-family dwelling is $8,500.

The owner's investment must be put into the property before any advances are made on the loan. The first advance is generally made at the roofing stage, or when a quarter of the work has been done. Subsequent advances are made at the plastering stage and on completion of the house.

Buyer Should Ask Legal Advice Before Building

Building or buying a house is a complex financial and real estate transaction. No prospective home-owner should overlook the necessity of engaging legal advice to protect his investment.

Whether or not a document is read to a layman, he sometimes signs it even though the implications of all the clauses are not fully understood. It is only by having recourse to a competent legal mind that a prospective home-owner can sign contracts and mortgage deeds with full knowledge of his rights and obligations.

Legal assistance will first be of value in acquiring the land, investigating and interpreting local by-laws and preparing or checking the building contract. The solicitor will ensure that all work anticipated by the owner is specified in the contract. He also protects, both during and after construction, and by making certain that no claims will be registered against the property for bills incurred by the contractor or sub-contractors.

After construction has been completed the lawyer will handle the mortgage deed and serve as an interpreter to the purchaser to ensure that he understands fully the entire transaction and his obligations.

Affix Garage To House Space-Saver

Because many post-war purchasers of small homes did not need garages, builders saved costs by eliminating them. With so many families acquiring cars since that time, the majority of these home-owners require car shelter.

Questions most often asked are where the garage should be located; what material for its construction; and whether a carport will suffice.

If the plot is small but has side yard large enough to meet local zoning law requirements, the garage should be attached to the house. By building it of the same material and of harmonizing architectural design, house and garage will form a pleasing unit. The attached, fully-enclosed garage gives a rambling effect to the small house and uses a minimum of valuable yard space. A long driveway to a garage in the rear takes up about 16 per cent of a 50' x 100' plot; if the garage is near the front of the house, within 20 or 25 feet of the street, only 4 per cent of yard is sacrificed.

In attaching a garage to the house, do not let it extend forward further than the front of the house itself. More interesting architectural lines are achieved if it is set back about 6 feet so that a jog is formed.

Any attached garage should be built with a view to fire-safety especially as regards the walls adjoining the dwelling. Most builders meet this requirement by installing non-combustible mineral wool insulation in garage walls and roof. Should a fire break out, the flames will be held back from an hour to an hour and a half. Furthermore, the insulation will protect the living quarters from a cold garage.

Kitchen Trend Is To Comfort

The latest trend in kitchen design goes back to Grandma's time. Nowadays homemakers are turning their kitchens into comfortable eating and living places where the whole family can have a good time. Among the cozy comforts being re-installed in some kitchens is the old-fashioned rocking chair. When kitchens first began to go modern they were inclined to be strictly hospital-like—white and black predominating, with an antiseptic air. Now women are kissing the laboratory type of kitchen goodbye.

During World War II American families rediscovered how much fun you can have at home. They also learned how to get along with little or no household help. Since women were doing their own cooking, with just the family pitching in, they dreamed of making their kitchens more attractive. Since the war they've been doing just that.

Nowadays most families want a place where they can have breakfast, maybe lunch, and certainly snacks; and they want it right in the kitchen, or opening from it. As these breakfast nooks and snack galleries and lunch bars have crept in they've influenced and given a lift to kitchen decoration.

INVASION OF COLOR

First of all, color has invaded kitchen walls. We've been using darker and more subtle shades. These are usually called "decorator" colors and have been stolen from living rooms. Violet-blue, chartreuse, forest green, shades of cherry and poppy, deep greys, eggplant, are only a few of the new colors. Paint companies have been alert to this trend and have co-operated. Harmonizing floor coverings and counter tops have helped. And of course there are the new colored cabinets and ranges.

Washable wallpapers are getting away from dull stereotyped designs. A company producing a widely-known washable paper has new patterns and colors that it considers more interesting than anything it has ever done. Another company has a fascinating group of wallpapers with a three-dimensional effect. They are plastic and reproducted from sculptured surfaces. Their pattern comes from the play of light and shadow on their textured surfaces. While expensive, they are extremely durable. One design has vertical lines and ridges and gives the effect of striated wood. Another has a charming bamboo design. Both are suitable for kitchens. But one word of caution: close heed must be paid to directions when these are applied.

DRAPERY DESIGNS

You can also get wallpapers in the same design as some of the toile used for window draperies. One newly decorated house uses the toile curtain material in a dining space opening onto the kitchen, and the matching wallpaper in the kitchen itself.

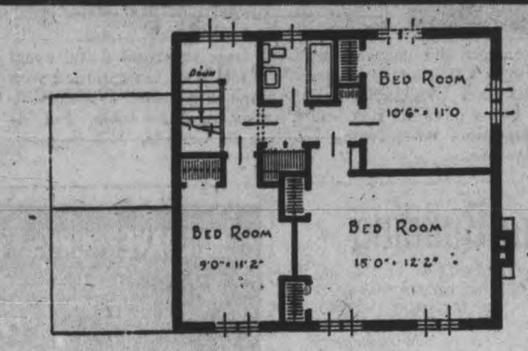
The decorative possibilities of brick are being played up. In renovating, brick kitchen walls are now welcomed. If they are old red brick, with charm and mellowness, they may be left as is. Or the brick may be painted white. In many new kitchens, also, brick is playing a part.

Pine paneling, as well as redwood, also is being used. Like brick, they may be found in kitchens planned to duplicate the Early American period in decoration as well as in the most modern kitchens.

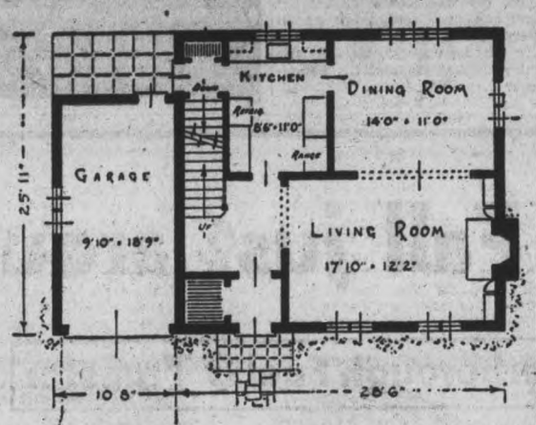
ACCESSORIES GALORE

Kitchens have gone pleasantly accessory mad. Copper molds — old ones and reproductions — are used to give a gleaming effect. Old iron trivets—or reproductions of them—are often used decoratively on kitchen walls. A collection of these may be hung or they may be used in pairs. The trivets may be brought to the table and hot foods placed on them. They are especially useful when round. Copper-clad cooking utensils are so modern in design that they are often served from at the table, and they look stunning on these old-fashioned trivets.

Plants still hold their own in kitchens—as they did in Grandma's time. But nowadays we are more likely to use them with striking decorative effect. Instead of scattering our pink or red geraniums, we line them up in attractive pots on the sill of a casement window over a sink.



SHELF FOR COOKBOOKS



With more and more people collecting cookbooks, and with so many new ones being published each year, many kitchen-planners are making a place for them in the kitchen. Old pine shelves—or reproductions of them—may be hung and used for the cookbooks. Spices and herbs in glass bottles, or in old-afshioned wooden spice boxes, also enliven the culinary scene.

Modern kitchen furniture is likely to be functional, with practical seat covers for chairs. Leather, leatherette, or a plastic material that can be easily cleaned are good choices. Many homemakers have a desk in the kitchen where they can make out shopping orders and menus and pay bills.

It all spells out a better time in the kitchen for Mother—and for the rest of the family, too.

HOUSE No. 478—This six-room design is an excellent example of small home construction. Here is brick at its best, with carefully tailored millwork enhancing the final picture. Actually the house is not as large as it appears, having an area of only 18,300 cubic eet. No room could be called large, but each is adequate. There are splendid window openings and ample closets throughout; the master bedroom has twin closets. Many will appreciate the rear garage door being so close to the kitchen door. This is particulary worthwhile when building restrictions do not permit a door directly between the house and garage. For information regarding plans, write Home Building In Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

Solid Brick Walls Need Insulation

Although many owners of homes of solid brick or masonry construction believe otherwise, it is twice as important to insulate the walls of these homes as to insulate the walls of a frame house, and four times as important to insulate the solid walls as the roof, according to insulation experts.

Studying tests conducted at the University of Illinois, one authority stated that 40 per cent of the season's fuel can be saved if the 8-inch thick walls of a 2-story solid brick or masonry house are insulated with 3¾ inches of mineral wool between the brick and plaster. Insulation of this thickness in the walls of a frame house of the same size saves 19 per cent of the fuel. The difference is that solid masonry is a better conductor of heat than wood.

The tests showed that where 138 fuel units are required to heat a house with uninsulated walls 8 inches thick, 56 units can be saved with mineral wool, and that even one inch of mineral wool will save 45 units.

Fuel savings with 4 inches of this insulating material between roof and living area amount to 13 units in a frame house requiring 138.

From this it should be evident that side-wall insulation is a must for a solid masonry home and is of even more importance than roof insulation, the expert said, adding that a 3¾-inch layer of mineral wool has the insulating efficiency of 12 feet of concrete.

Refinishing Furniture Calls For Plenty Of Elbow Grease

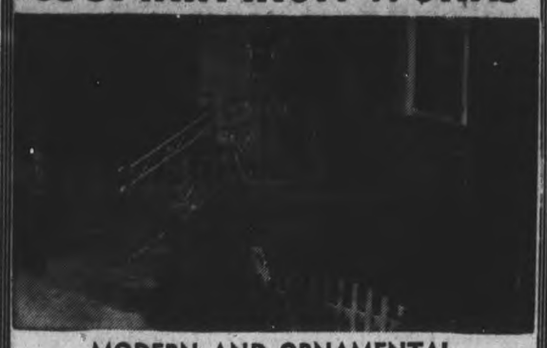
What with the present high price of new furniture of good quality, more and more people are doing refinishing jobs on their present furniture. It's not too difficult and the results are worth-while in giving you a handsome "new" piece and a sense of achievement.

Just one caution: before you start to refinish an old chest, chair or bed, decide whether the piece is worth the work and time. It's a waste to spend them on furniture that was not pretty good to start with, because cheap-jack furniture is usually so structurally unsound that it won't last very long anyhow.

First step in renovating old furniture is to remove the original finish, down to the wood. This finish usually consists of varnish and wax. In the case of painted furniture that has been done over before, you'll have to remove the successive coats of paint or enamel.

Varnish remover generally will do the trick. First, dissemble the piece as far as possible without breaking glued joints. Remove drawers and hardware, such as knobs and lock plates. Flow the varnish remover on with an old brush onto a flat level surface so that it can set for ten minutes and loosen the varnish or paint. When loosened, wipe it off with old rag. If the first application does not completely clean the surface, repeat it. After all varnish has been removed scrub the surface with a rag soaked in turpentine. If there are any scratches or rough spots, sand them smooth with fine sandpaper before scrubbing with turpentine.

Varnish remover should be used with caution. Always wear rubber gloves and do not allow the liquid to touch your skin. Don't smoke or use the remover near an open flame because it is highly explosive.



Next step is to boil a small quantity of linseed oil and then add to it a like quantity of turpentine. Do not boil the turpentine or even pour it near a flame. While the mixture is piping hot, flow it on to the cleaned surface and leave it until the next day. Then repeat the process and put the piece aside, in as dust-free a spot as you can find, and leave it to soak up the oil and turpentine for at least a week. Then rub off the excess and let the piece dry for another week or two and it is ready to wax.

Waxing is especially suited to walnut, oak or mahogany and produces a beautiful satiny finish. Seek this rather than the hard "shiny" finish so often seen on new, cheap furniture. It may take several waxings to provide this patina. The main ingredient is not the wax, but elbow grease. But if you persevere, you'll find it's worth it.

IT TAKES a daring spirit and plenty of elbow grease, but refinishing old furniture pays big dividends.

HOUSE No. 357—An Islington builder, Edmund Peachey Ltd., had this home designed for a site sloping sharply to the rear. The view from the house is to the rear, and larger windows are located there. It is more than a handsome little bungalow; the living quarters at the back permit the larger windows to be built there. In the basement there are a bedroom and a recreation room. Ample Plumbing Means Comfort For Home Owner

One of the most important factors in our standard of living and yet one most frequently taken for granted is the plumbing in the home. From the log cabin in the bush to the most opulent residence of state, the one element that marks the many shades of difference is the plumbing.

In the old days many homes were considered adequate as regards their plumbing if they boasted one toilet, one bath, one wash basin, one kitchen sink and perhaps one set of laundry tubs. And such homes actually were a long way ahead of the standards enjoyed by the parents of their owners. But there is hardly a family living in those houses which, if they were to build again, would not insist on at least two toilets, a shower and at least one extra wash basin, probably in a powder room for the convenience of guests.

Bring High Prices

Homes with ample plumbing facilities invariably bring more when sold than do homes less fortunately equipped. Nor is the extra plumbing merely a matter of convenience or luxury. For along with the trend to better plumbing in the home come a corresponding trend in the improvement in health and in longevity —and much of this can be attributed directly to the plumbing.

Thus, some authorities say, while the interior decorator may add to the richness and the taste of the home, it is the plumber who sets the standard of the health of its occupants and who contributes most to its real value.

Probably no room in the house offers a greater opportunity for the exercise of ingenuity in planning than the bathroom. Here is a room that, first of all, should be practical, but at the same time the chance to make it colorful and charming must not be overlooked.

In planning a bathroom the most convenient arrangement of fixtures in the available space must be taken into consideration. But the location of these fixtures in relation to the piping and necessary vents is also an important part of the plan.

Window Sash Sords

When a sash cord is broken, the counterbalance weight fails to hold the sash in any position. A stretched cord will fail to carry the sash to the top of the window opening. A new sash cord is the only reliable remedy. If the lower sash is the one in trouble its removal from the window frame is the first step toward setting it right. If the upper sash is involved it will be necessary to remove both. The best procedure is to take out the inside vertical stop bead just inside the lower sash on the side where the defective cord is. It should be fastened with screws and its removal in that case will be easy. If it is nailed in it should be pried out by using a chisel as a lever. Start prying at the bottom and preferably from the outside by reaching through the window opening. When the stop is out the lower sash can be removed. The upper sash can be taken out by lowering it to the sill and pulling out the parting strip which usually is not fastened. Under the inside stop bead there is a small cover concealing a pocket in the sash. When it is opened the cords and weights are seen suspended in a long, narrow slot. There are four weights in the double-hung window frame, two on each side. The pair nearest the inside of the house are attached to the lower sash (the outer two to the upper sash). One end of the cord is knotted or anchored in one side of the sash near its top. The cord passes from that point over the pulley near the top of the window frame, and the weight is attached to its other end.

Use Sinker

To work the new cord over the pulley and down through the slot to the bottom, attach a small fishing sinker to a string, pass it over the pulley, and let it go down until it can be reached through the pocket. Then attach the other end of the string to the cord, and pull the cord down within reach of the hand. Fasten the cord to the weight before cutting it to length.

Pull the cord back over the pulley until the top of the weight is up against the pulley. Cut the cord about three inches below the knot-retaining hole in the sash. The extra length is left to form the retaining knot. Tie the knot, pull the sash out far enough to insert the knot in the retaing mortise, and then replace the sash. If the cord has been cut too long the weight will rest on the bottom of the weight box when the sash is raised. If it is too short it will strike against the pulley at the top when the sash is pulled down. A few additional inches should be allowed in cutting the cord. If the sash does not go to the top the length necessary may be cut off.

Spray Painting Can Be Messy

You bought a vacuum cleaner with a paint spraying attachment? Well, look out when trying to use it.

Paint spraying can turn out a professional finish on your automobile, kitchen cabinets, and so on, but you have to know how to handle it.

You have to wear old clothes which you are ready to throw away—an old hat that covers a lot of territory—gloves, and a thick coating of cosmetic cream or petroleum jelly over your face and all exposed skin.

The spray from the paint is going to cover everything it settles on.

Because of the rapid diffusion of vapor and fumes, odorless paint lends itself readily to this type of work. Douglas C. Arnold, president of the Keystone Paint and Varnish Corp., of Brooklyn, pioneers in odorless paint, was asked for his advice on the use of popular vacuum cleaner sprayers.

"If properly used," Mr. Arnold said, "a sprayer can produce a smooth, even finish, with no runs or brush marks, and do the job two or three times faster than brushing.

"But it's important that you cover everything which you do not want to be colored with the paint you are using. This presents quite a problem.

If you are spraying the walls and ceiling of a room, the woodwork, or windows—floors and every

Space Heaters May Be Used 5-Room Homes

QUESTION: Will a circulating space heater be satisfactory in a five-room house?

ANSWER: Space heaters may be used for heating of this size provided the plan of the house is compact and the rooms arranged for free circulation of air to all rooms. It should be recognized, however, that uniform distribution of heat is not always certain when this type of system is used.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: Our house is old and does not have many electric outlets. It is dangerous to have a number of lamps draw power from one floor outlet?

ANSWER: It could be. Now that so many electrical appliances are in common use—radios, phonographs, sewing machines, picture projectors, curling irons, heaters, and so on—and multiple receptacles are available at any dime store, particular care should be exercise not to overload a circuit. Under no circumstances should fuses be replaced with others of higher resistance. The ues of pennies in fuse sockets is foolhardy, as it creates a definite fire hazard.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: It seems to me that in most clothes closets, especially shallow ones, the shelf space usually provided in the upper portion of the closet is not accessible for the storage of articles such as luggage. How can closets be planned to make these shelves more convenient?

ANSWER: In shallow clothes closets, this space can be made more useful for storage purposes if treated as individual compartments, having separate cabinet doors above the regular closet doors. This will permit easy access to the shelves directly from the room and eliminate waste space. With this arrnagement, it will still be possible to include a single shelf for hats directly over the hanging rod.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: Should a combination of different materials such as brick, wood, or stucco be used for the exterior walls of a small house?

ANSWER: To combine them successfully on the exterior of a small house requires considerable skill on the part of the designer. Since simplicity in design tends to increase the apparent size of a house, avoid using too many different materials which contrast in colour and texture and break up the exterior into small units. By use of a single colour different materials can be used to provide variety, maintaining the appearance of size.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: I understand the ban on the civilian use of copper and brass has been lifted. Can I get copper eavestrough soon?

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: We understand that it will be some time yet before copper and brass building materials will appear on the market. One large manufacturing firm we queried said: "It is too early to say when copper eavestroughs will be made again".

Studies conducted by the University of Minnesota indicate that between 23 per cent. and 30 per cent. of the cost of a heating system can be saved if a home is insulated with mineral wool at the time of construction.

Cement Makes Good Job Of Home Repairs

Keep a small quantity of Portland cement on hand for household repairs. You will find it very easy to preserve if you keep it in a moisture-proof container such as a covered tin can or glass jar.

Cement is very handy in repairing cracks in cement flooring or imperfect joints in the wall. Small repairs of this sort can usually be made by using cement alone, or preferably, by the use of cement mixed with one or two parts of sand.

As a specific example of such a repair, let's suppose that a narrow crack has developed in a concrete basement floor. First, chip away the concrete on both sides of the crack to the width of approximately ½-inch and a similar depth. Clean away carefully all loose material. Next, saturate the concrete along the crack with water. Do this thoroughly so that the concrete will absorb as much water as possible.

Now make a thin cream of water and cement and with a small, stiff brush apply it freely to the side of the channel which has been chiseled out. Mix a sufficient quantity of ½ mortar, adding to it only as much water as is necessary to handle it readily with a trowel. Fill the channel with this motor completely.

KEEP CEMENT WET

After the motor has dried it is a good policy to keep the floor in the vicinity of the crack wet for a few days by covering it with wet sand or burlap, or by sprinkling it frequently. This will insure a good bond between the fresh mortar and the old, and proper hardening.

Repairs of points in brick, tile, stone and concrete block walls can be made in a similar manner if you will add about 10% of dehydrated lime, based upon the weight of the cement. For such repairs, however, work out the old mortar and then follow the same procedure as was given previously. A similar mixture may be used for plastering a brick wall. Make sure the wall is thoroughly clean and saturated with water before applying the cement.

Cement may be used in filling cracks in laundry tubs; holes where water and gas pipes enter the basement; furnace casing and fireplaces; joints and breaks in drain pipes; repairing breaks and cracks in concrete walks and steps; connecting smoke pipes to chimneys, and in patching stucco. Before repairing the last three items, however, keep in mind the fact that such cement patching is not always good looking, so unless the repairs are essential for the maintenance of the walk, steps or stucco, it is better not to make them than to have a plaster patch as a constant eyesore.

Spray Painting Can Be Messy

other detail that is not to be painted—must be covered with old newspapers and tightly sealed with masking tape."

Paint experts usually advise against spraying the walls of a small room—although it has been done successfully by professionals. A Long Island, New York, developer used paint spraying throughout the interior of houses to cut costs.

A professional pressure tank with a capacity of two to 100 gallons of paint is used when a great deal of spraying is to be done. This eliminates the bother of constantly filling the reservoir and insures uniform color when ready mixed colors are not used.

Small sprayers—those attached to vacuum cleaners and those powered with a 1/3 horsepower motor —are usually adequate for the amateur job.

Any sprayer, however, should be held away from the wall so that the finish is partially set by the time it reaches the surface and so will not run. For instance, when using paints mixed with benzine, which is a fast-evaporating solvent, hold the sprayer about 18 inches from the surface.

Spraying of cabinets, wicker furniture or other small objects is best done out of doors, where it is not important where the paint vapor settles.

Waterproof Basement Walls Protect Cellar From Damp

Do your basement walls show signs of dampness at certain points immediately after a downpour? If the basement walls were waterproofed, and weeping tile laid around the footings, it is possible that the drain from the bottom of your downspouts to the storm sewer is clogged, causing gallons of water to be left around your foundation walls. Check this point during a storm. Water may be seen gushing out between bottom of leaders and the top of tile drain pipe.

Perhaps your roof water is not carried to a storm sewer at all, but just carried a few feet away from the house, in which case your will want this condition remedied. Water is led to a dry well and it then gradually seeps away into the ground. In some instances a drain leads away from the dry well if there is a suitable outlet for it. Always locate a dry well so the drainage from it is away from the house.

Barrel Well

A barrel put into the ground about a foot below the surface, its top and bottom having been removed, and the barrel filled with coarse gravel, will do nicely for drainage from downspouts. The top of the barrel is covered with wire mesh to hold soil and sod from sifting down into the gravel. closed tile drains lead from the down spouts to the top of the barrel.

Another type of dry well is made of cement blocks laid in a circular hole. Joints are left without mortar. The top is covered over with boards and then wire mesh or metal lath. A layer of concrete is then applied which makes a re-enforced top for the dry well. The location will need to be such that its top is lower than the drain around your foundation walls. The drain tiles are led into such a dry well just below the top. The water seeps away into the ground. The diameter of the cement block dry well can vary from four to six feet or more, the depth averaging between four and six feet, all inside dimensions.

Protect Metal Surfaces

Here are a few tips on keeping the metal in your home in repair.

As applied in the building trade "hardware" covers locks, door handles, door knobs, escutcheons, hinges, window fastenings, and lifts, switch plates, letterbox plates—all the metal finish that goes on wood trim. Your solid brass or bronze hardware may be kept polished or allowed to tarnish, according to the effect you prefer. But other metals should be examined occasionally to see that they are not corroding.

Steel window frames, porch railings, fences, ornamental ironwork, screens, and furnaces are other metals familiar in a house. The painting of metal surfaces, such as roofs and gutters, is necessary to preserve the metal and eliminate the need for repairs. Painting on galvanized iron and other metals is sometimes difficult. Paint may not stick well because of a film of grease on the metal left in the process of manufacture. This can be removed by thorough washing with soap and water or with a cloth dipped in benzene.

Loose rust must be cleaned off old surfaces with a wire brush, with a scraper or sandpaper, and then dusted with a dry scrubbing brush.

For a priming coat on metal surfaces, use a high-grade ready-made rust-inhibitive paint, which is available in a gray color resembling aluminum, in black, green, red, white or colorless. Or, mix 30 to 35 pounds of pure dry red lead with one gallon of pure raw linseed oil. Red lead is expensive and somewhat difficult to apply.

Scientists say dead air is the best insulating medium and mineral wool derives its high insulating properties from millions of dead air cells in each cubic inch of the fluffy wool-like fibres.

Careful Work, Good Material Plumbing Needs

The water supply, and drainage systems of the house, included in the general name of plumbing, are of the highest importance. The materials chosen should be good but beyond this, the man who does the work must be capable. The competent plumber is familiar with the principles o mechanics and hydraulics which govern his work ,and in some provinces he can only practice his trade under licence. Before he is allowed to undertake regular work he must undergo a rigid examination. He must live up to all buildin-code regulations in the performance of his work under penalty of losing his licence. As a consequence the builder of a home is protected and in a measure guaranteed a plumbing system that will be adequate and efficient.

In building a house in a rural district the owner could not do better than employ a well-known workman for the plumbing job and insist, that all the regulations of the city code be complied with.

In a locality where water comes from a community system, mains are tapped at the street line. Supply pipes leading from the main to the house are of different sizes for different sizes of houses.

For the average house of 2½ storeys a pipe of 1-inch diameter is considered sufficient. Pressure at the outlets of pipes on the upper floors should be five pounds to the square inch if automatic flush valves for toilets are to be installed. The amount of pressure is governed not only by the pressure in supply pipes but by the number of bends and joints in all the pipes of the water system. While the 1-inch pipe is sufficient for average conditions, a larger pipe is needed where solid matter or chemical content of the water is likely to cause filling or corrosion.

QUALITY OF PIPE

Water pipes are of copper, brass, steel, black or galvanized, wrought iron and lead, giving the builder a wide range of choice. Copper pipe lasts longer and can be used in smaller sizes because it does not rust. The choice between iron and steel should depend upon the corrosive action of the water.

Pipes should be laid on a grade. The stops of horizontal piping should be about one-tenth of an inch toward the main supply pipe. This will drain sediment toward the lead-in at the basement wall where an outlet valve for the drainage of the whole system is installed. All lines should rest on hangers at intervals of not less than 10 feet. A sleeve for the pipe by loops or bands should be provided wherever it goes through a wall. Expansion in pipes due to heat is overcome

Credit Curbs Found Easier

A new official estimate of 30,000 Canadian families "on the fence" about buying or building a new house means that many of those thousands recently have joined the wait-and-see army of homeseekers, the families stymied by last Spring's abrupt increase in the down payment under National Housing Act Mortgage. The annual rate of those starting to build housing units in Canada is running now at around 60,000 dwellings and apartments, one-third fewer than in the past several years.

If yours is one of the homeseeking families whose building or buying plans were hit by the February curtailment of credit buying, including houses, good news for you soon may turn up at the local office of the mortgage or insurance company where, earlier, loan applicants got mostly bad news.

Varieties of Linoleum Give Owner Wide Range of Floors

When we think of material things, we are very apt to think of them in terms of those we've seen and had experience with in the past. Linoleum recalls for many of us a linoleum mat, no more representative of today's product than the old wood stove. In order that you may know of the various types now being made the following description will indicate for you the variety available when you plan to decorate with linoleum.

Plain colored linoleum is called just that unless it is particularly thick and then it is called battleship linoleum.

Marboleum, a second type, has a marble effect which is produced by adding the coloring pigments at specific stages of mixing.

Marble tile inlaid linoleum is distinguished from moulded by the fact that the divisions between the various colors are clean cut and do not mix or blend.

Moulded inlaid linoleum may be a dozen colors or more in a single pattern which goes right down to the burlap base.

Printed linoleum is the last of the important types. The patterns on printed linoleum are applied to the surface by blocks carved by hand from specially prepared sheets of wood. A different block for each color transfers the patterns into the linoleum.

Beyond these differences in the types there is a difference in the gauge of thickness of linoleum

Sparkling, Colorful Bathroom Is Homemaker's Dream

An up-to-the-minute sparkling and colorful bathroom is the dream of every homemaker. The excitement of remodelling or the thrill of creating a new bathroom is lots of fun. But aside from the pleasure of planning the "ideal" bathroom a great deal of serious thought should be given to the practical aspects of the room.

The bathroom, as is the kitchen, is first and foremost a utility room and can be treated as such without detracting from its beauty.

First, proper selection of quality plumbing fixtures and good arrangement of them is important. The fixtures do not necessarily have to be the standard white; there is a wide selection of lovely colors available today, ranging from delicate pastels to deep vibrant tones, around any of which a color scheme could be built.

After the selection and the installation of the fixtures, the walls are next in importance. The most popular and practical bathroom wall treatment is to use ceramic or composition tile halfway up and paint or wallpaper for the upper walls and ceiling.

Wallpaper for the bathroom is practical and decorative too. It adds gaiety and lightness and compliments or sets off the more severe tile treatment of the lower portion of the walls. In this room it is possible to use the most flamboyant paper, because the area is small. There are also luxurious marbelized papers, marines, seashell and other stylized designs that will add interest.

COLOR CONTRAST

If the upper walls are to be painted, a contrasting color to the lower walls should be selected. The woodwork and ceiling should be painted the same shade as the walls or the background color of the wallpaper to be most effective.

The floor can be tiled, covered with linoleum or composition flooring, painted with floor enamel or even carpeting can be used to advantage.

A large mirror, ample dressing table space, handy drawers, and cabinets, and good and adequate lighting are essential to the comfort and efficiency of the modern bathroom.

The colors of the walls, floors and fixtures can be repeated and accented by the color used for the accessories such as the shower curtains, window curtains, rugs, and towels.

MEN GET NO CREDIT

Few women give men the credit for any knowledge of or feeling for home furnishings. Yet why shouldn't men's taste be just as good as women's? Don't forget that a great many of our most successful interior decorators are men.

A perfect example of what a man, a bachelor at that, can do, was shown recently to us. The owner had dreamed of a home in the country for years and eventually found exactly the type of place he had been seeking. It was an old house and definitely down at the heels. Undaunted and with absolutely no experience in the decorative line, this man went about the job of rejuvenating and beautifying the house with the imagination and clear-minded vision of a woman who knows what she wants.

FIREPLACE TO CEILING

A fireplace of beautiful native stone extending to the ceiling was substituted for the completely uninspired end wall in the living-room. The walls are painted a Williamsburg green with glistening white wood work. The draperies have a splashy white peony design against a deep gold background, for which the green walls are a perfect foil. The comfortable armschairs are covered in rough-textured fabric in Chinese red. The divan against one wall is upholstered in a soft green and yellow plaid check and a deep club chair, with its own big footstool, is done in a stripe reflecting the red, yellow and leaf green color scheme.

A mirror in a white wrought-iron frame, a white wrought-iron coffee table and tall lamps decorated with Chinese figures are the excellently selected major accessories. Big brass andirons and a brass plaque of Rembrandt give additional warmth and individuality to the room. All are in complete harmony.

HEAT LOSS STOPPED

In the average dwelling, 44.4% of the heat is lost through roof and walls and it is to prevent this loss that both new and old homes are insulated with mineral wool.

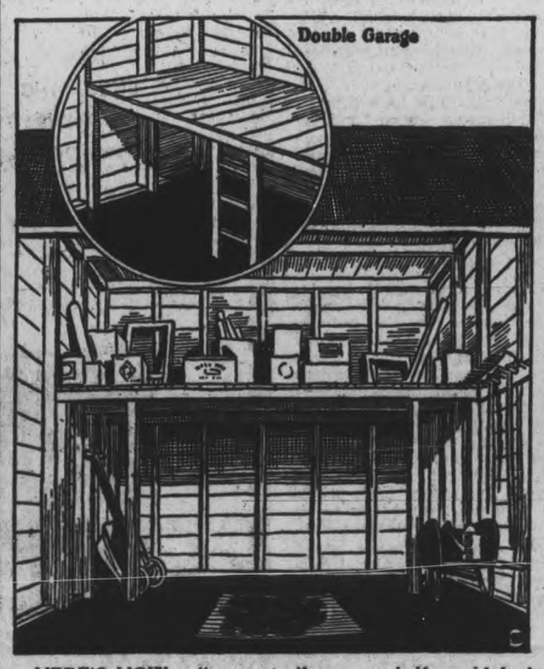
Mezzanine Floor In Garage Gives Extra Storage Space

Storage space in the average small home is always at a premium. The closets are full to overflowing because there's no more space in the attic, which has already overflowed into the garage until the floors and corners are so full only an experienced driver can get the family flivver through the paint cans, garden hose, lawn mower, and baskets of topsoil and dirty bulbs. There is one source of additional space however that most home owners overlook—a "mezzanine" floor in the garage.

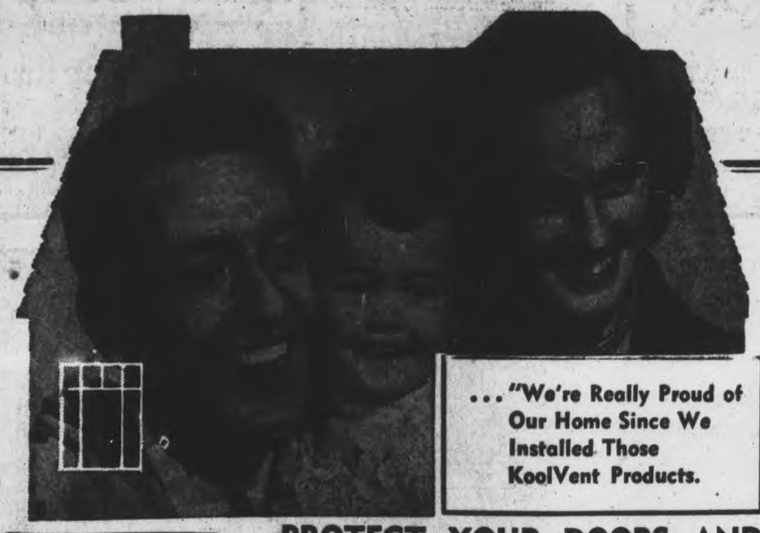
This should be a foot higher than the hood of the car and extend from the back wall to a point less than a foot from where the car's windshield comes when it is parked correctly in the garage This will give you an additional seventy-five square feet of storage space in a single garage or approximately a hundred and twenty square feet in a double garage.

The construction of this handy shelf is simple and with the exception of the two-by-four frame can be made of scrap lumber in random widths and lengths. The framing should consist of three two-by-fours that reach across the garage, spaced roughly two feet apart.



Don't expect nails alone to hold the weight of this shelf. Legs should be made of two-by-fours and spiked into the studding to support the back cross beams and the ends of the other two. In addition, a leg should be placed under the front edge of the shelf on either side of the car, allowing ample space for manoeuvering.

After the flooring is fastened down, you may start clearing out the attic. Remember to keep the heaviest articles near either end of the shelf where they will have more support.



In deciding what to store in the garage, remember that there will be more moisture there than in the attic. For instance, screens and storm windows should stay in the attic. There are many items which will not be affected by moisture that will make the shelf in the garage as welcome as another room on the house, for a fraction of the cost.

In the case of the double garage, supporting legs should be placed under the centre of the cross beams between cars and made to form a ladder by the addition of steps.

The front of the shelf may be closed if you wish, and have enough material. This will keep out a lot of dirt. The shelf can be made drier with the use of moisture proof bags, purchasable at almost any hardware store or home furnishing department.

HERE'S HOW a "mezzanine" storage shelf would look in single and double garages.

Credit Curbs Found Easier

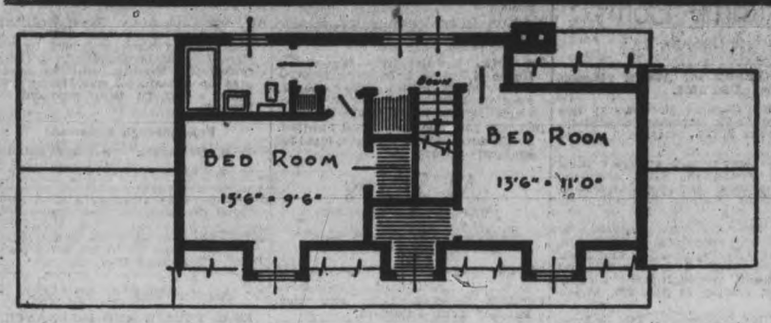
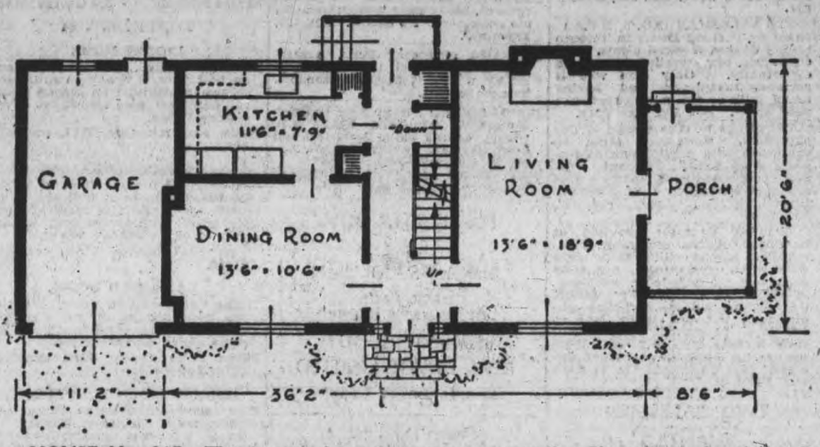
a quick easing of the housing credit which has a great deal to do with determining the price.



Intelligent buying of linoleum involves two steps—first, decide what type of linoleum you want, and then buy the product of a reputable manufacturer through an established dealer. In deciding the type you want, consider the use to which it will be put. This decision should take into consideration the thickness, as well as appearance of the linoleum you are considering.



Although linoleum is very simple to care for, it is important to its long life that it be cared for properly. When you want to clean anything, the first thing you think of is soap. But soap and linoleum do not get on together. Neither do scrubbing and linoleum.

For the most part, linoleum should be cleaned with a damp mop, and that is all the cleaning it needs. If the floor becomes very soiled, and soap must be used, mild soap flakes in a weak solution should be applied gently with a mop. Be sure to rinse and dry the floor thoroughly. Always wax immediately after cleaning.

Before inlaid linoleum floors are used they should be given at least two thin coats of good liquid wax which should be allowed to dry before they are polished. When the floors start to show signs of unevenness or dullness, the linoleum should be rewaxed—wax can be applied in the places showing signs of dullness due to concentrated traffic and floor will again look even and uniform. Self polishing waxes are not recommended.

HOUSE No. 367—This house, although it looks large due to its 56-foot frontage, in reality has only five rooms with about 15,300 cubic feet. Cross traffic has been avoided by the design of the home. The living room, impressive in appearance, is private as well. Closets are plentiful and large, and the designer has produced a kitchen which is a pleasure to work in. Exterior walls are red brick, the roof is green, and all millwork is painted white. For working plans, write Home Building In Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

Varieties Of Linoleum Given Owner

curb has borne fruit. Lending institutions soon will get instructions from their head offices to put into effect in certain cases the new, more liberal mortgage terms decreed by agreement with Ottawa.

Under the new regulations announced by Resources Minister Winters for the National Housing Act, administered by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., N.H.A. mortgage loans are being boosted to 80 per cent of agreed maximum selling price of an ordinary new dwelling purchased by non-defence workers. Defence workers in certain cases will get 90 per cent loans, again as a percentage of an agreed maximum selling price.

Down payments on new low-cost houses thus move sharply downward, to 20 per cent of the sale price in the case of non-defence families, and 10 per cent for defence workers in designated areas. It was about 30 per cent before.

For many, this means that low-cost housing should be available in 1952 on even easier terms than before the Government curtailed credit last February by abolishing the N.H.A.'s "second mortgage" provision for a one-sixth extra loan. That provision is not reinstated but the new terms are even better for those who can get a builder to fix his price in advance and fix it fairly low.

Paint Or Bleach Dark Woodwork

Spring or fall cleaning time seems to touch off the decorator urge, too.

A lot of people, for instance, are getting tired of the dark woodwork that seemed to be standard equipment not many years back and still looms darkly in countless homes.

Being dedicated to the easy way of doing things, we can think of no better recipe for getting light where there's darkness than painting over the old woodwork. When the walls are painted, too, woodwork done in the same color (with a slight gloss finish for easier washing) creates the happy optical illusion of making small rooms look larger

If you persist in a natural finish for your woodwork, however, you've got to start by getting things back down to bare wood again.

You do this with a liquid paint-and-varnish remover, sandpaper, steel wool, and an ample supply of elbow grease. After you've gotten rid of the old finish, carefully following manufacurer's directions on whatever remover you use, go to work with the steel wool, following with fine sandpaper.

BLEACHING NEXT

Sometimes—but not very often—you'll wind up with woodwork that's light enough for your taste at this stage. If the old stain went in too deep to be sanded away, you've got another step to take—bleaching. Use a prepared wood bleach or a solution of eight ounces of oxalic acid crystals in two quarts of hot water(careful: it's poison). Brush it on and let it dry, using several applications if necessary, then rinse thoroughly with clean fresh water.

Now you're ready to sandpaper again, using very fine paper until you have a surface as smooth as glass. After you've cleaned things up with a dust brush or a cloth moistened in turpentine, you can go ahead with the new finish.

For a natural finish that will be no darker than the wood itself, use shellac or varnish. You can go ahead and stain the whole thing all over again if you keep it light enough, finishing with shellac or varnish in this case, too, or with a penetrating wax of appropriate color.

One particularly popular finish these days is a silver-gray stain, highly adaptable for white oak woodwork. "Pickled" finishes seem to give happy results, too.

One way to achieve this effect is to mix white paste wood filler with turpentine until it's like thick cream. Apply it freely to the bare wood. When the sheen fades out, wipe coarse cloths across grain. Let it dry for a day, sand lightly and shellac.

Since houses of the dark woodwork era often have built-in sideboards or buffets and dining room furniture finished in the same foreboding tones, once you've taken care of the woodwork you can apply your new skill on these, too.

6—In Memoriam

GARDNER—In loving memory of our niece, Pauline Gardner, who passed away September 27, 1951.
All her toils and conflicts o'er,
Though she dwells with Christ above,
O, what glory she's discovered
In a Saviour whom she loved.
—Remembered by Aunt Brenda and Uncle Louie Corbin, Aunt Irene and Uncle Frank Livings and families.

GARDNER—In loving memory of our darling daughter, Pauline Gardner, who passed away Sept. 27, 1951.
One year has passed and gone
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth,
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon her grave
May wither and decay,
But the love for her who sleeps beneath,
Shall never fade away.
—Ever remembered by mother and dad, brothers and sisters.

JACKSON—In loving memory of James Robert Jackson, who passed away Sept. 28, 1948.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear;
Too far away for sight or speech
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember him who once was here
And who, though absent, is just as dear.
—Ever remembered by wife Viola and family.

LAFAVE—In loving memory of my dear sister, Lillian Downer, wife of William Lafave, who passed away Sept. 27, 1936.
Today recalls sad memories
Of a dear sister gone to rest,
And the ones who think of her today
Are the ones who loved her best.
—Sadly missed by sister Violet (Mrs. C. Harris) and brother Art Downer.

MILBURN—In memory of a dear father, Fred Milburn, who passed away one year ago.
Gone, dear father, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Lovingly remembered by his daughters.

Many Respond To Nixon

NEW YORK (AP)—The Western Union Telegraph Company announced yesterday that 175,000 telegrams were filed throughout the United States in response to Senator Richard M. Nixon's radio-telecast appeal last Tuesday night. It was the largest number of telegrams ever sent in response to an appeal by radio and television, Western Union said.

For Parents Only

Does Your Child Anger You Most Parents Find They Do

By NANCY CLEAVER.

"The visiting psychologist spoke on 'anger in children.' I do wish he had made some suggestion about 'anger in parents.' Children aren't the only people who get mad. At times my young daughter Ann is so obstinate that I could almost explode."

Are you amazed at this parent's frank comment? Maybe you have an equable temperament and yours is a serene household. But if your reactions to your child's behavior are occasionally violent, you have lots of company. When you find your own offspring annoying, and even provoking at times, you are not an upnatural parent. You face a similar problem to that of countless other mothers and fathers.

In a home parents feel responsible for directing their children in sensible behavior. Children of all ages long to be independent and be their own bosses. This is especially true of adolescents, who lack the experience of mature adults, and at the same time want to be treated like grown-ups.

It is during this period of adolescence that explosions of wrath on the part of both children and parents are lively to increase. Parents have good grounds for feeling that there are some mistakes which are too tragic to risk. Just read a newspaper report of a bad smash-up of a car filled with 'teen-agers coming home from a party.

"MUMMY WAS SO CROSS, I ran away!" a small boy explained who disappeared with a chum to the fields at the edge of the town. Children at every stage certainly do make their parents angry at times!

FAMILY CAR

A boy wants to drive a car so that he can impress his girl friend and be popular with his gang. Parents are often dubious about their son's driving skill in an emergency. Is it any wonder there are so many fixed battles over the use of the family car by adolescents?

But anger can arise in a parent or a child of any age, and it is often over a comparatively minor thing. Some parents and children at certain ages just seem to be allergic to each other. Differences in outlook or habits can be exceedingly annoying.

Mrs. Jones is a very good housekeeper and her son Tommy just naturally "hangs his clothes on the floor." He scorns his mother's "fussy ways." She wants to be proud of every corner of her home. But Tommy has no urge to keep his own room "ship-shape." He is infuriated when she tries to straighten his hobby table. She might damage his precious model plane in the making. The sight of his construction job with the litter in the surrounding area "makes her blood boil."

It is true that it does no harm for a parent to make it plain that there is a limit to his or her patience. But a child can understand this by other ways than by shouted words and angry gestures. Frequent quarrels create a poor atmosphere for family living and learning.

WHAT COULD I DO?

In any perplexing situation such as disputes over the family car, or a child's persistent untidiness, a parent should ask "How did this come about? Is there any way an angry conflict can be avoided? What constructive things can be done to alter this provoking pattern of living?"

There is no one magic formula for side-stepping all friction. But part of the job of being a parent is to look at a problem objectively. Good mothers and fathers try to find a solution which is satisfying for both parties involved. Compromise is usually better than angry dictatorship.

The Family Council has been a real help in many homes in preventing anger situations from arising or from becoming common occurrences. In other homes, time for talking things over at regular intervals between a parent and child has proven its worth.

Before an adolescent boy has the use of the family car, either in a Family Council or in a chat, the son should agree to certain rules. These are safeguards against accidents or too great a drain on the family budget. These regulations he must observe, or the use of the car is forfeited.

START AT EARLY AGE

A child's training in tidiness must be started at an early age. If mother has always picked up after her son, she cannot suddenly expect him to hang up his own things. He will see that there are advantages to not living in a complete state of chaos, if he cannot invite a chum to play in his room unless he keeps it reasonably neat.

Sometimes parents realize that it is their own fatigue or anxiety about quite another matter, and not their child's perversity, which precipitates a "flare-up." "Mummy was so cross," a small boy explained why he and his chum ran away to the fields. It is not right to take out on a son or daughter one's own weariness, or vexations over unsolved difficulties. More rest and willingness to face unpleasant situations may transform a habitually irritated parent into one who is fairly easy to live with.

No modern mother or father wants to play the role of "angry parents." It is an unpleasant part, damaging to health, to peace of mind and ruinous to family happiness. Parents can often "think ahead" and prevent conditions arising from which a violent difference springs. They can remove any causes of disputes. Through mutual understanding and co-operation with their children they can seek for satisfying patterns of family living.

All "hot heads" are not red-haired and all red-heads are not easily provoked. Nevertheless the strains of modern living often tend to make parents "quick on the draw." By temperament and training, many adults find it extremely difficult to rule their own tempers. But parents want their children to grow in self-discipline. They know there is no more effective way to teach their child control of anger than by demonstrating in a trying situation that it can be done.

W.M.S. Entertains Mission Band

OMEMEE — (ENS) — About 40 Baby Band members and their mothers were guests of Trinity United Church Woman's Missionary Society Thursday afternoon.

The meeting was arranged and conducted by Baby Band superintendent, Mrs. H. Deyell, and her assistant, Mrs. Wm. Fisher. Mrs. T. A. McConnell, W.M.S. president, welcomed the children and their mothers.

Musical numbers included a trio, Mrs. L. Casey, Mrs. T. J. Pogue and Mrs. W. D. Weir, and a duet, Mrs. McConnell and Mrs. Harold Laidley.

Miss Marion Zufelt gave an interesting account of some of her summer activities in Quebec with the United Church Caravan. Their work, she said, was carried on in communities which were not administered by any church. They confined their efforts almost entirely to teaching the children, as that seemed the most hopeful way of awakening in these neglected people a sense of their need of christianity. The indifference of the majority of the people was a source of grave concern to Miss Zufelt and she expressed the desire that more young people of the church would volunteer their services next summer.

Mission Band superintendent, Mrs. S. D. Vaughan told the Baby Band children a story about the mission boat, Thomas Crosley IV, and its service to the hospitals on the west coast of British Columbia—the hospitals which their pennies are helping to support this year. They are contributing $4,000.

She also introduced the Mission Band study book, "Mpengo of the Congo", from which the boys and girls promoted from the Baby Band would be taught at the Mission Band sessions beginning Monday.

In a service conducted by Mrs. Deyell the following children were promoted to Mission Band and received by the Mission Band superintendent: Douglas Weir, Donald Weir, Joan Ann Mortson, David Whitmore, David Finney, Johnnie Parker, Wayne Swinson, Joyce Hart, Sandra Morrison, Betty Lou Fisher, Morag Gray, Gordon Fisher, Jimmy Eggleton, Carl Lennox, Bonnie Whetung, Douglas Smith, Arthur Carruthers, Nancy Smith, Kennie Smith.

A social half-hour was then enjoyed when lunch was served by the W.M.S.

30 Charges Dismissed In Game Case

PARRY SOUND—(CP)—Decision was reserved yesterday on three counts and 30 charges were dismissed against eight southern Ontario men charged with a variety of offences under the Ontario Game and Fisheries Act and the special fishery regulations.

Defendants were: John Kidd, Inglewood, a former magistrate; Dr. William Stubbs, a veterinary from Caledon; Lockwood Stubbs, Alton; Dr. James Thomas, a Caledon physician; Gordon J. Breden, a councillor at Orangeville; William Ferguson, former councillor at Orangeville; Otto Caven, an Alton funeral director, and George Laver, a deputy game warden from Cooksville.

The charge, arising from a fishing trip last May and early June in Butt and Proudfoot townships near Algonquin Park, included gill-netting lake trout, breaking a beaver dam, destroying fish by burying them, having more than the legal limit of lake trout and hindering a conservation officer.

Dismissed were the gill-netting charges, one against Laver of abusing his authority as a deputy game warden, destruction of a beaver dam and destroying 12 lake trout by burying them.

Decision was reserved to Oct. 9 at Powassan by Magistrate F. C. Powell of Parry Sound on charges that Laver neglected his duties as a deputy game warden; that Kidd hindered a conservation officer through refusing, initially, to get off a can containing fish and making reference to Dr. W. W. K. Harkness, chief of the division of fish and wildlife, Lands and Forests Department, as a "well-known acquaintance"; and posession by seven of the men of more than 10 lake trout each—the legal limit.

The trial opened Thursday in Burks Falls but Magistrate Powell moved the case here. No reason was given but it was assumed the odor from numerous fish and the warmth of the tiny courtroom were contributing factors.

THREE HURT, RADIO ESCAPES — Apparently fleeing the scene of the crash, this large radio seems to be climbing out of window at right as a car comes crashing in the front door of this Columbia, Mo., home. Three passengers of the automobile were hurt. Seven persons in the house at the time escaped injury in spite of the terrific impact which forced the radio out the window. Damage was estimated at $800.

U.S. Government Backs Up Ambassador

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government stood squarely behind Ambassador George F. Kennan today in the face of a blistering propaganda blast from Moscow. But officials here conceded the Kremlin might force his removal as envoy to the capital of Communism.

The sharp criticism was based on a Sept. 19 Berlin comment to reporters in which Kennan said, among other things, that contacts between Americans and Russian people in Moscow had been reduced to the zero point. He compared with the war days in Germany when he and his staff were interned for several months.

The situation was regarded by veteran State Department experts on Russia as being without precedent so far as they could recall.

MAY DEMAND REMOVAL

Considering the fact that the Soviet press reflects only views approved by the Soviet government, they estimated the violence of the attack as sufficient to indicate a demand for Kennan's removal should the criticism be continued.

Should he be ousted, it was unclear whether the U. S. would force the withdrawal of Soviet Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin, who presented his credentials to President Truman Thursday, but that was clearly a possibility.

The situation is ironical for the reason that when Kennan went to Moscow last May, after years of helping shape U. S. policy toward Soviet Communism, he went with the avowed hope of restoring more normal diplomatic relations and re-establishing some basis of courtesy and confidence in dealings between the two governments.

"The tendency of authorities here now is to speculate that this did not suit Russian purposes at a time when the Kremlin has a great campaign of hate against the United States running inside Russia.

Toronto Traders Undecided About Trend Of Stock Market

By HARRY KINGDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Whether the market goes up or down seems to depend on whose opinion traders accept.

Toronto traders this week appeared to accept the views of some American metal-industry heads on the future of the base metal market here rather than the views of a Canadian government official. As a result, the base metal market declined.

The Canadian official, O. J. Firestone of the federal trade department, forecast an expanding long-term market for metals in Canada as Canadian consumption rises. This opinion might have been expected to raise base metal stock prices.

Other observers pointed to the report of the United States Material Policy Commission which said in effect that new goals for metal production will put a strain on U.S. resources. This suggested a long-term U. S. market for Canadian metals.

DISAGREE WITH REPORT?

Heads of U. S. metal companies, however, disagreed with the report. They emphasized expanding facilities and the industry's record of finding new reserves as old supplies run out. This view tended to dampen hopes for expanded Canadian sales to the U.S. Anyway, the base metal market in Toronto slipped.

The decline, of course, is also partly the result of a generally bearish market which has prevailed for about three weeks. Another factor is that a Toronto Stock Exchange audit is expected shortly and a number of brokers are putting accounts in order for it. This often involves selling fairly large amounts of stock.

On Monday, base metals joined western oils on the Toronto market in leading a general decline. In Montreal, industrials slipped but papers rose. In Toronto Tuesday, the decline continued and in Montreal, both papers and industrial weakened.

A recovery started in Toronto Wednesday and industrials gained strength in Montreal. By Thursday, mixed trading had checked the Toronto recovery, but papers and industrials rose in Montreal. Friday, Toronto stocks started a slight decline while papers slipped in Montreal and industrials gained.

STARTED WITH RISE

The New York market started the week with a rise led by rails and radios. After a slight interruption Tuesday the rise continued Wednesday and prices held steady except for a slight decline Friday.

From Friday to Friday, the Toronto Stock Exchange indices showed industrials down 2.08 at 318.48, golds down 1.11 at 87.79, base metals down 3.31 at 185.64 and western oils down 3.68 at 125.31.

In the Montreal averages, banks were up .06 at 31.50, utilities up .8 at 87.7, industrials down .6 at 207.9, combined down .2 at 167.8, papers down .74 at 694.06 and golds up .18 at 66.54.

In New York the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was 90 cents at $106.90.

Scholars Have Produced New Bible Translations

NEW YORK (AP) — The Bible will be the keynote of a series of events starting tomorrow which church authorities consider of epochal significance to religion.

On schedule:

1. Publication Monday of the first part of a new Roman Catholic translation of the Bible, the first translation in history undertaken by United States Catholic clergy.

2. Publication Tuesday of a new, complete revision of the King James version, marking the culmination of a 15-year inter-denominational Protestant project.

3. Publication Tuesday of volume No. 1 of the "Interpreter's Bible", the third of 12 massive volumes issued thus far as a result of a program to compile all modern knowledge of the scriptures.

Churchmen term the simultaneous release of the new works one of the greatest events in Biblical publishing history.

It comes on the 500th anniversary of the Gutenberg Bible—the first book ever printed from movable type.

BEGIN BIBLE WEEK

Tomorrow also marks the beginning of Bible Week observations in the United States for Roman Catholics, Protestants and Jews. Observances are slated throughout the period.

In producing the new Bibles, scholars have had rich new resources in recently-found old manuscripts, modern archaeological discoveries and the findings of years of research.

They have eliminated archaic idioms, corrected old hand-copying errors, changed works whose meanings have changed over the years and converted obscure passages into simpler, contemporary language.

Prostitutes Attack Two U.S. Wives

LONDON (Reuters)—Two American girls walking with their U.S. airmen husbands in Piccadilly, glittering hub of London's night life, were attacked by a crowd of prostitutes.

One of the girls, attractive Mrs. Naomi Bailey of Lyndon, Kas., was beaten up.

Three of the prostitutes, led by a small, blonde girl with a mop of platinum curls, were sentenced Thursday to three-month jail terms for the attack.

Mrs. Bailey said three girls standing in a darkened doorway spoke to the two men.

"I told them they were our husbands," she said. "They did not appear to believe us and said something about poaching on their territory."

"One of the gang called us American prostitutes. Then my friend had her purse knocked out of her hand. After that I remember hitting the ground and woke up in the police station."

Her husband, William Bailey, said he called for a policeman.

Sir Laurence Dunne, London's chief magistrate, said:

"Prostitution is legal in this country so long as it does not cause annoyance. The fact you are prostitutes aggravates the crime."

WINNIPEG (CP) —Twenty-one applications from Canadian servicemen to marry Japanese women have been approved by the authorities, Dr. W. Stuart Stanbury, national commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross, said here.

Fourteen of the couples already are married and eight of them are expected to arrive in Canada shortly, he said.

See Textile War Japan Versus Britain

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japanese textile circles Friday forecast an all-out "textile war" between Britain and Japan as a result of the two-week international cotton conference at Buxton, England, which ended yesterday.

At the conference Britain hoped Japan would not invade textile markets Britain now holds. But the Japanese insisted they must increase their production and sales to attain economic independence.

Japanese textile men were generally optimistic, believing Britain would suffer more losses than Japan in a price-cutting textile war. Some Commonwealth countries already are absorbing more Japanese than British textiles.

Have a Problem

UPTON, Mass. (AP) — The Arthur W. Morrisons have a problem. A knot fell out of a board in their kitchen annex during the summer, a queen bee entered the hole, thousands of worker bees followed, and now the walls are full of honey. The Morrisons want to know how to get rid of the bees and salvage the honey without tearing down the annex.

U.S. Mint Has Problem Too Much Gold In Vaults

DENVER (AP) — The problem of the U. S. Mint's Denver branch is it has too much gold. There's nearly $6,000,000,000 worth of gold stuffing vaults, Mrs. Gladys Morelock, mint director, said today.

Mrs. Morelock said that the Denver mint is second only to Fort Knox, Ky., in the world gold storage picture. The Knox hoard approaches $15,000,000,000.

The gold piled up, for one reason, according to the mint mistress, because it has not been refined for three years. Ironically, that was for lack of appropriations to run the refining machinery. And, for another reason, experienced gold handlers had to be shifted to making silver coins to meet big demands of recent years.

START REFINING

Mrs. Morelock figures that the best way to keep the building from bulging is to start refining gold again. Refining reduces the bulk and less space is needed for storage.

Too, all the refined gold will be one of the same fineness. Unrefined gold isn't.

Mrs. Morelock estimates that the mint will refine 1,500,000 ounces of gold in the next year. At the purchase price of $35 an ounce, that's $52,500,000.

Gold is not gold, either — at least, the unrefined stuff. Mrs. Morelock points out that in refining the mint expects to extract a lot of silver from the gold. Out, too, will come some base metals and such by-products as platinum, pladium and iridium.

Mrs. Morelock says the mint is looking for workers to refine the gold. They'll even get to handle the stuff. "Under scrutiny, of course," she adds.

Wait Stevenson Statement On Party Fund

CHICAGO (AP) — A statement was awaited today from Governor Adlai E. Stevenson making public the names of contributors and recipients of a special fund he promoted to supplement state salaries.

Three state officials appointed by the Illinois governor already have disclosed they were beneficiaries of the controversial expense fund.

Several other State Department heads have denied receiving extra compensation from the salary-supplementing fund which Stevenson acknowledged several days ago. At that time he defended the set-up and said there was nothing secretive or improper about it.

PRESSURE GROWS

However, continued political charges stemming from the fund appeared to have prompted the Democratic presidential candidate to announce he would disclose the names of those who contributed and benefited.

Earlier he had declined to name the donors, saying that such a disclosure would amount to a "breach of faith." The gifts, he said, were given to supplement incomes of persons he had induced to leave private employment to take state positions at lower salaries.

Chicago newspapers have continued to publish new details about the fund. The Chicago Daily News said it polled 15 persons it described as "present and former state bigwigs" and said they denied receiving any extra pay from the special fund.

Scientists Find Strange Region

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—A British scientific expedition, now in Western Uganda, reports it has penetrated a volcanic region which looks like a science-fiction illustration of the surface of the moon.

Led by W. Q. Kennedy, professor of geology at Leeds University, the scientists found an area of 40 square miles with some 50 volcanic craters set rim to rim. It is believed they are the first Europeans to visit the place.

The strange new area, described by the explorers as "the most remarkable landscape in the world," is at the southern end of the Ruwenzori mountain range which straddles the Ufanda-Belgian Congo border.

Some of the craters are about three miles in diameter and an estimated 600 feet deep.

Veteran Viewer On Prairies Of TV Programs

WILCOX, Sask. (CP) — Wide areas in Canada don't see television, but Wilcox is not one of them. Residents here are veteran viewers of TV programs, thanks to Jack Chadwick.

Chadwick set up a television receiver in his service station last June and said reception was "wonderful" at the start. Wilcox is 30 miles south of Regina, and about 70 miles north of the United States border.

Programs were seen regularly, coming from such faraway places as Detroit, Columbus, Oklahoma City, Fort Worth, Omaha, Albuquerque, and once in a while from Baltimore and Los Angeles.

Best reception is during the mornings, but sometimes it's freakish, like the time he had three programs on at once. This mix-up involved a trapeze act, a man demonstrating how to hang wallpaper and a minister delivering a sermon.

ROUSED ENTHUSIASM

Television caused some excitement in the village for a time. On one occasion, when he picked up a major league ball game from Cincinnati, he telephoned around to spread the news. In no time at all the local beverage room had lost all its patrons to the ball game.

Chadwick says the secret of the good reception here is simple. The carrier waves from the television station travel in a straight line to a mountain, from which they bounce up into the ionosphere and rebound from there.

He figures Wilcox is located in the area of these skips and catches the program on the bounce.

12 Canadians Attend Peiping Conference

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — Peiping radio Friday announced the names of 12 persons identified as Canadians which it said have arrived at a Communist-sponsored peace conference in Communist China.

The announcement, monitored here, listed the Canadians along with United States citizens which the Communist propaganda organ said were attending the Asian and Pacific peace conference.

The Canadians listed, along with their occupations as described in the broadcast, were:

Eva Sanderson, vice-president of the Canadian Peace Congress, teacher, Toronto; Lucille Barash, secretary of the Manitoba Peace Council, a trade union organizer, Winnipeg; Ethel Nielson, vice-president of the Canadian Congress of Women, a music teacher, Toronto; Katherine Gardner, children's librarian, Vancouver; Grace Knight, United Church of Canada worker, Edmonton;

Elgin Neish, fisherman, Victoria; Gerard Filion, editor of the Montreal newspaper Le Devoir; Dwight Johnson, a medical doctor, Brandon; Ray Gardner, journalist, Vancouver; John Boyd, secretary of the Canadian Slav Committee, Toronto; and Finlay MacKenzie, a teacher, Toronto.

FACE LOSS OF PASSPORTS

In Washington, the United States State Department said last night that the Americans involved face the loss of their passports and possible prosecution.

Some of those named, the department said, obtained passports for the declared purposes of going to Europe or Africa. It said none had announced in advance any intention of going to Communist China.

In Montreal Andre Laurendeau, assistant to Mr. Filion, editor-in-chief of Le Devoir, said that Mr. Filion is in Peiping as a newspaperman to report the conference. His assignment was reported in Le Devoir Sept. 12. Mr. Laurendeau added: "He does not represent any movement nor is he delegated by a group."

In Toronto the Canadian Peace Congress said the Canadian delegates were chosen by a group as the Canadian sponsoring committee for the Asian peace conference.

The congress said the list supplied to it by the sponsoring committee did not contain the names of Filion and Gardner.

Legion Gives TV Set To Old People's Home

The Lakefield branch of the Canadian Legion are holding a bingo in the Town Hall on Tuesday night to raise money for the final payment on a television set. The set will then be presented to the Old People's Home in Lakefield.

About $30 — the cost of a TV booster — is the objective Tuesday night.

The campaign to raise money for a set has been going on in Lakefield for a month and a half. The financing has been chiefly through subscriptions and bingos, the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion daing much of the work.

Later today the county's committee in charge of the Old People's Home are going out to decide where the screen will be placed. This is a small problem in itself because the TV will undoubtedly be popular among the 20 men and women in the Home, and accommodation is limited.

Al Jessup is the president of Branch 77 in Lakefield.

Predicts Truce By October 15

WASHINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Senator William E. Jenner (Rep. Ind.) says the State Department is manoeuvring for a Korean War truce about Oct. 15.

Jenner, nominated for re-election told a Republican rally last night: "I have just received information from sources that know what is going on that the State Department frantically is pulling every international wire in its hands for a truce about Oct. 15.

"If the administration can obtain a truce this fall, it could have obtained one a year ago and saved thousands of American casualties.

"A year ago, however, the administration needed the war to prolong its artificial prosperity. Now it needs to end it temporarily for political advantage. . ."

Machine Can Multiply Huge Numbers But Objects To Income Tax Figuring

TORONTO (CP)—There's a $225,000 machine at the University of Toronto that in many ways is smarter than any human.

Called Ferut—a combination of Fernati, the maker, and University of Toronto—it was recently installed for secret work on atomic problems from universities and research centres across the country is waiting to be fed into its educated maw.

Most scientists don't live long enough to figure out some of the complicated problems Ferut can do in a few minutes.

It can multiply 500 pairs of 10-digit numbers in two seconds. It has a memory which can hold more than 15,000 12-digit numbers and can recall any of them in 1-30th of a second.

NO CHEATING

But you daren't cheat Ferut. The first time it happens, the machine types out sadly on its built-in typewriter: "You've made a mistake." The second error brings a crisp: "Read the instructions, please." After the third error it loses patience and says: "Go play with a human."

But Ferut isn't too smart. It can make mistakes. It's no good on "simple" problems like income tax returns, because it would take a skilled mathematician some hours to reduce the problem to a form which the machine could use.

By that time the taxpayer—who paid for the machine, incidentally—could have struggled through himself.

Ferut gives its answers on screens with green dots flashing over them. It has 66 levers and 20 buttons used to set up its problems.

Says Red Threat Checked In Indo-China

MANILA (AP)—The Viet Nam defence minister, Nghien van Tri, says the Communist threat to his country "has been checked" and that French forces fighting the Vietminh rebels will start withdrawing "in a year or year and a half."

Nghien van Tri told a press conference yesterday he could not predict the date when the Communist-led rebels would be defeated, but added that it would be "soon."

Jet Boat Blows Up UK Racing Ace John Cobb Killed

DRUMNADROCHIT, Scotland (CP)—John Cobb, 52-year-old British racing ace, died today after his jet-propelled speed boat, Crusader, blew up during an attempt on the world hydroplane speed record. The boat disintegrated while travelling at an estimated 200 miles an hour on Loch Ness. Cobb was picked out of the water still alive, but died a few minutes later. The boat blew up as Cobb was roaring down the course toward the end of his first measured mile.

Cobb was attempting to add the water sped record to his automobile mark.

The boat, the Crusader, looks like a giant water spider. It skims across the surface of the water on narrow runners, under the thrust of an airplane jet engine pointing out the stern.

NEARING RECORD

It has come near the record, held by Seattle boatman Stanley Sayres, in previous trials. Cobb believed it was capable of 200 miles an hour.

Spectators on the shore said the bullet-shaped boat plowed under the water with the force of a locomotive.

"It happened so suddenly, All I saw was the boat dipping into the water and parts of it floating to the top almost immediately," said one eye-witness, Dr. W. Munro.

A radio-equipped control launch sent out an S O S immediately. Launches and speedboats from other parts of the lake raced to the floating wreckage.

One of them found Cobb in the water, lifted him aboard, and rushed him to a pier. Ambulances and doctors were summoned.

The 52-year-old London fur broker and speed specialist holds numerous automobile speed records.

HIT 173 MILES AN HOUR

Cobb's jet speedboat which he had built for an attempt at the world water speed record streaked across Loch Ness at 173 miles an hour Sept. 19, despite buffeting gusts of wind.

The record is 178.4 miles an hour, set in 1951 by Sayres in his boat Miss Slo-Mo-Shun.

Cobb, who formerly held the world water speed record, had been waiting for weeks to make his new assault on the mark. Today the usually wind-swept Loch Ness—home of the famous Loch Ness Monster—quieted down sufficiently to satisfy the business man who has spent a fortune in a lifetime of both automobile and boat racing.

"I think conditions are well nigh perfect," he told reporters just before starting off on the first of two scheduled runs.

Cobb had reported hitting around 200 miles an hour during a trial run in the Crusader on Sept. 10. He averaged 185 miles on his official try Sept. 19 but ony 161 on the second run. Records are computed on the average of two runs over the measured course.

Young Hunter Killed Near Bancroft

BANCROFT (ENS). — A 17-year-old Hartsmere youth, Kenneth Earl Whitmore, was killed Sunday when his shotgun accidentally discharged.

Whitmore and a friend, 19-year-old Arthur Clark of Millbridge, were hunting ducks and partridge on the York River near Whitmore's home when the accident happened. The two were paddling along the river looking for ducks when Whitmore decided to leave the boat and walk on the river bank.

When he had been gone only a few minutes, Clark heard a shot and went to investigate. About 100 yards along the bank, he found Whitmore, shot in the base of the neck. Whitmore lived for a few minutes after the shot.

The riverbank had collapsed under Whitmore's weight and his shotgun had discharged.

Crown Attorney Kenneth Hamm, of Napanee, said there would be no inquest. Coroner Dr. O. W. Anderson and O.P.P. Corporal Archie Grayling, both of Bancroft, investigated the shooting. Whitmore, the son of Mrs. Abe Wannamaker, of Hartsmere, is survived by eight sisters, two brothers and a half-brother. Funeral service will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Hartsmere and burial will be in Long Lake cemetery.

Hartsmere is near the York River about 20 miles east of Bancroft, just on the eastern border of Hasting county.

Black, Reynolds To Pitch Opener

NEW YORK (AP) — Brooklyn's Joe Black and New York's Allie Reynolds will be the opening game pitchers in the 1952 World Series, it was announced today. The series starts Wednesday at Ebbets Field Brooklyn.

Both managers, Charlie Dressen of the Dodgers and Casey Stengel of the Yankees, also announced their pitchers for the second and third games. The second game, also at Ebbets' field, will see Carl Erskine (14-6) of Brooklyn pitted against Vic Raschi (16-6) of New York in a battle of righthanders.

The third game, to be held at Yankee Stadium Friday, will be a southpaw duel between Preacher Roe (11-2) of the Dodgers against Ed Lopat (10-5) of the Yankees.

The selection of Reynolds came as no surprise. The ace righthander, who achieved his lifetime ambition of winning 20 games this year, pitched and won the game that assured the Yankees of at least a tie last Thursday, just as he had done the year before.

Loser of only eight games, the 34-year-old fireballer led all American League pitchers in strikeouts and owned the best earned run mark of all the regulars.

The selection of Black marks the second time in World-Series history that a relief pitcher was named to hurl the important opener Manager Eddie Sawyer of Philadelphia Phillies set the precedent back in 1950 when he chose Jim Konstanty, his relief ace, to pitch the first game against the Yankees Konstanty, who had worked in 74 games that year, all in relief, hurled a masterful game but dropped a 1-0 decision to Vic Raschi.

Crowds Tell Millard 'Get Out Of Marmora'

MARMORA — (CP) — Expected outbreaks of violence failed to materialize yesterday as rival unions battled to recruit workers at Bethlehem Steel's new iron ore development here.

Rumors were flying that disturbances had occurred and that 10 provincial police officers had gone to prevent outbreaks. There were no outbreaks and only regular O.P.P. parols passed through the village.

The unions involved were the leftist International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) and the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.).

A shouting group gathered outside the meeting hall and told C.H. Millard, Steelworker's Canadian director, to "get out of town" with his forces.

Following the demonstration Millard said his union would intensify organization efforts. "We're not going to be intimidated," he said.

Feared Car Crowding Him To Curb

Didn't Want To Risk Discovery Of Boyd Connection

TORONTO (CP) — Steve Suchan, 24, on trial for murder, testified today he fired six revolver shots at a police cruiser last March 6 because he "got panicky" when he thought police officers were trying to crowd the car he was driving to the curb.

Suchan, jointly charged with Leonard Jackson with fatally shooting Det.-Sgt. Edmund Tong, said Jackson was with him in the car, owned by Suchan's girl friend, Ann Camero.

"At the time, Len was hot as a firecracker," Suchan said. "He was wanted for escape from jail.

CONNECTION WITH BOYD

"I didn't want to be discovered with him. I couldn't risk any investigation because through investigation my connection with Boyd would be discovered."

"What was this connection?" he was asked.

"It would have been discovered that I harbored Boyd."

"Which Boyd."

"Edwin Boyd."

"Were you thinking of Jackson's position at all?"

THINKING OF HIMSELF

"No. I was thinking of myself. I thought this car was going to crowd me into the curb, so I reached for my gun and fired a shot over my shoulder, hoping to hit the hood. My purpose was strictly to damage the engine and the hood."

Suchan was shown a .45-calibre Smith and Wesson revolver.

"Is that the revolver you fired?" he was asked.

"Yes."

DIDN'T RECOGNIZE CAR

He said that, when he fired, he did not know the other car was a police cruiser, nor had he intended to kill anyone.

Jackson, who had stepped out of the sedan during the shooting, told him when he got back in:

"That was a cruiser."

He said Jackson also told him someone had been hit.

He had been driving Jackson in the sedan to the bus depot, where Jackson planned to take a bus to Oshawa and then transfer to a Montreal-bound train.

Suchan said that after the shooting he drove through a red light and went a short distance until he spotted a taxicab. He said he went to his parents' home and changed his coat. Then he telephoned Ann Camero and told her to report her car stolen.

Suchan gave his name as Val Lesso. He said he is 24, unmarried, and was born in Czechoslovakia.

New Hurricane Whips Atlantic

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane "Charlie," the season's third, moved northeastward in the Atlantic off Nova Scotia today but hurricane "Dog" is dead.

"Charlie" still packed winds up to 100 miles an hour near the centre last night and was whirling toward the far northern shipping lanes at 15 to 20 miles an hour.

Gales extended outward for 200 miles and were expected to expand. Shipping in the vicinity was advised to exercise caution.

Meanwhile, "Dog" had dwindled to a squally wave with winds of only 30 to 40 miles an hour over a small area.

It was located about 600 miles east northeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico, moving slowly west northwest or northwest.

Bride, Groom Outrun Police Cruisers

ORILLIA (CP) — A bride and groom of less than 24 hours were in such haste to visit the bride's parents yesterday that they outran a Provincial Police cruiser, police said today. They said the couple's automobile reached speeds of more than 80 miles an hour.

Police radioed another cruiser to intercept the car. A charge of careless driving was laid against the driver.

Orillia is 80 miles north of Toronto.

3 Jet Squadrons Head For France

OTTAWA (CP) — Three squadrons of F-86F jet fighters are poised at Goose Bay, Labrador, today waiting for a nod from the weather man to start the second leg of the largest trans-Atlantic flight in R. C. A. F. history.

Sixty-three planes — 60 of them headed for defence service in Western Europe with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization — took off yesterday from their three squadron bases. No. 416 left from nearby Uplands airport, No. 421 from St. Hubert, near Montreal and No. 430 from North Bay, with Goose Bay as their first assembly point as a wing.

The weather was so favorable "operation Leapfrog Two" was started a day ahead of schedule.

Three of the planes are going to the R. A. F. for training purposes.

One hitch developed on the first of five hops that will take the air wing to Gros-Tenquin, France, near Metz. Six planes were held over at Bagotville, Que., when one plane developed fuel supply trouble. They are part of No. 430 Squadron from North Bay, which landed at Bagotville for refueling.

Young Farm People Show Successes

Achievement Day for the Peterborough 4-H Clubs, including boys and girls of South Monaghan, Cavan and Emily townships, was rural youth's own fair day at Morrow Park, Saturday. By their attendance and the quality of the work culminating in their displays and competitions they literally achieved a new record as they came to the end of their season which began with organization of the clubs before the snow was off the ground. The fall wheat club, of course, was formed more than a year ago, in time for the seeding.

Total attendance during the day, morning and afternoon sessions, was estimated at about 500. Parents of the club members and others from the county and city provided a background of the largest number of spectators since Peterborough clubs began this primary enterprise for boys and girls of the farms.

The Girls' Garden Clubs, under the direction of Miss Jean Noble, of Bowmanville, district home economist of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, carried on their Achievement Day separately in the flower show building of Peterborough Exhibition.

In most counties this 4-H Club show is a minor adjunct of local agricultural fairs. In Peterborough Frank C. Paterson and his assistant, Ken Best, have developed it on its own basis. Present Saturday was Robert Bell, now of Woodstock, who was Mr. Paterson's assistant for three years. He

Big 3 Continue Work On Treaty

LONDON (AP)—Deputy foreign ministers of the Big Three western powers meet again today to see what can be done about an Austrian independence treaty despite Russia's refusal to attend the conference.

Prospects for a solution to the six-year impasse are not bright. In rejecting the invitation to the meeting, the Soviets indicated they were standing pat on terms they have held to throughout the protracted negotiations.

Russian notes delivered Saturday to the British, U.S. and French embassies in Moscow also insisted the West must scrap its idea of an abridged treaty and accept the Soviet demand that the Trieste issue be considered along with any Austrian settlement.

AGREEMENT UNLIKELY

Dispatches from Moscow said hopes for any agreement between the soviet Union and the West were at about their lowest ebb.

Diplomats here privately suggested that the deadlock was due more to the cold war itself than to any inability to agree on terms of a treaty. Austrian government officials unofficially indicated they believe Russia has no intention of getting out of Austria in the forseeable future.

The Russians keep an estimated 44,000 troops in their occupation zone of Austria. This also gives them the excuse to station troops in the neighboring satellites, Hungary and Romania, for "communication" purposes.

Two Men Charged After Shooting Row Near Apsley

Two men—one of them with a shotgun wound in his right shoulder—were charged in police court today, the aftermath of a shooting affray Saturday afternoon, eight miles south of Apsley. Three shots were fired after a heated argument about rent took place in the cabin of Melvin Tripp, 30, a Burleigh township construction worker. Today Tripp was charged with wounding with intent to do grievous bodily harm. The victim of Tripp's marksmanship 29-year-old Donald Hall of Scarborough Junction—was charged with discharging a firearm with intent to do grievous bodily harm.

Both men were remanded to Oct. 2 on $2,000 bail.

Most of the arguing with Tripp was done not by Hall but by a third man, William Clinton, 49, who lives a short distance away from Tripp. The two men are said to have argued previously about the payment of rent.

ORDERED OUT

As the discussion grew more heated, Tripp ordered Clinton out of his cabin which is located about two-thirds of a mile west of Highway 28, eight miles south of Apsley. He lives there with his wife and five children.

At this point Hall, who had been waiting outside the cabin, fired off two shotgun shells. One of them blasted through the front of the house, damaged the inside of the cabin, and buried its charge in the ceiling.

Tripp then seized his shotgun and fired at Hall, winging him on the tip of the right shoulder. Dr. Lloyd Bailey of Lakefield who treated Hall described the wound as "superficial."

Both Hall and Tripp were taken into custody by O.P.P. Corporal Jack Munro and Constable James Healey.

STORY PIECED TOGETHER

The story, as reconstructed by provincial police, is as follows:

Hall had driven up to Peterborough on Saturday to fix up his hunting camp on Round Lake. He then visited Clinton, who lives near Highway 28, south of Apsley. The two of them started out on the trail, along with Mrs. Clinton, to go to the Round Lake camp about an hour's walk away.

On the offchance they might see some partridge along the trail, they took shotguns with them.

Trio Plead Innocent To Bank Robbery

TORONTO (CP)—Edwin Alonzo Boyd, his brother Norman, and William Russell Jackson today pleaded innocent to a charge of robbing a suburban Leaside bank of $46,000 last November.

The holdup was staged less than a month after Edwin Boyd, William Jackson and two other men escaped from the Don jail last fall. It was only 10 days after the holdup of a west-end bank of which some members of the Boyd gang also are accused.

Edwin Boyd pleaded guilty last week to four charges, including one of a March bank robbery. He will not be sentenced until he has been tried on all or most of the 18 charges facing him.

Norman Boyd was convicted of harboring his brother but acquitted of receiving stolen money. A jury last week convicted Joseph Jackson and Allister Gibson of sharing in the March robbery and they will be sentenced later.

Sox Outfielder Under Arrest On Rape Charge

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Rivera, Chicago White Sox outfielder, was arrested yesterday in the American League baseball team's clubhouse on the complaint of a 22-year-old married woman who charged that he raped her in her apartment Saturday night.

Booked for rape but not formally charged, Rivera was held overnight for questioning. Police said he denied Mrs. Janet Gater's accusation and told them the attractive brunet submitted willingly after inviting him to her apartment.

Mrs. Gater told police she was carrying books and newspapers on the street Saturday when Rivera introduced himself and offered to help after some of the books slipped out of her arms.

SAYS REFUSED TO LEAVE

He accompanied her to her apartment, pushed his way in ahead of her, and refused to leave when she asked him.

She said she served him a bottle of pop and she had a cup of coffee with him before he forced her into a bedroom.

Rivera this year entered the major leagues amid a storm of controversy. He had served a five-year term in penitentiary after attempted rape while serving in the army.

At the time, Rivera said "I am innocent but the court found me guilty."

St. Louis Browns owner Bill Veeck said, in answer to some protests over the hiring of Rivera,

Bevan Says U.S. Afraid Of Peace

MORECAMBE, Eng. (CP)—Labor leftist Aneurin Bevan, today told a cheering session of the Labor party's annual conference the United States is "hag-ridden" by the fear of peace.

Urging that Britain steer a middle course between the U.S. and Russia the ex-coal miner said that economists and bankers in the U. S. are "frightened by the industrial consequences of any letting up in the armament program."

He said "the fact is that the United States industry is kept in full spate by the biggest enterprise she has ever undertaken."

The leftist leader said "the United states is hag-ridden by two fears — war and unemployment — the fear of peace."

He told the conference: "The pattern of British industry must be determined by central direction and central purposes. This must be realized at home, in the Commonwealth and in Europe. This is not the American answer. They haven't found the answer. Russia hasn't found it but we have found it and for God's sake let us hold our heads up."

Labor Party Pot Boiling

Begin Back-Room Drive To Kick Bevan Off Executive

MORECAMBE, England (AP)—The moderate faction of the British Labor Party began a back-room drive yesterday to kick leftist Aneurin Bevan off the national executive.

On the eve of the party's annual conference, the big party caucus to elect the party's leaders, the supporters of former Prime Minister Clement Attlee and ex-Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison sought to swing an estimated 200 delegates of 622 who will do the vital voting.

Outside this resort town, where the party's 51st annual convention started its formal week-long sessions today, they were backed by an attack against Bevan in the Sunday Pictorial, an influential mass-circulation paper which formerly supported the fiery ex-coal miner.

The Pictorial called Bevan a "specialist in spleen" and added: "No one, by his own disloyalties, has more thoughtlessly forfeited his right to loyalty in others."

Jennie Lee, Bevan's wife and a Member of Parliament and editor of the leftist Bevan organ Tribune, called the Pictorial attack "British McCarthyism," and claimed "the same kind of tactics are being waged among the delegates all over the place."

Voting for the national executive seats will focus on the seven allotted to representatives of local labor party units. The rest of the 27 are considered safe for the moderates.

At last year's party conference, Bevan won a major victory by getting himself and three staunch supporters elected.

This time, Bevan is bidding for a near clean sweep. Two more of his supporters, R. H. S. Crossman and Harold Wilson, are seeking seats. If the Bevanites clinch six of the seven seats, it will be a clear indication that Socialist feeling in Britain backs Bevan in his effort to wrest power from Attlee and Morrison.

Stevenson Puts Ike On Political Spot By Disclosing Income Taxes Of Last 10 Years

NEW YORK (AP). — Who paid how much incomes taxes became a major issue in the United States Presidential election today.

Governor Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, the Democratic presidential nominee, put Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican standard bearer, on the political spot by disclosing that he paid $211,980 in income taxes during the last 10 years.

Stevenson, in effect, challenged his opponent to make a similar tax listing.

There seems no doubt at Eisenhower regional headquarters here that the General earned much more than Stevenson's reported $500,052 income in the same period, but paid much less in taxes.

Stevenson's disclosure was the Democratic reply to the action of Senator Richard Nixon, Republican vice - presidential nominee, in barring his finances to a radio and television audience last week. Nixon was explaining what happened to the $18,000 contributed by wealthy Californians as a political expense fund.

The Democrats' end-around political play appeared to have caught the Eisenhower advisers wondering how they could explain satisfactorily a ruling by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The bureau had made a ruling permitting Eisenhower to keep three-fourths of the income he received from his book, "Crusade in Europe."

This ruling, similar to some others in like cases, permitted the general to pay only 25 per cent capital gains tax instead of the higher income rate, because he was held to be operating outside his usual field of activities when he furnished the information for the published volume.

Pats Send Korean Friend To University For Course

TOKYO (CP)—Light-hearted Lee Jung Ok, 23-year-old Korean who served with Canadian Forces in Korea as an interpreter from the time of their arrival there, landed here last ight from Pusan en route to the University of British Columbia.

Lee is being sent to U.B.C. for a four-year teacher-training course by a group of former members of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry who served with him in the Korean War.

Munching on a steak, he grinned and said: "This is better than up front."

He leaves for Vancouver by air tonight.

Lee was born in Tientsin, China, where his family took refuge in 1906 after the Japanese initiated moves to make Korea a colony and changed its named to Chosen.

In 1945, after the Second World War ended, he returned with his parents to Korea. Lee put himself through the first two years of Seoul National University's course in the science of education, studying by day and working at night.

He fled Seoul when the North Koreans invaded in June, 1950, and in November was engaged by the advance Canadian party as an interpreter. He was transferred to the Patricias in December, 1950, and has been with them since.

He trained with the battalion in Miryang, accompanied it to the front and throughout the running war in 1951 was responsible for seeing that the troops received their ammunition, food and water.

Feared Car Crowding Him To Curb

Didn't Want To Risk Discovery Of Boyd Connection

TORONTO (CP) — Steve Suchan, 24, on trial for murder, testified today he fired six revolver shots at a police cruiser last March 6 because he "got panicky" when he thought police officers were trying to crowd the car he was driving to the curb.

Suchan, jointly charged with Leonard Jackson with fatally shooting Det.-Sgt. Edmund Tong, said Jackson was with him in the car, owned by Suchan's girl friend, Ann Camero.

"At the time, Len was hot as a firecracker," Suchan said. "He was wanted for escape from jail.

CONNECTION WITH BOYD

"I didn't want to be discovered with him. I couldn't risk any investigation because through investigation my connection with Boyd would be discovered."

"What was this connection?" he was asked.

"It would have been discovered that I harbored Boyd."

"Which Boyd."

"Edwin Boyd."

"Were you thinking of Jackson's position at all?"

THINKING OF HIMSELF

"No. I was thinking of myself. I thought this car was going to crowd me into the curb, so I reached for my gun and fired a shot over my shoulder, hoping to hit the hood. My purpose was strictly to damage the engine and the hood."

Suchan was shown a .45-calibre Smith and Wesson revolver.

"Is that the revolver you fired?" he was asked.

"Yes."

DIDN'T RECOGNIZE CAR

He said that, when he fired, he did not know the other car was a police cruiser, nor had he intended to kill anyone.

Jackson, who had stepped out of the sedan during the shooting, told him when he got back in:

"That was a cruiser."

He said Jackson also told him someone had been hit.

He had been driving Jackson in the sedan to the bus depot, where Jackson planned to take a bus to Oshawa and then transfer to a Montreal-bound train.

Suchan said that after the shooting he drove through a red light and went a short distance until he spotted a taxicab. He said he went to his parents' home and changed his coat. Then he telephoned Ann Camero and told her to report her car stolen.

Suchan gave his name as Val Lesso. He said he is 24, unmarried, and was born in Czechoslovakia.

New Hurricane Whips Atlantic

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane "Charlie," the season's third, moved northeastward in the Atlantic off Nova Scotia today but hurricane "Dog" is dead.

"Charlie" still packed winds up to 100 miles an hour near the centre last night and was whirling toward the far northern shipping lanes at 15 to 20 miles an hour.

Gales extended outward for 200 miles and were expected to expand. Shipping in the vicinity was advised to exercise caution.

Meanwhile, "Dog" had dwindled to a squally wave with winds of only 30 to 40 miles an hour over a small area.

It was located about 600 miles east northeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico, moving slowly west northwest or northwest.

Bride, Groom Outrun Police Cruisers

ORILLIA (CP) — A bride and groom of less than 24 hours were in such haste to visit the bride's parents yesterday that they outran a Provincial Police cruiser, police said today. They said the couple's automobile reached speeds of more than 80 miles an hour.

Police radioed another cruiser to intercept the car. A charge of careless driving was laid against the driver.

Orillia is 80 miles north of Toronto.

3 Jet Squadrons Head For France

OTTAWA (CP) — Three squadrons of F-86F jet fighters are poised at Goose Bay, Labrador, today waiting for a nod from the weather man to start the second leg of the largest trans-Atlantic flight in R. C. A. F. history.

Sixty-three planes — 60 of them headed for defence service in Western Europe with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization — took off yesterday from their three squadron bases. No. 416 left from nearby Uplands airport, No. 421 from St. Hubert, near Montreal and No. 430 from North Bay, with Goose Bay as their first assembly point as a wing.

The weather was so favorable "operat)ion Leapfrog Two" was started a day ahead of schedule.

Three of the planes are going to the R. A. F. for training purposes.

One hitch developed on the first of five hops that will take the air wing to Gros-Tenquin, France, near Metz. Six planes were held over at Bagotville, Que., when one plane developed fuel supply trouble. They are part of No. 430 Squadron from North Bay, which landed at Bagotville for refueling.

Young Farm People Show Successes

Achievement Day for the Peterborough 4-H Clubs, including boys and girls of South Monaghan, Cavan and Emily townships, was rural youth's own fair day at Morrow Park, Saturday. By their attendance and the quality of the work culminating in their displays and competitions they literally achieved a new record as they came to the end of their season which began with organization of the clubs before the snow was off the ground. The fall wheat club, of course, was formed more than a year ago, in time for the seeding.

Total attendance during the day, morning and afternoon sessions, was estimated at about 500. Parents of the club members and others from the county and city provided a background of the largest number of spectators since Peterborough clubs began this primary enterprise for boys and girls of the farms.

The Girls' Garden Clubs, under the direction of Miss Jean Noble, of Bowmanville, district home economist of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, carried on their Achievement Day separately in the flower show building of Peterborough Exhibition.

In most counties this 4-H Club show is a minor adjunct of local agricultural fairs. In Peterborough Frank C. Paterson and his assistant, Ken Best, have developed it on its own basis. Present Saturday was Robert Bell, now of Woodstock, who was Mr. Paterson's assistant for three years. He

Big 3 Continue Work On Treaty

LONDON (AP)—Deputy foreign ministers of the Big Three western powers meet again today to see what can be done about an Austrian independence treaty despite Russia's refusal to attend the conference.

Prospects for a solution to the six-year impasse are not bright. In rejecting the invitation to the meeting, the Soviets indicated they were standing pat on terms they have held to throughout the protracted negotiations.

Russian notes delivered Saturday to the British, U.S. and French embassies in Moscow also insisted the West must scrap its idea of an abridged treaty and accept the Soviet demand that the Trieste issue be considered along with any Austrian settlement.

AGREEMENT UNLIKELY

Dispatches from Moscow said hopes for any agreement between the soviet Union and the West were at about their lowest ebb.

Diplomats here privately suggested that the deadlock was due more to the cold war itself than to any inability to agree on terms of a treaty. Austrian government officials unofficially indicated they believe Russia has no intention of getting out of Austria in the forseeable future.

The Russians keep an estimated 44,000 troops in their occupation zone of Austria. This also gives them the excuse to station troops in the neighboring satellites, Hungary and Romania, for "communication" purposes.

Stevenson Puts Ike On Political Spot By Disclosing Income Taxes Of Last 10 Years

NEW YORK (AP). — Who paid how much incomes taxes became a major issue in the United States Presidential election today.

Governor Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, the Democratic presidential nominee, put Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican standard bearer, on the political spot by disclosing that he paid $211,980 in income taxes during the last 10 years.

Stevenson, in effect, challenged his opponent to make a similar tax listing.

There seems no doubt at Eisenhower regional headquarters here that the General earned much more than Stevenson's reported $500,052 income in the same period, but paid much less in taxes.

Stevenson's disclosure was the Democratic reply to the action of Senator Richard Nixon, Republican vice - presidential nominee, in barring his finances to a radio and television audience last week. Nixon was explaining what happened to the $18,000 contributed by wealthy Californians as a political expense fund.

The Democrats' end-around political play appeared to have caught the Eisenhower advisers wondering how they could explain satisfactorily a ruling by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The bureau had made a ruling permitting Eisenhower to keep three-fourths of the income he received from his book, "Crusade in Europe."

This ruling, similar to some others in like cases, permitted the general to pay only 25 per cent capital gains tax instead of the higher income rate, because he was held to be operating outside his usual field of activities when he furnished the information for the published volume.

Two Men Charged After Shooting Row Near Apsley

Two men—one of them with a shotgun wound in his right shoulder—were charged in police court today, the aftermath of a shooting affray Saturday afternoon, eight miles south of Apsley. Three shots were fired after a heated argument about rent took place in the cabin of Melvin Tripp, 30, a Burleigh township construction worker. Today Tripp was charged with wounding with intent to do grievous bodily harm. The victim of Tripp's marksmanship 29-year-old Donald Hall of Scarborough Junction—was charged with discharging a firearm with intent to do grievous bodily harm.

Both men were remanded to Oct. 2 on $2,000 bail.

Most of the arguing with Tripp was done not by Hall but by a third man, William Clinton, 49, who lives a short distance away from Tripp. The two men are said to have argued previously about the payment of rent.

ORDERED OUT

As the discussion grew more heated, Tripp ordered Clinton out of his cabin which is located about two-thirds of a mile west of Highway 28, eight miles south of Apsley. He lives there with his wife and five children.

At this point Hall, who had been waiting outside the cabin, fired off two shotgun shells. One of them blasted through the front of the house, damaged the inside of the cabin, and buried its charge in the ceiling.

Tripp then seized his shotgun and fired at Hall, winging him on the tip of the right shoulder. Dr. Lloyd Bailey of Lakefield who treated Hall described the wound as "superficial."

Both Hall and Tripp were taken into custody by O.P.P. Corporal Jack Munro and Constable James Healey.

STORY PIECED TOGETHER

The story, as reconstructed by provincial police, is as follows:

Hall had driven up to Peterborough on Saturday to fix up his hunting camp. on Round Lake. He then visited Clinton, who lives near Highway 28, south-of Apsley. The two of them started out on the trail, along with Mrs. Clinton, to go to the Round Lake camp about an hour's walk away.

On the offchance they might see some partridge along the trail, they took shotguns with them.

TWO MEN (Continued on Page 2)

Trio Plead Innocent To Bank Robbery

TORONTO (CP)—Edwin Alonzo Boyd, his brother Norman, and William Russell Jackson today pleaded innocent to a charge of robbing a suburban Leaside bank of $46,000 last November.

The holdup was staged less than a month after Edwin Boyd, William Jackson and two other men escaped from the Don jail last fall. It was only 10 days after the holdup of a west-end bank of which some members of the Boyd gang also are accused.

Edwin Boyd pleaded guilty last week to four charges, including one of a March bank robbery. He will not be sentenced until he has been tried on all or most of the 18 charges facing him.

Norman Boyd was convicted of harboring his brother but acquitted of receiving stolen money. A jury last week convicted Joseph Jackson and Allister Gibson of sharing in the March robbery and they will be sentenced later.

Sox Outfielder Under Arrest On Rape Charge

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Rivera, Chicago White Sox outfielder, was arrested yesterday in the American League baseball team's clubhouse on the complaint of a 22-year-old married woman who charged that he raped her in her apartment Saturday night.

Booked for rape but not formally charged, Rivera was held overnight for questioning. Police said he denied Mrs. Janet Gater's accusation and told them the attractive brunet submitted willingly after inviting him to her apartment.

Mrs. Gater told police she was carrying books and newspapers on the street Saturday when Rivera introduced himself and offered to help after some of the books slipped out of her arms.

SAYS REFUSED TO LEAVE

He accompanied her to her apartment, pushed his way in ahead of her, and refused to leave when she asked him.

She said she served him a bottle of pop and she had a cup of coffee with him before he forced her into a bedroom.

Rivera this year entered the major leagues amid a storm of controversy. He had served a five-year term in penitentiary after attempted rape while serving in the army.

At the time, Rivera said "I am innocent but the court found me guilty."

St. Louis Browns owner Bill Veeck said, in answer to some protests over the hiring of Rivera,

Bevan Says U.S. Afraid Of Peace

MORECAMBE, Eng. (CP)—Labor leftist Aneurin Bevan, today told a cheering session of the Labor party's annual conference the United States is "hag-ridden" by the fear of peace.

Urging that Britain steer a middle course between the U.S. and Russia the ex-coal miner said that economists and bankers in the U. S. are "frightened by the industrial consequences of any letting up in the armament program.'

He said "the fact is that the United States industry is kept in full spate by the biggest enterprise she has ever undertaken."

The leftist leader said "the United states is hag-ridden by two fears — war and unemployment — the fear of peace."

He told the conference: "The pattern of British industry must be determined by central direction and central purposes. This must be realized at home, in the Commonwealth and in Europe. This is not the American answer. They haven't found the answer. Russia hasn't found it but we have found it and for God's sake let us hold our heads up."

Labor Party Pot Boiling

Begin Back-Room Drive To Kick Bevan Off Executive

MORECAMBE, England (AP)—The moderate faction of the British Labor Party began a back-room drive yesterday to kick leftist Aneurin Bevan off the national executive.

On the eve of the party's annual conference, the big party caucus to elect the party's leaders, the supporters of former Prime Minister Clement Attlee and ex-Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison sought to swing an estimated 200 delegates of 622 who will do the vital voting.

Outside this resort town, where the party's 51st annual convention started its formal week-long sessions today, they were backed by an attack against Bevan in the Sunday Pictorial, an influential mass-circulation paper which formerly supported the fiery ex-coal miner.

The Pictorial called Bevan a "specialist in spleen" and added: "No one, by his own disloyalties, has more thoughtlessly forfeited his right to loyalty in others."

Jennie Lee, Bevan's wife and a Member of Parliament and editor of the leftist Bevan organ Tribune, called the Pictorial attack "British McCarthyism," and claimed "the same kind of tactics are being waged among the delegates all over the place."

Voting for the national executive seats will focus on the seven allotted to representatives of local labor party units. The rest of the 27 are considered safe for the moderates.

At last year's party conference, Bevan won a major victory by getting himself and three staunch supporters elected.

This time, Bevan is bidding for a near clean sweep. Two more of his supporters, R. H. S. Crossman and Harold Wilson, are seeking seats. If the Bevanites clinch six of the seven seats, it will be a clear indication that Socialist feeling in Britain backs Bevan in his effort to wrest power from Attlee and Morrison.

Pats Send Korean Friend To University For Course

TOKYO (CP)—Light-hearted Lee Jung Ok, 23-year-old Korean who served with Canadian Forces in Korea as an interpreter from the time of their arrival there, landed here last ight from Pusan en route to the University of British Columbia.

Lee is being sent to U.B.C. for a four-year teacher-training course by a group of former members of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry who served with him in the Korean War.

Munching on a steak, he grinned and said: "This is better than up front."

He leaves for Vancouver by air tonight.

Lee was born in Tientsin, China, where his family took refuge in 1906 after the Japanese initiated moves to make Korea a colony and changed its named to Chosen.

In 1945, after the Second World War ended, he returned with his parents to Korea. Lee put himself through the first two years of Seoul National University's course in the science of education, studying by day and working at night.

He fled Seoul when the North Koreans invaded in June, 1950, and in November was engaged by the advance Canadian party as an interpreter. He was transferred to the Patricias in December, 1950, and has been with them since.

He trained with the battalion in Miryang, accompanied it to the front and throughout the running war in 1951 was responsible for seeing that the troops received their ammunition, food and water.

Plane Crashes Near Oshawa 2 Men Killed

OSHAWA (CP)—A small plane crashed shortly after take-off yesterday and its two occupants were killed.

The R.C.A.F. Chipmunk, a two-seater aircraft, developed engine trouble and crashed in flames in a field near the airport.

The victims were identified by the air force as PO. L.W. Merkel of Toronto and John A. Cronin, a civilian from Whitby. Cronin was an assistant flying instructor at the Ontario County Flying Club and was pilot of the aircraft.

Airport officials said the pilot of the plane tried to make an emergency landing on the airstrip but overshot into the field.

ENGINE CUTS OUT

The light training plane had just taken off when the engine cut out. Cronin, an inspector at the Ontario County Flying Club, was instructing Merkel in the dual-control plane, and tried to return to the field but the plane went into a spin at 400 feet and crashed about a quarter of a mile from the runway.

Karl Sidler of R.R. 3, Oshawa, said he feared for a moment the plane was going to crash into his farmhouse.

"I was standing outside the back door when I saw the plane flying low over a little field about 300 feet from my house. I knew something was wrong," he said.

"It turned sharply and the motor cut out just like a car backfiring. Then I saw it go straight down, and I ran over to where it had crashed. Trying to get the men out of the plane was out of the question—the flames spread from the front of the machine to the rear in no time."

Ambulance operator Alex Boyd said the aircraft was a mass of flames when he arrived. "We couldn't get near it at all," he said.

George Slocombe, manager of the flying club, said Cronin was "a capable and very good pilot." The aircraft was loaned to the club for the training of members of R.C.A.F. reserve. It had been in service at the local field a little more than a month.

Japan To Pay Foreign Debts

NEW YORK (AP)—Japan has agreed to pay off virtually in full her pre-war foreign bond debts amounting to about $450,000,000, it was announced yesterday.

This offer has been accepted by representatives of British and United States bond holders.

Through the settlement the Japanese expect to restore their pre-war high credit rating with the western world.

A U. S. negotiator said the offer represents "The highest possible ratio at which settlement could be expected."

The settlement means that holders of $67,600,000 of Japan's defaulted dollar bonds will receive full payment of principal, interest and arrears. Most of these bonds are held by Americans.

Crafty Black Bear Steals Last Honey

EARLTON (CP)—A crafty 377-pound black bear stole three times its own weight in honey from beekeeper Bish Evans before being killed after a month-long battle.

The bear finally was killed by Louis Pigeon, a neighbor, shooting from a tree-top platform overlooking the apiary. The animal had carried away 14 hives containing more than 1,000 pounds of honey despite a constant patrol of the property.

Earlton is 75 miles north of North Bay.

Girl Testifies In Rape Case

WELLAND (CP) — The 18-year-old complainant, a Buffalo gir, testified today in the rape trial of Samuel Perry, 25, and Dominic Paulo, 21, both of Niagara Falls. The offense allegedly took place August 7 on a side road near Fort Erie.

The girl told of going to Hamilton with a companion, also 18, and two youths who went on to Ottawa. Hitchhiking back home, the girls got a ride to St. Catharines where they were offered a ride by Dominic Paulo and accepted. There were five men, and another woman in the car at the time, she said.

The woman and two men got out of the car at Niagara Falls, the complainant said, and Orlanndo Perry, 26, a brother of Samuel, and the two accused offered to drive the girls to the Peace Bridge. She said Orlando drove the car into a side road and Samuel and Paulo attacked her.

The trial is now in its third day.

Sees Chance Of War In 1954 Lessened

WASHINGTON (CP) — Gen. Omar Bradley thinks the chance of Russia making war by 1954 is lessened but that the possibility "is so great we can't afford to slow down" the defence build-up.

The chairman of the United States Joint Chiefs of Staff said so in talking with reporters Saturday about his recent inspection trip to Europe.

Bradley said:

"Some of the countries over there are trying to seize on our possession of the atomic bomb as an excuse for not increasing" their mutual defence forces to the originally contemplated strength. He added also that "there has been some little indication that some people in our country want to depend on the A-bomb." But Bradley added:

"You must have ground troops to compel an enemy to concentrate and make a profitable target."

SCHOOL IN COCHRANE

"I came to Canada with my mother in 1936. I got my schooling in a public school in the country near Cochrane and in high school at Cochrane."

He said he first worked in Toronto as a laborer at a glass and plastic company. Later he was a laborer for another glass firm while he studied the violin. Still later he worked as a doorman at a downtown hotel, he said.

The defence opened its case by calling Suchan to the witness box.

Crown Attorney W. O. Gibson called 47 witnesses and presented 49 exhibits to support the prosecution case last week.

KEY WITNESS

The last witness was Staff Sergeant W. W. Sutherland, chief of the R. C. M. P.'s Criminal Detection Laboratory at Ottawa. He said he was positive the bullet taken from Tong's body was fired from kicked out of Suchan's hand on his capture in Montreal the day after Tong was shot.

He also testified that two pieces of lead taken from Det. Sgt. Roy Perry's arm were also fired by the same gun. Perry was seriously wounded at the same time Tong was shot.

The Ottawa ballistics expert also told the court that six empty .455 calibre cartridge cases found by Montreal police in a brief case in Suchan's Montreal apartment were also fired from the .445 Smith and Wesson gun.

He said he received from Toronto a pair of pistols taken from Jackson when he was shot and captured in Montreal March 11. He said he had eliminated them from any connection with the bullets or fragments taken from bodies of the victims in the Toronto shooting.

In court were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lesso, parents of Suchan. During a recess of 10 minutes Suchan smiled at his mother. When the court adjourned he blew her a kiss as he was led back to the cells.

UN Planes Bomb Wrong Soldiers

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Allied artillery and planes pounded Chinese Reds astride "Big Nori" on Korea's Western front today. Counter-attacking Communists won the peak yesterday from Greek soldiers after the Greeks accidentally were bombed by four U. N. fighter-bombers.

On the East-Central front the Chinese brought up their own artillery and tanks to support a 1,500-man assault on eight Allied positions across a 10-mile stretch. They captured one hill position, but late reports said the other attacks were stalled.

Greek troops captured "Big Nori" early yesterday and staved off three Red counter-attacks.

As the Chinese stormed up the hill a fourth time, four F-80 Shooting Stars swooped down in support of the Greeks, the U.S. Eighth army said some of the bombs fell short, and exploded on the southern slope where the Greeks were fighting.

Prices Stay Firm In Moderate Trading

TORONTO (CP) — Prices continued firm in moderate early afternoon stock market trading today although western oils lost strength.

Volume for the first three hours totalled 1,312,000 shares.

Prospects led the golds section in activity as a number of issues traded heavily. Gunnar added 22 cents in the first three hours on a turnover of more than 102,000 share and Kelore, Chimo, New Hugh and Sud. Cont. also gained. Juniors gained strength as senior golds and holding companies slipped.

A few base metal issues traded actively for penny gains, including Bellekeno, Coldstream and Nesbitt Labine. The latter gained 75 cents in the first three hours. Higher-priced issues improved after opening weak.

The Western oil weakness produced no major price changes and gains almost balanced losses as a few issues slipped. Cons Cord and Peace River gained but Dome Exploration and Federated Pete slipped.

The exchange's 1 p.m. indices showed industrials up .54 at 319.02 golds up .33 at 88.31, base metals up .13 at 185.77 and western oils down .38 at 124.93.

Three Jet

LARGEST YET

The air wing is the largest instalment to date on the 12-Squadron air division which Canada has promised for Western Europe's defence wall by 1954.

From Goose Bay the leapfrog operation takes the jets to Bluie West One, in Greenland, then to Keflavik, Iceland, on to Prestwick, Scotland, and finally to their new base in Western France. Over ocean stretches, they will fly in groups of four.

Search and rescue forces of three countries are standing by to watch over the multi-million-dollar packet of airpower. The United States Air Force will watch for the flight as far as Iceland. United Kingdom facilities will take over from there.

Two Men

Both men had been drinking and were later described by Tripp as drunk.

BEGIN ARGUING

They had only been on the trail for a short time when Clinton suggested they go to Tripp's cabin. Clinton is said to have gone inside the cabin and got into an argument with Tripp. He said that Trip was his tenant and demanded rent money but the latter refused to pay it, and ordered Clinton outside.

For some reason Hall, who had been standing outside the cabin, fired two shots. One apparently went into the air, the other plowed through the front of the cabin, smashed a mirror and buried itself in the ceiling.

FEARED FOR FAMILY

Tripp, angered and fearful for the safety of his wife and children, picked up his own shotgun, went to the doorway and shot Hall in the right shoulder.

This ended the argument. The Clintons left and Tripp helped to bandage Hall's shoulder.

Hall was taken to Apsley and was later treated by Dr. Bailey. Both men were taken into custody and lodged in the county jail today when they appeared in police court. They were represented by W. J. Arthur Fair, Q. C., legal counsel.

Buys Air Strip

WOODSTOCK (CP)—Thomas E. Murphy, Drumbo tobacco farmer, 18 miles northeast of Woodstock, announced today he has purchased the 382-acre Barrie Flying Club air strip north of Toronto for conversion into two tobacco farms and a housing scheme.

BOAT ON WHEELS—In Paris, France, a woman passer-by stops to look for the power plant in this boat-like vehicle. She discovered it is nothing but a fancy, streamlined tricycle, using a good old-fashioned foot-power.

Toss Out Body, Coffin, Land With 37 Safely

WASHINGTON (AP)—A coffin containing the body of a United States airman was tossed into the ocean Friday to prevent a giant stratofreighter plane from crashing into the Atlantic with 37 persons, the air force announced Saturday night.

Three of the huge C-97's four engines had failed and the plane was flying on instruments in nasty weather on a flight from the Azores to the United States. But those aboard took time to say a last prayer for the man in the casket.

The air force and the Military Air Transport Service praised the pilot, Capt. Charles F. Berry, for bringing the stratofreighter in safely. The plane landed at Argentia naval air station, Nfld.

TOSS OUT CARGO

The trouble started some 500 miles out to sea. Quickly the plane began to lose altitude. The crew tossed everything possible overboard.

Berry said he regretted having to throw the 600-pound casket out, but it had been loaded last and was blocking the only hatch through which bulky cargo could be shoved.

After the coffin, the crew and passengers tossed out all possible baggage, plane equipment and cargo, including some mail.

Then the plane stopped dropping and Berry coaxed it toward land.

Mongolia Sends Big Delegation To Peiping Talks

HONG KONG (Reuters)—A high-ranking Mongolian delegation arrived in Peiping Sunday for talks that may bring closer military ties between China and Outer Mongolia and even Mongolian entry into the Korean War, usually reliable sources here said today.

The Mongolian delegation, led by Premier Yumzhagin Tsedenbal, includes the vice-premier and foreign minister, N. Lhamsurun, and education minister, B. Shirindib.

Though China's Communist leader, Mao Tse-tung, was the only top level personality not on hand to welcome the Mongolians, independent reports reaching Hong Kong said the two Communist leaders would begin talks today.

Premier Tsedenbal headed a Mongolian delegation which visited Moscow in August to attend the Soviet-Chinese talks. The spectacular welcome he received there was interpreted as heralding a thorough military and economic integration of Communist Asia into the U.S.S.R.

Gag Confuses Paper's Readers

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—Surprised readers of the San Francisco Chronicle today were confronted with a switch in the distinctive literary styles of the sports writer and the drama critic.

As a gag, the sport writer covering a professional football game wrote his story as if he were covering a theatrical production, and the drama critic countered with a review written in sports style.

The results:

Drama page headline: "Mary Curtis Finishes Fast in 'Aida'."

And the lead paragraph: "Like Rocky Marciano in his fight with Jersey Joe, Mary Curtis got off to a shaky start in her local debut as Aida, but wound up a champion, or something close to it."

Sports page lead paragraph: "For sheer exhausting tenseness, for nail chewing drama, and for delightfully happy endings, the San Francisco 49er National Football League opener with the Detroit Lions was a darling."

Truman Calls Eisenhower Front Man For Lobbyists

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — President Truman today called General Dwight D. Eisenhower a "front man for an unholy crew" of lobbyists using charges of corruption in government as "a political football."

Truman tore loose with a scathing attack on the Republican presidential nominee in a "whistle stop" speech in which he told a trainside crowd they should hesitate about returning the Republicans to power if they "want to avoid a third world war."

Eisenhower, he said, "seems to be listening to some strange advice so far as foreign policy is concerned."

CORRUPTION ISSUE

The President tackled the issue of corruption in his administration in his first formal speech of his 8,500 - mile, 15-day coast-to-coast tour.

He said he had been "getting rid of wrong-doers" over the "opposition of Republicans in Congress."

Truman said Eisenhower has swallowed the propaganda of the special interests, "hook, line and sinker."

"He may not know it," Truman said, "but he has become a front man for the lobbies."

Truman called Eisenhower a candidate "who has spent all his life in the army and doesn't know much about what has been going on in the United States."

Discussing his own administration, Truman said "the record is good."

STOPPED COMMUNISM

"We've crushed the Communist conspiracy in this country," he said. "And we've stopped the advance of Communism all over the Globe."

Even while building a "mighty program" of national defence, he said, "we've maintained the prosperity and the high standard of living which has become synonymous with having democratic administrations in Washington."

He said the special groups "pulling the strings behind Eisenhower include:

1. The "power lobby" which "wants to do away with low-cost public power."

2. The "grain speculation lobby that doesn't want the farmer to get the price of the crops he raises."

3. The railroad "lobby" that has been "jacking up your freight rates in North Dakota — and fighting tooth and nail against the St. Lawrence seaway so you can't get freight rates down."

4. The real estate lobby "that wants to gouge everyone who needs a home to live in."

5. The "rich man's lobby" that is always trying "to open tax loop holes for the wealthy."

6. The tariff lobby which wants rates so high they can pick up extra profits while the country loses the world market for grains.

COBOURG (ENS). — Weather just like summer, in fact warmer than many of actual summer days this year, prevailed Sunday and resulted in heavy highway traffic. Two minor highway accidents occurred over the weekend, one about five miles west of Cobourg and the other one three miles east of the town. Nobody was injured.

Water Shortage Facing Town

BEAMSVILLE (CP)—This community a few miles from Lake Ontario, faces the threat of a severe water shortage.

The present supply comes from springs in a nearby mountain but the reservoir is the lowest in history. Water to refill it is being carted from Lake Ontario.

Billy Turns Tables, Locks Eleanor Out

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Rose switched locks, and predicaments, on his estranged wife last night—and indirectly provided the public with an impromptu show possibly rivalling his best stage efforts.

The dapper showman locked his wife, Eleanor Holm, out of the Manhattan mansion they once shared in happier days and the same residence she had barred to him in October, 1951.

Rose Saturday night broke into the Beekman Place house. His wife hurried back to New York from Miami, Fla., to try to regain possession of the house.

SWITCHED LOCKS

When she got here last night and tried her key, it didn't work in the lock. She was barred just as Rose had been when she switched locks on him a year ago.

More than 100 persons, including reporters, gathered around as she argued on the doorstep with one of Rose's lawyers, Sidney Strubel.

Strubel and four Rose-hired private detectives blocked her entrance into the house. She was accompanied by her lawyer, Walter Beck, and four other persons. Rose himself remained inside the house.

"It (the house) was awarded to me," Miss Holm said. "It's not to be taken away."

Her lawyer said she had a court order entitling her to legal possession of the house.

WOULD PAY HOTEL BILLS

Rose's lawyer replied that she was living there only with Rose's permission and now had to go elsewhere. Strubel said Rose would pay her hotel bills.

Then she asked to get her clothes. But Strubel replied with a firm no; he would have them sent to her.

Finally Mrs. Rose climbed in her car and called over her shoulder: "This shows you how gallant my husband is—how gallant Billy Rose is."

After her depature, Rose's press agent emerged from the house and read a statement saying, in part:

"Had she driven up in a moving van with the 629 valuable objects that vanished mysteriously from my home, I probably would have admitted her."

SAID MANSION LOOTED

Rose's reference was to his claim, made after he forced entry into the house, that the mansion had been looted of its "art treasures."

The police joined Rose after he produced a deed showing he owned the house, but later washed their hands of the case and said no crime had been committed.

The Roses were legally separated Sept. 10. The matter of the house is expected to be decided when alimony will be determined in state Supreme Court Oct. 15.

Call Off Strike

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Flight engineers called off their threatened strike against Trans World Airlines early today after receiving a new wage offer from the company, a union spokesman said. T. W. A. employs about 350 flight engineers, who work only on the airline's 4-motored Constellations.

Woman Must Be A Specialist

There was a meeting at Geneva recently, under the auspices of UNESCO and the International Bureau of Education, at which 102 educators came together, apparently to exult over the progress that has been made in the education of women during the past century. Woman's struggle for education, the meeting decided, had been a long and desperate one, but at last woman had proved her ability to study anything that man may study.

* * *

We are willing to add a few mild hosannas to this chorus of rejoicing. We approve whole-heartedly of education for everybody who can absorb it, and the time has long since passed when it could be argued that women, as a group, are less receptive to education, and less intelligent than men. We like educated women: other things being equal, they make better citizens and more charming wives and companions than ignorant women. We have always held these opinions, for we were brought up to believe them and our personal experience has borne them out; we are somewhat surprised that UNESCO finds it necessary to hold a conference to confirm them.

* * *

Because we think that women are the intellectual equals of men we do not, however, fall into the error of thinking that men and women are interchangeable. There are some things that women do better than men, and some things that men do better than women, and there is a great realm of things which men and women may do equally well. Women are the mothers of the race, and apart from the obvious act of producing children, we think that they bring up children better than men do. They are more patient and understanding, and more loveable; a small child stands somewhat in awe of even the kindest father. And as women's education gains ground, there is a tendency for some women to rebel against this state of affairs; not once, but many times, we have heard young women protest against the restraint which child-bearing and child-rearing lays upon them. Was it for this, they ask, that they were educated?

* * *

Their question cannot be answered by platitudes about the sacredness of motherhood and the glory of forming the infant mind. It is a serious question and demands a serious answer. And we think that the answer is No. They were not educated to be mothers. That is to say, their education said very little about motherhood and tended to exalt other and more strictly intellectual pursuits.

* * *

Would it not be wise if higher education had a little more to say about the necessity for continuing the race, and for producing the best eugenic and intellectual people? Women now receive the same education as men, but that is not what they need; higher education is still modelled on medieval concepts, one of which is that everyone who receives it is going to follow some sort of learned career. Not education for careers, but education for life, is what these young women require. They want a philosophy which does not make them unhappy in one of the specialties which is peculiar to their sex. A type of higher education which does not make marriage and motherhood seem a second-rate and unrewarding life is wanted, and we are surprised that the 102 scholars at Geneva did not give some consideration to it.

Tito To Britain

Britain's Foreign Minister Anthony Eden has been visiting Yugoslavia and talking with Marshal Tito, Communist premier of that country. Premier Tito has accepted an invitation to visit Britain shortly. This is a major diplomatic move, the culmination of a five-year Western weaning of Yugoslavia from the Red Russian breast following Tito's own rejection of Russian dominance in Yugoslav affairs, and the Cominform's ousting of him and Yugoslavia as "deviationist."

Two significances of the visit occur to us. The first is that a Communist dictator is travelling outside his own country and into a Western capital. From a Western democratic point of view, one of the weaknesses of Communist rule, and a chief source of difficulty in international dealings, is that seldom do the leaders go outside their own territory; they are parochial in experience, purely national in outlook, and must depend entirely for their conception of what other countries and people are like on their diplomatic advisors and visitors. Marshal Tito, visiting England, cannot help but be better informed about it and its people, and, we hope, favourably impressed.

The second significance is this. Red-baiters say that you cannot have truck or trade with Communism; that there can be no toleration of it; that Communism and capitalism cannot exist side by side. Yugoslavia is a Communist country; Tito is a Communist, admittedly out of grace with Russia but still a Communist. The last five years and this culminating visit show that the West can have dealings and not rancorous and unpleasant ones, with Communism. Yugoslavia and Tito today reveal, surely, that the West's bogey is nationalist Russia, not Communism itself.

Yugoslavia's step out of the Communist East to the democratic West has had very good consequences for Yugoslavs. A recent visitor to that country, who travelled extensively in it, reports this: "The shops no longer have that dreary East European look—anything and everything can now be bought, and they are displaying it as attractively as they know how. Gone are the times when the traveller could make himself agreeable by bringing along some razor blades, or when the only toothpaste available was some sticky substitute. The jump is not one from poverty straight to the luxury of the shopping centres of the big Western cities—there are no incomes in the whole of Yugoslavia which would provide buyers for real luxury articles—but a wide range of good, solid goods can now be seen side by side with the old products of the age of shabbiness. In the department stores of Belgrade, peasant women are now caressing new pots and pans; in the streets, the percentage of people wearing decent new shoes was growing almost from day to day while I was there."

The bulk of a people are not normally influenced by ideologies but by what they can eat, wear and sleep under, and what they are free to do with their time. The release from Eastern Communism has been a relief; the emergence of Western things—and money—into their daily lives has been a boon. Thus is a people quit of Red Russia; thus Premier Tito (we must no longer call him Dictator, must we?) is to visit Britain.

High Finance (Government Style)

Ottawa is again juggling things known as floors and ceilings in the wheat and meat world. Rather, these have been juggling the Government. Last week's announcements that support prices on these products would be cut and some subsidies dropped shows that the Government has been getting more than a polka on its floors.

Through its farm dance-master Mr. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, the Government has been heavily supporting hogs—or rather hog producers; it amounts to the same thing when tinned. The Government bought up, according to its floor prices, tons of pig meat. Now it has a surplus of forty million pounds. This stuff has been tinned—at a cost (including meat, subsidy and the like) of sixty cents a pound. There was a bigger surplus than that, but fifteen millions pounds have been sold, mainly under commercial brand names, at about forty cents a tin. The Government is trying to get rid of the other forty million pounds at a similar price.

This is big dealing, a pork-barrel example of high finance in government: fifty-five millions pounds of canned pork, costing 60 cents to produce, and selling at 40 cents. The loss—if the Government gets as much as 40 cents—is eleven million dollars.

One Year In Four Wasted

The worst feature of the American presidential elections, from the point of view of an outsider and we venture to say from the point of view of anxious international leaders, is that they take so long. The polling lasts only one day; the campaign a year, for it was last January that the American press, and judging from it, the American people, began to think and talk elections, putting into the shade all other matters of world-wide importance.

This is a grievous flaw in the American political system or the American people. How can a nation which is on top of the world and the leader of the West because of its wealth and power, fittingly exercise that position if it spends one year in every four on a purely domestic issue like naming a President? It is important to the world who is the American President but it is far more important that the United States should not consume a quarter of its time electing him. That, it seems to an outside observer, is the most important fact of the entire presidential election campaign, this year, four years ago, and four years hence.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Ottawa Journal says that the Liberal debacle in New Brunswick was thoroughly predictable, save by "Official Ottawa, dwelling in their ivory towers and insulated from grass roots opinion throughout the country." Peeping from our highly insulated ivory tower in Peterborough, we timidly enquire: if the Conservative victory was so easily predictable, why didn't a few Conservative papers predict it?

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

NOW THAT summer is over and the Fall season has really and truly started it takes us a little time to get back into the swing of things. Those of us who have spent the summer near to nature and correspondingly far from art find the process of readjustment slow and possibly disappointing. There is so much that our fingers or our vocal chords have forgotten to do. Perhaps this idea of putting oneself out to graze for two or three months is overdone. I hesitate to think what would happen if through some freak of nature this country were blessed with the balmy climate of Southern Italy. And yet it is to those countries on the shores of the Mediterranean that we owe so much of our civilization. It is fortunate for us that they did not just retire to their lakes and beaches for eleven months in the year to bathe and catch fish. Perhaps we have not yet learned the secret of combining nature with art. There is something to be said for Gluck's ideal state of happiness—a harpsichord and a bottle of good wine in a meadow on a fine summer's day.

✧ ✧ ✧

NOT EVERY instrument has a literature of equal interest, but all have one thing in common in the shape of numerous finger exercises and studies. As a matter of fact some of the best exercises for limbering up the relevant muscles do not require an instrument at all and they have the additional advantage of not sounding tedious to performer and neighbours alike. There is one particular exercise that I would recommend to any instrumentalist, especially if he has been lifting heavy weights. In the first place the hands should where possible be steeped in water as hot as can be borne. Then, when they are dry each hand in turn should be put through the following drill. First stretch the fingers outwards and backwards to their fullest extent, so that the whole hand is rigid and the bones feel as though ready to come out at the finger tips. Relax the tension gradually and allow the fingers to curve into the palm of the hand without clenching the fist. Repeat the operation, remembering that the stretching must be done to the fullest extent. This requires considerable physical effort for the best results. Then massage one hand with the other, first by placing the finger tips of one hand in the palm of the other and applying gentle pressure several times rapidly: care must be exercised not to overdo this manipulation. Then clench the fist lightly and bend the hand in at the wrist, pressing lightly on the knuckles with the other hand. After all this your hands will feel in much better condition to play.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN THE DAYS OF ancient Greece schoolteachers and doctors were usually slaves, and though some of them may still be slaves in a sense they occupy a deservedly high place in society. The profession of music teacher is in higher regard than it was years ago. Out of interest I was reading recently one of the biggest best-sellers of the nineteenth century; I refer to Uncle Tom's Cabin. Readers of that lachrymose tract may remember that the Shelbys had been forced by economic necessity to sell some of their slaves. The impeccably virtuous Mrs. Shelby had promised at some later date to buy their freedom, but in order to do this it would be necessary to procure funds. She says to her husband, "If I can get the money no other way, I will take music scholars;—I could get enough, I know, and earn the money myself." Poor Mr. Shelby recoils in horror at the shame of allowing his wife to give music lessons. His manly whiskers bristling he exclaims, "You wouldn't degrade yourself that way, Emily? I never could consent to it." Well, things have changed a good deal since those days. Taken by and large, music teachers are amongst the most cultured people in the community. They are not usually rich, at least not as a result of their teaching, which can be rewarding in almost every respect but the material aspect.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE METRONOME is possibly the most misused of all adjuncts to music. Children who did not play rhythmically used to be forced to play to the accompaniment of its remorseless ticking, and all to no purpose. The Metronome, as its name indicates, is an instrument for measuring time, not a rhythmical instrument. There is no strong and weak, arsis and thesis—just a dead level. The subtle distortions of tempo which go toward rhythmical playing are caught rather than taught, and they are certainly not caught from the metronome.

Yet this humble device has its uses. Just because it has been abused in the past (and may, for all I know, still be abused) there is no reason for throwing it out with the garbage. Apart from its more obvious uses it is sometimes advisable to check the tempo of an extended movement throughout its course in order to achieve cohesion. We must distinguish between those "subtle distortions" of which I spoke that are used with conscious artistry and those deformations of rhythm that are the result of insufficient dexterity, laziness and insensitivity. The metronome can in certain cases be of some assistance in weeding out rhythmical solecisms.

One last tip concerning the use of the metronome which may be an old one to some, but it was new to me and I can thoroughly recommend it. Everybody knows those awkward passages which have to be taken slowly. So far so good; when taken slow they come out nicely, but as soon as one speeds up again something goes wrong. In nearly every case the trouble arises because the student tries to speed up too soon. If he adjusts his playing first to sufficiently slow metronomic reading, and then repeats the passage, pushing the metronome indicator one notch higher each time until the desired speed is reached he will usually find the difficulties fade away like morning mist.

Unconsidered Trifles

QUIET PLEASE!

It was a terrific boxing match. Fifty thousand spectators cheered themselves hoarse as the boxers stood toe to toe and slugged each other with dynamite rights and lefts.

Suddenly one of the men crumpled to the canvas. The crowd went mad. The boxer took a count of three and then got up. In a few seconds he was floored again. The crowd went crazy. Fifty thousand voices rose in one great sustained roar.

The fighter on the canvas took a count of one-two-three-four. The roar of the crowd increased in volume. Suddenly the fallen fighter leaped to his feet and faced the bellowing multitude.

"Stop that fool howling!" he yelled. "How do you expect me to hear the count?"

Ten Seconds To Live

(Raymond Eastman in the Des Moines Tribune)

HE PUSHED his sleeve back, held his wrist close to the lighted speedometer, squinted to read the time. A little after nine. Five, ten minutes after. Ought to be home in half an hour.

If he'd known he had only ten seconds to live, he might have checked the time more closely. He might have done several things differently.

Ten seconds to live. He massaged his eyes with thumb and middle finger, trying to rub out some of the sand.

Nine seconds to live. He'd driven almost eight hours since lunch, and was beginning to feel it.

Eight seconds to live. Lousy driving in the rain. Light from your headlights just seems to soak in along with the water.

Seven seconds to live. Probably need a new windshield wiper blade. Old one just spreads the water around instead of wiping clean. Get one tomorrow, or next time it rains.

Six seconds to live. Somebody threw a cigarette out of an oncoming car. The red glow dissolved almost before it hit the pavement.

Five seconds to live. He planted his heels on the floorboard, squirmed back in the seat, trying for comfort.

Four seconds to live. At 60 miles an hour, a car covers 88 feet of pavement every second. Four seconds, 352 feet.

Three seconds to live. Something looked wrong, through the blurry windshield. A tentative dab at the brake stiffened into desperate pressure as he made out an old, unlighted, slow-moving truck ahead.

Two seconds to live. Panic moved in. Turn to the left. No, car coming. Headlights too close. Can't make it. Turn to the right.

One second to live. Horror numbed everything into slow motion. He was floating right into the near corner of the truck bed. He opened his mouth to scream.

NO SECONDS TO LIVE

It's happened to lots of people; maybe not just that way, but similarly. Drive too long, eyes get tired, reactions slow down. Rain, darkness, a windshield that's hard to see through. Driving too fast. A car or truck ahead that you can't see. It's happened to lots of folks.

Utopia

(The Edmonton Journal)

Geography has never been a strong point with the average Frenchman. So it is not surprising that at least 200 citizens of Marseilles have paid good money for passports supposedly issued by the government of Utopia.

This came out during a police investigation recently. Apparently quite a number of Frenchmen are anxious to acquire another nationality in order to avoid military service and other burdens. A genuine transfer of citizenship, however, is hard to arrange. Into the breach sprang a gang of sharpers who, for a suitable consideration, offered to supply applicants with passports showing that the bearer was a citizen of the imaginary nation of Utopia. They evidently did a flourishing business among the gullible until the police stepped in.

The most astonishing aspect of the whole affair is that many of the buyers used their Utopian passports on trips to Italy, and the documents were accepted without question by both the French and Italian border guards. It looks as though Italy as well as France needs to brush up on elementary geography.

Pampered

(The Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

A generation ago a man's moustache received much more solicitous care from a barber than it does today. There were several kinds of equipment ready to be brought into play to keep the moustache curled at the ends like a ram's horn, or fiercely jutting up at the ends, or however the customer preferred it.

One veteran Saint John barber recalls that not only did his shops have little curling tongs that were heated over an alcohol flame and clamped on moustaches at request, but also many men had their flowing moustaches wrapped in tinfoil while the rest of their face was shaved, so the lather wouldn't get in.

This served a double purpose, as the tinfoil helped to shape the moustache properly. The barber remembers that it was his habit to rub a little cigar ash into the moustache first as a fixitive; when the tinfoil was removed, the moustache held its form beautifully for hours afterward. Some well-to-do patrons even brought special fixitive from Europe, and it was kept locked up for their exclusive use.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Then said Solomon, The Lord hath said that he would dwell in the thick darkness. But I have built an house of habitation for thee, and a place for thy dwelling for ever . . . . And he stood before the altar of the Lord in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hands. . . . And said, O Lord God of Israel, there is no God like thee in the heaven, nor in the earth; which keepest covenant, and shewest mercy unto thy servants, that walk before thee with all their hearts. . . .

Now therefore arise, O Lord God, into thy resting place, thou, and the ark of thy strength; let thy priests O Lord God, be clothed with salvation, and let thy saints rejoice in goodness. (II Chron. 6:1, 2, 12, 14, 41.)

✧ ✧ ✧

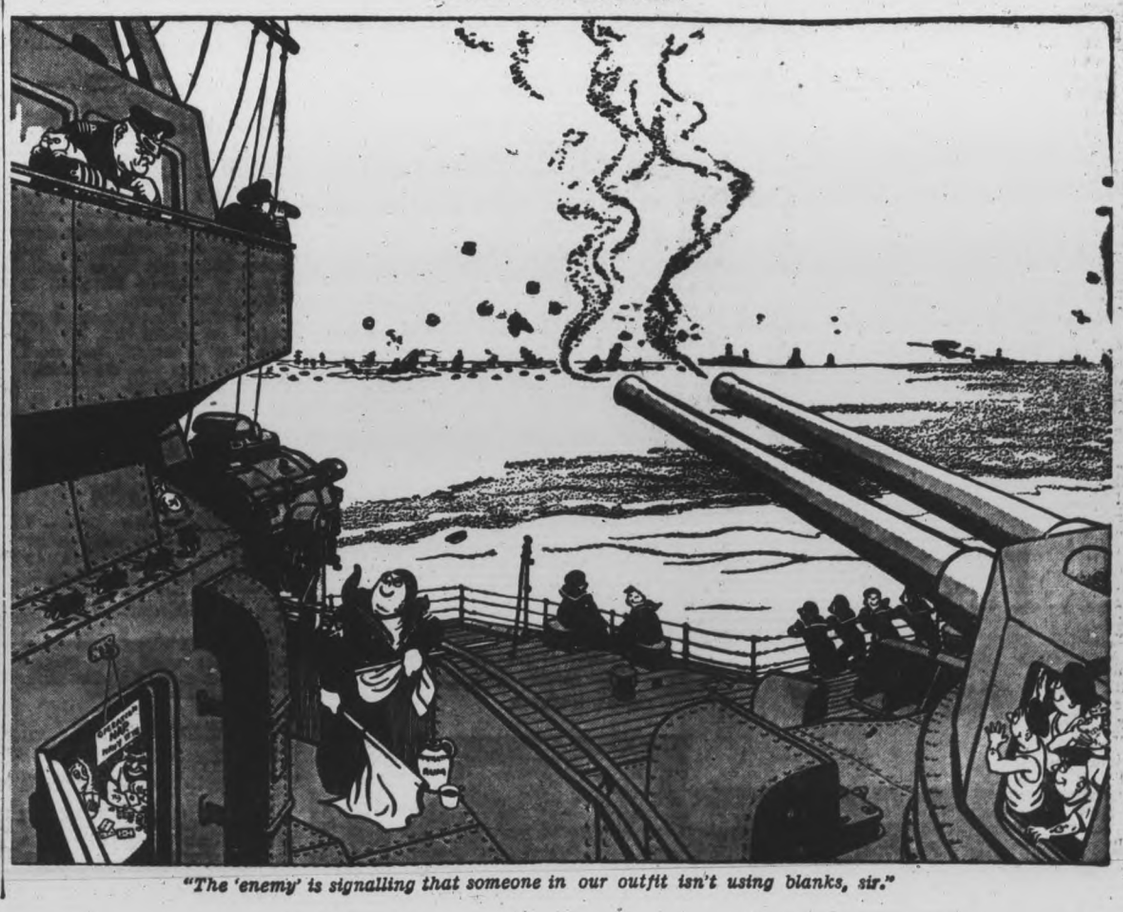
Praise waiteth for thee, O God, in Sion: and unto thee shall the vow be performed. . . Blessed is the man whom thou choosest, and causest approach unto thee, that he may dwell in thy courts: we shall be satisfied with the goodness of thy house, even of thy holy temple.. (Ps. 65:1, 4.).

✧ ✧ ✧

And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose. (Rom. 8:28.)

Fish That Catches Turtles

(Manchester Guardian)



That fishing stories should so often provoke a suspension of belief is regrettable, for the merit of genuine rarity may suffer. From the Kenya fisheries department comes the account of the sucker fish.

The creature is apparently employed by the turtle catching Bajunes. Caught in lagoons, it is tied with a line through gill opening and mouth, then thrown back. The fish promptly adheres to the bottom of the boat, which proceeds to the haunts of the turtles. There the sucker fish is removed, a 35-50 fathom line made fast to its tail, and again it clings to the boat.

They leave the boat by themselves when they scent a turtle, shark, dugong or large grouper. The line is played out by the fisherman until the sucker fish attaches itself to its prey, when the anchor is taken up and the boat is towed by the turtle until it is played out, when it is pulled in and gaffed. As the turtle leaves the water the sucker fish lets go and attaches itself to the bottom of the boat again.

If this extraordinary fish appears unduly docile in working for its captors—or suggests that its name is an American vulgarism—it is seemingly not unaware of the rights of labour. For the report adds that a good sucker fish will catch about two turtles a day before being too tired—"when it is rested for 36 hours." Unfortunate go slow tendencies are sometimes detected. "Some sucker fish are lazy and do not leave the boat when a turtle is sighted, in which case the fisherman will whip it with a small stick or bite its tail—they usually then go and do their work!"

10,000 "Killed" In Mock Atom Bombing

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—An estimated 40,000 persons were "killed" Saturday in a mock atomic-bombing of Buffalo.

Another 10,000 were listed as "stretcher cases" and 20,000 as "walking wounded" in a dress rehearsal for an A-bomb attack.

Highly industrialized Buffalo, with a population of almost 600,000, is New York's second largest city and the 15th largest in the U. S.

Twenty-two thousand civil-defence volunteers took part in the test.

While the 10-minute "raid" was on, police and sound trucks moved through streets, stopping all vehicles. Pedestrians were asked to take cover. Public co-operation was reported to have been excellent in the downtown area.

The Buffalo Evening News published a single-sheet "emergency edition" reporting the "raid." The paper, five columns wide and printed on only one side, was turned out in a suburban plant. Regular editions of the Evening News also were published.

SASKATOON (CP) — William Doreon, who drank some beer while standing up in a Saskatoon beer parlor, Saturday was fined the $100 minimum with the alternative of 45 days in jail. The Saskatchewan Liquor Act stipulates that a person must be seated at a table to drink beer in a beer parlor.

No Newspaper Prosecuted Under Indian Press Curb

By SELIG S. HARRISON

NEW DELHI (AP)—It is more than a year now since Prime Minister Nehru introduced his controversial bill limiting the freedom of the Indian press. Not a single newspaper has been prosecuted.

The legislation, bitterly fought by Indian editors and newspaper men after Nehru presented it in Parliament Aug. 31, 1951, provides for up to six months in jail or fines of 2,000 rupees ($420) for publication of "objectionable matter."

Officials had their best chance to use the act when an Allahabad Hindi daily recently published an article offensive to Moslems, but they chose instead to take action under the Indian penal code.

Irate Moslems boycotted Aug. 15 Independence Day celebrations in many cities following publication of the item, an imaginary radio newscast in a children's column. It told of a donkey who recited verses from Islam's Holy Koran atop a date palm tree in Aden, inspiring local Moslems to worship the beast as an incarnation of the prophet.

Section 295A of the Indian penal code permits action against those "offending the religious susceptibilities of any section of the community." The press act contains a similar provision.

Sole prosecutions under the 1951 press act, which also covers other printed matter besides newspapers, have been pamphlets and books in regional languages. The home ministry said there have been 10 cases in all since the act became effective in February, 1952.

Charges that Nehru sought to become a dictator, mounted during debate over the press action.

Government spokesmen declared they intended to use the act sparingly. They contended it should be on the statute books for use in emergencies only.

Leading editors retorted that even if they conceded Prime Minister Nehru would not misuse the bill, that didn't stop them from worrying about prime ministers of tomorrow.

Believes Russia Working Hard To Produce Synthetic Fuels

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scraps of information out of Russia have convinced the top U.S. government synthetic fuels man that the Soviet is working hard to overcome one shortage it would have to whip if it were planning an all-out war—a shortage of liquid fuels.

Russia, says Dr. W. C. Schroeder, assistant director of the Bureau of Mines, undoubtedly has more natural and synthetic liquid fuels at its disposal than Germany ever had and is paying increased attention to synthetics.

There has been speculation that lack of such fuels, especially aviation gasoline, is one thing that deters Russia from starting a major war.

Dr. Schroeder said in an interview that although little official information is available some credible data has been obtained from various sources.

TAKEN TO RUSSIA

One such source, he said, has been Germans in the coal hydrogenation industry. Some of these have heard from former coworkers who were taken to Russia after the war and now are producing liquid fuels from coal there.

It is known, too, that Russian orders for equipment for coal hydrogenation plants have been received in Berlin and other German cities.

American experts who visited Germany after the last war estimate that 90 per cent of the aviation gasoline supply for the German Luftwaffe when it was the largest air force the world had known came from coal through the hydrogenation process.

When the war ended, Russia got several synthetic-fuel plants and thousands of scientists and workers.

Dr. Schroeder noted that in any comparison of Russia and Germany in regard to liquid fuels, proper allowance should be made for the fact that Russia and its satellites embrace massive land areas, including Siberia and Manchuria, while Germany is fairly small.

CATURED FIELDS

Germany's early major source of crude oil within its own borders during the war, he added, was in the Hamburg area. It had to depend on captured fields in Romania, Austria, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Albania and Poland. Even these did not produce enough crude, and the Germans had to turn to synthetics.

Russia now has available all those crude-oil sources except the Hamburg fields, plus fields in Russia and Siberia and elsewhere in eastern Asia.

Dr. Schroeder said there are definite indications the Russians are pushing synthetic fuels production in Russia proper, in Siberia and in all their European satellites.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—The Buffalo Courier-Express announced Saturday that the price of its Sunday edition will be increased from 15 to 20 cents effective Oct. 5. Underwater Explosion First In A-Tests

ONSLOW, Australia (Reuters)—Britain's first atomic weapon test at the Monte Bello Islands will be an underwater explosion, a competent observer predicted here yesterday.

The second test, coming just after the initial one, will be an atom bomb dropped from a Canberra jet bomber, he said.

The observer has made as comprehensive study of the situation as security restrictions permit.

He forecast that the blasts will come within the next few days at the desert island site 80 miles north of this northwestern Australia coastal town.

Can't Decide Raid Winners

WINNIPEG (CP)—The R.C.A.F. staged a mock battle Saturday and ended up with an argument.

Seven Mitchell bombers from auxiliary squadrons at Saskatoon and Edmonton broke through fighter cover to pounce on the steel rolling mills at Selkirk, 20 miles north of here.

The bomber force, escorted by Mustang fighters, claimed it blasted the rolling mills into a pile of tin cans—besides knocking down all five defending Mustangs.

The defending Winnipeg force said four bombers were shot down with two escort fighters.

Intelligence officers assessing the reports said some bombers reached the target. But no one could decide how many or the damage inflicted by either side.

Ollenhauer Elected To Schumacher Post

DORTMUND, Germany (Reuters)—The West German Social Democrat party yesterday elected Erich Ollenhauer as its leader, succeeding Kurt Schumacher, who died last month.

Ollenhauer, 51, was Schumacher's deputy and, though not as bitterly outspoken as was his fiery late chief, he is expected to follow Schumacher's policies — opposition to West German membership in a European army.

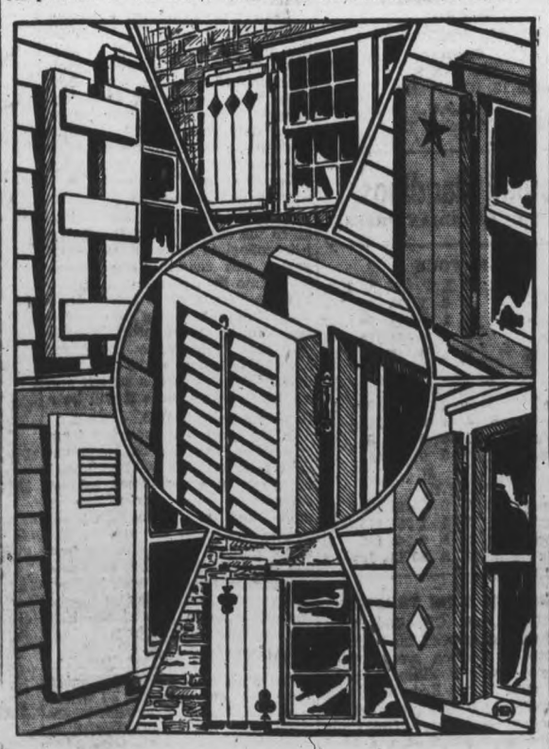
Shutters Can Enhance Beauty Of Home

This is the time of year to give serious thought to dressing up the exterior of your home. There are many interesting projects which will enhance its beauty, but few will give you greater satisfaction than well-planned and designed shutters.

Originally shutters served a utilitarian purpose. They were hung on hinges and drawn shut to keep out wind, rain and snow. They were made up of adjustable louvers which could be closed against the weather or adjusted to let light in or keep bright sunlight out.

Today, the storm sash has replaced the shutter as a means of insulating the house against the elements and the shutter has become strictly a decoration with limitless posibilities of making small windows appear larger, narrow windows wider, and large expanses of wall less bleak.

To get an idea of the type and size of shutters most suited to your particular needs, take a photograph of your home and make a tracing from it. This will be much easier to do if you have an enlargement made.



On the tracing, sketch in the size and type of shutter you want at each window. Erase and change until you arrive at the most attractive and practical ones for your purpose.

The accompanying sketch suggests but a few of the many possibilities for interesting and attractive shutters. If you plan to hang your shutters on hinges so they can be closed, you will naturally make them fit the area of the windows. If they are to be secured to the house in an open position permanently, make them wide enough to look as though they would cover the window when closed.

Unless you plan to have an opening between the vertical boards, it is best to use tongue and groove material, planing off the outside tongue and groove from the finished panel. Remember that the vertical board with the cleats in the back will lend height, and with the cleats running laterally across the front the effect will be of greater width. Simple designs can often be cut with the vertical boards clamped flat together.

Shutters must be able to take all weather conditions so use good lumber and finish with the best grade of paint. Plan your color scheme so the project will be a compliment to the house rather than something bold which defeats its purpose by calling attention to itself.

If the surface to which you fasten the shutters is wood, 8d nails will hold them. If the surface is stone or brick, you should drill into the masonry and use anchor bolts. Special hardware, which will add to the attractiveness of the new shutters, is available at most hardware stores.

HERE ARE A FEW of the varied styles of shutters you can have.

Ball Attendance Down Million In Major League

NEW YORK (AP) — Major League attendance dropped nearly 1,500,000 during 1952 compared with 1951.

A total of 16,126,676 saw the 16 clubs in action last year. For the 1952 campaign the turnout was 14,646,836.

Attendance in the National League fell off 892,280 and 587,560 in the American.

Although New York Yankees suffered the biggest loss, they were still the top drawing club. A 312,847 drop left them with 1,637,260, high for the Major Leagues. Four other teams in the American League, Cleveland, Chicago, Boston and last-place Detroit, also attracted more than 1,000,000 customers, but all also saw their attendances dip.

Brooklyn Dodgers again led the National League with 1,088,600, a decline of almost 200,000. The only other N.L. team over the 1,000,000-mark was Chicago Cubs, who play their entire home schedule in the day time. The Cubs showed a gain of 139,424.

Queen's Wallops Aggies 32-3

KINGSTON (CP)—A second-half offensive Saturday netted Queen's University a 32-3 exhibition football victory over the Ontario Agricultural College of Guelph.

Held to a 6-2 halftime score by the lighter and less-experienced Aggies, the Golden Gaels piled up 26 points in the final half to a single for the visitors.

The Queen's scoring was well divided with Don Griffin, Jack Sisson, Ken Atwood, Brian Timmis Jr., and Pete Zarry scoring a touchdown apiece.

Don Ball kicked three converts while Timmis picked up two singles. Atwood also converted one major. The Aggies' Gerrie was rouged on Ball's kick for another Queen's point.

Aggies' only points were scored on a safety touch by Rowett and a single by McLean.

Cobourg Planning Midget Car Races

COBOURG.—Postponed several times due to the fact that the new floor in the ice arena was slow in drying out after the summer skating school, the midget car races are scheduled for this coming week. The recreational centre has had several attractions during the interval between the summer skating school and the arrival of the hockey season, in order to assist in the financing of the centre. Wrestling matches from Toronto and boxing matches have been drawing good crowds and now the latest attraction is the midget cars.

Saturday afternoon some of the tiny racers were in town to try out the arena floor and found it satisfactory. Mayor Jack Burnet took a few rounds around the course in one of the cars.

Male golfers did it up brown to mark the annual closing day of the Peterborough and Kawartha golf clubs. A goodly attendance at both dinners, which were followed by prize and trophy presentations, some speeches, singing and dancing. There were afternoon competitions at both links, also. The closing day ceremony is an official one, but lots of golfers continue to play till the snow flies. However, all competitions are wrapped up for the year. Both clubs reported successful seasons, with larger memberships than ever before, more young folk joining up and generally ideal weather throughout the summer.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

So it'll be Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Yanks in the World Series coming right up. This time we're going to desert the American League and root for the Dodgers of the National Loop all the way. Why? Well, mainly on account of they have a big young hurler by the name of Johnny Rutherford, whose folks left here some years ago to live in Detroit. He's a good picher in the majors. Then, too, Brooklyn has a Canuck club in its organization, the Montreal Royals who recently ousted Toronto Leafs but lost out to Rochester, the club to make the Little World Series, as it's called. Jackie Robinson, first Negro to be allowed in the majors, is a Dodger star, as every ball fan knows. Come on you Dodgers!

Seventh Here If Needed

Manager Bob Curtin of the Petes' Timbermen won the toss over Don McPhail for the seventh Eastern Canada final playoff game, if it goes that far. So, if the Petes should lose tonight to Toronto in the Mimico bowl, the deciding joust of the big series will be here Wednesday eve. Yes, it'll be all over either tonight—weather permitting—or by midweek. Mann Cup finals open in Toronto next Sunday against Vancouver. Incidentally, it'll be the first trip east for the Vancouver club since 1940. The made the final four times in the last 10 years but each time the series was out west, the Petes taking 'em there in seven games last autumn. We think the Petes will beat them again this year in the east.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

Sure, we look for the Thorpe team to oust the Yorks. Either tonight in Mimico or here Wednesday. They got a bad game out of their systems here Friday and are still sizzling over it. Locked themselves in the dressing-room after that sad showing and refused to see anyone, officials, press, friends or even wives. Took it real hard. But this is another week, and the Timbermen have only to play up to their usual form to grab the title. Yorks will give them a stiff fight, undoubtedly, but it's our turn to win as this screwy series seems to kick the dope bucket seven ways for Sunday. Yorks win here and Petes win away. Tough on the home fans, eh? Quite a few local fans will likely drive to Mimico for the melee this eve.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

Scribes Root For Yorks

Toronto scribes were quite tickled after the Friday joust here. Gord Campbell of the Star remarked: "Led by the indomitable McPhail, the winners ran and checked their highly-rated opponents dizzy. And in the fighting league they did pretty well, too. Stu Scott giving Petes' Nip O'Hearn all he wanted in the first quarter exchange, and little Les Digby piling into large Harry Wipper in a last-minute battle. But the guy who broke their spirit was Goalie Geordie Johnston." Etc. Bun Morganson wrote in the Tely: "The combination of close checking, especially in covering Petes' key man Harry Wipper, and Geordie Johnston's sensational goaltending, paid off for Toronto .... Despite close checking, it was a cleanly played game."

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

Oshawa Raiders dropped a 10-0 grid tilt to Cobourg, so the Ghosts and our Orfuns are tied atop the heap now. The Raiders play here on Friday night. We note this item in the Oshawa paper: "Cobourg used the same offensive pattern that they used at home against Peterborough. Two receivers head for a defending tertiary. One continues deep and the other goes into the flat. The passer has his choice. Seems odd that the team which had been told of that play should be caught flat-footed on three or four occasions. Orfuns found a solution, and this was mentioned to the locals after a scout session, but it failed to impress the powers that be." The Ghosts are in Oshawa again tomorrow.

Cleveland Barons to use Ike Hindebrand in tonight's tussle in Mimico ....A lot of fans have said they were taking in this jaunt....Petes' pucksters expect to be on ice shortly in Civic Arena to commence a month's training ere the schedule opens at the end of October....Likely some word within a week on whether or not the pro grapplers intend staging shows here again this fall and winter....St. Alphonsus School field day results are in....And it's time to catch a ride to Mimico.

Name Four Men Outstanding Players

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Hammerin' Hank Sauer and Robin Roberts of the National League and Luke Easter and Bobby Shantz of the American were named Saturday by the Sporting News as the outstanding players and pitchers of the 1952 major league season.

The weekly sports newspaper initiated its dual selection method in 1948 as "the fairest method of naming top stars."

Rochester Trips Kansas 5-3, Defence Weak

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City let down its defences in the seventh inning yesterday and Rochester shoved across four runs to defeat the Blues 5-3 and square the Little World Series at one game each.

Southpaw Jim Russell of Kansas City came into the seventh with a 3-1 lead. Shortstop Wally Lammers of the International league entry opened the seventh with a single. Cot Deal went in to pinch hit and bounced one to Don Bollweg at first. Bollweg stepped on the bag but threw wildly to second, missing an easy double play.

Player-manager Harry Walker singled and Lammers scored from second. Don Richmond then bounced one to Kal Segrist at second. Segrist tried to tag Walker, missed him and then overthrew first on a belated play for the hitter.

With the Blues obviously rattled, John Bucha singled in one run and Steve Bilko doubled in two more.

Kansas City won the opening game 5-2 Saturday behind the 10-hit pitching of Ed Erautt, who won 21 and lost five this season for the American Association club.

Billy Meyer Leaves Pirates

CINCINNATI (AP)—Billy Meyer, oldest National League manager in both age and service, finally gave up Saturday after five years of trying to nurse a pennant contender out of the rookie-studded Pittsburgh Pirates.

The 59-year-old Meyer blamed ill health for his resignation.

Meyer had managed the Pirates since 1948 when he was named Manager of the Year for directing the Bucs to a fourth-place finish. Then the Pirates hit the skids, finishing sixth in 1949, last in 1950, seventh in 1951 and last again this year in one of the club's poorest seasons.

Toronto Leafs Clip Cleveland Barons 3-0

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League Saturday night defeated Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League 3-0 in an exhibition game.

Bob Hassard, Tod Sloan and Bob Sabourin, a junior with Toronto St. Michael's College, were the scorers.

Rookie defenceman Leo Boivin, a member of the American League Pittsburgh Hornets last year, impressed the crowd of 2,800 with his heavy checking for the Leafs.

Pete Conacher Scores 3 Goals For Hawks

PEMBROKE (CP)—Rookie Pete Conacher, son of old pro Charlie Conacher, scored three goals Saturday night as Chicago Black Hawks defeated Detroit Red Wings 5-1 in an exhibition National Hockey League game.

Conacher's three shots were all fired from about 20 feet out into the opposite corner of Terry Sawchuk's net. Ed Kryzanowski and Bill Mosienko closed out the Chicago scoring.

Tony Leswick counted for Detroit.

Argos Knock Down Alouettes 12-6

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg Blue Bombers are making the experts look good. Toronto Argonauts are kicking the same experts in the teeth.

The Bombers made a pre-season exhibition jaunt in the east, cleaned up on three of the Big Four clubs and returned home with a sackful of cash and the plaudits of easterners who freely predicted they would return for the Grey Cup Final and might even take it.

Now, they are practically a shoo-in for the Western Canada Conference 3-team playoffs and, based on their 40-18 Saturday whipping of Edmonton Eskimos, are undoubtedly the powerhouse of the west. They've lost only two and tied one in 10 games and today hold a big four-point lead over the Eskimos.

ARGOS PROVE POWER

In the East, Argonauts appeared to be a so-so club in training, but in the Big Four chips-down competition, they've knocked over every other club and now, with Sarnia Imperials of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, remain the only unbeaten senior club in the country in league play.

Argonauts have had a couple of close ones—a 13-13 tie with Hamilton Tiger-Cats a week ago and a 12-6 squeaker over the winless Montreal Alouettes Sunday. For a club that was called to go nowhere, the Double Blue is looking pretty good.

The Imperials walloped the second-place Toronto Balmy Beach at Toronto 30-12 Sunday to make it six straight in the union and certainly draw a place in the two-team playoff.

Meanwhile, last year's Grey Cup Finalists — Saskatchewan Roughriders and Ottawa Rough Riders—are finding the pace a trifle hot. Both lost their weekend games, Saskatchewan bowing 16-9 to Calgary Stampeders and Ottawa losing 27-13 to the second-place Tiger-Cats at Hamilton.

Saskatchewan still has a chance to nip Calgary or Edmonton for a spot in the post-season series, but there aren't many folks around who will give them much of a hope. They are six points down on the Stamps, seven behind the Eskimos and a whopping 11 behind Winnipeg.

The western week-end doubleheader ends today with the Eskimos at Regina and Calgary at Winnipeg and a loss to Glenn Dobbs' Riders would just about shunt them out of the playoff picture.

OTTAWA IN THIRD

Ottawa has won only two of its five games to date and trail Tiger-Cats by three points and Argonauts by five.

Meanwhile, Brantford Redskins, newcomers to the O.R.F.U., broke into the win column with an easy 37-12 victory over Windsor Royals at Brantford Saturday night. Both clubs were looking for their first victory of the season and battled to a 12-12 first-half tie, but the Redskins, powered by the nifty forward-passing of Al Dekdebrun, galloped all over the Royals in a rousing last 30 minutes.

Hamilton McMaster Marauders, given the okay to meet the Senior Intercollegiate clubs in exhibition games this season, threw a big scare into the defending champion Toronto Varsity Blues before dropping a heart-breaking 16-12 decision. College union officials have said they will make room for Marauders in the league next year if they show class this season and on their performances it will be a five-team union in 1953.

In the West, the towering form of Indian Jack Jacobs stood out like a beacon as the Winnipeg quarter tossed five touchdown passes, believed to be a record for the union, and set up plays that led to Bombers' other two majors. Eskimos made it a game in the first quarter, trailing only 5-0, but some spectacular defensive work by Tom Casey and nifty throwing by Jacobs opened it up to 23-0 at the half and they were home free.

STAMPEDER RALLY

The Stampeders spotted Regina 6-0 lead, drew even at 7-7 in the cond and a third-quarter touchdown pass from Keith Spaith to ...te Thodos settled the issue.

Argonauts also had to come from ...hind—a first-quarter converted ...uchdown by the Als—but Ulysses ...urtis barged over for majors in each of the second and fourth quarters to make the difference.

It was a different story at Hamilton. The Tiger-Cats raced into an 18-1 lead at the half and were never headed.

"COOL CONTROL"

TABLE TENNIS

1 The Forehand Grip: Control of every shot is vital, and comes only from the properly-held bat. Grip the bat simply and naturally. The handle should be held by the whole hand. Blade is held between thumb and forefinger; thumb on one side, forefinger on other.

2 Make sure bat fits snugly in hand while the three fingers clasp handle with relaxed, controlled grip. Held in this manner the bat becomes an extension of the arm and hand.

3 The Backhand Grip: For a backhand shot the bat is turned slightly in the hand when changing from the forehand position. The thumb steadies the backhand shot; the first finger steadies the forehand shot.

Yes, it's control that counts, in table tennis as in every sport—control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

The 1952 major league baseball season will be best remembered as a "pitchers" year, something rare in this so-called lively ball era. The final batting averages show only eight regulars in both leagues hit .300 or better. Stan Musial of St. Louis Cardinals won the National League title for the sixth time with a .336 mark, the lowest figure to top the league since Ernie Lombardi led the circuit in 1942 with a .330 average. Ferris Fain of Philadelphia won the American League crown with a .327 mark, the poorest since George Stirnweiss finished in front in 1945 with a .309 record.

SHUTOUTS NUMEROUS

Although there were only six 20-game winners, as contrasted to 13 in 1951, there were 98 shutouts pitched in the American League and 94 in the National.

The regular season ended yesterday with the interest centring on individual batting and pitching honors although fourth, fifth and sixth place were decided in the American League.

A's CLAIM FOURTH

Philadelphia's surprising Athletics nailed down fourth place by trouncing the American League's pennant-winning New York Yankees 9-4. Washington Senators nipped Boston 3-2 to edge the Red Sox for fifth place. In other American League games the runner-up Cleveland Indians smeared Detroit 8-2 and St. Louis Browns drubbed Chicago's third-place White Sox 12-1.

Brooklyn Dodgers tuned up for their World Series meeting with the Yankees by battling Boston Braves to a 5-5 12-inning tie. In remaining games Philadelphia battered the runner-up New York Giants 7-4, Cincinnati nipped Pittsburgh 3-2 and Chicago turned back St. Louis 3-0.

In Saturday's games in the National the Braves defeated the Dodgers 11-3; Philadelphia tripped the Giants 7-3, Pittsburgh outlasted Cincinnati 9-6 and the Cubs whipped the Cards 4-1. In the American, the Yankees shut out Philadelphia 3-0, Cleveland smeared Detroit 11-6, Chicago defeated St. Louis 8-4 and Washington nipped Boston 3-2.

KINER SHARES HONORS

Ralph Kiner of Pittsburgh and Hank Sauer of Chicago shared the home run lead in the National at 37 each, while Cleveland's Larry Doby won the title in the American with 32. Kiner now has either led or tied for the home run lead in seven straight seasons, a major league record.

Sauer and third baseman Al Rosen of Cleveland topped their circuits in runs batted in. The Cub slugger drove in 121 mates while Rosen knocked home 105.

Righthander Robin Roberts of Philadelphia's Phils was the majors' biggest winner with 28 victories. It was the most triumphs by a National League pitcher since Dizzy Dean won 28 for the 1935 Cardinals. Bobby Shantz, of the Athletics, was high man in the American League with 24. The only other 20-game winners were Allie Reynolds of the Yankees and Bob Lemon, Mike Garcia and Early Wynn of Cleveland. Shantz also topped his league in won-lost percentage with a .774 mark. Relief ace Ed Yuhas of the Cards was the National's leader with a 12-2 .857 slate.

PROBABLE PITCHER

DODGERS OPEN AT HOME TO THE YANKS—Betting men have made the New York Yankees 8-5 favorites in the World Series, opening in Ebbett's Field on Wednesday, but the "Bums" are grimly confident that this is their year for the pennant. Rookie Joe Black may get the opening slab assignment against Allie Reynolds, Yanks' 20-game winner, though Manager Chuck Dressen hasn't made a definite announcement yet. Dodgers will likely open with their regular lineup, a well-balanced club which had the National League race wrapped up before the Yanks closed the door on Cleveland Indians in a stretch drive. The betting gentry point to the fact that the Dodgers have never won a title, while the Yankees have taken 14 world championships. This is the 49th series.

Yankees Ruled 8-To-5 Favorite

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The American League champion New York Yankees today ruled a solid 8-to-5 favorite to overcome the National League champion Brooklyn Dodgers in the 49th World Series which gets under way Wednesday. Neither manager—Casey Stengel of the Yankees nor Chuck Dressen of the Dodgers—has officially named his Series-opening pitcher, but indications are that Allie Reynolds and Brooklyn's Joe Black will open festivities at 1 p.m. EST in Ebbets Field.

Although it marks the eighth time the Yankees have participated in a fall Series in the last dozen years, and the fourth time for the Dodgers, the 1952 classic will hold special interest. The Yankees, for the second time, will be gunning for their fourth successive world championship. The Dodgers will be seeking their first triumph after five reversals in as many attempts.

PICKING YANKEES

Most observers pick the Yankees to whip the Dodgers in five or six games in this best-of-seven series. The second game, also to be staged in Brooklyn, will go on Thursday. The Series moves to Yankee Stadium Friday, Saturday and Sunday and back again to Ebbets Field for the sixth and seventh games, if necessary.

The records substantiate the Yankee backers. The Bronx Bombers move into their 19th Series with 14 triumphs, 12 in the last 13. Three of their triumphs have come over the Dodgers, in 1941, '47 and '49.

Both clubs have good power, a tight defence and a strong bench. The Yankees, however, boast the stronger and better balanced pitching staff. Pitching scarcely can be regarded as the Dodgers' forte this year, a fact that explains the betting odds against them.

Dressen is counting heavily on Black, his sensational rookie star, who played such a tremendous role in bringing the flag to Flatbush. Winner of 15 games against four losses during the regular season, Black thrives on work. It is the Dodger manager's plan to use the relief ace both as a starter and reliever.

Carl Erskine (14-6), author of the National League's only no-hitter, is slated to go in the second game for Brooklyn. Preacher Roe (11-2), the fragile but still highly effective southpaw, is down for Friday's encounter at the stadium. After that Dressen's fortunes will rest pretty much in the lap of the gods and in his bullpen.

STENGEL'S BIG THREE

On the other hand, Stengel has his Big Three and a flock of other ready and willing workers, all set for the fray. Stengel doubtless will start with Reynolds, the Yankees' only 20-game winner this year. He will follow with Vic Raschi (16-6) and then call on the crafty lefthander, Eddie Lopat, for the Stadium opener Friday.

Except for the pitching, the two contenders are about on a par. The Brooks present a formidable cast with their infield of Gil Hodges at first, Jackie Robinson on second, Peewee Reese at short and Billy Cox at third. They have a great catcher in Roy Campanella and a powerful outfield in Andy Pafko, Duke Snider and Carl Furillo.

The other great catcher, of course, is Yogi Berra of the Yankees. For the first time since the war years there will be no Joe DiMaggio in the Bomber outfield, but the Yankees got along nicely with hard-hitting Mickey Mantle taking over in centre. Hank Bauer, star of the 1951 classic, and Gene Woodling or Irv Noren, complete a solid, if not spectacular outfield. Phil Rizzuto still has no peer at shortstop. He holds together the infield that has Joe Collins at first, young Billy Martin at second and sophomore Gil McDougald at third.

MCMASTER BEATS OTTAWA

OTTAWA (CP) — McMaster University of Hamilton scored a 2½-length victory over the University of Ottawa Saturday to retain possession of the P.D. Ross Memorial Trophy in the third annual rowing classic over a 3½-mile course on the Ottawa River.

The McMaster eight finished the gruelling course in 28 minutes and 38 seconds for their third straight victory. They won the trophy in 1950, the first year it was put up for competition, and successfully defended it last year. The trophy is for annual competition between crews of eights from the two universities.

Hundreds of persons lined the banks of the river to watch the race. Referee Bert Kerr of Ottawa said it was the closest race of the three held between the crews.

Red Newman Of Dumbells Dies Suddenly

TORONTO (CP)—Red Newman, who rolled theatre audiences of the '20s in the aisles with his characterization of a fleaharried First World War infantryman, died yesterday of a heart attack. He was 67.

Newman, a star with the Dumbells theatrical troupe during 10 successful years, had operated a resort hotel at Wasaga Beach, where he was stricken suddenly.

Red—his given names were Albert Edward but no one used them—made thousands laugh with his song "Oh It's a Lovely War" when the Dumbells, outgrowth of a 3rd Division concert party, played across Canada to packed theatres and appeared briefly on Broadway.

When he came on stage with web gear askew, puttees undone, and red wig sticking out under a battered helmet, audiences cheered just to see him. When he started "up to your knees in water, up to your waist in slush," there were lumps in the throats of veterans. When he went through the routine of pitching his gear aside while he searched for an elusive cootie, he stopped the show.

With Mert, Al and Morley Plunkett of Peterborough, Ross Hamilton (as Marjorie, the belle of the Dumbells), Pat Rafferty, Jack McLaren and the rest, Newman played in dozens of cities and towns during the Dumbells' golden years.

Their show died when vaudeville died and was revived only briefly at the start of the Second World War. Newman and his old pals put on the show at Ottawa in 1939, staging an hilarious performance before 3,000 veterans and soldiers at Lansdowne Park.

His widow survives him.

Ezinicki Up To Old Tricks Packs His Bag, Leaves Leafs

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Wild Bill Ezinicki is up to his pre-season shenanigans again.

The unpredictable right-winger left the training camp here of Toronto Maple Leafs after refusing to sign a contract with the National Hockey League club.

Officials indicated he will be suspended. Ezinicki, with his wife and child, was reported driving to Boston and a return to his golfing job at the Colonial Club there.

Ezinicki, now 28, said that financial terms, plus the fact there was a clause in the contract whereby he could be sent to the minor leagues, were double reasons for not signing. He has the right to appeal against the contract terms to Clarence Campbell, N.H.L. president.

The Leafs brought up young Bob Sabourin from Pittsburgh Hornets to help plug the gap.

Said Leafs' managing director Conn Smythe regarding Ezinicki: "He doesn't want $1,000 a month. He doesn't want to play hockey. . . He hadn't been going well in practice. They were knocking him down instead of him knocking them down. We'll go with the kids."

Laprade's Retirement Plans Still Spinning

By GERRY LOUGHEED
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GUELPH (CP)—An injury to another player and a rhubarb between New York Rangers and National Hockey League headquarters have Edgar Laprade's retirement plans spinning like a roulette wheel.

Edgar the Smooth decided he'd had enough of the 70-game N.H.L. grind and the frequent injuries that accompany it. From his home at Port Arthur he informed Rangers that he wanted to be placed on the voluntary retired list and spend his winter evenings counting the cash from his sporting goods store at the Lakehead.

'HAS A POINT'

Frank Boucher, manager of the Rangers who are training here, said yesterday he could see Laprade's points. The 157-pound centre will be 33 next month and he missed a good portion of the last few seasons through injuries.

Boucher figured his club could get along without their seven-year centre ice mainstay on the showing of Don Raleigh—fourth highest scorer in the loop last season with 61 points—and Paul Ronty, who turned in a fine job during the closing stages.

Then Raleigh bumped into Pittsburgh defenceman Tim Horton during an exhibition game last week and fractured his wrist in about eight places. Doctors say he'll be lucky if he's in shape in eight weeks.

Boucher telephoned Laprade at Port Arthur to ask if he would reconsider his retirement plans.

"Edgar said he would come back and play until Raleigh was able to carry on," Boucher said.

CLAIMED BY HAWKS

Next morning, the New York manager added, he learned that waivers had been asked on Laprade and Chicago Black Hawks claimed him at the $7,500 waiver price.

"I was astounded," Boucher said.

He figures league president Clarence Campbell made a mistake. In Montreal, Saturday, Campbell said he didn't err.

Boucher says:

"Under league rules, when a club asks the retirement of a player, with no mention of a player's wishes one way or another, it is regular procedure for the league to ask the other clubs if they want the player.

"But in this case Laprade himself asked the N.H.L. to be transferred from the reserve list to the voluntarily retired list. When the player asks there is no question of waivers. None should be asked."

There the matter stands.

Mobile Power Plant Ready To Light Town In Emergency

MIAMI, Fla. (NEA)—A power plan on wheels is sitting on a side street here, waiting for a hurricane. The men who run the monstrous mobile unit are not exactly hoping for a big blow, but, in case one comes, they're eager to demonstrate what their big baby can do.

And it can do plenty. Among other things, it can provide power for 1,000 homes, a 20,000-instrument telephone exchange, a 50,000-watt radio station. Its aim in life is to fill in temporarily in case of mergencies—like a hurricane or, possibly, a bombing.

Mounted on a van-type trailer the mobile electric set is the largest road-borne emergency power unit yet developed. It can be moved anywhere than a large tractor trailer can go, at speeds up to 60 miles an hour, ready to produce 315 kilowatts of electricity within 15 minutes after its arrival.

Developed by the Caterpillar Tractor Co., the 28-ton, $60,000 unit was more than a year in the making.

It has its own switchgear which enables it to furnish either power directly or to synchronize with another power source and take up part of the load. A radio-telephone permits it to keep in constant touch with the home office while on the road.

FIRST EMERGENCY

The mobile set's first emergency test came last July when a piston broke in the main generator of the South River, N. J., municipal power plant, sharply reducing the town's supply of electricity and cutting the operations of 28 factories.

Five days later, Caterpillar officials learned of the town's plight through a newspaper story. Their offer to South River of the machine was gratefully accepted. By the next day, it had been hooked into the power lines almost in the centre of the town and was generating electricity for 14 factories, thus taking a 300 kilowatt load off the three remaining municipal generators which had been running above capacity for almost a week.

As a result of the first aid, South River's power was firmed up and its electrical appliances restored to working order until a new piston could be installed in the main generator some 70 hours later.

While pausing in Florida, the mobile unit is giving demonstrations of its ability to meet any emergency. Caterpillar has offered to lend it in any bone fide disaster. It can be contacted through company headquarters in Peoria, and through its own radio-telephone, ZA 2-5457, and stands ready to roll at a moment's notice.

READY TO ROLL is this power plant on wheels, which can furnish emergency power for a town of 1,000 homes.

ORENDAS FOR FIGHTERS — The federal government has placed a $66,000,000 order with A. V. Roe Canada, Ltd., for Orenda jet engines for F-86 Sabres. The company's engine plant at Malton was officially opened today. Production Minister Howe said Orenda-powered F-86 Sabres will be in production by next summer. The Orenda tubojets also are to be used in the CF-100 fighters (shown lined up at Avro's Malton plant) for North American defence. Eventually, all R.C.A.F. first-line fighter aircraft will be powered by Orendas.

Christianity Needs Witnesses–Minister

MARMORA (ENS). — "While the Christian ideology is opposed by the non-Christian ideology, God will require witnesses to His truth." That was the dominant note struck in an address given by Major Canon W. E. Kidd of Brockville at St. Paul's Anglican Church on Sunday as the congregation observed its annual harvest festival. Taking his text, "Thou shalt remember the Lord thy God, for it is He that giveth thee power to get wealth," he mentioned that this book of the Bible had been called by some the book of remembrance because so many times in it the Israelites were exhorted to remember the Lord and His commandments.

The church was decorated for the service with fruits and vegetables, flowers and foliage.

NEW JET PLANT—A 700,000 square foot, multi-million dollar jet engine plant at Malton, built by the federal government and operated by Avro Canada, was officially opened today by Production Minister Howe. The plant will mass produce Canadian-designed and developed jet engines for CF-100 fighters and F-86 Sabres. A portion of the plant is shown framed by an Orenda jet engine compressor casing.

Place $66,000,000 Order For Jet Engines—Howe

TORONTO (CP) — The government has recently placed a $66,000,000 order with A.V. Roe Canada for Orenda jet engines for Canadair F-86 Sabre jets, Production Minister Howe said today.

He was speaking at the official opening of the new plant for production of Orenda jet engines by A.V. Roe Canada at nearby Malton.

Mr. Howe said the Orenda engine will be fitted into Canadair's assembly line next spring with the first Sabres powered by the new engine expected to be produced by mid-summer. 'This means' he said "that eventually all R.C.A.F. first-line fighter aircraft — Sabre and CF-100—will be powered with Orendas."

He traced the course which Canada followed in developing the Canadian Orenda and the CF-100 jet which the engine powers. The government joined forces with Avro at Malton to set up facilities to produce the air frames and jet engines. The plant compares favorably with any other plant of its type in the world, he said.

"At this stage in the development of any project, it is always a temptation to strive for better performance." But in the case of the Orenda the time had come to emphasize full production. The Orenda was comparable in efficiency to any of the jet engines being flown operationally by Canadian or U.S. armed forces.

A Toronto paper says today in a newspage story Canadian government expects for its $120,000,000 investment in the new industry "delta-wing jets built for Arctic and northern Canadian operation, boasting both long-range and faster-than-sound speeds, and development of guided missiles for use for both the delta-wings and the CF-100 Canuck, which has been developed for Arctic warfare." It adds:

ATOMIC WARHEADS

"The Canuck will become a 'carrier' for guided missiles now in the experimental stage at Avro Canada and Valcartier, Que., and designed for air-to-air combat. Later, missiles fitted with atomic warheads would be used in the ground attack version of the twin-jet warplane."

Crawford Gordon Jr., Avro Canada's president and general manager, said last night at a pre-opening press conference the Orenda is one of the most powerful jet engines currently in production among the Allied powers.

He said Avro's Crown-financed engine plant will reach its production targets on schedule. All statistics about production schedules are subject to military security.

Thomas S. McCrae, general manager of Avro's gas turbine division, said the Orenda's power output will be gradually developed during the next three or four years. He said the engine now compares favorably with all others in its general size class.

The Orenda has been chosen to power an improved version of the jetliner commercial transport, said Fred. T. Smye, general manager of Avro's aircraft division.

Reds Reject 3 New Offers From U.N. Team

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—The United Nations Command yesterday proposed three ways to settle the truce-blocking issue of prisoner exchange in Korea but the Communists' chief negotiator retorted "I can't find anything new" in the proposal.

Each of three alternative plans laid before the Communists at Panmunjom retained the basic principle of voluntary repatriation —the issue that has stalled the truce talks for months. The Allies said each plan gave the Communists a chance to save face at home.

Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison chief Allied delegate, told the Reds any one of the three proposals "will lead to an armistice if you truly desire one." This suggestion, the Reds will wait until Oct. 8 to reply.

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, senior Red delegate, again demanded return of all captured Red Soldiers.

U.N. PROPOSALS

The three alternate proposals:

1. Prisoners would be taken to an exchange point, identified and checked against a prisoner list. Any prisoner may choose to remain with the side that captured him.

2. All prisoners desiring repatriation shall be exchanged as soon as possible after an armistice. Those objecting to repatriation would be taken to an exchange point, freed from military control, interviewed by a neutral party and permitted to return to the side of his choice.

3. All prisoners desiring repatriation would be exchanged as soon as possible after an armistice. Those objections would be taken to an exchange point and be freed to go to the side of their choice "without questioning, interview or screening."

Proposal Turned Down Allowing 2-Day Catch

HAMILTON (CP)—A proposal that non-resident fishermen be allowed to take away a two-day catch was turned down Saturday at the fifth annual convention of the Huron and Erie zone, Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters.

Wildlife officials of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests made the suggestion, but the 120 delegates, representing 10,000 members of 60 clubs, unanimously agreed to keep the limit at one day's catch.

During the two-day convention, 16 resolutions were presented and 11 were turned down. One of these was a recommendation from the Steelworkers' Sportsmen's Club that the department get 4,000 "Honorary game wardens" to help enforce game laws in province. Delegates also defeated a Bruce county proposal that the department issue an Ontario angler's licence for $1 to anyone over 16 years of age.

Officers elected were: Zone President John Allen, Owen Sound, succeeding Harold Franklin, Dundas; Vice-Chairman, Walter F. Wilson, Kitchener, Bryce McDonald, Windsor; Secretary-Treasurer, J.J. Girling, Hamilton.

Hammerstein II Turns Actor For Second Time

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (CP)—For the second time in his notable career, Oscar Hammerstein II is turning actor. But it's merely to further his lengthy romance with the theatre.

The United States' most successful writer of lyrics and musical plays will portray himself in a film called "Main Street to Broadway." It will be a co-operative affair featuring most of the Broadway stars and benefitting the council for the living theatre. The latter is aimed at pumping life back into the legit theatre.

Hammerstein was here to visit his grandchildren and the touring company of "South Pacific." I asked him about his two widely-separated acting chores.

AS YOUNG MAN

"The first was when I was a young man," he said. "I was stage manager for one of my uncle's plays, and the script called for the stage manager to come onstage and say a few lines. So I played myself. But the play only lasted three weeks. I don't know if my performance had anything to do with that, but it certainly didn't help."

The man who wrote the words for such shows as "Show Boat" and "Oklahoma!" will again be playing himself in "Main Street to Broadway." He will do a theatre-lobby scene with his partner, Richard Rodgers, and their wives.

Speaking about his favorite topic, the theatre, Hammerstein admitted that the last season on Broadway was a bad one. "But I suspect there have been worse ones," he said. "Back in the '20s, there were some good plays. But there were lots of others running that were pretty bad.

NO MARGIN

"That's the trouble with the stage today; there is no margin for error. A show has to be a tremendous hit or it can't last. You used to be able to salvage some money out of a show that wasn't a smash. But now a show that isn't acclaimed can close in three nights.

"Rising costs are another great problem. My uncle used to put on plays for $7,000. Nowadays the minimum for a straight play is around $70,000.

But he has no doubt that the theatre will survive, as it always has. "Since the beginning of time," he observed, "there have always been people who wanted to show off, and there have always been people who wanted to listen and watch."

DEADLY "LOUDSPEAKERS"—Latest thing in "secret" weapons in Korea is this quadruple rocket-launcher, devised by Capt. Albert J. Barron, shown standing beside it. The highly mobile weapon gives an added punch to his Army unit.

Expect Indo-China War Full-Scale In October

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—The war in Indo-China is expected to explode into full-scale battle again by mid-October.

There's no doubt that both the French union forces and the Communist-led Vietminh are getting ready for major action.

Outside the rim of the main French defence bulwark—the Red River Delta in northern Indo-China—the troops of Ho Chi Minh have been regrouping and storing up war equipment and supplies, much of it received from Communist China.

In the delta, French striking power is steadily being boosted by vast quantities of war aid from the United States.

The heavy tropical rains that have lashed all of northern Indo-China since the end of June are expected to end in early October. That means the weather once again will be favorable for big-scale fighting.

WELCOME ATTACK

Meanwhile the Vietminh seem to be laying the groundwork for an assault upon French positions. They've blowing up or damaging bridges on key hig. way routes used by the French forces. They've planted scores and scores of mines along vital lines of French communications.

During the heavy rains, the Vietminh have been specializing in attacking isolated French fortified posts and ambushing French union troops. They put on a big attack along the coast in central Vietnam that required considerable French power to repulse.

FRENCH NOT WORRIED

On the French side, no one appears to be worried about a big Vietminh offensive. The French would welcome it if Ho Chi Minh should decide to throw the bulk of his five or six divisions outside the Delta into one big push.

With their superior armaments, the French might then deliver a decisive blow, something they have been unable to do thus far in this six-year-long conflict. The Vietminh units usually retreat into the mountains and hills rather than slug it out with the French.

Build 'Little Abadan' At Aden

ADEN (Reuters)—The face of this steamy, sun-baked port on the southern edge of the Arab world is about to be transformed by a decision to build a "little Abadan" here.

A new oil refinery, estimated to cost about $150,000,000, is expected to boost Britain's strategic oil reserves by tens of thousands of tons a year.

Forced to leave the world's largest oil refinery at Abadan last year by nationalization of Iran's oil industry, the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company has chosen this Red Sea port for the establishment of the world's newest and most up-to-date refinery.

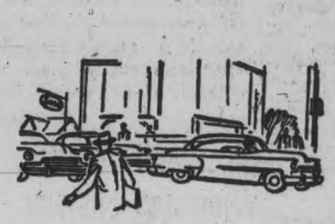
The new refinery will be built on what is now a deserted, waterless waste known as Little Aden, a few miles west of the main port. It will take about three years to build. Work is to begin in a few months' time and a British and an American firm will be jointly responsible for the main construction.

For Aden, the refinery may well prove to be the biggest boost in its 115-year history under British rule—a period in which the port has grown until today it ranks among the world's top five in volume of tonnage passing through it annually.

But despite the fact that Aden last year handled 20,560,910 net tons of shipping, an average of 14 ships a day every day of the year, its wealth is only comparative and its social problems are becoming more acute with every month.

PICTURE OF SQUALOR

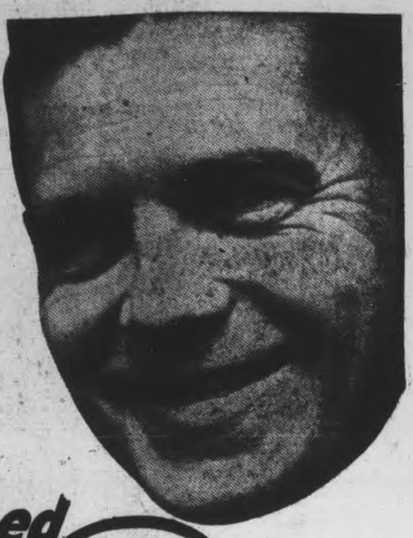
Of the great wealth which such a tonnage of shipping represents, only a comparatively small proportion finds its way into Aden, because it is principally a bunkering port. Vessels calling here are oiled and watered and on their way out again in an average time of six hours.



Behind the bustle of the dock areas Aden presents a picture of squalor and misery equal to the worst which the world has to offer.

Apart from the men and women of the R.A.F. who garrison this tiny area, there are only about 500 Europeans among the population of more than 100,000 who swarm like ants over this tip of Arabia.

The majority—Arabs, Indians and Somalis—eke out a pitiful existence which seems to be little better than that of the goats which are their main support.



There is no main water-borne drainage system in Aden. There are only two rooms in the colony which are air-conditioned. There is an acute lack of electric power, and many thousands of the local population live in filthy, rat-infested quarters or are without a proper roof over their heads.

The wealth the new refinery brings is expected to alleviate these conditions and to bring employment to the thousands of unemployed. The construction work alone will provide jobs for 3,000.

Such Getaway!

Properly Fitted Shoes Key Avoiding Painful Bunions

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

A large number of people suffer from bunions. One reader even says that she has had bunions for 30 years, which is indeed a long time to suffer from this painful foot condition.

A bunion is surely one consequence of our civilized society. Bunions are practically unknown among peoples who do not wear shoes.

Those peoples have other troubles, of course, and certainly no one would recommend going barefoot on our city streets, but at least it can be pointed out that bunions, as well as many other foot troubles, would occur less often if more people took better care of their feet, especially in the matter of shoes.

A bunion is a swelling of the lining of the joint at the base of the big toe. The skin also becomes thickened and the whole process pushes the big toe toward the others. Needless to say, the whole area becomes sensitive to pressure and the foot does not look its best.

What can be done for a bunion? A bunion which has not existed too long and which is not too bad often gets along pretty well under conservative management. This involves removing the pressure on the inflamed and thickened tissues.

The shoes must fit well, and sometimes it is even necessary to cut a hole in the shoe around the bunion so that there is no pressure on it at all. Heat may also relieve the tenderness and reduce the swelling.

If this does the job, well and good, but unfortunately some bunions are so bad that more heroic measures are necessary.

SURGERY OFTEN NEEDED

At times part of the difficulty is the accumulation of fluid which can be removed by a needle or small cut. But often an operation which involves removal of the excess tissue making up the bunion is necessary.

Just the right amount has to be taken out and then the bones of the big toe have to be placed in the proper position and held there (usually by plaster cast), until healing takes place. It is not a quick or particularly comfortable procedure.

Almost all persons who have bunions could have avoided them. The majority comes as the result of wearing improperly fitted shoes—those which are too pointed or too short. Bunions are a high price to pay for vanity in the choice of shoes.

He stressed the importance of all benevolent societies whether of a professional, cultural or charitable nature.

SEATS OF LEARNING—The shortage of classrooms in Topeka, Kans., has forced the seventh grade class of the Ayondale School to take over the school's bus. Here Mrs. Mary Pennekamp, the teacher, watches her students as one stands in the rear, reciting a lesson. The headroom is so low that pupils more than five feet tall have to recite from their seats.

Issue Warrants For Three Windsor People

DETROIT (CP)—United States government law enforcement agencies were notified yesterday of the issuance of federal bench warrants for the arrest of three residents of neighboring Windsor on charges of aiding Canadian citizens to obtain U.S. visas fraudulently.

Named in the warrants issued Friday were Roy McBride, Mrs. Marguerite Prest and Mrs. Nicholas Steigerwald.

Mrs. Steigerwald is a sister of Health Minister Martin of Canada who has been publicly critical of her activities. McBride is a former bank manager and Mrs. Prest is a public accountant.

The warrants were issued when the three failed to appear to answer the charges handed down by a Detroit grand jury. They are safe from arrest as long as they remain in Canada because the offence with which they are charged is not covered by the U.S.-Canadian extradition treaty.

Sixty-two Canadians are charged with using fraudulently-obtained visas to enter the U.S.

SUDDEN DEATH—Capt. W. G. McElrea was somewhere high above the wilds of northern Quebec Friday playing nursemaid to three tons of temperamental dynamite. The blonde, stocky airman picked up his unusual load at Montreal Airport in his big, Curtis Commando freight plane, operated by Dorval Air Transport Ltd., loaded the dynamite and headed for an aerial junket which calls for 48 hours of straight flying time. Captain McElrea will go first to Seven Islands, then far north to Fort Chimo, cut across open water to Tor Bay, Nfld., call in Gander to pick up two helicopters and finally touch down at Ottawa. This lengthy service is a regular feature of life in Quebec's developing north country. When a plane is carrying cargo of sudden death such as this, special precautions are taken. When the dynamite is loaded, the aircraft is far away from other planes and airport buildings. A fire truck stands nearby, "just in case," and all workers not directly engaged in loading operations are warned away from the area. Take-off and landings, so far as a dynamite-loaded aircraft is concerned, are touchy matters.

Knickers Make Headlines

LONDON (Reuters) — Knickerbockers became page-one news in Britain today—because Prince Philip was seen in them.

Newspapers splashed pictures of the family walking in the grounds of Balmoral, the royal Scottish home.

And there was the Duke, baggy tweed knickers tucked neatly into his socks just below the knee.

Though knickers are customary garb for many a country squire in Britain, newspapers calculated the pictures would bring a boom.

With his knickers, the Duke wore a modified version of the traditional high-buttoned and belted Norfolk jacket. Clothing experts pointed out the cuffs fitted more tightly over the wrists and there were no pleats down front and back as customary.

Mothers were more interested in the dress of the two royal children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne. They wore floppy corduroy trousers, double-breasted short tunics, and striped T-shirts—looking almost American by English standards.

American Protestants Have New Bible

By GEORGE COGNELL

NEW YORK (AP)—American Protestants have a new Bible.

It's completion climaxes a 15-year project, backed by 40 denominations.

A total of 1,000,000 copies—described as the biggest first edition in book-publishing history—will be issued next Tuesday.

"This will be one of the most important religious events of the century," said Dr. Philip C. Sanders, administrative secretary of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A.

Advance copies were released Saturday.

The Council is sponsoring publication of the new Bible, called the "revised standard version"—the first revision in 51 years.

Thirty-two Biblical scholars have been at work on it since 1937 under supervision of Dr. Luther A. Weigle, dean emeritus of Yale University Divinity School.

Roman Catholic scholars still are at work on a new Bible translation—the first eight books of which will be published Monday in a special volume. It is the first translation undertaken by the American Catholic clergy.

INTO USE SOON

Hundreds of Protestant churches will begin using their completed, revised Bible in services and Sunday schools within a few weeks.

It aims to correct old errors and clarify obscure usages, without losing the dignity of the King James language. It contains numerous general changes.

The "est" and "eth" suffixes on verbs have been eliminated. Obsolete pronunciations such as "thee" and "thou" have been converted to "you," except in prayers addressed to God.

Modern substitutes have replaced archaic usages such as "would fain" and "aforetime" and "unto." In Genesis, all those "begat" phrases have been changed to "became the father of" phrases.

The creation story speaks of "the great sea monsters" that were put in the ancient seas instead of "the great whales."

In Psalms 8, the famous verse 5, as revised, reads that man was made a "little less than God," instead of the old way, "a little lower than the angels."

CHANGES WORDAGE

About the only change in the 23rd Psalm is the use of "my cup overflows" for "my cup runneth over" and the starting of the phrase "yea, though i walk. . ." with "even though i walk. . ."

The widely quoted Ecclesiastes 1:9, which in the old form reads, "there is no new thing under the sun," is converted to the popular expression, "there is nothing new under the sun."

In Micah, 6:8, the word "kindness" is substituted for "mercy" in the classic admonition "to do justly, and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God."

In the new book, John, 14:2, says, "in my Father's house are many rooms," instead of "many mansions." Much of the lofty old language is reduced to schoolboy simplicity, as in 2nd Timothy, 2:5, which is changed from this:

"And if a man also strive for masteries, yet is he not crowned, except he strive lawfully."

To this: "an athlete is not crowned unless he competes according to the rules."

Rideau Canal Value Turned From Defence To Control

OTTAWA (CP)—More than 120 years ago Royal Engineers built a 131-mile-long waterway from the Ottawa River to Lake Ontario. It provided a line of communication between Montreal and Toronto safe from raids from the United States.

Today, the Rideau Canal as a defence work rates zero. Rail and air communications have robbed it of its significance and provided better commercial transport. Furthermore, the canal is expensive to keep up. It lost $394,000 in the 1951-52 fiscal year alone.

Despite the heavy annual loss, the government maintains that the canal still serves a useful purpose never foreseen by its builders.

It is the key to control of the watersheds of the Rideau and Cataraqui River basins. Government experts say that without this control spring run-off waters would wreak havoc in eastern Ontario towns and farmlands.

BIG STORAGE BASIN

The canal impounds 255,000 acre-feet of water from the Rideau watershed, one of the main drainage areas of eastern Ontario. This compares with the storage basin of 46,000 acre-feet at the head waters of the Grand River which flows through the Paris-Brantford area of southwestern Ontario.

Aside from its flood-control job, the Rideau Canal provides one of Ottawa's most beautiful scenic features. It wanders through the city, flanked on each side by spacious lawns, parks and residences.

Cargo vessels have disappeared but pleasure craft are on the increase. Last year 19,716 small pleasure boats and 1,838 craft more than 40 feet in length passed through the 47 locks between Ottawa and Kingston. Revenue declined from $19,716 in 1950 to $17,464 last year.

The canal is ideal for a summer trip. Hotels, tourist cabins and camping grounds are scattered along its banks.

RE-ELECTED—R. Mosher has been re-elected for his 13th term as president of the Canadian Congress of Labor. The 71-year-old veteran labor leader met only left-wing opposition. William L. White of the Vancouver Marine Workers, nominated by the left-wingers, met a crushing defeat. The vote was 737 to 85 in favor of Mosher, C.C.L. founding president.

Two African Chieftains Slain By Mau Mau

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—Police announced yesterday the murderous native Mau Mau society has struck again, killing two African chieftains and slaughtering 350 cattle and sheep owned by white settlers in the foothills of Mount Kenya.

The latest blow of the anti-white society, sworn to drive Britons out of Africa, occurred while the colonial Legislature was considering emergency laws to crack down on the dread secret society.

The raided district is about 100 miles from Nairobi. The Mau Mau struck after a night meeting, slaughtering the livestock with spears, swords and knives. They cut telegraph lines to hamper police action.

Yugoslavia Prepared To Back Up Turkey

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—Yugoslavia will stand side by side with Turkey "in the event of an attack," a top Yugoslav military leader said Saturday.

Yugoslav General Pavle Yaktchitch, head of a military mission to Turkey and Greece, made the statement to Turkish reporters at Ankara airfield just before coming to Istanbul.

The Yugoslav group came here from Athens, where it had similar talks of co-operation in the defence of this area. Western diplomats have long been hopeful that Premier Tito would agree to participate in an informal Balkan alliance.

"THE BEST, EVER," was the general opinion of officials who staged Junior Farmers' Achievement Day on Saturday at Morrow Park. There were more exhibits than ever and judging was keener and more proficient. In top photo, Robert Maloney, of Ennismore, attracts much attention with a beef class Shorthorn steer that he may enter in the Queen's Guineas competition at the Royal Winter Fair. Girls' gardening groups had many fine displays. Shown with one of the winning arrangements are, left to right, Catherine Waterman, of Fraserville, Marlene Stewart, of Keene, and Noreen Corkery, of Lakefield.—(Examiner Staff Photos).

Young Farm People Show Successes

was accompanied for this occasion by Mrs. Bell, and had the satisfaction of meeting most of the boys and girls whom he had encouraged in 4-H Club work.

Judging of the calves was a comparatively heavy assignment for Harold Snyder, Toronto, of the production service of the federal Department of Agriculture.

The biggest class was the East Peterborough Dairy Calf Club. Its boys and girls paraded 32 junior calves, all Holsteins excepting one Ayrshire, presenting Mr. Snyder with a difficult problem of placing.

"It is the strongest dairy calf club that I have seen in Ontario this year," he commented. "The club members brought them out in good condition, and I offer my compliments to all of them. They had a lot of good strong calves. The one I placed second had a better top. It wasn't easy to separate those first two (Archie Davidson and Jim Doris).

The other dairy calf club showed up well, too, and the beef heifers were generally deep young animals of good lines."

BEST IN TEN YEARS

James R. Turnbull, government grader at C.P.C., judged the swine club exhibits. "This has been by far the best club in the ten years I've been here," he said, "and I heartily compliment the boys on the fine bunch of pigs they have developed. I am also glad that they came out for Achievement Day. There has been a big improvement in all respects over last year."

Mr. Turnbull said the top pair, shown by Don Reddon, had been brought along evenly, and earned first placing by their uniformity, and good Yorkshire type. The second pen, shown by Albert Walsh, had one outstanding gilt, but the two were not so uniform as the first pen.

"You boys must have given your club leader, George Shoniker, a lot of encouragement by the way you fulfilled the club requirements," Mr. Turnbull said.

"I want to thank Mr. Turnbull for his interest, and the boys for the enthusiasm they showed," said Mr. Shoniker, "and also the parents for their co-operation and for their presence here today. I hope we'll have a bigger class next year."

Jim Goldie, of Canada Packers, was present for the final event of the club year.

Ralph Gregg, Lindsay, district machinery supervisor, and Irvine McIntosh, tractor club leader, were busy morning and afternoon on their program. John Bell, of Lakefield, in charge of the forestry club, reported attendance of half its members. He remarked that perhaps the club should have its own day at Lakehurst, as it is centred in Harvey township.

HIGHEST SCORE

Archie Davidson, of Otonabee, was presented by Mr. Paterson with the C.N.E. shield for the highest score in the combined judging competition. He was also first with top scores in the east dairy calf club and the grain club.

This contest was a composite of judging beef and dairy calves, grain, swine, also forestry indentification and the test for tractor defects.

Results were:

Senior judging: 1 Archie Davidson, Otonabee; 2 John Waterman, North Monaghan; 3 Dorothy Chambers, Otonabee; 4 Gaye Hancock, Smith; 5 Gary Stewart, Otonabee; and Walter Clark, Asphodel, tied; 7 Donald Irwin, Smith; 8, Murray Pimmett, Indian iver, and Neil Whitfield, Fraserville, tied; 10 Gerald Hancock, Smith, and John Allen, Douro, tied.

Junior judging: 1 Herb Sullivan, Otonabee; 2 Ray Allen, Douro; 3 Eddie Heffernan, Asphodel; 4 Bruce Hill, Otonabee; and Donald Jackson, Harvey, tied; 6 Allan Storey, Emily; 7 Mac Danford, Warsaw; 8 John Weiss, Harvey; 9 Grant Elmhirst, Indian River; 10 Ruth Bolton, Douro.

Standing of the members of the calf clubs was determined by the points allowed for attendance at meetings, care and feeding, management reports, showmanship, examinations, judging competition, 100 points each, and 400 points for the calves.

A boy or girl might place first in the judging of calves, but lose marks on the season's schedule of club activities. This also applied to the swine club.

These results were: Beef Calf Club: 1 Murray Pimmett, Otonabee; 2 Gaye Hancock, Smith; 3 Neil Whitfield, Fraserville; 4 Robert Maloney, Ennismore; 5 Doug McIlmoyle of Harvey and Gary Stewart, Otonabee, tied; 7 Grant Elmhirst, Otonabee; 8 Doug Hubble, Otonabee; 9 Joan Driscoll, Otonabee; 10 Gerald Hancock, Smith. (The first 10.)

East Dairy Calf Club (first eight): 1 Archie Davidson, Otonabee; 2 James Doris, Otonabee; 3 Walter Clark, Asphodel; 4 Ruth Bolton, Douro; 5 Mary Wood, Douro; 6 Margaret Clark, Asphodel; 7 Gerald Wood, Douro; 8 Colleen English, Asphodel.

West Dairy Calf Club: 1, Barbara Mann, Smith; 2 Douglas Clark, Smith; 3 James Seymour, Cavan; 4 Dorothy Jackson, Emily, and Jim McMullen, Smith, tied; 6 Barbara Bulmer, Smith; 7 Nancy Hancock, Smith; 8 Bob Boyce, Smith, and Lila Seymour, Cavan, tied.

SWINE CLUB

Swine Club: 1 Eddie Heffernan, Norwood; 2 Mac Danford, Warsaw; 3 Alan Storey, Emily township; 4 Don Raddon, Smith; 5 Gerald Milburn, Smith; 6 Albert Walsh, Asphodel; 7 Neil Jewell, Smith; 8 Joseph Milburn, Smith, and Robert Clark Smith.

Grain Club: 1 Archie Davidson, Otonabee; 2 Neil Whitfield, Fraserville; 3 Howard Johnston, North Monaghan; 4 John Waterman, North Monaghan; 5 Eldon Van Volkenburg, Asphodel; 6 Gerald Bolton, Douro; 7 Robert Hutchison, Otonabee.

Forestry Club of Lakehurst, Harvey township: 1 Don Jackson; 2 Arnold Jackson; 3 John Weiss; 4 Burritt Irwin; 5 Doug and Archie McIlmoyle, tied.

Beef club members who showed Shorthorns each received a two dollar bill from the Peterborough Shorthorn Breeders' Association. Distribution was made by Lou Shaw.

GARDEN CLUBS

The girls' garden clubs, supervised by Miss Noble, were: Bailieboro, Keene, Lakefield, South Smith and Fraserville. Total membership was 30. The girls presented attractively arranged displays of flowers and garden products. County honors went to Catherine Waterman, Mary Lou Waterman and Elva Atchison, of Fraserville club, for completing six projects. Club leaders were: Fraserville, Miss C. Waterman; South Smith, Mrs. A. C. Mann and Mrs. G. Harrison; Lakefield, Mrs. M. Payton and Mrs. D. Farrow; Keene, Mrs. E. Anderson and Mrs. A. Carpenter; Bailieboro, Mrs. L. Hazelden.

Liberals Hold Policy Parley

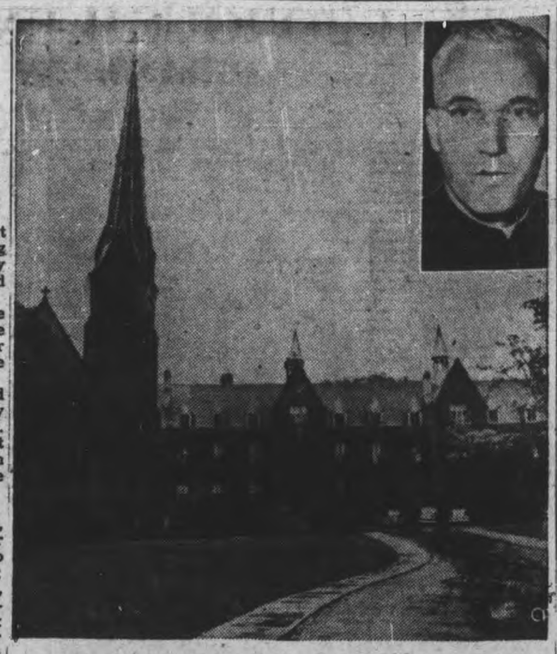
TORONTO (CP)—A convention on party policy will be held by the Ontario Liberal Association before the next session of the Legislature, the management committee of the association decided Saturday.

A report by Wilfred Gregory of Stratford recommended an increase in the number of Liberal districts in the province to eight by the division of 25 southwestern Ontario ridings into two districts, and the present northern Ontario district into northern and northwestern districts. The report was approved in principle and a detailed plan will be submitted to all ridings for endorsation.

Northern Artists

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)—Several tons of Eskimo carvings have been sent from Ungava Bay to the Canadian Handicraft Guild at Montreal. Most of the work was done in soft stone since ivory is scarce, partly due to the fact there has been no organized walrus hunt by Ungava Eskimos in recent years.

Hunger Displays Alarm Czech Heads



VIENNA (AP)—Czechoslovakia's Communist government, concerned over hunger demonstrations in Czech cities, appealed to farmers Sunday to stop destroying their crops deliberately.

Top party officials also asked independent farmers (kulaks) to turn over the full amount of their harvest demanded by government collectors. Prague newspapers have hinted that their refusal to co-operate has been a big factor in Czechoslovakia's critical food shortage.

U.S. Ends Snubbing Of Romanian Gov't

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States quietly ended a diplomatic snubbing of the Communist government of Romania Saturday.

President Truman named a veteran foreign service officer, Harold Shantz, 58, minister to Bucharest, a post left vacant since the reassignment of Rudolf Schoenfeld to Gatemala 18 months ago.

CENTURY OF TEACHING — St. Michael's College of Toronto celebrated its 100th birthday during the weekend with a three-day party attended by 2,000 alumni. Two cardinals, four archbishops and 14 bishops were among guests of honor. The Roman Catholic affiliate of the University of Toronto was founded by a French priest at the request of Armand Francois, Comte de Charbonnel, a French nobleman who became the second bishop of Toronto. Inset is the Rev. Lawrence K. Shook, superior.

Says Poverty Big War Threat

BUFFALO, N. Y. (CP) — Dr. Hugh L. Keenleyside, director-general of the United Nations Technical Assistance Administration, said here Saturday it is "Futile to secure world safety by military means first."

Dr. Keenleyside, former Canadian deputy minister of resources, spoke at an international luncheon sponsored by the English-Speaking Union.

He attributed the world's ills to two major problems: the east-west conflict and the rising tide of discontent sweeping under-developed areas of the world. He said the latter originated in poverty, disease, ignorance and injustice.

He urged aid to economically and socially retarded countries as a cheaper means of preventing war than by armaments.

Urges Anti-Spy Measures Tighter In Soviet

MOSCOW (AP) — A Politburo member and key speaker at next week's Communist party congress has charged Americans with blocking an armistice in Korea and has called for new eight anti-spy measures within the Soviet Union.

The remarks were made by Nikita Khruschchev, secretary of the Communist party's Central Committee, in addressing the Muscow regional party congress Wednesday and carried fully for the first time in yesterday's Pravda. Many studied Khruschchev's words carefully as a possible hint of the theme of the all-union party congress opening Oct. 5.

The Politburo member said Americans are preparing a new war and are allotting an important role in their plans to "Gang murderers and spies which betrayed Yugoslavia and transformed that nation into a weapon for the realization of American plans—the Fascist clique of (Premier) Tito."

He called for increased vigilance against foreign espionage among party members.

Cabinet Studies New Legislation

OTTAWA (CP)—The Federal cabinet has started to study the legislation that will be presented to the seventh session of the 21st Parliament, opening Nov. 20.

At weekly meetings from now until the session starts, the cabinet is expected to devote some time to the consideration of new legislative measures.

An order went out to all departments several weeks ago to have all legislation ready at the start of the session. Ordinarily preparation of legislation is not completed until the final weeks of the session.

Condition of John E. Sullivan, former member of the city council, was reported critical at the weekend. He has been in hospital some three weeks.

BREAKS ARM

Clinton English, 20, of R.R. 2, Peterborough, suffered a broken left arm Saturday when he fell from a float in a Bobcaygeon parade, held in connection with the village's fair. One bone in the arm was broken near his wrist.

FELLING WILLOWS

The willows along the west side of Jackson Park creek are yielding to saws and axes. The east side trees were felled about a year ago. Now the other row is evidently doomed, exposing the back yards of properties north of King St.

LAKEFIELD FAIR

Two rural events this week are: Lakefield Fair, Saturday, October 4, and the county plowing match, Wednesday, October 1. The plowmen perform at the farm of Fred Campbell, north of Brealey's School in North Monaghan. It is the first turn off Sherbrooke St. beyond Greenhill.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Some members of the city council have afternoon and evening meetings listed for today. The property committee were called for 3.30 p.m. by the chairman, Ald. H. S. Longhurst, and the board of works was meeting at 7.30 for all the members with Ald. J. E. Gillespie in the chair.

Witnesses Testify They Saw Condon Strike Heffernan Twice In Hotel Fight

Preliminary Hearing Begins In Court On Manslaughter Charge
Crown Case In; Defence May Call Witnesses

Two crown witnesses testified today they saw Leonard Condon strike Michael Heffernan twice in a fight after a beer drinking session in the McGillis Hotel the night of September 1. Condon is charged with manslaughter in the death of Heffernan who died without regaining consciousness after the fight which occurred in the parking lot at the rear of the hotel. After calling seven witnesses at the preliminary hearing today, Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said he would not be calling any more crown evidence. Gordon H. T. Farquharson who is defending Condon indicated he might be calling witnesses subpoenaed by the crown but not called, and court was adjourned until 2:15 p.m.

THREE SEPARATE BLOWS

Provincial pathologist Dr. C. B. Waite who conducted a post mortem on Heffernan's body said death was caused by a haemorrhage beneath one of the membrances of the brain and numerous pin point haemorrhages throughout the brain. There were marks of three separate blows, Dr. Waite said—one on the mouth, one beneath the left eye and a bruise on the back of the head.

Dr. Waite said the blow at the back of Heffernan's head could have been from a fall. Questioned by Mr. Farquharson as to whether both the larger haemorrhages and the small pin point ones could have resulted from a fall, Dr. Waite replied, "Yes."

FOUND NO PULSE

Constable Dennis Traynor said he was informed there was a man in the back of a car parked in front of a George St. restaurant. He said he could locate no pulse in the man's wrist and drove the car to Civic Hospital.

Miss Ella Reid, night supervisor of nurses said she could find no heartbeat with a stethoscope and Dr. Hugh Johnson said Heffernan was dead when he examined him a few minutes later.

Frank Moher, R.R. 4 Lakefield, said he saw Condon strike a blow at Heffernan and saw Heffernan fall to the ground. Moher said he saw Condon lean over Heffernan and strike him again. He said Heffernan did not get up and that he was placed in his car.

Moher said he drove the car first to Heffernan's home on Stewart St. "Why didn't you take him in?" asked Mr. Bradshaw. "We were too scared," Moher replied. He said that he drove the car, with Heffernan's body in the back, and the others who were with him tried to rouse three doctors but did not succeed.

PHONED POLICE

He said Charles Condon phoned the police from a George St. restaurant. Moher admitted drinking a total of 17 draughts and three or four bottles of beer during the afternoon and evening and said he picked up Condon at a social in Douro the night of the fatal brawl.

Billy Moher and Leonard Condon accompanied them into Peterborough, he said, and they met Heffernan at the McGillis Hotel where they all began drinking beer.

Frank Leahy testified he arrived at the hotel after the others and had joined them at their table for a time. He said he had had two pints of beer when he left the hotel. Leahy said he was walking through the parking lot when he saw two men ahead of him arguing. They were Heffernan and Leonard Condon he said.

In the hotel, Leahy said he had heard Condon and Heffernan arguing but that it did not appear to be serious.

SQUARED OFF

He said "they squared off, clinched and went down with Condon on top." On the ground, Leahy said Condon started swinging and one blow landed. He said he pulled Condon off, and Carl Maloney helped Heffernan to his feet. He said he saw Condon strike one blow while Heffernan was on the ground. After telling the pair to stop fighting, Leahy said he began walking away. About three or four steps from them he said he looked around "and they were at it again."

This time, he said, Condon hit Heffernan again. Heffernan fell to the ground and did not get up, Leahy continued. He said he pushed Condon back, told him that was enough and advised him, "You might have hurt that fellow and you had better look after him." He said Condon agreed to take care of Heffernan and he saw Heffernan carried to the rear seat of a car.

Shouts Not Heard Train, Car Collide

Shouts of train fireman Bernard Harvey, 195 Rutherford Ave., were apparently not heard by the driver of a car which was struck by a slow moving freight at the Perry St., C.N.R. crossing Saturday morning.

Harvey told police he was standing on top of a box car approaching the crossing, when he saw a car coming east on Perry St., and shouted at the driver to stop.

The car, driven by Miss Edythe Mattucci, 530 Chamberlain St., was carried for 25 feet along the track.

Extensive damage resulted to the front end of the car, estimated at about $500 but neither Miss Mattucci, nor Mrs. C. Mattucci who was with her at the time were injured.

The train was going about five miles an hour at the time, according to the information given city police.

Constables Jack Wilson and Dennis Smith investigated.

John Whittaker Leaves For Pakistan

John D. Whittaker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Whittaker, 9 Cricket Place, left with his wife today for Pakistan where he will take part in an aerial survey and mapping operation.

A camera operator, Whittaker is among a group of 25 Canadian flying and photographic personnel who will begin the four-year operation. It is being done by the Photographic Survey Corp. Ltd. of Toronto.

The $2,000,000 project is to provide Pakistan with knowledge about its natural resources as a basis for economic expansion. It will be paid for by Canada as part of its contribution to the Colombo plan for aid to southeast Asia.

After flying to England, the group will spend about a week in England, leaving then for Pakistan.

Fishing Washed Out

A keen angler anxious to land at least one more "big one" before the season closes had bad luck all round Sunday. After a fruitless day of fishing at Burleigh Falls, he returned home and put his minnow bucket into the sink, intending to give it another try at midnight near Nassau. A few minutes later, he took a look to see how the minnows were doing. His three-year-old son had thrown a quantity of soap flakes into the minnow bucket, killing his bait. "No fish, no minnows," he lamented but added that he curbed his desire to give the youngster a shellacking.

Millbrook Man To Take R.A.F. Course In U.K.

Flying Officer R. R. Lunn, of Millbrook, is one of a group of 12 Royal Canadian Air Force officers who have arrived in England for a three-month course with the Royal Air Force in weapon training and tactics, Air Force headquarters announced today.

They will be trained at the R.A.F. Regiment depot, Catterick, Yorkshire. On their return to Canada, they will take up posts as defence officers at stations in Canada and the United Kingdom.

Corner Crash Injures Driver

Frederick Pavy, 42, 217½ Charlotte St., was injured Saturday night in a two-car collision at Park and Charlotte Streets.

He is recovering in Civic Hospital from lacerations to his head anl left ear. His condition is described as good today. Pavy was found lying in a pool of blood, six feet in front of his car, with his left ear almost severed.

An estimated $200 damage resulted to the left rear of Pavy's car which was travelling south on Park Street.

The other car, driven by Gilma Westman, R.R. 3, Peterborough, was going west on Charlotte St., when the two cars collided at the intersection.

Neither Westman, nor his wife who was a passenger was injured in the accident. Approximately $250 damage resulted to the front end of Westman's car.

Constables Arthur Beardsmore and Harold Andrew investigated.

Third Instalment Of Tax Bill Due Soon

Third and final instalment of the city's 1952 taxes is due Thursday, Oct. 2, for the property owners in the south and centre wards.

Reminder to the taxpayers was published in advertisement Friday. Residents of west and north wards have until Oct. 9 for their visit to the city hall, if they haven't already settled with the municipal treasury.

East and Claraday ward taxpayers have two weeks grace until Oct. 16 when the receiving staff will be waiting them with their accounts plus cash or cheques. That winds up the tax obligation until June of 1953 when the schedule of payments again becomes effective.

Two Hunters Find Body Of Man In Norland Bush

FENELON FALLS.—The badly decomposed body of a man identified from papers in his pocket as Ralph Morgan Day, 107 Hatherley Rd., Toronto, was found in a bush near Norland north of Lindsay on Saturday by a couple on a hunting trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Blanchard of Willowdale, a Toronto suburb, went into the area on a partridge hunting trip. They walked across a field beside Highway 35 then entered a bush where they saw the body.

They called Provincial Constable F. Williams of Fenelon Falls who with Coroner W. D. Thomas of Bobcaygeon made a tentative identification from papers found on the body.

A check with relatives of Mr. Day, police said, revealed he had been missing since last February. His family had not been worried, police said, since he had been in the habit of going away for long periods.

The body was badly decomposed, but there was no indication of foul play.

Two Injured Near Bancroft

BANCROFT (ENS).—Two Peterborough people were injured Sunday afternoon when their car collided head-on with another auto 11 miles west of Bancroft on the road to Haliburton.

Injured are: Mrs. Mabel Meagher, 68, 463 Gilmour St., Peterborough, undetermined chest and head injuries; Lawrence Meagher, 57, 523 Elm St., Peterborough, chest injuries. Both are in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough.

Mr. Meagher was driving. Driver of the other car was Clarence Thompson of Port Hope. He and his wife were shaken up and his mother, Mrs. Charlotte Thompson, received a bad gash over her left eye.

The two cars met head-on at the crest of a hill on a narrow section of the road. Both were heavily damaged.

Nobody was injured and damage to two cars totalled $135 Saturday night in a collision on the Clear Lake road, a mile and a half west of McCracken's Landing.

Edgar Stubbs, 39, of Langton Ave., Toronto, was driving east and met an oncoming car, driven by R. Neil Wasson, 22, of Lakefield, on the crest of a hill Wasson saw Stubbs approaching and pulled onto the shoulder of the 12-foot road but the rear end of his car swung round and struck the left rear door of Stubb's car.

Damage to the Subbs' vehicle was estimated at $120; to the Wasson vehicle, $15.

Carl Wilson, of Victoria Motor Sales, in Lindsay, reported Sunday morning to police that a 1941 Pontiac sedan had been taken from the lot during the night.

A search was made of the town and area by Lindsay police, and the Provincial Police have been notified. So far, no trace of the car, or the offender who stole it, has been found.

Culvert Timbers Burn In Bancroft Blaze

BANCROFT (ENS) — Fire of undetermined origin damaged a quantity of newly treated culvert timber Sunday at a highway camp by Otter Lake, several miles southwest of Bancroft on Highway 28.

The camp is owned by Malvern Construction Co., which is working on the re-routing of the highway.

Dense smoke floated over the camp while the fire was burning and hampered firefighters slightly. Both the Bancroft volunteer fire department and a Department of Lands and Forests fire truck worked to put out the blaze. In charge of the Bancroft brigade were Cecil Wiggins and M. J. McAlpine.

Identical Twins Brothers Mark 90th Birthday

CALGARY (CP)—The Graham brothers—Joe of Calgary and Ben of Vulcan, some 65 miles south—are believed the oldest identical twins in Canada.

Joe and Ben, the eighth and ninth members of a family of 11, celebrated their 90th birthday last month.

The Calgary twin was convalescing from an illness and was unable to take part in the annual can, Ben was at home to his friends as usual.

Great-nephews of Canadian exbirthday celebration. But at Vulcan, Ben was at home to his friends as usual.

Great-nephews of Canadian explorer Alexander Mackenzie, Joseph and Benjamin were born in 1862 at Sandy Hill, West Hawkesbury, Ont., the sons of John Graham and Jean Mackenzie who came to Canada in 1814.

Joe took up carpentry, which later he gave up to join Ben at lumbering in the Wisconsin woods. They returned to Canada and bought a farm in Ontario.

Joe married in 1888 and remained on the farm while Ben journeyed to Montana where he worked for four years. Then, in 1903, Ben came to Alberta and took up a homestead near Vlucan. He still lives on his original land. He married that year and had three children, all still in Alberta.

Joe went to Vulcan in 1905 but was not able to stay long enough each year to prove up a homestead because he was still keeping the Ontario farm. In 1915, he returned with his wife, four boys and three girls and bought land near Vulcan.

Joe and his wife retired and moved to Calgary in 1928 and two of their sons remained on the farm, which they still run.

Up until Joe Graham's illness at Calgary, both were in excellent health. Ben still takes an active interest in Vulcan farm activities.

Urges Armada Seek Trade

LONDON (CP) — Parliamentary support will be sought for a novel plan to send a modern armada over the seven seas in search of export markets for Britain.

The idea was suggested by Richard Levin, designer of the Festival of Britain travelling exhibition. It is reported to have the enthusiastic backing of leaders of the major political parties.

Norman Dodds, Labor member for Dartford, who will place the matter before the president of the Board of Trade when Parliament reconvenes next month, said the plan was to put a floating fair aboard a fleet of ships cruising around the world to boost British goods.

"I see it as a British armada setting out to recapture world trade and creating a new Elizabethan era of merchant adventurers," said Levin.

Counsellor's Pony Places 1st At Show

LONDON (CP) — Ankerwycke Criban Snowdon, a purebred Welsh mountain pony owned and bred by Campbell Moodie of Kelowna, B. C., counsellor at Canada House here, placed first in the leading-rein class at the National Pony Society's annual show in suburban Roehampton.

The pony was ridden by Moodie's five-year-old son, Dominic, who won the same event last year. Dominic has been riding leading rein for about three years.

1,000 In Plot

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A roundup of suspected supporters of last week's abortive Communist revolutionary plot has netted more than 1,000 persons, informed sources said last night. Hidden arms caches still are being found. The country has been under a state of siege, a modified form of martial law, since Friday.

Cline R. Paden of Brownfield, Tex., head of the evangelist group, announced the Italian authorities "let us understand this is a temporary concession that expired today after our services."

Will Be Hanged For Love Triangle Murder

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — A love triangle that ended in the murder of one man by another who had helped him and his family come to Canada from Germany reached its climax Saturday when George Gregor Hladiy, 33-year-old Ukrainian immigrant was sentenced to be hanged Dec. 9.

Hladiy was tried for the murder of Josef Panok, 34, another immigrant, whose body was found in the McIntyre River Aug. 8 with a rope around the neck and two railway plates weighing 20 pounds each wired to the neck and feet.

The jury was out for three hours and when it returned its verdict, Hladiy remained as calm as he had throughout the four-day trial.

Mrs. Margaret Panok, key witness for the Crown, told the court Hladiy admitted to her that he had murdered her husband and thrown his body into the river. She did not go to the police "because I was afraid."

BACK TO GERMANY

Mr. Justice D. R. J. Kelly in his summary to the jury said evidence had been produced showing that Hladiy intended going back to Germany with Mrs. Panok "before the law closed in."

Mrs. Panok had told the court of meeting Hladiy in a small German town near Hannover in 1948 when accused was in a Displaced Persons camp. When Hladiy was admitted to Canada, he promised to bring the Panoks and their five-year-old daughter, Karen, over as soon as possible. In December, 1951, he succeeded in making arrangements for their entry. The family went to Fort William where Hladiy got Panok a job on a railway gang.

Mrs. Panok testified that they all lived together, but the two men started fighting. In July, Hladiy asked her to go with him to Toronto, but she refused. A week later the two men went out one evening to gather feed grain in a deserted area between Port Arthur and Fort William.

RETURNED ALONE

About midnight, Hladiy returned alone, Mrs. Panok said, and later that night he told her he had killed her husband.

Mr. Justice Kelly pointed out that Hladiy had given police three conflicting statements.

Hugh Cunningham of Port Arthur government-appointed counsel for the defence, said provocation led to the crime and could account for the actions of the accused.

Crown Attorney R. V. Ibbetson said Hladiy, if attacked, did not "act reasonably. . .in trussing up Panok and throwing his weighted body into the river."

Billion-Bushel Grain Crop Problem To West's Farmers

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A warm autumn sun baking a field of stubble is symbolic of the prosperity and optimism evident these days across 1,000 miles of Western Canada wheatlands

From Winnipeg to the foothills of the Rockies, farmers are garnering the greatest grain crop Canada has ever seen—1,310,468,000 bushels.

The mammoth yield is choking elevators, taxing shipping facilities and in many cases grain is being dumped on the ground.

MAY BE BEST EVER

In a region of which it is often said, "four good years and you're a millionaire" and where a dungaree-clad farmer driving a Cadillac is a not uncommon sight, this year may rank as the best ever.

The bare statistics are a story in themselves. Wheat production, the staple grain in the west, is expected to reach 654,000,000 bushels, 109,000,000 more than the previous record in 1928. The yield an acre is estimated at 25.9 bushels, equal to the all-time high of 1915. For all grains combined, this year figures should exceed the previous record set in 1942 by more than 3,000,000 bushels.

The western economy revolves almost entirely around the fortunes of its farmers. Even city-dwellers in the west's principal centres maintain a keen interest in the crop's progress. The bountiful harvest indicates there will be plenty for all in the months ahead.

For the country as a whole, the crop is just as important, in an indirect way, as it is to westerners. A failure of the crop or a big drop in market price would be felt everywhere.

MANY DIFFICULTIES

The gigantic crop seems to have come up in spite of itself. Frequent hail storms in Alberta damaged many fields.

A new, virulent type of stem rust appeared in Saskatchewan, but luckily little damage was done. Excessive moisture in many areas reduced the protein content of the wheat.

This last is important in the export trade. High-protein wheat is sought because it is used to mix with and strengthen foreign wheats and build up their baking strength.

Added to this is the worst grain storage problem the country has ever experienced. It was aggravated by a slowdown in lake shipping at the Lakehead when a strike at the elevators threatened in mid-September. Wrecking of part of a huge elevator at Port Arthur by an explosion Sept. 24, also complicated the situation.

Twenty-five years ago, the farmer seldom faced the problem of finding a place for his grain. Then harvesting was slow, back-breaking work. Elevators and railways were always able to handle the grain as fast as it came in.

TAXES SHIPPING POINTS

Today, with the big threshing gangs and teams of horses replaced by efficient combines and trucks capable of handling huge loads, the grain arrives at shipping points all at once.

Emergency storage of all kinds is being hastily thrown up on farms. In many cases grain is being dumped on the ground. Some farmers are covering the wheat with bales of hay to protect it.

Indicative of the size of this harvest is the fact that for the first time in many years combines from the United States are travelling north to help. Previously, Canadian combines went south. The demand for harvest labor this year was well above normal.

Teeth Worth $32,000 Should Care For Them

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—You do your chewing on $32,000 worth of teeth.

Each tooth is worth $1,000, dental experts estimate, and nature gives you 32. Courts have settled cases on this basis.

But loss of one tooth can cost you more than $1,000. If it's not replaced, one missing tooth can lead to loss of still other teeth. Lose several on one side, and you start chewing on the other side. Result, over-development on that side and a lop-sided face.

Dentists now can promise you life without a toothache, or perhaps even without the loss of a single tooth.

What it takes is stress on prevention, in three ways: prevention of tooth decay, or gum diseases, and of trouble coming from a faulty meshing of the teeth.

The best time to start is childhood. But it's never too late to get some benefits.

SOUND TIPS

The possibilities for happy tooth life are made clear in reports to and tips from the American Dental Association.

1. Decay: Early, frequent check-ups can spot decay early, and fix cavities while they're still small.

Careful brushing helps keep teeth clean, and aids gum health. After meals is the best time. Tooth decay seems to start within five minutes after you eat.

Soldium fluroride, in drinking water or direct application to children's teeth, definitely cuts down decay.

2. Gum diseases: Decay is the main threat to teeth up to the age of 30. After that, gum diseases cause more loss of teeth. The gum ailments can be caught early and controlled by periodic treatments.

3. Faults in bite: Each time you bite, you hit each tooth with pressures ranging up to 350 pounds.

If teeth or jaws are out of balance, even slightly, the pressures are uneven. Unbalanced teeth rock and jar each other, loosen rather than exercise each other. Gums and jawbone also are affected.

Faulty meshing of teeth, or malocclusion, is common. One survey found that nearly 80 per cent of high school youngsters had some degree of malocclussion or crooked teeth. Most can be corrected by simple measures. If one jaw is slightly out of position, muscle training sometimes can make them meet evenly.

Loss of one tooth, from neglect or accident, can throw the bite out of kilter. Teeth on either side of the missing one tend to move together to close the gap. The opposing tooth tends to move out of the jaw toward the missing tooth. Teeth get out of alignment and are exposed to decay or shock.

Children who lose baby teeth prematurely often need space-maintainers, temporary devices to keep the space open for permanent teeth to come into proper position. For adults, dental plates or bridges are the only remedy for lost teeth.

There's one last tip: the faulty closing of jaws or teeth sometimes is the cause of other troubles—neck pains, headaches, clicking in the temple joint and ringing in the ears.

Portugal's Six-Year Plan To Industrialize Country

By LUIS LUPI

LISBON (AP)—The Portuguese government is setting its sights on a $472,000,000 six-year plan that aims to change this predominantly agricultural land into a modern industrial country.

Brand new industries will be created under the proposed six-year program. Agricultural output will be boosted, and mining and mineralogical research intensified. To help finance this grandiose project, the government hopes to entice Portugal's immense idle wealth out of hiding.

The plan, which aims at exploiting every possible source of national supply and wealth in order to support the every-growing population, applies not only to Portugal herself but to her large overseas empire.

Among the new industries to be created are the iron and steel industries, hitherto non-existent, the production of newsprint for home consumption and export—an industry already in its initial stages which should be in production by the end of the year—and the manufacture of tin plate, a vital necessity for the canning industry. Portuguese canneries support some 21,000 employees plus an estimated 30,000 fishermen who depend on the industry for an outlet for their fish.

MONEY SOURCES

Money to implement the six-year plan will be found from several sources. One is the National Development Fund, which has financed several power stations and hydro-electric dams. The national syndicates are expected to contribute to the tune of $5,250,000 annually for the next six years.

Insurance companies will be asked to contribute "voluntary" investments. Marshall Plan funds will be lacking after this year. However, Premier Salazar has long had his eye on the enormous sums of gold lying unproductive in the banks. This reserve now will be called out to do its bit towards Portugal's solution of her national problems.

The six-year plan gives top billing to creation of new industries that will provide materials for home consumption and goods for export. At present, some 600,000 workers are employed in Portugal's industries, which include canning, cork, textiles and phosphates. Portugal is rich in undeveloped mineral resources.

Poodle Cut Said Out

WINNIPEG (CP)—A Hollywood hair stylist visiting here said the "poodle cut" is out, and the new look for 1935 will be the tapered neck line.

Thomas Frank helped direct the program for the Western Canada hairdressers' conference here recently.

He says the accent now is on smooth, clean lines. "The whole head needs a small effect," he said, "not bushy, frizzy or curly. We want feminine, fitted waves and close-fitted necklines."

Most women, he says, have too much hair and are afraid to cut it. The result is a top-heavy look, which does not do justice to their

Bride Returns To Scotland With Paintings

GLASGOW (CP) — War bride Mrs. Peggy Larson of Duncan, Vancouver Island, is back in her native Glasgow for the first time in six years, "wi' a wee bit o' Canada."

Instead of the usual photographs, she has a batch of lively pastel sketches done by herself. And during her few weeks' holiday before returning to her school-teacher husband in Canada, she is holding an exhibition in a Glasgow gallery.

The paintings are vivid portrayals of Indian children who live near her home, and they help span the miles between Canada's Pacific coast and the throb and bustle of this shipping metropolis.

Mrs. Larson's paintings tell more clearly than words how different it all is from Scotland. In return she may take a few sketches of Scotland back to Canada, just to show what her "hame ground looks like."

Tales of the supernatural

In a vision, the bedroom door opened, in walked his father . . . who grasped his hand — and disappeared. Later he learned his father had died 2 hours earlier, 1000 miles away, in the identical clothes the vision had worn.

Catholic Teachers Elect Officers, Hear Speakers

Bright autumn sunshine and the new St. Peter's auditorium provided a suitable setting for the opening meeting of the Catholic Teachers of Peterborough.

The president, Sister Clotilde, B.A., welcomed all new teachers to the Peterborough District Association, and spoke of the inspiration that must be within the teacher herself to train the pupils for Christian leadership. Sister Clotilde stressed particularly the part played by books in providing a constant source of new and inspiring thoughts in broadening the teacher's vision and hence raising the standard of her teaching. Such stimulation will be provided by the Catholic Book Club which has been established by the teachers of this district, she said.

An interlude of classical music followed the business section when Mr. Heribert Michel, a talented young German musician performed.

Mr. R. J. Bolton, supervising principal of Prince of Wales School, was introduced by Mr. J. C. Doyle, B.A., B.Paed. The speaker told the teachers of the system of the Primary Division as organized in his school. Mr. Bolton emphasized the fact that this method of education does not solve all the problems in the teaching of the elementary grades, but is one of the aids in doing so. The Unit System tends to avoid placing pupils in a common mold and enables the teacher to take greater interest in the individual being taught since each child progresses at his own rate of learning.

At the close of an open question period, Mr. E. J. Boland, thanked the speaker on behalf of the teachers present.

Mr. J. C. Doyle in his remarks urged the teachers to see that conservation is integrated with all subjects that the pupils may be made conscious of the wonders of their country and of the privilege and responsibilities accompanying membership in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The topic "Art at the Gang Age" was aptly dealt with by Mr. J. D. Londerville, M.A., of Peterborough Normal School. In his demonstration of a variety of techniques and media to be used, the speaker proved his point that a child writes or draws better when he has something to say rather

Attempt To Escape Nagging Girl Makes Poor Marriage

DEAR MISS DIX: All through my childhood I was lonely and unhappy. Left motherless, I was brought up by a strict grandmother who wouldn't allow me to have friends, go to parties or dances, or indulge in any other activities of my age group.

At 17, in order to escape this domination, I married the first boy I met. Needless to say, it was a sad mistake. My husband was cruel, irresponsible and wholly without principle. He never made a home for us and, after a few years, I was forced to leave him, taking my two children. Having no other place to go, I returned to my grandmother, where conditions were as before. Now, however, they are aggravated by the presence of the children. She gives all the orders. She is constantly nagging and finding fault. Her interference is causing me to lose control over the children. I want to go to work; she says I am not capable of taking care of myself. I can't continue like this, under the thumb of a dominating woman. I need help before I make any more foolish mistakes.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Up to this point, your children have never known peace at home; the sooner you can get it for them, the better. Neither you nor they should be under obligation to anyone, not even your grandmother, and the first step you should take is to become self-supporting. You make a suggestion yourself, a foster home for the youngsters, which is a very good one. It will be a temporary measure, but is sufficient assistance in getting you back to independence.

GET HELP

Seek counsel from your pastor, and from the Legal Aid Society, or Family Court, who may be able to get some support for the children from your husband. With this assistance, and what you can earn, you will soon have yourself in a position to keep the children with you, under the care of a hired baby-sitter, while you work.

There will be hardship for you for a few years, but you are young, talented and ambitious. Remaining as you are will produce nothing but a nervous breakdown on your part and a loss of security for the children. Your grandmother could not adjust herself to your care, and is obviously less equipped to handle another generation. The tension is probably hard on her, too. Try to make the break without creating hard feelings, but make it at all costs.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 40 years old, my wife is 31 and we have been married for five years. The mother and aunt of my wife have ruled my marriage from the beginning. They don't like me, and have interfered with everything I wanted to do. My wife and I finally moved from the state, hoping to get away from their influence but, lo and behold, they followed. They came for a visit, then bought a home near us. My wife visits them every day and sometimes stays for three or four days at a time. Finally, they persuaded her to get a divorce. Even her attorney says she isn't the one who wants it; the idea comes from mother and aunt. Why can't people live their own lives and let others alone? B. T.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You can probably stop the divorce action if you get to the judge who will hear the case. Men in his position are always more eager to patch up a marriage than to break it up. Explain the circumstances to him, and, since your wife's attorney agrees with you, the judge will, I am sure, exercise all his wisdom and diplomacy to affect a reconciliation.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Several years ago I came from England to marry a man here whom I met through a correspondence club. My husband promised that I could go back home to visit in two years, but he hasn't kept the promise and hasn't been very good to me. I am terribly unhappy, and want to visit my people more than anything. By hard work I have managed to save enough money for my passage home, but he wants me to give him the money instead. D. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your letter, which I had to shorten for lack of space, is so full of unhappiness, homesickness and sheer desperation that I have no hesitation in advising you to take the money and go home. Correspondence clubs make very poor media for matrimonial arrangements, and you apparently came off very poorly in your experiment. A visit home will do much to restore your morale. Your husband may be annoyed at having you use the money for your own pleasure, but he'll be very glad to take back a woman who can work as hard as you do.

WASHABLE RAYONS

If so labelled, rayons may be washed in the washing machine with the regular family wash, using hot water and all-purpose soaps. In pressing rayon, use a hot iron, almost as hot as for cottons.

SHAMPOO IT

Whether hair is gold or grey, proper shampooing, and that means frequent shampooing with plenty of soapy lather, adds highlights and makes hair much easier to handle.

CLEAN RIDERS

Soiled section of riding breeches can be spot cleaned with a soapy sponge or cloth. Lay the fabric flat on a table and rub with suds. Wipe the suds off with a clean rising cloth, shake and smooth out wrinkles, and hang the breeches upside down to dry.

TISSUE TRICKS

To preserve the lines of your suits and dresses, try tucking gently wadded tissue paper into stand-out pockets, necklines, under padded hips and "poufs". A few sheets of tissue inside your blouses will keep them fresh and wrinkle-free in bureau drawers.

THIS CANADIAN-MADE all wool dress has a skirt with unpressed pleats flowing from a midriff of inverted tucks.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Baking Cakes In Pressure Cookers

Presure cooker owners are ahead of pressure cooker manufacturers with their experiments in baking.

Remember folks, that there are plenty of cooks who have to struggle along without ovens. In the crowded housekeeping quarters many are having to live in these days.

Another angle: Even if you have an oven, a cake baked in the pressure cooker in the summer keeps down the heat in the kitchen.

A few rules that must be observed if you are going to bake in pressure cookers follow:

1—Never use the pressure indicator. You do not need pressure to bake cakes. What you do need is the tight fitting cover the pressure cooker provides.

2—Start counting baking time after steam appears in a steady stream through vent.

3—Bake time for most cakes except fruit cakes is 20 minutes. Fruit cakes require 40 minutes.

CHOCOLATE CAKE
(For Pressure Cooker)

One and one-half cups sifted pastry flour, ⅝ teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoonful salt. Sift these three ingreditnes together twice. Cream until very light 7 measuring tablespoons shortening or butter, then cream into it 1 cup white sugar, Beat in 2 very well-beaten eggs until mixture is very light. Slowly stir in 2 ounces melted unsweetened chocolate, then ⅔ cup milk mixed with ½ teaspoon vanilla. Sift the dry ingredients over, stirring in about half of them with a folding motion, then stir in other half just until blended. Butter small or medium size pressure cooker generously. Pressure cooker should be cold. Pour in butter. Adjust cover as you would for pressure cooking. Place over low heat. It takes about 20 minutes for steam to flow freely through vent. Start counting baking time from then. Bake 20 minutes. Remove cover. Let cake stand in cooker 5 minutes out of drafts. Invert cooker over wire rack to remove cake from cooker.

I gave you Feather Cake for Pressure Cooker over 2 months ago—but if readers who did not see this would like it repeated let me know.

POTATO AND CARROT PUDDING (use pressure at 15 lbs. for this)—Two tablespoons shortening, ¼ cup brown sugar 1 egg, ½ cup each grated carrots, potatoes, raisins, ¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon each salt, and nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon each cinnamon, cloves, ⅛ cup chopped nuts. Cream shortening and sugar together. Beat in egg and vegetables and raisins and nuts. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and spices and stir into the creamed mixture. Pour into buttered mold or dual pans belonging to cooker set. Sover with triple thickness of wax paper and or parchment paper and tie securely. Place on rack in cooker containing 2 quarts hot water. Steam 20 minutes with petcock open. Then close petcock and cook 50 minutes at 15 lbs. pressure.

STUFFED BEEF HEART (15 lbs. pressure). (This is delicious—the best way to cook a beef heart to insure it being moist and tender. This slices deliciously when cold—one of my friends uses it for her husband's carried-lunch sandwiches.)—One large beef heart, salt, pepper, stuffing—2 cups, 2 tablespoons fat, 1 cup boiling water for cooker. Remove the veins and tough tissues and excess fat from top of heart and wash it well. Cut bigger pocket in heart and fill with well-seasoned bread stuffing. Tie with clean string and sprinkle outside with salt and pepper. Heat cooker and add fat and sear outside of heart in it. Add the water, cover, exhaust cooker, and raise pressure to 15 lbs. Cook 50 minutes. Allow indicator to return to zero always before attempting to remove cover. Thicken gravy in cooker with flour paste, adding additional seasoning if necessary. Mashed potatoes or fluffy boiled rice are wonderful with this and it all makes an easy and economical dinner.

What's Right?

A dinner guest asks for one of your favorite recipes after complimenting you highly on the dish.

WRONG: Stall her off by saying you couldn't tell anyone else just how to make it, since you guess at the ingredients, etc.

RIGHT: Be truly hospitable by sharing the recipe with your guests.

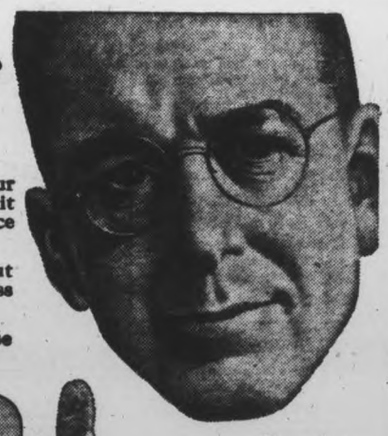
in tests by doctors!

• If you're miserable from the "hot flashes," and accompanying irritable, restless feelings of "change of life"—you may be suffering unnecessarily!



For, in tests by doctors, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought relief from such functionally-caused suffering—in case after case! Complete or striking relief.

Yes! Research has proved Lydia Pinkham's thoroughly modern in action . . . has shown you where to look for relief from those distressing, nervous, "it of sorts" feelings of mid-life "chan ". So get Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, or new, improved Tablets. Both are grand, too, for functional pains and "weak" feelings of monthly periods.

Two Crashes Damage Truck, Two Autos

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—Provincial police investigated two minor accidents near here Sunday in which nobody was injured. Two cars were damaged to the extent of $300 when they collided and an old model truck was demolished.

Gordon Dalgleish of Campbellford was driving his old truck west on the road from Campbellford to Hastings when the right wheels edged onto the shoulder, and the truck went into the ditch. It overturned and a culvert ripped the cab from it.

Shortly before noon Sunday, two cars collided on Highway 30, four miles north of here. Milton J. Blakely of Belleville was driving north and Bernard Forestell of Trenton was driving behind Blakely.

Blakely signalled a left turn, started to make the turn and saw Forestell's car behind. He swung back just as Forestell was attempting to pass on the right side. The right side of Blakely's car was damaged, as was the left front grill and fender of Forestell's.

Provincial Constable George Rose of Campbellford investigated.

Canadian Claims Mistreatment By Marines

MANILA — (AP). — Defence Secretary Ramon Magsaysay on Saturday night ordered court-martial of nine Filipino marines after an American soldier on Balabac Island and a Canadian resident there told him the marines had mistreated them.

Balabac population about 3,000, is at the southern tip of Palawan Island. It is a key checking point in the government's campaign against smuggling from Borneo, just 5 miles south of Balabac.

Pte. Jake B. Ledoux of the U.S. 28th Engineers and a member of a U.S. topographical team, told Magsaysay the marines had taken him to their Balabac headquarters and questioned him about smuggling.

Roy Watt, a Canadian living on the island, said a group of marines September 17 forced him and his family to flee to a nearby small island for safety.

Magsaysay said he had ordered the removal of the lieutenant commanding the Balabac marine detachment and had assigned a police constabulary unit to take over the duties of the marines.

Ruhr Production Sets New Record

By BRACK CURRY

DUESSELDORF, Germany (AP) —The Ruhr, densest concentration of industry in the world, is pouring out more goods than ever before in peacetime. And the production throttle hasn't been shoved up to full speed.

Bouncing back from the hammer blows of war, post-war inflation, reparations, dismantling and Allied restrictions, the Ruhr is outracing France and crowding Britain as Europe's greatest producer of steel west of the Iron Curtain.

Its coal output amounts to 25 per cent of West European production. It is the major source in Europe of many chemicals important to Western defence. Its machine tools, electrical equipment and precision instruments are helping spur rearmament of many Western countries.

The lavish outpouring of consumer goods from Ruhr factories is making the "Made In Germany" label familiar again.

WESTERN ARSENAL

Western defence planners call the Ruhr a vast, almost-untapped source of supply for the growing but still ill-equipped armies of Western Europe. It is the only highly industrialized area of Western Europe whose capacity is not being fully utilized.

The Ruhr has produced no arms since the Second World War. But it will shoulder an important share of Western rearmament once Germany starts rearming for defence.

Through the Schuman Coal-Steel Plan and the European defence community the West German Government haGs pledged the plants, skilled labor and mineral resources of the Ruhr to help give Free Europe both guns and butter as bulwarks against Communist expansion.

The recovery of the Ruhr is shown by comparative 1951 production figures for Germany, Britain and France in three of the sinews of modern power—coal, steel, electricity:

Steel—West Germany 13,506,000 metric tons, Britain 15,889,000 tons, France 9,832,000 tons.

Coal—West Germany 110,000,000 tons, Britain 219,000,000 tons, France (including the Saar) 65,000,000 tons.

Electric power—West Germany 43,000,000,000 kilowatt hours. Britain 55,000,000,000 and France 31,000,000,000.

The Ruhr produces 9 per cent of West Germany's coal and 80 per cent of its steel.

HIGHER COAL

Within five years the Germans expect to produce 20,000,000 tons of steel a year.

With known coal reserves of 55,000,000,000 metric tons, the Germans expect to produce more than 120,000,000 tons of coal this year, largely from the Ruhr, and 150,000,000 tons a year by 1956.

The recovery of the Ruhr represents a major victory for the western world in the post-war struggle with Russia.

Since 1945 the Kremlin has thrown in money and agitators in a move to grab control of the Ruhr from within.

Ruhr workers have trounced the Communists' penetration efforts. Today the Reds are an insignificant minority in the Ruhr.

The Ruhr area is a belt some 15 miles wide and 40 miles long in the valley of the meandering Ruhr River. Industrially, it covers a somewhat larger area.

12,000 Workers Get Settlement With 12 Firms

TORONTO (CP) — A settlement, affecting 12,000 workers in Ontario's newsprint and pulp mills, has been reached between 12 pulp and paper companies and nine A. F. L. unions.

Eric G. Taylor, chairman of a conciliation board, announced the agreement today. He said the settlement formula had been ratified by almost 100 union delegates who came to Toronto to hear terms of the contract which had been proposed as a result of proceedings before the conciliation board and at meetings between the companies and unions.

The new contract provides for a wage increase of four cents an hour effective May 1, 1952. Also included in the contract is increased shift-work differentials and overtime provisions for men working on non-scheduled working days. The contract runs until Arpil 30, 1953.

Norman Matthews represented the employers on the conciliation board and Senator Arthur Roebuck was the employee representative.

Companies covered by the contract are: Abitibi Power and Paper Co., Ltd.; Provincial Paper Ltd. (Port Arthur division); Beaver Wood Fibre Co. Ltd.; Great Lakes Paper Co. Ltd.; Kimberly-Clark Corp. of Canada; Spruce Falls Power and Paper Co. Ltd.; Long Lac Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd.; KVP Co. Ltd.; Ontario-Minnesota Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd.; Marathon Paper Mills of Canada Ltd.; Ontario Paper Co. Limited; St. Lawrence Corp. (Red Rover Division).

The unions affected are: International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Unions; International Brotherhood of Paper-Makers; International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; International Association of Machinists; International Union of Operating Engineers; United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America United Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters; International Longshoremen's Association and International Brotherhood of Stationery Firemen and Oilers.

Indian Says Memory Blank

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Archie Seneca, 33-year-old Muncey Indian, said Saturday that he recalled nothing from the last time he was at the home of Lyle Riley early May 11 until he woke up alone in the back seat of his car on the Clark Road.

Seneca, on trial for the murder of Mrs. Lydia Riley, was second and last witness called by his counsel, E.H. Unger.

Seneca repudiated statements obtained by police May 14 and which were admitted as evidence Friday. Seneca quoted the police as saying: " 'Sign this paper or else.'

"They had me scared. I signed it."

Bank Suggests More Selling Due With Removal Of Retail Trade

MONTREAL (CP)—The Bank of Montreal suggests in its September business review that the arts of the salesmen will likely be used more extensively in the years ahead because of the current revival of retail trade.

The bank says some pick-up in consumer demand was apparent in April, but in May, Canadians seemed to loosen their purse strings suddenly, spending $1,053,000 on consumer goods, more than in any previous month on record.

Retail trade was less spectacular in June but picked up sharply in July and first reports show sustained buying in August.

WINTER SLUMP

The bank said that from the summer of 1951 until March last, the sale of durable goods slumped, although more perishable, less expensive commodities went well. But since March, durables have led the pick-up, while sales of perishables have been "less buoyant."

It cites a number of influences which sharpened demand for durables before April 1951, and since April 152, and dulled it during the intervening period.

Demand rose with the post-Korean expectation of shortages, price and tax increases and with the actual tightening of credit controls, the boosting of excise taxes and the curbing of house-building.

PAY OFF CREDIT

Demand lessened when the fear of shortages proved groundless, the number of new houses declined, and the public decided to concentrate on paying off ts earlier heavy credit buying.

April's reduced taxes, May's suspension of credit restrictions, rising wages, salaries and farm cash income all helped to "take the lid off" the demand for durables.

The bank said the higher the standard of living, the greater are the choice of goods and the possibility of deferring less essential items, which would force the salesman to sell again to move his particular wares.

Charge CCCL Officials Have Alliance With Reds

MONTREAL (CP)—Top officials of the American Federation of Labor in Montreal last night said certain officials of the Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor have a working alliance with the Communists, a charge which was promptly denied by the C. C. C. L.

The A. F. L. statement followed hard on the heels of an announcement from Toronto that the Catholic Syndicates shipyard union and shipyard unions chartered by the Canadian Congress of Labor had decided to adopt a united front policy on wages and hours.

The A. F. L. statement, signed by Frank Hall, international vice-president of the Brotherhood of seven others, termed the C. C. L. Shipyard Workers Union "the last remaining Communist stronghold within the Canadian Congress of Labor."

Jean Marchand, syndicates secretary, replied from Quebec: "We know for a fact that none of the Canadian Congress of Labor shipyard workers unions are Communist-led."

"NO REDS HERE"

Marchand said the fact that the C. C. L. shipyard workers unions have not been expelled by the parent body for Communist activity "indicates the Communists are not running those unions."

R. J. Lamoureux, president of the Montreal Labor Council (C. C. L.-C. I. O.) also came to the defence of his own organization.

He said there have been no official charges of Communism against any of the C. C. L. shipyard workers unions as far as he knows.

He said any decisions reached in Toronto were reached by individual C.C.L. chartered unions and not by the organization's executive.

The syndicates' shipyard union has been on strike for higher wages for some weeks at Canadian Vickers, Ltd., here. The International Brotherhood of Boilermakers (T. L. C.-A. F. L.) at the plant has not taken part in the strike and some of its members have been injured in clashes while crossing picket lines.

The A. F. L. statement said an explanation is overdue from the C. C. C. L. on its position with regard to co-operation "with known Communist elements."

C. C. C. L. secretary Marchand promised a "point-by-point" answer to the A. F. L. after fully studying the charges.

70-Pound Wolf Attacks Wounds Camp Operator

MASSEY (CP)—A veteran bushman said today a 70-pound wolf attacked him and slashed a deep gash in his right leg.

Taylor Carmichael, 41-year-old bush camp operator at isolated Madawason Lake in the Algoma district, said he was in the bush about 36 miles north of here when he came upon the animal locked in a furious fight with a deer.

Carmichael, manager of the new Ontario Trappers Association, said he first saw the deer swimming from the wolf toward an island in the lake.

"I jumped in my boat, rowed to the island and dashed into the fight swinging an oar," he said.

"The deer thought I was another enemy and charged me with its needle-point antlers. I swung at it with the oar and it knocked me down in passing," he said.

"Then the wolf jumped me and I fought it off with the oar. Its teeth slashed me twice in the first lunge. it made seven or eight jumps for my throat, but I beat it back with the oar and then got in the blow that finished it."

"The wolf had a taste of blood and jumped on me when I interrupted its plans for a late breakfast," Carmichael said.

District residents maintain that Algoma wolves won't attack a man.

"Maybe this one came in from Sudbury district," Carmichael said. He claimed the $25 bounty for the six-foot pelt.

Massey is about 50 miles west of Sudbury.

Plan National Council For Shipyard Men

TORONTO (CP)—A conference of Canadian shipyard union delegates has decided to set up a national shipyard council to promote stabilized wages and working conditions in Canadian shipyards, it was announced yesterday.

The conference made plans to give financial support to striking shipyard workers in Montreal and Liverpool, N.S. The Montreal strike involves 2,500 workers and the Liverpool dispute involves 300 members of the Maritime Marine Workers Federation (C.C.L.).

G. Santayana Philosopher Dies In Rome

ROME (AP)—George Santayana, a leading philosopher and poet, died Friday night. He was 88.

The noted Spanish writer died in the solitude in which he lived during the final 25 years of his life.

His philosopher's mind stayed sharp and alert to the end. His final book and one of the most important, "Dominations and Powers," was completed and published only last year.

The famed philosopher was born in Madrid Dec. 16, 1863. Although a Spanish subject to the end, he was thought by many to be an American since he lived in the United States from the time he was nine years old until 1911. Practically his whole life was spent outside Spain.

From 1899 to 1911 he was a professor of philosophy at Harvard. He then returned to Europe to lecture at Oxford University and the Sorbonne.

Santayana was best known for his only novel, "The Last Puritan."

New Courthouse Doesn't Fit

WASHINGTON (AP)—Judge Walter M. Bastian tried on Washington's new $12,500,000 federal courthouse for size. It didn't fit.

So the six-foot-three jurist told a reporter yesterday, outlining these complaints:

1. When he sits at his desk, it clamps his knees and thighs.

2. When he hangs up his robe in the chamber closet, the robe trails on the floor.

3. When he lies on his chamber sofa, he has to take his shoes off to fit. The sofa's a 75-incher, exactly as long as he is high.

The General Services Administration said it will see what can be done.

Pete McConaghy of Kitchener suffered a broken leg. He had been sitting in the back seat of the car with Miss Pelletier.

Quarter Of Wives In Survey Don't Like Housework At All

By ADELAIDE KERR

NEW YORK (AP)—Out of 100 wives in two big New York housing developments, more thane one-fourth like nothing at all about housework; more than half hold jobs, and the husbands of 63 per cent help with the housework.

The women also disclosed in a survey that the husbands of about four-fifths do not get a regular night out; that one-half think their education failed to prepare them adequately for careers or homemaking and that, contrary to one of the most cherished male beliefs, 84 per cent do not want to be a man.

The survey was conducted by Town and Village, a weekly newspaper covering Stuyvesant Town and Peter Cooper Village, huge post-war housing developments on east side Manhattan.

HIGH INCOMES

Forty-four per cent of the women who participated are in the $5,000-$10,000 income bracket and all have incomes of $3,000 or above. The average age of the women is 34 and the average number of children in their families is .88.

Twenty-six per cent reported they only partially enjoy motherhood. Five and a half per cent said they do not enjoy it. The remainder said that they definitely do.

Of the 52 per cent who hold jobs, 29 per cent work because they like it, not because of economic necessity. The rest reported work partly because it is necessary and partly because they wanted to.

Sixty-three per cent have a regular family budget and stick to it. More than half save regularly.

SHARE INTERESTS

Of the 69 per cent who hold college degrees, 91 per cent are married to college graduates.

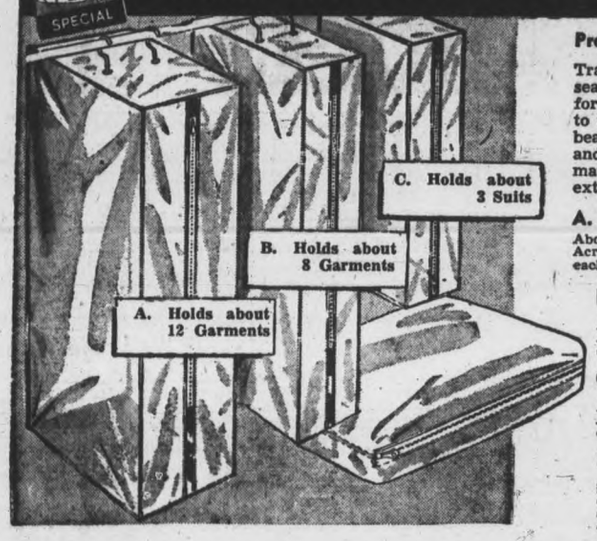
Discussing home life, 80 per cent said they shared regular interests with their husbands; 37 per cent said they had no differences with their husbands, 21 per cent differed over relatives, 17 per cent over "rebellious attitudes," 10 per cent over disciplining the children, nine per cent over sex.

Sixty-eight per cent said they took active pleasure in sex; 21 per cent reported only passive enjoyment.

Threaten Strike If No Meeting

HAMILTON (CP)—Jack Robinson, Ontario director of the United Textile Workers (A.F.L.), said last night that a meeting representing 700 workers at Hamilton Cottons and Cosmos Imperial Mills decided to "take strike action within 48 hours" unless the companies agreed to meet with the U.T.W.

Mr. Robinson also said a resolution was passed referring to the "sell-out of Canadian Cottons" and repudiating a two-year agreement for five cents made by Harold Daoust, Canadian director of the rival Textile Workers Union of America (C.I.O.)



He said the meeting unanimously rejected the five-cent recommendation of the board of conciliation established to deal with their dispute. The workers, he said, want a settlement based on the union's demands for a 20-cents-an-hour general increase.

Flee Studio Fire

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Thirty pretty Chinese girls in brief bathing suits fled into the streets Saturday when a fire broke out in a movie studio filming a beauty contest. Firemen fought the blaze for three hours, but it spread to a nearby squatters' encampment and razed about 500 huts.

Robber Kills Policeman After Holdup

Holds Two Women As Hostages Before Finally Caught

EAST PROVIDENCE, R.I.—(AP)—A squat bank robber today killed one policeman, shot two others and temporarily held two women as hostages in a commandeered home before surrendering to besieging police.

The gunman, described as not more than five feet tall, invaded the offices of the Industrial Trust Company branch bank and screamed shrilly to a woman teller to put money into a paper bag.

She thrust loose bills into the bag and the man seized it and fled, emerging to run face to face into a bank guard summoned by an alarm.

The gunman leaped into his carelessly-parked car, had difficulty getting away, and headed for nearby Pawtucket with police quickly taking up the chase.

The gunman was identified by police as Louis di Fraira, 27, of Providence.

RUNNING GUNFIGHT

He engaged in a running gunfight with the officers, sending bullets into the pursuing cars.

John Patineaud of the Pawtucket police force was fatally wounded. Two Providence policemen were wounded.

Abandoning his car, the robber fled into the home of Mrs. Robert Laprade and forced her to walk out with him. But when police opened fire, he fled back into the house.

Another woman, Mrs. Mary Sandring, was forced by the gunman to attempt negotiations with the police from a window.

Police began a tear gas bombardment of the house and the gunman came out with his hands up and surrendered.

Bank officials, making a hasty check of the funds taken, said they constituted "a substantial sum."

EXCAVATION AT THE FILTRATION PLANT began on Monday where two additional sedimentation tanks—total rated capacity of three million gallons—will be installed to the north of the present unit. Bulldozers have already bared the end of the present tanks, above, which with the additions planned will boost plant processing to a rated capacity of 9,000,000 gallons per day; the new installation will cost approximately $200,000.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Say Russian Troops Now In Korea

High U.S. Officer Declares Thousands In Support Capacity

SEOUL, Korea —(AP)— A highly placed United States Eighth Army officer said today there are several thousand Russian troops in rear areas of North Korea serving in a "support capacity."

This officer said in an interview that the Russians were technicians and advisors and probably manned modern radar-controlled anti-aircraft guns manufactured in the Soviet Union.

The officer cannot be identified, but he holds a responsible post that qualifies him to speak authoritatively. He conceded that some of those reported to be Russians could be east Europeans from Soviet satellite countries.

The officer described the anti-aircraft batteries at Red airfields south of the big Antung bases in Manchuria as modern stuff. He added that because available evidence has shown them to be manned by Caucasians it was assumed Russians were at the guns.

SAW RUSS AT AIRFIELD

His statements went much farther than those of a North Korean officer who surrendered through the Panmunjom neutral zone early this month. The Communist lieutenant, who was security officer at the armistice site, said last Saturday that he had seen about 20 Russians at the Sinuiju airfield in June, 1951. The airfield is in North Korea at the Manchuria border.

High ranking American officers have stated that Russian-speaking pilots in Communist jets have been heard by Allied airmen who overheard inter-plane messages

The Eighth Army officer said "there is no question that there are Russians up there in North Korea." He declined to say precisely how many, beyond placing the figure at "several thousand."

His statements concerning Red anti-aircraft batteries were perhaps the first authoritative statement that Russians probably were directing and firing guns against U. N. fighters.

The Communists maintain that only the Chinese peoples "volunteers" and North Korean troops were fighting in Korea, except for a small Hungarian medical unit.

BRITISH VIEW

LONDON (Reuters) — The War Office said today it has reason to believe there are "considerable numbers of Russian military personnel in Korea."

"They are not formed into units but are used in an advisory capacity and some in a technical maintenance role," the War Office said.

Jury Out Hour, 45 Minutes Before Verdict Given; Pair Jaunty After Sentence

TORONTO (CP)—The decision whether the murder convictions of Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson will be appealed may be reached today. Arthur Maloney, Jackson's lawyer, and J. J. Robinette, who defended Suchan, are meeting today to decide whether to appeal. They have 30 days in which to enter it. Said Mr. Robinette: "In all likelihood, we will appeal." Last night the two notorious criminals were sentenced to be hanged Dec. 16 for the murder of a Toronto detective. Suchan and Jackson showed no emotion when Chief Justice J. C. McRuer pronounced the death penalty, ending a six-day trial. The jury took one hour and 45 minutes to find the pair guilty of the fatal shooting of Det.-Sgt. Edmund Tong.

While Suchan and Leonard Jackson were being led through a heavy cordon to a paddy wagon in the City Hall courtyard, newspaper cameramen stepped forward to take pictures. Suchan smiled and quipped: "Have fun, boys."

HEAVILY GUARDED

Police formed a heavy cordon around the doomed men as they were moved from the courtroom back to the death cells at the Don.

Edwin Boyd and William Russell Jackson, who had occupied the cell block with Suchan and Jackson, will be lodged in another part of the jail. The two convicted men will have the cell block to themselves.

The Chief Justice praised the press for playing "its full part in seeing that these men got a fair trial."

"It may well be the press played a great part earlier in the case in informing the public of what had happened March 6 so that witnesses would know to come forward and offer their information," he said.

Chief Justice McRuer, in his charge, told the jury if they found Suchan guilty of murder, he did not see how they could find Jackson guilty only of manslaughter. He added:

"If you feel these two men had formed a common intention to resist lawful apprehension by use of firearms, and one of the two fired a fatal shot, it does not matter which one fired the shot. They are both guilty of murder or manslaughter."

In his testimony Suchan said he fired six shots in the direction of a police cruiser that stopped the car in which he and Jackson were riding last March 6. Suchan said he aimed at the engine of the car and only wanted to escape capture.

He said he knew Jackson, wanted for escaping from the Don Jail, was "hotter than a firecracker" and he did not want police to find out he was linked with the Boyd gang.

NATO Countries Will Have To Do More In 1953 Than In 1952 Pearson Warns

OTTAWA —(CP)— External Affairs Minister Pearson said today that the 14-member North Atdantic Treaty Organization "will have to do more in 1953 than in 1952."

He told a press conference in an east block conference room that the 1952 defence objectives of N.A.T.O. members in non-military fields were not enough.

1. Canada is taking an active part in preparations for the November conference of Commonwealth Prime Ministers in London and is not "sitting on the sidelines in attitude of interested detachment."

2. The Canadian Brigade in Germany has been shaped into a "workmanlike fighting group."

3. The situation in Korea will be discussed at the forthcoming meeting of the United Nations General Assembly.

4. He will be glad to serve if the assembly elects him as president for the coming year.

5. Canada does appeal to the United States government for reconsideration of decisions barring some Canadians "unjustly" from crossing the border.

Mr. Pearson returned recently from a two-week trip to Europe. While there he turned the chairmanship of the North Atlantic Council over to Foreign Minister Kraft of Denmark.

Bevan's Left Wingers Win New Power, Oust Morrison, Dalton

MORECAMBE, England (AP)—Aneurin Bevan's left wingers won new power in British socialism today. They gained two more seats on the Labor party's key national executive committee and ousted Herbert Morrison, the party's No. 2 old guard leader and former Foreign Secretary, from the group. Results announced today from secret balloting gave the Bevan forces six of the seven seats allotted on the 27-member executive to local Labor party units. The one-time Chancellor of the Exchequer, Hugh Dalton, was the other Attlee man unseated in the test of strength between the Bevan supporters and the party's moderates.

The forces of party leader Clement Attlee still counted on the backing of most of the rest of the committee, but the vote for the local — or constituency — seats was considered an accurate reflection of the feeling among socialism's rank-and-file members and a clear indication of the fiery Welshman's growing strength in his fight to wrest the party leadership from Attlee and Morrison.

The seats of Morrison and Dalton were won by R. H. S. Crossman and Harold Wilson. Four other Bevan supporters on the executive held their seats — Mrs. Barbara Castle, Tom Driberg, Ian Mikardo and Bevan himself.

The only Old Guard adherent re-elected in the seven-seat constituency wing was James Griffiths, former Colonial Secretary and a veteran of the party's early days.

Twelve seats on the executive are allocated to the powerful right-wing and middle-of-the-road trade unions, who generally go down the line with Attlee. The other eight seats are held by the women's movement and the co-operative movement.

Navy Rescues 74 Men In Crew

LISBON, Portugal (Reuters) — A radio message picked up here by the Portuguese Navy today said all 74 crew members of the Portuguese ship Joao Costa, which sank in a storm a week ago when returning from the Newfoundland fishing banks, have been rescued.

The 773-ton vessel sank Tuesday 56 miles north of San Miguel Island in the Azores.

An American vessel, the 7,200-ton Compass, rescued 12 survivors found adrift in three boats, but then abandoned the search because of engine trouble. She asked other shipping to join the search.

Earlier report said the total crew was 92, and that 80 remained unaccounted for after the rescue of the 12.

Senator Arrested

MANILA (AP) — Senator Justiniani Montano was arrested at his home today on charges of kidnapping and murder in connection with the slaying of four persons in Cavite province.

Twenty-two other persons face the same charges which grew out of the Sept. 2 massacre by an armed band of the mayor and police chief of Maragondon town and two policemen.

Wholesale Prices Continue Recession

OTTAWA (CP)—A recession in wholesale prices which began a year ago continued during August when the general index slipped to 223.9 from 225.6 during July, the Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

The index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, reached a peak of 243.7 in July last year. Since then, with the exception of last June, when prices generally were unchanged, the index has been declining.

Biggest drop during August was in textiles which slipped to 248.9 from 252.6, making for a drop of almost 12 per cent in 12 months.

Viscount Astor Dies In Britain, Illness Long

CLIVEDEN, England (AP)—Viscount Astor, prominent British publisher and sportsman and husband of Lady Astor, died today. He was 73.

Lord Astor, who was born in New York City, long had been a leader in British social and political life.

His death followed a long illness. He began sinking last week-end.

Unable because of his title to hold a seat in the House of Commons, Lord Astor sponsored his wife's political career and helped her to become the first woman elected to Parliament.

He kept as close as possible to the political scene and spoke frequently in the House of Lords. But his wife's peppery temperament and eagerness to get into all political arguments brought her more headlines.

'HITCHED TO ROCKET'

"When I married Nancy," he once said, "I hitched my wagon to a star. When she got into the House of Commons, I found I had hitched my wagon to a sort of V-2 rocket."

Astor was chairman for many years of the influential Sunday newspaper, The Observer.

His younger brother, Col. J. J. Astor, is chairman of The Times of London. Lord Astor also had widespread real-estate holdings and was prominent in British turf circles as an owner and breeder of race horses.

Born Waldorf Astor in New York City on May 19, 1879, he was a great-great-grandson of the first Astor and a great-grandson of the Astor known as the "Landlord of New York."

Astor and his brother became British subjects through the naturalization of their father, William Waldorf Astor, in 1899. The father was raised to the peerage in 1916, and became a viscount a year later. Waldorf succeeded to the title at his father's death in 1919.

New Atomic Gun Unveiled By U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Army has unveiled a new 85-ton atomic gun and shown that it can roll nimbly across fields into position to fire super-explosive barrages within 20 minutes. It is the world's first atomic artillery piece. The gun, which the army calls an "all-purpose weapon," was put through its paces at a special preview recently for photographers at the Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds. Ordnance experts have been trying out its mobility and firing capacity for months at the giant testing grounds, but standard ammunition was used rather than atomic rounds.

The army indicated that the weapon can use either atomic or standard rounds merely by changing the type of missile.

It did not say, howover, whether atomic charges had been tested in the gun. The indication was that they had not.

The gun has a calibre of 280 millimetres — approximately 12 inches. This, in itself, discloses how compactly the Atomic Energy Commission scientists now are able to build atomic missiles which at one time could barely crowded into the bomb bay of a B-29.

20-MILE RANGE

There was talk at the demonstration of a 20-mile range for the gun.

This approximates the range for coastal defence and naval guns of somewhat similar calibre.

Twenty miles would be a practical distance for placing the gun safely behind friendly lines, firing over those lines and laying down an atomic barrage on enemy infantry and armor without endangering friendly troops from the blasts, heat or radiation.

In the non-atomic demonstration at Aberdeen, conventional propellant charges of standard powder, in bags, were loaded behind an ordinary test projectile.

The rate of fire seemed to be approximately that of any of the large calibre, non-automatic guns used by the army and navy.

Arrest Browders Former Top Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earl Browder, former top man of the United States Communist party, and his wife, were arrested today on charges of making false statements in a naturalization proceeding.

The Justice Department announced the arrests, made in the New York City area. It said the two were taken into custody after a federal grand jury in New York returned an indictment charging they lied by stating, when Mrs. Browder sought naturalization papers, that she had never been a member of the Communist party.

Browder, 61, one-time Communist candidate for president, was picked up by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation on the street in Manhattan.

Mrs. Browder, 55, was arrested at the Browder apartment in Yonkers.

Justice Departments record show Mrs. Browder, Russian-born, first entered the U. S. illegally from Canada in 1933 and was ordered deported in 1940. However, she offered to depart voluntarily and the deportation order was then lifted. Later, she re-entered the U.S. from Canada as a legal immigrant and filed for naturalization.

Browder, a native of Kansas, lost his job as party leader in 1946 in a squabble over his alleged departure from Marx-Lenin principles during the Second World War.

Identifies Boyd As Car Driver

TORONTO (CP) — John D. Lows a paper box company accountant, today identified Edwin Alonzo Boyd as the driver of the getaway car in the holdup Nov. 30, 1951, of the suburban Leaside branch of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Lows said a gun jabbing him in the ribs while talking to the bank accountant was his first indication of the robbery. The customers were ordered to face the wall with their hands up, then an individual with a sten gun said to put the hands down and struck one of the customers with the barrel of the weapon, he said.

Lows did not get a good look at the man standing on the counter in the bank during the affair but he identified Boyd as the driver of the car which the gang entered upon leaving.

The trial is continuing.

Chief Justice Denies Inference

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's new Chief Justice, Hon. J. W. Pickup, yesterday issued a statement in which he said that he did not intend to suggest in a recent interview that either the Ontario or federal government was guilty of interference in the conduct of the courts.

The Chief Justice was quoted as saying in the interview:

"I will hear every case on its merits and decide it according to what is just, regardless of instructions from the Attorney-General or the Minister of Justice."

He said yesterday:

"The statement made by me to a newspaper a few days ago was intended to assert the independence of the court. I want to make it clear to the people of Ontario that their Chief Justice does not believe, does not think and has not intended to suggest that Her Majesty's Supreme Court of Ontario could be in any way subject to any sort of political direction."

The Chief Justice is a former Millbrook man.

Britain Serious About Unity

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — Anthony Nutting, Britain's undersecretary for foreign affairs, today told the European consultative assembly that "Britain means business" in promoting the unity of Europe.

In a speech to the assembly he urged adoption of the "Eden plan" for establishing links between Britain and continental communities like the Schuman Plan through the Council of Europe.

Nutting said the Council of Europe should negotiate with the six-country Schuman Plan organization to carry out the future relationships. This, he added, should be the pattern for relations with other communities like the European Defence Community still in the planning stage.

Nutting charged that Paul Reynaud of France made a "cynical or ungenerous accusation" against Britain in saying Britain now is demonstrating a "sudden affection" for Europe.

"Where is the suddenness of our affection?" Nutting asked. "Has Mr. Reynaud forgotten two world wars and the price Britain paid in both in defending Europe's freedom?

Report General Van Fleet To Be Relieved In Korea

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times says today that relief of Gen. James A. Van Fleet, after 17 months of gruelling command of the Eighth Army in Korea, has been decided on at military headquarters in Washington.

There will be no formal announcement, however, until his successor has been selected, says a Washington dispatch to the Times.

(When asked about the report, an informed official at military headquarters said he knew of no discussion of Van Fleet's removal or of anything to indicate such a move was under way.)

The Times story says the most prominently - mentioned name in considering Van Fleet's successor is that of Lt.-Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor. Also reported to be under consideration is Lt.-Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe. Both men are assigned to army headquarters in Washington.

Taylor formerly was superintendent of the United States Military Academy at West Point, and was commander of the 101st Airborne in the Second World War.

McAuliffe was the commander who said "nuts" to the German command that he surrender at Bastogne in December, 1944. He was acting commander of the 101st at the time, serving in the absence of Taylor, who was in Washington. Taylor returned to Belgium at the height of the action.

Man Surrenders In Bombing Case

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Police said last night that Emilio Arellano Schetelige, sought for questioning in the bombing of a Mexican airliner last Wednesday, has surrendered.

Police also detained the Mexican singer, Paco Sierra, who is married to the owner of one of the capital's principal variety theatres, and two of her friends.

Police have been looking for Arellano to explain why he took out $240,000 in insurance policies on seven persons aboard the plane for $80. The names of Sierra and her two friends appeared as beneficiaries on some of the policies.

A time bomb on the plane exploded after it had taken off from Mexico City, blowing out one side of the plane and endangering the 20 persons aboard. The pilot made an emergency landing.

Duchess Of Kent Very Heavily Guarded Fear Guerrillas May Strike On Royal Tour

SINGAPORE (AP). — The Duchess of Kent and her son, the 16-year-old Duke, arrived today for a 15-day visit to this Crown colony and Malaya.

A 21-gun salute boomed as their plane touched down at Kallang airport for the first royal visit to Singapore in 23 years.

Smiling after the long trip from London, the Duchess — Queen Elizabeth's aunt, and the young Duke were greeted by Governor John J. Nicoll and Malcolm Macdonald, commissioner-general for Southeast Asia.

Singapore and Malayan Federation officials, worried about the possibility that Communist guerrillas might strike at the Duchess, took strict security precautions. During her stay, the Duchess will be what the Singapore Straits Times calls the "most heavily-guarded woman in the world."

McCullagh Leaves Estate Of More Than Four Million

TORONTO (CP)—The will of the late publisher George McCullagh provides that the Toronto Telegram may be operated by its present directors for a period up to 21 years, it was disclosed yesterday.

Details of the $4,624,749 estate were made known by Chartered Trust Co. as application for probate was filed in Surrogate Court. But the Globe and Mail, the other Toronto daily newspaper published by Mr. McCullagh, was not mentioned by name in the will.

Nor does the will reveal the extent of Mr. McCullaghs interest in the two newspapers, nor the valuation placed by the executors on such interests.

The estate will be shared by Mr. McCullagh's immediate family—his widow and three children—and his four sisters. Stocks having a value of approximately $4,400,000 represent the major item in the inventory, and the McCullagh residence in suburban Thornhill is valued at $170,500.

The section of the will dealing with the Telegram reads: "If at the time of my death I own the controlling interest in the Telegram Publishing Company Limited, I expressly authorize and direct my trustees to carry on the said business for such length of time (not exceeding 21 years) as they in their uncontrolled discretion may deem advisable in order to dispose of my interest in same to the best advantage."

The will provides that the trustees "may postpone payment (in whole or in part) of any gift or legacy or any interest in my estate granted to any person or persons by this my will, for such time or times as they, in their absolute discretion may deem necessary for the proper administration of my estate or for the most advantageous realization of the assets; provided however, that if any such gift is postponed for the purposes aforesaid, then the beneficiary of the same shall be entitled to receive the net income therefrom from the date of my death."

Fire Threatens Half Main Street

MATHESON (CP)—Fire last night gutted two buildings and caused estimated loss of $75,000 in the business section of this asbestos centre, 42 miles east of Timmins. The cause was not known. The fire was out of control for 2½ hours and at one time threatened all one side of the street. The two two-storey buildings destroyed were a groceteria run by Dick Gauthier and next to it a new store and soda fountain, to have been opened in two weeks, owned by Harold Childs.

Mr. Childs lived with his wife and two sons over his new store, but was able to rescue only a few items from the apartment and some $5,000 worth of equipment from the soda fountain. His father, Norman Childs, and his mother occupied the apartment above the groceteria. They lost everything.

WINDOW BLOWS OUT

At 9.30 p.m. several residents heard the front window of the groceteria blow out. The blaze quickly spread and soon flames could be seen six miles away. Emergency calls were sent to Timmins, Monteith and South Porcupine. The blaze was under control by midnight, after Timmins firemen arrived to aid volunteer firefighters.

Several telephones were knocked out when lines were burned. A garage and a cafe on each side of the destroyed buildings were scorched.

Chinese Troops Seize New Hill

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Chinese troops seized another hill on Korea's central front today as the Reds maintained heavy pressure on the sector for the third straight day.

The hill, due east of Kumsong, was the third captured by the Reds since they launched a series of heavy attacks on the east-central front Sunday. Yesterday the Communists powered their assaults with the heaviest artillery barrage of the year.

Fighting also flared on the western front. United Nations infantry slugged their way to the top of Big Nori but lost the high ground to counter-attacking Chinese. Greek troops were driven from the peak Sunday when U. N. planes accidentally bombed them during a Chinese attack.

B-26 Invader bombers swept North Korean supply routes during the night. Pilots reported destruction of 86 Communist trucks, one locomotive and three box-cars. One locomotive and 12 box-cars were damaged.

1,500-Pound Moose Lands On Top Of Car

NORTH BAY (CP) — A 1,500 pound moose landed on top of an automobile near here today.

Police said O. J. Undersood of Youngstown, Ohio, was returning from a partridge hunt when the animal jumped or fell from a cliff. The moose suffered two broken legs.

Despite its injuries the animal tried to charge the car. Its occupants fled.

Police said the moose continued to try to make charges at bystanders on the stumps of its broken front legs. It died an hour later.

Damage to the car was estimated at $700.

Woman's Body Unidentified

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The body of a woman found floating yesterday in the Thames River was buried today still unidentified, while police said all efforts to find out who she is have so far drawn a blank.

Nobody has come forward with any information and the body doesn't check with any description of missing persons on police files. Police are satisfied she is not the airwoman reported missing from Aylmer some months ago.

Most positive clue police said was a six inch scar extending upward from the inner right ankle. The key to a downtown hotel room and 18 cents was found in her purse.

The woman, about 35, had been in the water three weeks or more. Coroner Dr. A. R. Routledge said death was caused by drowning and there was no indication of foul play or marks of violence.

A wedding band had the inscription "Forget Me Not" inside.

Railway Crossing Signal Lights May Be Erected

Volume of traffic on Monaghan Road at Romaine St. warrants the warning signals at the C.P.R. crossing considered by the city council, as reported in a letter from the Board of Trasport Commissioners at the board of works meeting Monday night.

A rough estimate of cost of three lights and one bell is $10,000. The grade crossing fund, whatever the bill of expense, assumes 40 per cent and the city and the Canadian Pacific Railway each pay 30 per cent.

The two flashing light signals on Monaghan Road will be on either side of the railway, and the third will face toward Romaine St.

Board of Railway Transport agreed that the traffic was heavy. C.P.R. trains are supposed not to exceed 10 miles per hour at Monaghan Road crossing. Their representative was here on Sept. 19, and was met at the C.P.R. by Ald. J. E. Gillespie, Ald. H. T. Rehill and City Engineer Chalmers.

ASSESS COST

No action can be taken until the estimate of cost of the warning system is obtained from the Transport Board.

Request of Robertson Young, 279 Sherbrooke St., for permission to build a garage three feet over the street line was not recommended by the board of works.

Mr. Young owns the house at the southeast corner of Sherbrooke and Stewart Streets. He has been planning to convert a shed into a garage by extending it from the rear of the house toward and over the Sherbrooke St. line which is slightly more than 12 feet inside the sidewalk.

It was said that the fence around the property on the north side of Sherbrooke St. is about five feet over the street line.

Ald. Rehill recalled an application last year for permission to build a store out to the street line, along Romaine St., at the southeast corner of Park St.

The decision of the council in that case was that the new building would have to be kept in line with the dwellings immediately east of it on Romaine St. Mr. Young explained his problem to the board, and said he had room at the rear of his house and to the east of the shed, permitting extension in that direction. However, his intention was to enlarge the shed into a garage toward Stewart St.

In a reply as to his opinion, City Engineer Chalmers remarked when he was appointed he was told that one of his duties was to prevent encroachments of buildings on city property, in this instance the three feet out from the street line.

Ald. T. D. Miller said he did not consider the project of Mr. Young important enough to be approved in the proposed encroachment. Ald. H. S. Longhurst seconded his motion that the request for a garage permit be not granted.

Wm. Needles Speaks To Little Theatre Group

The Peterborough Little Theatre held a dinner meeting in the Empress Hotel on Monday night, to begin the season's work. The speaker of the evening was William Needles, well-known as a leading actor of the Summer Theatre. His subject as "Stage Design" and he illustrated it with several large drawings of stage settings in a variety of styles.

Amateur groups rarely had a stage of ideal proportions to work on, he said, and one of the designer's chief tasks was to give the stage an appearance of depth and proper proportion by a skillful use of perspective and ornament.

Following his address, Mr. Needles talked informally about Canadian television, which already finds itself cramped for space in its new building, even after three weeks of operation.

The chairman of the dinner was the president of the Little Theatre, Miss Margaret White. Roger Davis spoke briefly about the approaching Peterborough Festival of one-act plays. The club's work for the season was also discussed. A speech of thanks to Mr. Needles was made by Mr. John Londerville of the Normal School Staff. About eighty members of the Little Theatre were present.

Catch To Agreement

Lewis, Northern Operators Sign One-Year Contract

WASHINGTON (AP)—John L. Lewis and northern coal operators signed a one-year contract yesterday but the northern group's spokesman said the $1.90-a-day pay boost couldn't be paid the miners until approved by the government's Wage Stabilization Board.

Lewis and Harry Moses, President of the Bituminous Coal Operators' Association, signed the northern agreement after the contracts were unanimously approved by the 200-man policy committee of Lewis' United Mine Workers.

Besides the $1.90 increase, bringing the basic daily wage of miners to $18.25, the agreement calls for a 10-cent-a-ton boost in the employer-paid production royalty which finances the union's welfare fund. The royalty now becomes 40 cents a on.

AT OWN RISK

Meanwhile, it was learned that Moses has written all his association's members—the northern producers—that any pay increases paid without government approval would be "at your own risk."

Moses' letter said if the W.S.B. does not act on the new pay increase by Oct. 15, when the higher wage is due to start, he will advise the union that "we cannot legally pay the increases until the approval is forthcoming."

This raised the possibility of a strike in the northern soft coal mines Oct. 15 if the higher pay rates are not paid.

A strike threat still existed as far as southern coal producers are concerned. Their contract expires at midnight tonight and the 100,000 southern coal diggers are expected to walk out unless the southern mineowners accept terms similar to those in the northern contract.

No Parking Signs Not Authorized To Be Pulled Out

Unauthorized parking reservations along street curb lines are going to be lifted either by the people who put them there, or by the police, as recommended to the city council Monday night by the board of works.

A resolution will be presented at the council meeting next week instructing City Engineer Chalmers to mail notices to presuming offenders. That notification will be accompanied by press advertisement, and after that the sanction of the council's action may be applied.

The board received from the council a letter from H. L. Garner, general manager of the Examiner, enclosing an editorial of August 7 questioning the action of persons who set up parking reservations in front of their properties, particularly in the downtown area. By that assumption they obtain all-day parking privilege without meter or any other fee.

All the members of the council were present last night with Ald. J. E. Gillespie presiding.

BELIEVE UNAUTHORIZED

Asked for his opinion, City Solicitor Huycke commented: "I'd say such signs are unauthorized."

Mr. Huycke was pointing at the man who sets up no-parking signs in front of his store or other place of business, providing him with curb space he can use all day, if he wishes.

Ald. T. D. Miller asked whether the proper course would be to ask the police to gather up the "no parking" signs that have been placed at the curbs anywhere in the city without permission.

"I'd write them first telling them they have no right to set up those signs, and simply ask that they be removed," said Ald. Rehill.

Ald. H. S. Longhurst seconded the Miller resolution to invest City Engineer Chalmers with power to proceed by notice and action.

Ald. Rehill remarked that placing of no-parking signs was illegal if they were not supported by city's authority.

"If it is made clear that the City Engineer is responsible for erecting and maintaining signs, I'll see that those not authorized are taken away," Mr. Chalmers said.

Jailed One Year For Rustling

ST. THOMAS (CP) — John T. Corbett, 29, of Corinth near Tillsonburg, today was sentenced to one year determinate and one year indeterminate on a charge of cattle theft. Helen Olschamp, 23, of Corinth was acquitted of a similar charge.

Corbett was trapped in a net laid by Provincial Police at a Kitchener cattle sale when he tried to dispose of two cows and a bull calf which he was convicted of taking from the farm of Fred Ball, Strafford-ville.

Both have been held for return to Kitchener today to face charges of conspiring to defraud. Corbett is also charged with forging and uttering.

Boyd Gang Hanging First In 4 Years

TORONTO (CP) — If Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson are hanged Dec. 16 for the fatal shooting of Sergeant of Detectives Edmund Tong — and it was indicated today their conviction may be appealed — the hanging will be Toronto's first in 4½ years.

The last hanging in Toronto was on June 29, 1948, when Leslie Davidson, 29-year-old pianist, was hanged for the restaurant shooting of Mrs. Margaret Ruth (Mickey) Meredith.

The last multiple hanging in Toronto was in 1921 when William McFadden and Roy Hotrum were hanged for the murder of Leonard C. Sabine, a druggist.

The last double hanging in Ontario took place in Welland in 1926 when George Popwich and his wife, Elizabeth, were hanged for the slaying of Louis Nato, Thorold South storekeeper.

Stock Market Prices Weaken During Day

TORONTO (CP)—Prices weakened today in slow early afternoon stock market trading.

Industrials, base metals and western oils each slipped more than a point on the exchange's indices but golds held firmly to early small gains. Base metals took over from western oils in leading the downward trend.

Trading slowed although a number of lower-priced mining issues traded actively, many for penny gains. A selective program of trading was followed by most dealers. Volume for the first three hours totalled 1,088,000 shares.

Western oil losses outnumbered gains about five to one with losses ranging down to 30 cents. Landover dropped pennies in brisk trading while Sweet Grass gained.

Viscount Astor

The Astors entertained thousands of visitors at their massive mansion at Cliveden. During the late 1920s and on into the 1930s it was reputed to be the place of high-level, behind-the-scenes political planning. The persons who gathered at the Astor mansion became known as the "Cliveden Set," which just before the Second World War became associated in the public mind with appeasement to Hitler and Mussolini.

Astor denied the "Cliveden Set" ever existed. He said the "set" was an "Imaginary group—a myth from beginning to end."

Say Cobb Doing 206 MPH Bettering Record Before His Boat Blew Up

LOCH NESS, Scotland (AP)—British speed ace John Rhodes Cobb yesterday drove his jet-propelled speedboat Crusader the fastest man has ever travelled on water—206.89 miles an hour—and then died in an explosion that blew his craft to bits. Cobb, 52, was hurled into the waters of fabled Loch Ness before the eyes of his horrified wife, Vera, and hundreds of other spectators. His 6,000-horsepower hydroplane disappeared in a cloud of smoke and spray.

A lifebelt kept him afloat before he was picked up by a tiny boat. Some witnesses said he died of a broken neck aboard the rescue craft. But Commander Arthur Bray, in charge of the timekeepers and one of the first to reach Cobb in the water, said he believed death was instantaneous.

Cobb's $42,000 boat disintegrated during the first of two scheduled runs aimed at shattering the world's water speed run of 176.497 miles an hour set last July by Stanley Sayres of Seattle, Wash.

FASTEST MAN ON WATER

Sensitive time recorders showed that the six-foot two inch Cobb, who already held the world's auto speed record of 394 miles an hour, had covered the measured mile in 17.4 seconds—an average of 206.89 miles an hour—to become the fastest man on water.

But Cobb will not be credited with the mark since two runs over the measured mile are necessary to make it official. The shattering explosion in the waters of Loch Ness cheated Cobb out of attaining that distinction.

Before the accident Cobb may have hit a top speed of 240 miles an hour, witnesses said. Then the 31-foot hydroplane, roaring down the course for a triumphant finish, seemed to bob and dive as it hit cross waves set up by attendant boats.

Cobb's wife, whom he married two years ago, hid her face in her hands and turned away as the plywood and aluminum boat exploded.

BOAT BEGAN BUMPING

One woman eyewitness gave this account:

"Cobb came along at terrific speed. He opened up for more speed and the Crusader began bumping. There was a puff of smoke and then nothing but some wreckage on the water."

"We don't know exactly what happened," said G. E. Nicholson, a hotel manager. "One minute the Crusader was there. The next, it was not. There were just a few pieces floating about.

"I don't remember hearing anything when it happened. The Crusader simply went into smithereens and I thought it must have dug its nose into the water."

William Tees, who installed and organized the radio intercom link-up in Cobb's boat, was the last man to speak to the Briton.

"I adjusted John's helmet," Tees said, "and said: 'Are you receiving the messages all right?' He said: 'I am receiving the messages clearly.' I said: 'Are you all set?' He replied: 'Yes, here goes.'"

Atlantic Gale Lashes Coast

ST. IVES, Cornwall, England (Reuters)—Gales that lashed the British and French coasts today hurled a 1,000-ton British fishery protection vessel ashore near this Cornish port.

The ship's crew clambered down rope ladders and waded to safety after a 50-mile northeast wind tore her from her anchor and drove her broadside towards land.

Torrential rains in western France caused several rivers in Brittany and along the Atlantic coast to burst their banks, flooding isolated farms.

Woman Burned Lighting Gas Stove

A Peterborough woman escaped with slight burns Monday afternoon when a gust of flame shot out of her gas oven as she lit it.

Mrs. Minnie Howden, 201 Romaine St., is resting at home today. She had lit her oven to warm up, then left it for 20 minutes. When she returned, she saw the flame was out, and re-lit it. Flame shot out the broiler door and singed her face, arms and neck.

Immediately she wrapped a towel around her scorched hair and called the woman upstairs, who telephoned Dr. Herbert Young. Dr. Young treated Mrs. Howden and said her burns were not serious.

Mrs. J. MacIntyre Dies

DUNDALK (CP) — Mrs. J.R. MacIntyre, 84, yesterday died at her home here. Her husband, John Richard MacIntyre, published the Dundalk Herald for 30 years prior to his death in 1933 and the weekly paper has since been published by her son, Frank D. MacIntyre.

Pearson Adds New Word

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs minister Pearson came up with another new word in the lingo of the international councils today — slippage.

Reporting to a press conference on the recent North Atlantic Treaty Council meeting in Paris he said N.A.T.O. expected a slight "slippage" on its 1952 military objectives. In other words they wouldn't be quite up to the target.

The word, he said, reflected the international desire for economy. The single word had replaced the two-word phrase "short fall."

Mr. Pearson said such international slang seemed to "be conceived in the Pentagon and born in Paris."

Says Solution Won't Be Easy

TORONTO (CP)—Trade Minister Howe today cautioned Canadians against any hope of a "quick and easy solution" to Britain's financial crisis.

Canada, he said, will take part in the Commonwealth prime ministers' economic conference in London next November, and he hoped the conference will have "useful results."

But the problems in Britain and other sterling area countries were "deep-seated," and "it would be wrong to expect a quick and easy solution," Mr. Howe said in a speech prepared for delivery before the Canadian Importers and Traders Association.

57 Parking Meters On Old City Hall Site

The old city hall site will provide accommodation for 57 parking meters. There are already 94 meters on the established area, making a total of 151.

City Engineer Chalmers is completing the surfacing of the site of the municipal building.

Tariff for parking is five cents for 72 minutes and 25 cents for six hours. If all the parking panels were occupied for six hours the revenue would be $37.75. The city square space is now being enlarged and completed at the same time as the Charlotte St. parking lot is about to be vacated for the erection of the postal-customs building.

Threatened Power Shortage Poses Problem To Campbellford Council

CAMPBELLFORD— (ENS). — The Campbellford Council held a special meeting Monday evening to discuss their position in regard to the question of the local power house.

The power house is now barely able to produce the amount of power required by the town during peak periods. The Campbellford Public Utilities Commission has discussed signing a contract with the H.E.P.C., but if such a contract were signed, it has been said that the P.U.C. would be able to make no grants to the town, as they have done for the past several years. These grants are used to lower the mill rate, and are turned back to the town out of the operating profits of the commission.

The local power house is now undergoing repairs and even after repairs are completed, the plant will not be able to produce an amount of power sufficiently greater than the peak loads to carry on for more than possibly a few years.

OUTLINES POSITIONS

Clerk J. F. McGregor read the act outlining the position of the council in the question. The P.U.C. is a separate body that runs their own affairs without reference to council, and is not responsible to council, except in the issuing of debentures, or other financial matters where taxpayers' money would be involved.

Councillor P. H. Macmillan suggested hiring a qualified electrical engineer, providing the P.U.C. will co-operate with him, to go over the powerhouse in order to see what could be done to better it. He would like an estimate of what it would cost to put the plant in efficient working condition, and to make any suggestions he could regarding its operation.

A third wheel could be installed but there is the question of getting sufficient water to operate it. The water at the present time is held back and stored up by the hydro during off-peak hours, then released to carry the peak load, and if this were not done, the local plant would be unable to carry its present peak, due to insufficient natural flow in the Trent River.

WOULD COST $400,000

The cost of installing a third wheel would be in the neighborhood of $400,000 and the plant would have to be rebuilt from the foundation up, in order to house the new equipment.

On a motion of Councillor George Free, a committee was named by the Mayor to draw up a questionnaire, outlining any questions they believe council should get answers to regarding the operation of the P.U.C. or what they intend to do about signing a contract with the H.E.P.C. They will present the questionnaire to council at the next regular meeting, when council will consider it before it is passed on to the P.U.C.

Council will no doubt ask the P.U.C. to name a committee to meet with council to talk the matter over. It is the general feeling of council that they want to avoid any ill-feeling between the two bodies, as some animosity has already been stirred up in the past.

Mayor Kingston named Councillor Isabel Tatham as chairman of the questionnaire committee, with Councillor Ness and Deputy Reeve Oscar Mason as members.

The Court of Revision which will sit on October 31 was named by the Mayor. Chairman will be Councillor Arthur F. Collette, with Councillors Maybee, Free, Macmillan, and Deputy Reeve Mason as members.

British Youth Tells Rotary Of Trip To N.Z.

One of the six United Kingdom youths who made a three-months trip in 1949-50 to New Zealand reported on the tour Monday to the Rotary Club here. He is Keith G. Dixon, now of Toronto and formerly of Yorkshire.

Mr. Dixon told how the Rotary Clubs of Yorkshire had set up a fund for the trip, and said that the half-dozen young men who made it were extremely grateful for the opportunity.

Their trip began in December, 1949, and ended in April, 1950. It started off with a three-weeks stay on a sheep and cattle farm in New Zealand, where the six learned something of the agricultural life of the country.

Object of the trip was for the six to meet young people in the country, learn their thoughts and study their way of life. The group visited young people in Y.M.C.A.'s, Y.W.C.A.'s, junior chambers of commerce, colleges, churches, and so on.

VISITED AUSTRALIA

They toured the whole of New Zealand speaking to the various Rotary Clubs in that country. Then, when their three months were done, they went to Australia, and visited mostly there on the east coast.

Visiting Rotarians included: C. Wilson Blewett of Fort Qu'Appelle, Saskk.; S. Foster Harris, Dayton, Ohio.; S. R. Martin, Bowmanville; Harry Carlton, Cobourg; Mr. Bryan Dougherty, Montreal; Jack Taylor, Ross Dobbin, David Mathews, W. A. Brown, and W. H. Clark, all of Peterborough.

The speaker was introduced by Gordon Monkman, and thanked by Gordon Dobbin.

Buffalo Girl Describes Alleged Assault

WELLAND (CP) — Weeping as she told her story, an 18-year-old Buffalo girl yesterday related in Supreme Court here how she tried to stab her alleged assailants with a pen-knife on a ride from Niagara Falls, Ont., to Fort Erie August 7 last.

Charged with criminal assault are Samuel Perry, 25, and Dominic Paulo, 21, both of Niagara Falls. The complainant, picked up at St. Catharines as she was hitchhiking towards Buffalo from Hamilton, said she became scared of the men in the car and opened the knife at Niagara Falls.

"I tried to stab Sammy with the knife but Dominic took it away," she testified.

SAYS PAIR ASSAULTED HER

She alleges that the two men assaulted her in a field along the Niagara boulevard.

Allan Brooks, Q.C., counsel for Perry, asked her if she remembers discussing marijuana with the men. She replied that she told Dominic she could get it but that she had only been kidding.

The Crown case has been completed and the defence is expected to start today.

YMCA Starts Drive For 1,500 Members

The Peterborough Y.M.C.A. opened its annual fall drive for membership Monday night by setting a goal of 1,500. The campaign closes Oct. 15.

Charles Forsyth, general secretary of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A., said the membership in 1950 was 750; last year it was 1,189; and this year—by means of a short but intensive campaign—Y.M.C.A. officials hope to boost the membership over the 1,200-mark to as much as 1,500.

Guest speaker, who gave the keynote address of the evening, was Cecil L. Brown, general secretary of the Hamilton Y.M.C.A. and acknowledged dean of "Y" secretaries in Canada. His subject was "The Y.M.C.A. in the Atomic Age."

Mr. Brown said that the first atomic explosion in the New Mexico desert on July 15, 1945, ushered in a new age: the atomic age.

Previously, he said, there had been the stone age lasting 1,000 centuries; the bronze age lasting 20 centuries, the iron or steel age that lasted 30 centuries, and—beginning in July, 1945—the atomic age.

"The world will never be the same again," he said.

"Doesn't it seem strange that it falls to our lot . . . that we come up to one of those junctures in history where we suddenly turn off at a tangent . . . We are living in the dawn of a new age, the atomic age."

RE-WRITING BOOKS

Already the textbooks on physics and chemistry are being rewritten because of the atomic discoveries, said Mr. Brown. Medical science is being changed and even international politics.

"The atomic bomb hangs over every conference table like the sword of Damocles," he said.

The concept of religion is also being changed, said Mr. Brown. Our civilization has some decisive choices to make: love on the one hand, or liquidation; are we to be "Christ centred" or have chaos; do we choose bombs or brotherhood.

"The question I ask you is: Are we fit to survive? Can we provide the type of character that will stand the stress and strain of the year 2,000?"

Mr. Brown said that despite the change of concepts the moral laws of the universe "remain as real and is immutable as the laws of physics." And these laws cannot be broken by individuals or by nations without them suffering destruction.

The Y.M.C.A. with its rounded program of physical education and group work is an example of "Christian democracy" in action, he said. It can provide a boy or youth with the proper training to stand the stress and strain of the year 2,000.

Alex Elliott, Q.C., president of the Peterborough "Y", introduced Mr. Brown, and he was thanked by P. M. McCarrell. Stanley Payne, chairman of membership, chaired the dinner meeting.

Allied Pilots Destroy 61 Red Jets

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Allied fighter pilots today closed their books on the most successful month of the Korean War. United States Fifth Air force records showed 61 Communist MiG-15s destroyed, seven probably destroyed and 59 damaged.

The previous high bag for one month was 44 destroyed in April. That mark was passed in mid-September as U. N. jets swept deep into North Korea to cover fighter-bombers on attack missions.

R. C. A. F. officers, flying as exchange pilots with the U.S.A.F., helped to make the total score by destroying two MiGs and damaging two others.

Flt. Lt. Ernest Glover of Leaside Ont., was credited with destroying two Red planes in two days running, Sept. 8 and 9. He damaged another MiG Sept. 16.

Sqdn. Ldr. James Lindsay of Arnprior, Ont., was credited with damaging a MiG Sept. 8.

U. S. air force officers have confirmed that a new gimmick has been added to the swift F-86s, possibly an improved gunsight. Another reason for the record bag is that the Reds are throwing more and more MiGs into the air in attempts to break up the fighter-bomber attacks.

Sept. 4 the Sabres destroyed 13 Red planes and damaged 4. That was the high point of the month. Other big days were Sept. 15, eight destroyed, and Sept. 9, six destroyed.

Drunk Charge Brings $15 Fine To Man

COBOURG, — (ENS) — Clarke Cavanagh of Peterborough was fined $15 and costs on a drunk charge when he appeared before Magistrate R. B. Baxter Monday. Chief Constable H. Pearse told court that the Cobourg Legion got him a boarding house and the mayor secured a job for him. A local man gave him a suit of clothes. However, Cavanagh didn't show up for work, the chief said, and he hasn't paid his board bill. If the people concerned would only come forward, there would be other charges against him, said Chief Pearse.

The accused asked for a week's adjournment but the magistrate directed that the case proceed.

It was a costly kick for Clarence Jacobson of Coldsprings. Jacobson pleaded guilty to damaging property at Joe Ing's restaurant by kicking out the plate glass window of the front door. It will cost $50 to replace it. Jacobson was remanded out of custody in order to make arrangements with the Chinese about a new window. He had been drinking.

Charged with false pretenses, Ray Brians of Hamilton township was remanded for a week on $1,000 bail.

Acheson Prepared To Force Korean Move

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times says today that State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States soon may warn Russia and her allies that the U. S. will ask for further United Nations action in Korea if the armistice deadlock there is not broken.

The Times, in a dispatch from United Nations headquarters here, says it is believed Acheson will present the U. S. stand on Korea to the U. N. General Assembly soon after it opens Oct. 14.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman termed the Times report "speculative."

Rotarians Ready Paradrop Plans

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—Rotarians discussed plans for the proposed air show to be held here on October 25 when they meet at their regular luncheon meeting on Monday.

Forty-two paratroopers from Pettawawa are expected to make a mass jump. Trenton R.C.A.F. station will probably supply a half-dozen jet aircraft to put on a display of precision flying and aerobatics, and several army bands will be in attendance. The R.C.A.F. will also put on a display of bombing and rocket firing, and several members of the local Rotary club are now busily engaged building a small shack and painting it a bright yellow so that it can be easily seen, and probably just as easily blown up, by the R.C.A.F. planes.

The show will be held at what used to be Campbellford's airport, but what is now a wheat field. The land was sold some years ago after the airport venture failed to get the support it needed for continued operation. The spot is located a few miles north of Campbellford on Highway 30, and accommodation at the field is good.

The show was originally planned for Peterborough, but after the Peterborough Rotary Club had arranged it, the Army turned down the idea due to the fact that the spot picked for the show would not be satisfactory. The Army looked around and found what they were looking for at Campbellford, so the Peterborough and Campbellford clubs are planning to have the paradrop here.

Nephew, Uncle Meet Via Ham Conversation

ROME (AP) — Sgt. Joseph S. Martin, of the United States Army, operator of an amateur radio station at Trieste, picked up amateur station VP6SD in Barbados, British West Indies, just by chance.

"Say," he asked the Barbados operator, "do you know any Martins there? I was born in Port of Spain, Trinidad, but a lot of my relatives are in Barbados."

The Barbados amateur operator turned out to be Syd Martin, the sergeant's uncle. They hadn't seen each other for 22 years.

Andrei Gromyko Flies To Moscow For Talks

LONDON (Reuters)—Andrei Gromyko, Russian ambassador to Britain, will fly to Moscow this afternoon by way of Berlin, his embassy announced here.

The embassy declined to give any reason for the trip but it is probably concerned with the congress of the all-Communist party which begins in Moscow Oct. 5.

Gromyko became ambassador here July 28.

Get Rid of Smell

READING, England (Reuters)—To get rid of that musty smell a suit takes on after hanging in a closet for several weeks, a firm here is producing chemically-impregnated suits that keep them "smelling sweet" the year round. S. A. Album said odor-killing chlorophyllin, introduced into cloth by steam pressing, absorbs odors and converts them into oxygen.

"COOL CONTROL"

TABLE TENNIS: THE SERVE

1 Ball should be hit to bounce on your side of the table first and then on opponent's side. Ball must be hit from behind the table, not from a position over the table surface. Serving hand must be open and flat as fingers hold the ball for serve.

2 Keep control of your serve by bouncing ball near the end of the table on your side. Bouncing ball too near the net will result in too many netted balls and lost points. Keep serve low!

3 Rules prohibit finger spins and rubbing ball against face of racket when serving. Use a forward stroke on a vertical plane for best control. Practise change of pace and positioning by getting your service under complete control.

Yes, it's control that counts in table tennis as in every sport — control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

Hush! Hush!

Brigadier J. M. Rockingham, former Canadian commander in Korea, spoke to the United Services Institute in Peterborough on Friday. Interviewed by The Examiner, he had one criticism to make of the war in Korea: that the Canadian public are not as much interested in the Korean campaign as is warranted. We venture to suggest that more interest would be aroused if returning officers like Brigadier Rockingham were to discuss the campaign and its issues more publicly than they do.

* * *

Brigadier Rockingham's address to the Services Institute was given behind a curtain of secrecy. No report could be carried in the press and the members attending the meeting were constantly reminded that the information being given was "security." There was almost nothing discussed at that meeting, or little in Brigadier Rockingham's speech and answers to questions after it, which had not been made public months ago, or has not always been public information. For instance, an American magazine with circulation in the millions last year portrayed and described the weapons being used by the Reds in Korea. Why then should a military speaker bother to label his remarks on this topic 'security'?

* * *

Brigadier Rockingham was away from this continent for more than a year and so is probably unaware how much information about the Korean war, tactics, weapons, enemy and equipment, is already in the public's hands. The hush-hush nonsense should therefore be blamed on the Department's briefing of its speakers. Or perhaps the Department of National Defence is attempting to flatter Services Institutes by instructing its speakers to imply that their information is really top secret, for Institutes' initiated ears alone. Institute members will not be fooled by this. They are no longer under their former military oaths of secrecy, and no military speakers would dare, or would be authorized, to give away secrets of any consequence to heterogeneous collections of two hundred or more listeners who, despite their former military rank, are now civilians. The really "off the record" tid-bits of such meetings come after they end, when the speaker may shoot some of the works to a few acquaintances in the cordial, informal atmosphere of an ante-room or hotel room—remarks which would never be reported anyway.

* * *

If keener interest in the Korean war is to be aroused in Canada, the people who know it best should be allowed to speak their pieces publicly; as indeed, Brigadier Rockingham himself did to the Canadian Club of Ottawa before he came to Peterborough.

The Russians Now Believe It

Adolf Hitler disappeared from the face of the earth in the German holocaust at the end of April or the first of May, 1945. The Germans said he had committed suicide and was dead. The British and Americans investigated the scene under and above ground after Berlin was occupied, and established by analysis and deduction from facts and circumstances that he was indeed dead and not hiding in some Bavarian redoubt. But the Russians refused to be convinced. On various occasions they expressed doubts as to the Fuehrer's suicide. Now they have changed their minds. The eleventh volume of the Soviet Encyclopedia, just published, contains the following entry: "Fearing the righteous wrath of the people, Hitler committed suicide on May 1, 1945, as stated in the communique issued by the German High Command."

Now it may be the American turn to doubt the evidence. What is the hidden reason for Russia changing her official view—a hidden Hitler, disguised as a German corporal and sent into East Germany to assist in the Red re-armament there?

New Chief Justice

A native son of Millbrook, John W. Pickup, has been appointed Chief Justice of Ontario, following Robert S. Robertson, retired. His Lordship succeeds from the private life of a lawyer to a public position of great responsibility, made lustrous by such eminent men as Sir William Mulock. We have no doubt that Chief Justice Pickup will maintain the dignity and traditions of the Court of Appeal, and that his judgements will be as informed and independent as this high court requires. Remarks attributed to him by a Toronto newspaper—suggestive of dictation to judges by the Attorney-General or the Minister of Justice—were an impromptu assertion of the independence of the courts, phrases off the cuff and certainly not from the highest bench in the province where words are weighed and gowns cover the cuff.

Death Of An Intellectual Aristocrat

"There is no cure for birth and death save to enjoy the interval." George Santayana, who uttered that apparently frivolous remark, ended a life of enjoyment in Rome on Sunday, in his eighty-ninth year. To mourn his death would be hypocritical, for he was in pain, and his work in the world was done. But the continuing life of Santayana, like the continuing life of Jean Sibelius, has been an assurance to mankind for many years past that there were still great men on the earth. And it is only recently that Santayana ceased to publish, in his memoirs, work which was as wise and as beautifully expressed as any he had ever given us.

* * *

As a philosopher Santayana was a puzzle and an annoyance to many of his contemporaries. He called himself a materialist, but that label can only be made to fit him if his own very broad interpretation and understanding of materialism is accepted. A materialist who is also a poet and something of a mystic, and a professed unbeliever who writes in The Idea of Christ in the Gospels one of the noblest expositions of Christianity of the past century, may well puzzle men who hew to a narrower philosophic line.

* * *

To many laymen, Santayana is the most attractive of modern philosophers, because he makes greater allowance than philosophers usually do for the irrationality and caprice of the human spirit. He was brought up as a Spanish Catholic, and in later life he professed unbelief, writing: "My atheism, like that of Spinoza, is true piety towards the universe and denies only gods fashioned by men in their own image, to be servants of their human interest." Yet he constantly affirmed the aesthetic validity of religion—its power to satisfy by its beauty a hunger of the spirit which could digest no other bread. He declared himself entirely content with the ethics of Aristotle, yet his interpretation of that doctrine of the Golden Mean is very different from the counsel to cold-blooded caution and stinginess of spirit which is what for instance Bertrand Russell finds in the same system. Perhaps Santayana was too much an artist to be a first-rate philosopher; he could touch nothing without enriching and ennobling it.

* * *

Many who admired him deeply were repelled by his opinions on man as a political creature. William James described Santayana's doctoral thesis as "the perfection of rottenness"—for James thought it immoral to suggest that there is one sort of truth for a philosopher, and another sort of truth for a man of lesser intelligence. Yet this was self-evident to Santayana; the philosopher was the man of wider view and richer intellect—why would he see things as a less highly sensitive man would do? Santayana believed in aristocracy of mind, and the notion that all men might be equally good and truthful moved him to laughter. Democratic government, he believed, must always result in second bests; but democracy was endurable because it placed the fewest restraints on genius and talent, wherever they might be found. He hoped that some day mankind would be intelligent enough to combine aristocracy and democracy, giving all some voice in government, but confining office to the highest. Such beliefs could hardly be popular, but during his long life Santayana saw nothing in the world about him which led him to change them. He was a Catholic free-thinker; so many modern philosophers are Puritan moralists, without his strong aesthetic bias.

* * *

As well as being a philosopher Santayana wrote one novel—bad as a novel, but inexhaustibly fascinating as a discussion of life—and a small but very choice body of poetry. This is his sonnet On The Death of a Metaphysician.

Unhappy dreamer, who outwinged in flight
The pleasant region of the things I love,
And soared beyond the sunshine, and above
The golden cornfields and the dear and bright
Warmth of the hearth—blasphemer of delight,
Was your proud bosom not at peace with Jove,
That you sought, thankless for his guarded grove,
The empty horror of abysmal night?

Ah, the thin air is cold above the moon!
I stood and saw you fall, befooled in death,
As in your numbed spirit's fatal swoon,
You cried you were a god, or were to be;
I heard with feeble moan your boastful breath
Bubble from depths of the Icarian sea.

FIFTH YEAR OF WAR

Red Terror In Malaya

By O. M. GREEN

EVERY DAY a human life is lost. Every week valuable property is destroyed. Every month the Malayan and British Governments are spending one million pounds sterling to try to put an end to the loss of life, the fighting and the damage. This has gone on since June 1948."

Only perhaps those who have had to follow in detail the war with the Communists in Malaya have any conception of its nature and difficulties, and many should welcome the small new "Handbook to Malaya" published by the Regional Information Office of South-East Asia (and obtainable in London at Malaya House) from which the above quotation is taken.

❖ ❖ ❖

TODAY three hundred thousand men are in arms against the Communists. This force includes auxiliary police, home guards (largely composed of Malay volunteers) and village patriots, supported by five battalions of Commonwealth troops. Against them are probably not more than four thousand or five thousand Communists. Yet despite the improvement since General Sir Gerald Templer became High Commissioner last January, no one would venture to predict the end of the war which has dragged on for more than four years.

❖ ❖ ❖

A PICTURE on the cover of the handbook of British troops wading up to their armpits through a bog and holding their rifles above their heads gives an accurate idea of normal fighting conditions in Malaya. Four-fifths of the country—about 42,000 square miles—is covered with jungle and forest so dense that at twenty-five yards a man is invisible, where torrential rains fall every day and the mid-day heat averages ninety degrees. Who can wonder that a few thousand terrorists, who know this jungle as well as their home village streets, continue to evade destruction?

❖ ❖ ❖

THE TERRORISTS are, with few exceptions, Chinese. Of the 2,776 killed down to January 31 last, 2,559 were Chinese, only 102 Malays, the remaining 179 being Indians, Siamese and Indonesians.

It is also clear that the Malayan Communist Party is a branch of international Communism. It was formed in 1927, when in China General Chung Kai-shek broke with the Communists and started his war on them.

On the outbreak of the Second World War, the M.C.P. (Malayan Communist Party) under orders from Russia, did all it could to frustrate the British war effort in Malaya by strikes and sabotage. This was changed to support of the British when Hitler invaded Russia; and when the Japanese overran Malaya the M.C.P. took to the jungle, proclaimed the formation of the Mayalan Peoples' Anti-Japanese Army to fight the invaders and received large-scale help in British officers and equipment dropped by aeroplanes or smuggled in by junks.

❖ ❖ ❖

WHEN JAPAN COLLAPSED the Communists boldly claimed that they alone had defeated her and would not set up a Malayan Peoples' Republic. The word for action, however, was not given until March, 1948, when a conference of Asiatic Communists was held in Calcutta. The first move was a series of strikes started among the Chinese workers in Singapore. In these, as shown by British trade unionists, Mr. S. S. Awberry and Mr. F. W. Dalley, who went out to investigate, the M.C.P., masquerading as the Federation of Trade Unions, used the workers as catspaws, kept in the background, paid no strike pay, or other benefits, and at any sign of a settlement interfered to block it.

The Singapore police eventually proved too strong for the Communists, who thereupon switched to Johore on the mainland, where their attacks on rubber estates managers and their workers became so murderous that in June 1948 the "emergency" was proclaimed by the Government. The war had begun.

❖ ❖ ❖

HERE ARE SOME typical examples of the barbarous atrocities committed by the Communists of which the Handbook prints several:—

"In the Plentong district of Johore, armed terrorists killed a man and his wife and threw their eight-year-old girl into the flames of their burning hut."

"At Kampar in Perak they killed five people in a circus tent among them a pregnant woman and her two-year-old child. A Chinese girl was first stabbed and then beaten to death with a hammer."

"At Pantai, in Johore, two Chinese boys were forced to their knees and, with their arms strapped behind their backs, battered to death with spades. Many victims have been disembowelled and horribly mutilated."

❖ ❖ ❖

IT IS NOTEWORTHY that the terror is specially (though certainly not exclusively) vented on non-Communist Chinese. Of 1,862 civilians killed down to January 31, last, 1,264 were Chinese, 85 Europeans. Chinese are the principal workers in the tin mines which the Communists are out to ruin, together with the rubber estates. The Chinese are, for the Communists, the best source of food, of information as to the movements of troops and police, and the best guarantee of secrecy, when thoroughly intimidated, of the Communists' own movements.

In the past two years nearly 450,000 Chinese squatters have been transplanted from the edge of the jungle into model settlements. This has undoubtedly hampered the Communists. The successes gained since General Templer took charge have also encouraged the Chinese to give more information about terrorist movements.

❖ ❖ ❖

BUT THE COMMUNISTS continue to get valuable help from their underground organization, the Ming Yun, or "Mobilization of the People"—one of the typical secret societies which have always been the curse of Chinese society in Malaya—which operates in the big towns and blackmails wealthy Chinese into giving support in various ways to the Reds. If the Ming Yun could be stamped out, then it would be possible to foresee the end of the war.

The Handbook deals with a number of imaginary questions by critics, showing what the British and Federal Governments are doing for Malaya—the large scheme of education, the encouragement of trade unions, the Rural and Industrial Development Authority for the benefit of small holders and fishermen, and last year, the substitution for a single Secretariat in Kuala Lumpur of eleven Departments each under its own responsible head (in effect a Minister) of whom three are Malays, one Chinese and one Ceylonese.

There is no doubt that the Government is doing all it can to encourage the growth of unity among the different races of Malaya as the foundation of self-government—when the Red Terror has finally been crushed.

FLYING SAUCERS SEEN IN WASHINGTON

The Last Puritan

(Excerpts from the Novel By the late George Santayana)

"HERALDRY held in a nutshell the secret of all the arts, which were nothing but self-exhibition upon the shield of self-defence."

❖ ❖ ❖

"I AM AFRAID there will always be puritans in this mad world. Puritanism is a natural reaction against nature."

❖ ❖ ❖

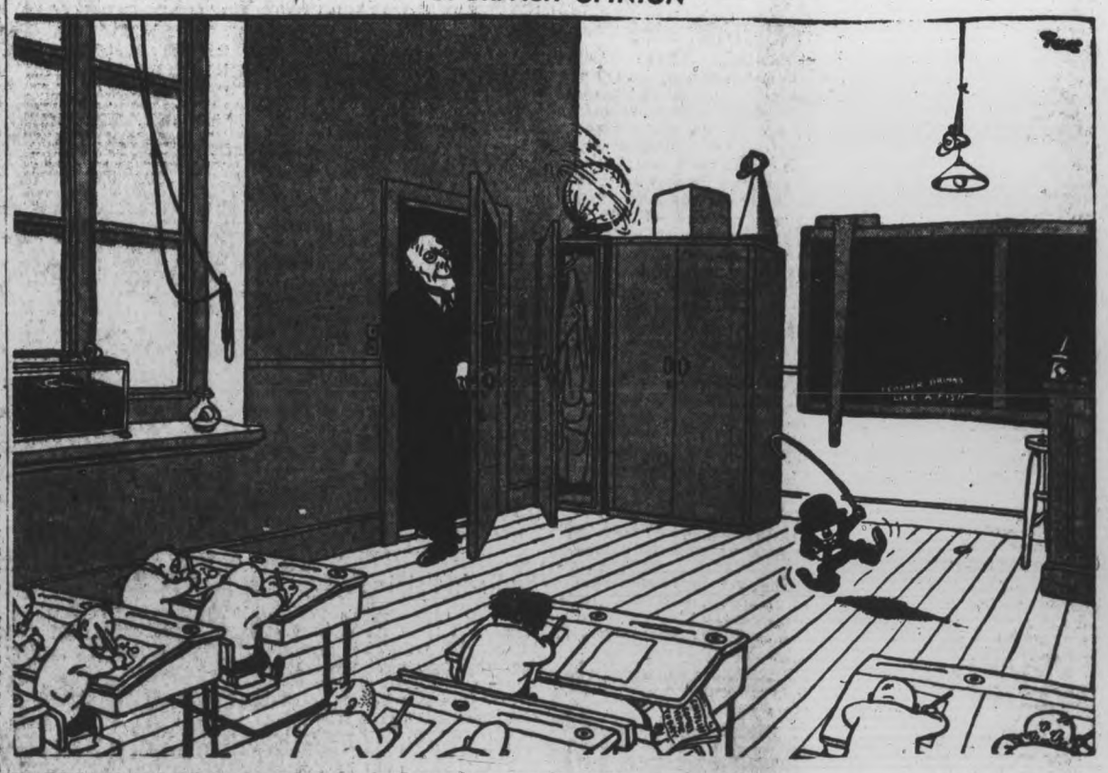
"IT'S A POPULAR error to suppose that puritanism has anything to do with purity. The old Puritans were legally strict, they were righteous, but they were not particularly chaste. They had the virtues and vices of old age. An old man may be lecherous; but that vice in him, like avarice, gluttony, despotism, or the love of strong drink, soon becomes monotonous and sordid, and is easy to cover up hypocritically under his daily routine. The Bolshies have the one element of puritanism which was the most important, at least for Oliver: integrity of purpose and scorn of all compromises, practical or theoretical."

❖ ❖ ❖

"DON'T LET the Germans cheat you, my boy," Cousin Caleb began, horribly grinning. "They are greater bluffers at philosophy than any smart Yankee ever was at the game of poker. Their manipulations of history are always different and always scandalous. It is all a play of wilful arbitrary perspectives, hiding what you please, and joining what you please. Nothing else is required for them to pose as the latest leaders in the march of thought. Blow, blow, thou Zeitgeist; thou art not so unkind as the truth would be to these self-advertising prophets. Yet they are good teachers, Oliver, because they have the true workman's respect for his tools: they put you through the mill; there is pride and impudence in the froth of it. Learn to burrow with them; learn to love your work; but come often out of the Nibelungen smithy into the sun. The passions of those quarrelsome tinkers are ridiculous, and their ultimate conclusions are worthless."

❖ ❖ ❖

"THE OLD Calvinists, Oliver felt, hadn't been puritan enough: you were not pure at all, unless it was for the love of purity. But with them it had all been a mean calculation of superstition and thrift and vengeance—vengeance against everybody who was happier and better than themselves. They had flattered themselves that at least the Lord, if no one else, particularly loved them: that God had sent down Moses and Christ expressly to warn them of dangers ahead, so that they might run in time out of the burning house and take all the front seats in the new theatre. And they didn't dare call their real souls their own; wanted to smother them; wanted to find out, in some underhand way, what was the will of God, so as to conform to it, and be always on the winning side. But God had laughed at them and fooled them. There was really no knowing which way the universe would drift. Your hard-boiled moralists were idolators, worshipping their own fancies and hypnotised by their own words. They had perched at a certain height on the tree of knowledge, had stuck fast at a certain point up the greased pole of virtue. They would climb no farther; and from there they had turned and pecked ferociously at everybody below them and screeched ferociously at everybody above, invoking their hard, dry reason to discredit all that was beyond their own meagre and cruel morality. But this reason of theirs was just their reason, their effort to entrench themselves in their limitations."



❖ ❖ ❖

"THE STONES OF OXFORD, on the contrary, had crumbled only in the weather and had been lovingly replaced. They were a monument to the humble wisdom of the age that reared them against the folly of all other times. These stones had always been discreet in their elegance, and cut to the human scale. They were still sheltering and useful, and merited to be renewed indefinitely, as if nature had put them together and not the vanity of men. Half their charm lay in their homelike way of nestling amongst trees and gardens beside these rambling lanes and branching streams so modestly navigable and so embowered. There was nothing dead about Oxford, nothing stark or outgrown. The most antiquated things in it were revivals. If the place seemed dedicated to recollection and fidelity, that was because here the seminal principles were still living which could give form to a wise mind. What can be more conservative than a seed? Unless you are something definite to begin with, unless you invincibly love something in particular, how are you to distinguish a direction of progress? How are you to choose a goal that is not capricious and delusive? What these low walls shut out was not the great universe. It was only a waste land of desolation and folly. Outside, not within, lay the real hopelessness and the real ruins. Within was an orchard of perennial fruits. These great trees carried the murmur of earthly labour almost to the clouds, almost to the veiled courses of the stars. Here was not the devouring silence of death or of the desert, rather a silence sustained by the music of nature and history, and scanned by the prosody of thought. In this air there was a placid tension, like the tension of truth; and this repose was only the equilibrium, at their centre, of all disputes and of all battles.

❖ ❖ ❖

"EVERY HUMAN ACHIEVEMENT is submerged in the general flood of things, and its issue soon grows ambiguous and untraceable. We must be satisfield to catch our triumphs on the wing, to die continually and to die content."

Letter To The Editor

AGRICULTURAL FAIR, OR EXHIBITION?

Sir: From a letter appearing in your columns on Saturday, I take it that the writer criticized those writers who wrote to you regarding the "late" Exhibition. There may be others, like myself, business people who do not wish the publicity of appearing critical of the efforts of their friends and neighbours and yet believe that they could offer some constructive suggestions without actually having to accept a post on a committee. That was my reason in writing over a pen-name. Thank God for a Democracy and a free press where a person may express himself.

The writer mentioned above, in Saturday's paper, brought to light the method of appointing members of the Exhibition Board, and I am sure many of your readers will agree with me that it is time to take stock of just what the public wants and then to see that they get it. If it is to continue as an agricultural fair, then the public should not be given to understand that it is an exhibition. The name implies some similarity to the Toronto Ex. where there is on exhibition products of the manufacturers, growers, handycrafts, builders, etc. There is a grand stand show for entertainment and usually a sports' day, and a host of other features to interest not only rural folk but their brothers in industry.

If the Peterborough Agricultural Fair is to cater only to rural folk, then it is answering its purpose and that will explain the trotting races and the showing of one six horse team and one tandem, as I saw one evening. I must say they used to put on a better show in Cobourg forty years ago where the Horse Show was an annual event that drew crowds from far and near. The musical ride of the old RCD's was worth the price of admission alone, and the playing of the 48 Highlanders of Toronto, was music that really thrilled the audiences at every performance.

The MC at the Peterborough Fair seemed to think it was a wonderful show as he kept repeating that everything was wonderful, or "give someone a great, big hand", and also the race announcers giving great credit to various individuals but from the letters appearing in your paper the general paying public would certainly like to see a change. Here's hoping.

NEW YORK YANKEES READY TO GO—The powerful Yanks are all set for the opening of the 1952 World Series in Brooklyn on Wednesday. Allie Reynolds, husky 20-game winner in the American League this season, is expected to twirl the opener against Dodgers in Ebbett's Field. Manager Casey Stengel exudes confidence as his Yankees square off for the big classic, and his club has been favored 8-5 in gambling circles to capture another pennant. In Reynolds, Berra, Woodling, Rizzuto, Mantle, Martin, Collins, Bauer, McDougald, a talented twirling corps and strong reserves, the young men of Manhattan present a formidable front in the subway series. At that, the Dodgers are over-due to pull an upset and dump the classy Yanks. This may be the year. Who knows?

Dressen Taking Big Gamble Starting Off Series With Rookie

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Brooklyn's Pitchless Wonders have put it squarely up to their wonderful rookie reliever, Joe Black, to get them off on the right foot against the favored Yankees in the World Series opener tomorrow at Ebbets Field.

Never before in big league history has a champion of either circuit been forced to undertake such a desperate gamble. Other rookies have been called upon in the important first game, and there have been bullpen specialists before. But the combination of the two, out there trying to turn back the Bombers, will be unprecedented.

'ALL OR NOTHING'

Manager Chuck Dressen took a calculated risk when he nominated the 28-year-old Negro freshman to duel with the Yankees' Allie Reynolds, as great a money pitcher as there is in the game today. He could have held his relief ace back and been assured of late-inning insurance as long as the big playoff lasts. He chose to play it boldly.

If Black pitches up to his brilliant form of the regular campaign, he will give Reynolds a mighty battle tomorrow.

Should the gamble fail and Black takes a shellacking, the National Leaguers are in bad trouble, stripped temporarily of the relief pitching which held their shaky mound staff together all season. Black appeared in 56 games, and though he was credited with only 15 victories his contributions easily equalled those of a 25-game winner. His earned-run average of 2.1 was the best in the league.

MENTAL LIFT

An angle which Dressen took into consideration in handing Black the blazing torch was the mental lift to be derived from winning the opener. Should the rookie win over Reynolds, the Yankees' best, other less endowed members of the Dodger staff might easily be inspired to pitch slightly above their usual weight in the ensuing games.

It was no surprise that Dressen named Carl Erskine, a 14-6 performer, to face big Vic Raschi, 16-6, in Thursday's second game at Ebbets Field, nor that he nominated Preacher Roe, his veteran southpaw, to match portside shoots with Ed Lopat in the third contest at Yankee Stadium.

WON TIGHT ONES

Over the season Erskine was a rather uncertain quantity and for a spell he was plagued by a sore arm, but he came strongly toward the end of the race and turned in a number of tightly-pitched victories when the Dodgers needed them the most.

While Roe posted an impressive 11-2 record, this was not one of his better years. For long stretches he could not finish a game, but now and then he found all his old stuff and produced a brilliant effort. He, like Lopat, depends heavily upon his outfielders to roam far and wide to haul down the long flies. For that reason both will be held out for the great open spaces at the Stadium, where homers are not easily come by unless the ball is pulled sharply.

Manager Casey Stengel said during the Yankees' workout yesterday that he is starting Reynolds, his only 20-game winner, early so that he might, if an emergency arose, bring him back in the fourth game. Also, Reynolds' will be available for relief duty, though Stengel nominated Johnny Sain both as his No. 1 troubleshooter as well as his premier pinch-hitter—quite a distinction for a flinger who was waived out of the National League last year.

DRESSEN NOT SCARED

While Stengel staunchly refused to predict the outcome of the playoff, Dressen continued to breathe fire and defiance in his talks with newspapermen, possibly to bolster the morale of his crew.

"I've told them there's no more DiMaggios and Henrichs on the Yankees to scare them like there used to be," Dressen said. "They're only the best in the American League—not a great club. I'm not worried about their pitching after facing fellows like Robin Roberts and Sal Maglie in the National League."

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

By a score of 24-13 M. Fletcher's trio defeated R. Knox's rink in the final game of the consolation event of the Review tournament. It just remains now to run out the string in the hard luck event and we will be all through for this season.

The final game was well played; the score does in no way do justice to the players.

The game would rank among some of the best-played games this season. It was well worth watching and only in the last few ends did the winners come through.

The rinks:

A. Jackson, C. Williamson, M. Fletcher, sk.—24.
S. James, W. James, R. Knox, sk.—13.

In the hard luck event, F. Oxley won from H. Staunton.

The ladies are hoping for a nice sunny day tomorrow. Their tournament commences at 10 a.m.

J. Brockley Leads

J. Brockley rolled high single of 322 and M. Batley top three of 694 this week in the Girls' City Bowling League, as Black's led teams with 3045 pinnage. The high team won a prize given by Duffus'. Bassel's and Arcos blanked Curtin's and Collis, as 2-1 wins went to Cardinals over Marines, Aces against Austin's, and Sevenaires over Black's. The blind score of 478 went to R. Wilson's 479.

Neat singles included: J. Brockley 332, L. Harris 282, M. Hawthorne 267, J. Moore 265, M. Thompson 264, M. Batley 263, M. Sanderson 260 and M. Bailey 251. Best triples were: M. Batley 694, J. Castle 688, J. Brockley 683 and M. Hawthorne 652. Close behind Black's in total pinnage was Bassel's with a 3028 roll.

Dodgers One Of Best Defensive Clubs

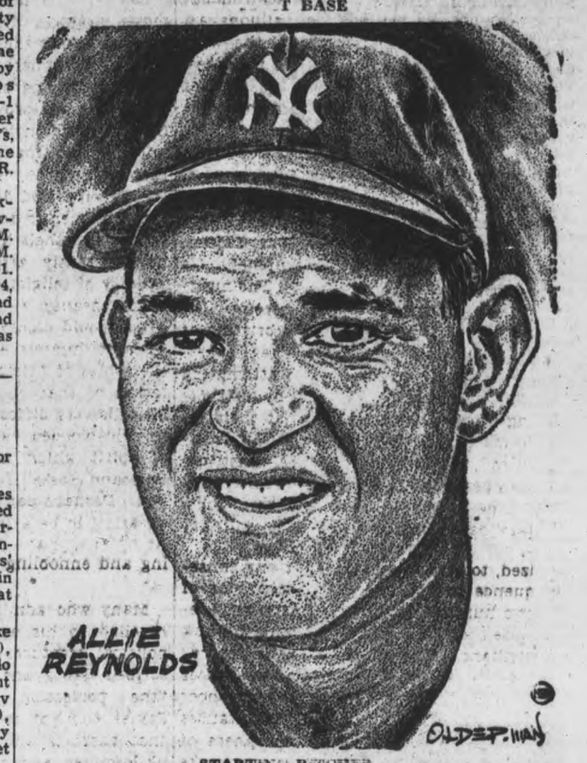
By SHELDON SAKOWITZ

NEW YORK (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers go into the 1952 world series as one of the best defensive clubs ever to represent the traditionally defence-minded National League.

The Dodgers as a team fielded .982 during the regular season to tie the National League record for highest fielding percentage that St. Louis Cardinals, also a pennant-winner, set in 1944. The Red Birds went on that year to win the World Series from St. Louis Browns, four games to two.

The Brooks set a league record by committing only 106 errors, six fewer than the previous best by the 1944 Cardinals.

New York Yankees, seeking their fourth consecutive world's championship, also displayed fine defensive skill this season, fielding .979, but on an individual position basis the Dodgers hold a slight edge.



INFIELDERS COMPARED

Among infielders Gil Hodges of Brooklyn tops the Yanks' Joe Collins at first base, .992 to .990, while the New York keystone combination of Billy Martin and Phil Rizzuto gains the nod over Jackie Robinson and Pee Wee Reese, the Dodgers' double play pair.

Second baseman Martin out-fields Robinson, .984 to .975, and Rizzuto, with .976, owns a five-point bulge on Reese at .971 in the battle for shortstop honors.

Gil McDougald of the Yankees and Brooklyn's Billy Cox are tied for third base laurels with averages of .972 apiece. Roy Campanella's .994 mark gives the Dodgers' receiver a slender two-point margin over Yogi Berra of New York at .992.

The Dodgers' outfield of Duke Snider (.992), George Shuba (.992), Andy Pafko (.988) and Carl Furillo (.987) boasts an over-all three-point advantage, .990 to .987, over Irv Noren (1.000), Gene Woodling (993), Hank Bauer (.985) and Mickey Mantle (.968), the Yanks' quartet of flychasers.

LED PETES' SNIPERS—The trio above led the local Timbermen in scoring last night as Toronto Yorks beat the Petes 8-7 to sew up their eastern final lacrosse series and pave the way for the deciding game here Wednesday. Ike Hildebrand, left, and Don Ashbee, centre, each were in on three tallies, while Dootch Vitarelli figured in on two.

Eastern Series Tied Up As Yorks Edge Petes In Close-Checking Fray

The Eastern Canada senior "A" lacrosse finals are all tied up at three wins each following Toronto West Yorks' 8-7 win over the Petes' Timbermen last night in Mimico. The deciding game will be staged here Wednesday evening, the Petes having won the toss for the home site. A big crowd saw another sizzling playoff scrap, many fans from Peterborough whooping it up all through. It was a stiff checking and close-checking fray with both sides playing careful lacrosse. While it was rugged, only 10 penalties were handed out, five to each side.

THREE NOT COUNTED

The Petes had three goals they scored disallowed, two being called for in the crease, and the goal-judge failing to flash the light on another one. By the time the refs arrived to check it, the ball was outside the net and under Goalie George Johnston. The Thorpe team argued bitterly over it, as it meant the tying marker in the fourth frame, but it was ruled no goal. On their way out after the tilt, several of the Petes got into a pushing scramble with some hostile home fans, and police had to break it up.

Timbermen had a narrow 3-2 lead in the first quarter after spotting the opportunist Yorks two early ones, and the Petes led 6-5 at the half. Yorks swarmed in for a 3-1 bulge in the third to win it there by 8-7, neither side registering in the windup stanza, despite a hard drive by Peterborough.

CHECKED CLOSELY

The Yorks came up with another of their brilliant checking displays, and they hustled plenty throughout. The Petes played a much better game than in their last home start, but found the Toronto defence mighty hard to penetrate. "Harry Wipper was checked persistently throughout and he never clicked on a goal or an assist. Ike Hildebrand was the Pete's main threat on the attack, despite a nasty cut on the face received early. Both goalies came up with some swell work in every quarter.

Stu Scott, Johnny Hewitt and Jim McNulty led the winners with two markers apiece, Billy Timpson and Don McPhail getting the others. The latter and Nick Ferri had two assists each, singles going to Les Digby, Leo Teatro, Timpson, Johnston, Ken Croft and Banks.

LED THE SCORERS

Don Ashbee topped the Petes' snipers with two goals and an assist in a fine all-around display, Hildebrand scoring one and aiding on two more. Dootch Vitarelli was good for a goal and an assist, while Nip O'Hearn, Russ Slater and Curly Mason each lit the lamp once, and Bob Thorpe and Al Garbutt gained an assist apiece.

Right from the faceoff, Yorks scored, Scott going in fast on a play with Ferri and McPhail when Toronto got the draw. It came in seven seconds. Hewitt clipped Hildebrand to draw a slashing major, Ashbee followed for tripping. O'Hearn scored but it was ruled in the crease and no goal. Later, Hewitt shook his check to waltz right in on Wootton to make it 2-0. Vitarelli combined smartly with Ashbee on an in-close play to get one back, and then Ashby counted a beauty as he broke fast, faked the defence and caught the upper net corner with a whistler. Scott and Ashbee mixed it shortly afterward to draw roughing penalties, and Mason put the Petes up 3-2 with a slap shot at point-blank range with Hildebrand's corner passout.

ANOTHER QUICKIE

As in the first, Yorks scored a quickie to open the second, Hewitt taking Ferri's pass and shifting his way right in on Moon's doorstep to sink the apple in 36 seconds. Hildebrand got that back shortly on a fast rush down the side with Vitarelli's pass and a sharp angle shot to fool Johnston. Scott counted next on a screened thrust after a passing play with Digby and Ferri. They poked another home when Jim McNulty got in speedily on a play with Teatro and Timpson to blaze a low one into the twine. Teatro was gated for cross-checking but back when Slater's hot screened shot on a pass from Garbutt beat the goalie. Ashbee put them in front again off neat finishing off on a three-way dash with Hildebrand and Thorpe.

YORKS HAD EDGE

Once more Yorks opened a period with a fast one, Timpson taking McPhail's pass at 18 seconds to be in the clear and give Wootton no chance. Teatro and Mason sat out roughing penalties and Slater's goal was ruled no goal because of the crease. McPhail put Yorks in front at 4:42 as he tore right through to cuff home Banks' pass. O'Hearn tied it up at 7-7 in a few minutes later on a swell rink-length solo rush and hard angle shot to the short corner. He got a hand for it. However, at 11:11 the West Yorks won the game—though it was not known then—when Jim McNulty rifled a low one home on a combination play close in with Croft after a long forward by Johnston.

A CAREFUL CANTO

The fourth period was a careful, close-checking one, with both goalies right on their toes to turn aside hot rubber on the odd dangerous rush. O'Hearn pulled another long solo try but hit the post and, with Thorpe off for slashing in an accidental corner mixup with Croft, Hildebrand and Wipper came close to tallying. Bob was back when Garbutt apparently scored in a scramble at the crease edge, three Yorks flopping around on the ball and the goal-judge failing to flash the light. The refs decided the ball had not gone in. The Petes drove hard in the final few minutes, but lost a fine chance when Referee Joe Murphy ruled running interference on a dangerous rush and gave the ball to Toronto. Then Slater was sent over for slashing, and with seconds to go Powless and Scott mixed it up to draw penalties. Teams:

Petes: Goal, Wootton; defence, O'Hearn and Wipper; centre, Mason; wings, Slater and Powless; rover, Garbutt; alternates, Killingbeck, Nickle, Thorpe, Vitarelli, Ashbee, Hildebrand, and Burns.

Toronto: Goal, Johnston; defence, Webster and Banks; centre, Teatro; wings, Ferri and Jim McNulty; rover, McPhail; alternates, Joe McNulty, Timpson, Digby, Croft, Kapasky, Hewitt and Scott.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

University of Western Ontario booklet for this year lists the senior gridders, and has this to say of Blair Thomson: "This season will be the last for this hard-plunging fullback from Peterborough. Two years ago, Blair played with the McGill intermediates when they won the Ottawa-St. Lawrence Conference title. Thomson, who was on the Peterborough C.I. football team when they won the C.O.S.S.A. championship three years in a row, is going to see a lot of work with this year's Mustangs. He is five foot 11 and weighs 178 pounds." Not only is Blair a fine footballer, but he has turned in some bangup preformances here as a catcher in softball.

* * * * * *

Kingston's Mike Rodden writes: "Peterborough Orfuns, without the services of ace line-plunger Bill Huntley, established a new all-time scoring record here when they decimated the Tanks 82-0. The visitors, coached in U.S. tactics by Tony Kotowski, proved that the forward pass guarantees no salvation for the oppressed. But it does strengthen the more formidable machine. The Tanks' forward-passing attempts were intercepted, while the wily Petes broke loose for touchdowns. The Orfuns' only weakness was their erratic placement kicking in attempted converts. This inaccuracy might prove costly against Cobourg and Oshawa." Could be, suh. Oshawa Raiders clash with Orfuns here on Friday in group play.

* * * * * *

Depends On Where You Sit

Speaking of Oshawa, we hear their junior baseball club won a protest over Welland 'cause the later used a pitcher who had hurled this season in intermediate company. Golly, goodness, gracious, but isn't that what the Young Petes protested Oshawa on—and had the protest tossed out? They beat our lads in O.B.A. playdowns by using a trio of classy players who saw 1952 action in the lakeshore intermediate circuit. How come? There's a colored chap lurking somewhere in the O.B.A. lumber pile. Not that we're calling Oshawa's Ab Walker (of the O.B.A.) a darky, no, siree! Ah. well, every playoff season see a bale of protests, some good, some ixnay.

* * * * * *

Timbermen will have to do it the hard way now, taking that seventh game here tomorrow—or they're through. The scrappy Toronto Yorks tied up the series with their 8-7 win in Mimico last p.m., so it's a sudden-death game to see which club makes the Main Cup finals. They open Sunday in Toronto. It was another swell scrap before 1,800 fans, many from Peterborough, a hard, close-checking affair with plenty riding on every rush. Ike Hildebrand shone for the Thorpe team, despite an early facial cut requiring several stitches, and they're hoping to have him here Wednesday. Don Ashbee and Dootch Vitarelli were others strong on the attack, and Russ Slater was always dangerous. Moon Wootton held his own with Johnston in the goaltending department. Scott, Hewitt, Jim McNulty, Ferri and McPhail starred for the Yorks.

* * * * * *

But Three Weren't Counted

Three of the Petes' goals were called back. O'Hearn and Slater scoring but the refs ruling they were in the crease. And the squad kicked plenty in the fourth when they claimed Garbutt scored in a scramble but the light didn't go on and the ball was out of the net when the referees dashed up for a look. We couldn't swear to any of these three, not being able to see clearly from the press-box midway down the field. Even the officials couldn't see that last one, and claimed they had no alternative but to rule it no goal. But for a cheap interference call on O'Hearn late in the fourth on a rush that might have tied it, we couldn't complain of the officiating—it was much better than in the previous game there. Just a tossup tilt with Yorks counting the winner in the third period.

* * * * * *

Feeling among rival fans was plenty high and the players laid on the gad hard, though not many penalties were called. And a fracas flared up right after the last gong. As the Petes pushed through the crowd, a guy shoved Harry Wipper and called him a nasty name. Harry conked him and a flock of fans and several Petes' players milled about with punches tossed and sticks flying till police broke it up. They escorted Wipper to his car some time later through a gang of Mimico or Toronto hangers-on, who waited for more trouble, after the players had changed clothes. The guy who started it got more than he bargained for and later was seen complaining to the cops. Yeah, it's a sizzling series now and the grand climax comes tomorrow.

Bombers Overrun Stamps 39-28 In Winnipeg Game

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg Blue Bombers, paced by the razzle-dazzle of halfback Tom Casey and the dead-eye passing of Indian Jack Jacobs, are sweeping all before them in their march to a Western Interprovincial Football Union championship.

Last night the Bombers overran the third-place Calgary Stampeders 39-28 at Winnipeg and advanced their first-place lead to four points over Edmonton Eskimos.

At Regina yesterday, the lowly Saskatchewan Roughriders ran out of steam after grabbing a 12-1 lead and bowed to the Eskimos 25-13.

BOMBERS IN PLAYOFFS

Even without their own victory, the Bombers were assured a playoff spot by the Saskatchewan defeat. The Riders have only a slim mathematical chance to overhaul the Stampeders in the race for a playoff position.

With five games each remaining in the 16-game schedule, the Bombers have 17 points, Edmonton 13, Calgary 10 and Saskatchewan four.

The Eskimos, in winning over Saskatchewan, lost the services of Joe (The Toe) Aguirre, pass-receiver and kicking mainstay. In the fourth quarter Aguirre suffered a broken ankle and was taken from the field on a stretcher.

The Bombers' victory last night was fashioned much the same as their 40-18 triumph over Edmonton Saturday. Halfback Casey, running wild, scored three touchdowns, two of them on passes from Jacobs.

Only a determined counter-attack by the Stampeders prevented a rout. The Bombers held a 39-17 lead at the three-quarter mark but the cowboys scored two touchdowns in a last-quarter drive.

ESK'S RALLY WINS

In the game at Regina, the Eskimos came back strongly after the Riders gained a 12-1 lead in the second quarter. Frankie Morris scored for Edmonton when he kicked a loose ball into the end zone and fell on it. Aguirre converted.

Mike King scored next for Edmonton, on a three-yard plunge after Jim Chambers moved the ball 32 yards on an end run. Aguirre's convert was good Chambers scored himself a short time later on another end run, and this was also converted by Aguirre.

Edmonton scored their last touchdown when Roland Miles caught a pass from Claude Arnold on the Rider 50 and ran the rest of the way in the clear. Aguirre's convert, the play on which he was injured, was good.

CIRCUS-CATCH CURTIS — Ulysses Curtis is shown above making the greatest catch of the day as he scored the first of his two TD's that beat Alouettes 12-6. Seconds after this photo was taken, Curtis stumbled and almost lost the ball but he juggled it and finally held onto it. Yanks Off To Head Start With Pitchers

NEW YORK (AP)—If pitching means anything in a World Series, and it usually does, New York Yankees are off to a head start in their quest of a fourth consecutive world's championship.

Headed by Allie Reynolds, the American League's earned-run leader, Casey Stengel's 11-strong mound staff is well rested for the first game of the fall classic against Brooklyn Dodgers tomorrow.

Reynolds, who became a 20-game winner for the first time this season, and Vic Raschi (16-6) and Eddie Lopat (10-5) have been nominated to start the first three games for the Yanks. Johnny Sain (11-6), Bob Kuzava (8-8), Tom Gorman (6-2) and Ray Scarborough (6-6) are being counted on for heavy duty.

The Dodger pitching corps, too, is well rested but there the resemblance ends. Joe Black, their phenomenal rookie, drew the opening-game assignment against Reynolds (20-8) largely on the strength of his excellent record in relief. But the fastballing Negro hurler, who posted a 15-4 record during the regular campaign, made only two starts among his 56 appearances and completed one game.

Going the distance has been one of the things the members of the Brooklyn staff have been unable to do frequently. Only Carl Erskine (14-6) has hurled as many as 10 complete games. Preacher Roe (11-2) has gone all the way eight times and Billy Loes (13-8) has pitched seven complete jobs.

Yankee pitchers, on the other hand, have shown much better route-going propensities. Reynolds with 24 complete games was tops with Raschi, 13, Lopat 10 and Sain 8, also well up there.

Top-Flight Defenceman Helps To Bolster Sagging Rangers

By GERRY LOUGHEED

GUELPH, Ont. (CP)—New York Rangers, bolstered by the addition of a top-flight defenceman but weakened down the middle, rank as one of the question marks of the National Hockey League which opens its schedule next week.

The New Yorkers finished fifth and out of the playoffs last season and indications were they'd be greatly improved by the off-season acquisition of Leo Reise, blonde five-year man with Detroit Red Wings and one of the league's top rearguards.

Then came word from Port Arthur, that smoothie Edgar Laprade didn't fancy returning to the 70-game grind this fall and wanted to devote his time to his sporting goods store at the Lakehead. That left a big hole in Rangers' store of centre men.

OUT FOR 8 WEEKS

Last week Don (Bones) Raleigh—fourth leading scorer in the N.H.L. last season with 61 points—suffered a badly broken wrist in an exhibition game and will be lost to the club for at least eight weeks.

The pivot man bumped into defenceman Tim Horton of Pittsburgh Hornets and fractured his wrist in about eight places. He will be in a cast for six weeks and doctors doubt that he'll be fully mended before December.

After Raleigh's injury, Manager Frank Boucher again approached the voluntarily-retired Laprade who agreed to return to the hockey wars until Raleigh was in shape. In the meantime, however, league headquarters—through an apparent mistake, Boucher says—had asked waivers on Laprade and Chicago Black Hawks claimed him.

Whether Laprade takes over a caretaker spot to replace Raleigh or whether he belongs to the Hawks will be threshed out at a league meeting in New York Wednsday.

SOLID DEFENCE

The Ranger defence corps shapes up solidly. Reise, obtained for Reggie Sinclair, rights to an amateur players and cash, will team up with Allan Stanley for the No. 1 blueline pair.

Hy Buller, one of the league's top rookies last season, and Jim Ross, will make up another.

Either Jackie Evans or Steve Kraftcheck will be the fifth defenceman. Veteran Frankie Eddolls also has been working out with the club here but it is likely he'll end up elsewhere in the Ranger organization.

Formed late last season, the line centred by Paul Ronty, with Herb Dickenson and Wally Hergesheimer on the wings, looks like New York's top trio this season.

"They performed well in the closing stages last season," Boucher said, "and they've been looking good so far."

Raleigh was figured on to set up plays for Gaye Stewart and big Ed Slowinski but that arrangement has been shattered. Jackie McLeod, a right-winger turned centre, has been filling there lately.

SEEK 3RD LINE SPOT

Rangers' third line will come from this group: Six-foot-three Jack Stoddard, a top scorer in the American League who joined New York late last season; Ed Kullman, Nick Mickoski and Jim Conacher, all with the club in 1951-52 campaign; Ed Harrison, up from Cincinnati Mohawks, and Neil Strain, who performed with Saskatoon Quakers in the Pacific Coast Hockey League, now the Western League.

Three forwards from Guelph Biltmores, Dominion junior champions—Frank Bathgate, Dean Prentice and Ron Murphy—have been training with the parent club. Boucher rates them good prospects but whether they'll be turning pro this season hasn't been decided.

Rangers open the season in Detroit against the Red Wings Oct. 9. Did Boucher have any qualms about opening against the Stanley Cup champions?

"Not a one," he answered. "I figured we've improved a lot since last season. In my opinion, the Red Wings are the only club in the league who haven't bettered themselves."

Curtis Holds 25-Point Lead

TORONTO (CP)—A two-touchdown effort by Ulysses Curtis, enough to make the difference in Toronto Argonauts, 12-6 victory over the winless Montreal Alouettes Sunday gave the Toronto speedster a clear 25-point lead over the rest of Big Four football scorers.

The import from Florida A and M now has 45 points on nine touchdowns, almost an average of two majors a game.

Hal Waggoner, Hamilton Tiger-Cat back, matched Curtis' effort in the Cats' 27-13 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders and he went into second place, five points up on Toronto's Al Bruno and Montreal's Virgil Wagner, tied for third with 20 each.

But the big scorer in Eastern Canada senior football, shown by statistics compiled by The Canadian Press, is Corky Duchene of the league-leading Sarnia Imperials in the Ontario Rugby Football Union. He has a point-total of 50, made up of 10 touchdowns.

Second place in the O.R.F.U. goes to Archie McAffer, also of the Imps, with 31.

Kansas Whips Rochester 6-2

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Kansas City exploded with a four-run rally in the eighth inning to break up and tie and defeat Rochester 6-2 in the third game of the Little World Series last night.

The victory gave the American Association club a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

The Blues collected 10 hits, half of them for extra bases. Don Bollweg got two triples and catcher Mickey Owen clubbed a home run in the second inning to join Bob Cerv and Bill Skowron in the slugging ranks. Starter Cot Deal of the International League team was charged with the defeat.

Remember When—

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Babe Ruth set the home run record for the major leagues when he banged his 60th homer of the year for New York Yankees 25 years ago today. In his whole career from 1914 to 1935 Ruth, who died in 1948, hit 714 homers.

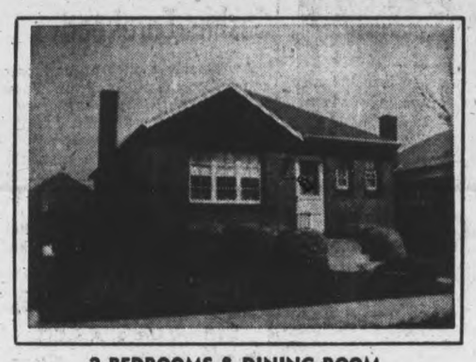
Operation "HAPPINESS"!



A Home Means Happiness

A happy home builds character. It is a guide for our children to insure us fine upright grandchildren. Good action today builds a good tomorrow.

Samuel Johnson Once Said:
"To be happy at home is the ultimate aim of all ambition." Many people deprive themselves today of living in the kind of home they need and would enjoy because they think of the reasons why they cannot and do not have it instead of reasons why they could have it. Thoughts create the means to have things. Negative thoughts deprive us of things. A home that pleases mother, father, and the children causes a happy family, allows time to expand and develop love and character. Know our staff. They will help you to find the home you need.

Over five thousand families bought and sold properties through Ernest Ridout offices last year. Fair dealing and efficient service have made this the largest real estate organization in North America. Our qualified staff of real estate experts can be of tremendous help to your real estate problems. Consult us now.

Unions Fight For Workers At Marmora

Mine, Mill Smelter Workers Opposed By Steelworkers

The Marmora district promises to be the next battleground in the bitter union battle between the left-wing International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers and the right-wing United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.).

Workers in the new iron ore development of Bethlehem Steel are the prize as the two unions strive to be the bargaining agent for them.

On Sunday there were demonstrations outside the meeting hall when C. H. Millard came to Marmora to put the case for Steel. One group told the Steelworkers' Canadian director to "get out of town," but he said his union would stay to organize the workers there.

George Herman, international representative of Mine-Mill, said today that there is no battle between the two unions.

HAVE HEARING

He said that Mine-Mill today had a hearing before the Ontario Labor Relations Board on their application to become the bargaining agent for 157 workers at the Marmora-Bethlehem Mine. Mine-Mill filed 102 cards.

There was no formal intervention by Steel so they have no legitimate claim, he said. However, a group of 56 workers had signed a petition saying they didn't want to be represented by Mine-Mill. This group was represented by David Lewis, legal counsel for the Steelworkers.

The O.L.R.B. hearing was adjourned to a later date.

In the meanwhile Steel is launching a campaign to sign up the iron ore workers.

"A number have already signed," Murray Cotterill, publicity director for Steel, said at noon today. "We have more than 90,000 workers in the Bethlehem Steel chain in the United States. As the ore—when it is mined—will be shipped to mills in the United States it is obviously in the interests of the Bethlehem workers in this mining area to be a part of the same organization."

Mr. Cotterill said there are some 5,000 iron ore workers elsewhere in Newfoundland and Ontario and they all come under the jurisdiction of Steel.

NEARBY SMELTER

A further complication is the presence of the Deloro Smelting and Refinery Co., a few miles northeast of Marmora. Its 200 production workers are already organized—members of Local 889, International Union of Mine, Mi and Smelter Workers.

At the moment they are in crucial negotiations with the company and the campaign of Steel to recruit members in the area has raised the cry of "strikebreaking" and "raiding."

Herman said the meeting called in Marmora on Sunday by Millard was "an outright strikebreaking attempt on the part of the Steelworkers Union."

"Negotiations had reached a critical stage between Local 889 and the company and strike action appeared imminent," said Herman. "The meeting called by Mr. Millard could serve no other purpose than to assist the company in refusing to grant the workers their just demands through negotiations."

"'Absolutely untrue," was Cotterill's comment. "We have absolutely no interest in Deloro, only in Bethlehem workers.

"The meeting on Sunday was to explain the state of the industry and our union policy. . . There was a deliberate attempt on the part of Mr. Herman to prevent the

Condon To Face Trial On Charge Of Manslaughter

Leonard Condon, 22, R.R. 4 Peterborough, will face trial on a manslaughter charge at the fall assizes.

Condon, who is charged in the death of Michael Heffernan, 37, was committed for trial after a preliminary hearing before Magistrate W. R. Philp, Monday.

Bail was fixed at $3,000.

Two crown witnesses, Frank Moher and Frank Leahy, differed in details of the fight, but both stated they saw Condon strike Heffernan twice.

They said they had seen Heffernan and Condon arguing at a table in the beverage room before the fight, but both Moher and Leahy said they did not think the argument was serious at the time.

At the conclusion of the crown's case, when court adjourned for recess at noon, Gordon H. T. Farquharson, who is defending Condon, intimated he might call defence evidence at the preliminary. After court resumed, however, Mr. Farquharson said he would not be calling any evidence and Condon was committed for trial.

Neither Mr. Farquharson nor crown attorney John A. Bradshaw offered any comments on the crown's case.

Curve Lake School Opened

CURVE LAKE (Staff)—At an impressive ceremony favored by fine fall weather, a $40,000 school building—one classroom and residence for three teachers—was officially opened at the Curve Lake Indian Reservation on Monday afternoon. The occasion coincided with the birthday of the school's principal, Miss Bertha Long of Norwood, who has held that post for the past 21 years in the basic two-room building.

Director of Indian affairs, Major D. M. MacKay, O.B.E., of Ottawa, addressed the gathering at length and revealed enough interesting facts to show that Indians were no longer wards of the crown.

INDIAN EDUCATION

"More than eight and one-half million dollars have been appropriated this year by the Federal Government for Indian education," he said. Their schools today number 389, with more than 25,000 students in attendance. Teachers, enrollment in non-Indian public and private schools and universities have increased proportionately. Major MacKay urged the students, and especially parents, to encourage pupils to continue schooling further than the eighth grade, and assured the audience that the Federal Government would give every assistance possible. Twelve per cent. of clerical workers in the department are Indians.

Chief James Coppaway opened the ceremony by reading an address of welcome to the visitors. Speeches were made by the following:

Assistant superintendent of education, R. F. Davey, Department of Indian Affairs; regional supervisor of Indian agencies for the province of Ontario, J. E. Morris; Mrs. Ben Taylor, president of Mud (Curve) Lake Homemakers' Club; school inspector, H. G. Mingay; social worker, Miss Helen Martins; Gordon K. Fraser, M.P.; superintendent of Peterborough schools, K. S. Wightman; Mayor Hugh Waddell of Peterborough; Warden R. R. Stewart, Peterborough County; E. C. Anderson, Victoria County school inspector.

The speakers stressed rigid school attendance, health and the hope that Indian students would make every endeavor to continue their studies in secondary schools and universities.

Other guests present at the school opening were: K. O. Birkin, Percy Windrum, Reeve of Lakefield Elwood Northey, Gordon Buie and Charles Weir, both of the Department of Lands and Forests, Reeve Gordon Fitzgerald of Smith township, the Rev. Willard Day of Curve Lake United Church and George Gray, school building contractor of Bailieboro. The ceremonies were under the direction of Indian Affairs superintendent E. A. Adams. Ladies of the Mud Lake Homemakers' Club served a buffet supper following the opening exercises.

Two Accident Victims Recovering In Hospital

Two of five accident victims injured in a head-on collision on Armour Rd., at McFarlane St., Friday night are still in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Condition of 27-year-old Ivan Eadie, of Warsaw, the most seriously injured is said to be only "fair" today. He is recovering from severe head injuries and deep cuts on his forehead and face.

Assistant fire chief Virgil Carr, 583 Gilchrist St., is also still in hospital recovering from knee injuries.

Carr was the driver of the southbound car. Miss Marie Woodhouse, 209 McGill St., a passenger in Carr's car was admitted to hospital for treatment but has been discharged.

Ralph Little, 30, of Warsaw, driver of the northbound car and George Payne, 27, also of Warsaw, were treated for minor injuries and later discharged.

Eadie was sitting in the right hand front seat of the car driven by Little.

Weed Inspector To Get Action

Board of Works reaffirmed Monday night the authority of City Engineer Chalmers in his responsibility as weed inspector to enter on private property and have weeds cut.

If persuasion fails, recourse may be had to compulsion. And the property owners will have to pay for the work done by the city men delegated by Mr. Chalmers.

Weed control officials are reluctant to apply but it was recently reported that County Weed Inspector M. H. Johnston had a case or two to which he was looking with something more active than disapproval.

If weed control officials order cutting by persons other than the property owners, the ultimate source of payment may be through the municipal taxes on the property, in the event of refusal to pay the cost of cutting.

Discuss Fire Protection

Otonabee ratepayers will hold a meeting at 8 p.m. next Monday to discuss fire protection in the township.

Present at the meeting will be David Low, of the Ontario fire marshal's office, as well as the two Smith township fire chiefs, the clerk of Smith and other authorities. The meeting follows a recent township council session on fire protection. It will be held in the township hall at Keene.

City May Repair House, Now Neglected Dwelling Charge Costs Against Owner

Bylaw Being Drafted For City Council Which Will Authorize Inspector To Either Raze or Repair Dwellings

A bylaw authorizing the city to repair the old Duke Lundy house at the southeast corner of Aylmer and Dalhousie Sts., owned by Percy Dunsford, Queen St., was outlined at the board of works meeting Monday night. And, when the job is done, providing the bylaw is passed and the work undertaken, the bill is a liability of the owner. If it is not paid, the sum expended by the city may be collected in the tax levy. The proposed bylaw is also aimed at the house owned by the late John J. McGlynn, Rutherford Ave. Both these neglected dwellings have given councils concern ten years or thereabouts.

MAY DEMOLISH ONE

"Ways and means" of effecting maintenance instead of letting the two building sink into dilapidation, to the annoyance of neighbors, have been studied by othe. councils. It was said last night that the bylaw would authorize the city to demolish the McGlynn house and repair the Lundy place.

Mr. McGlynn is dead, and there has been no probate of his will "Rather mysteriously, somebody has been keeping the taxes paid, so the property could not be sold for taxes," city solicitor Huycke said.

The influence of the Fire Marshal was sought by the city. That official came from Toronto, and Mr. Huycke used the amusing phrase, "but he ducked out".

"Then we tried to get the Crown Attorney to prosecute under the Fire Marshal's Act, and . . . "

Ald. Gillespie finished that sentence . . . "and he ducked out".

"The council worried Chief George Smith about it, and I believe a letter went to Hon. Harold Scott, but it was out of his depth. Even the Public Trustee was in on it."

It has been understood that a son of Mr. McGlynn pays the taxes. Meanwhile the physical condition of both houses descended from bad to worse and nothing could be done about it. They became neighborhood "eyesores".

So, a bylaw is being drafted which will authorize the building inspector, City Engineer Chalmers, to raze or repair, if an unsafe condition continues to exist.

A motion by Aldermen Burrows and Rehill directed Mr. Huycke to prepare it for the council's deliberation.

Car Hits Rear Of Parked Truck, Charge 2 Drivers

NORWOOD —(ENS) — Three charges—two under the Highway Traffic Act—were laid today after an accident Monday night in Norwood.

One man, J. C. Earnshaw of 113 Princess St., Peterborough, suffered cuts and bruises when the car he was riding in crashed into the rear of a parked transport. Earnshaw was pinned in the auto and had to be pried loose.

Driver of the car, Ralph Alley, 29, of Havelock, is charged with having liquor in his car and with careless driving.

Lloyd W. Edwards, 29, of Oakwood, the transport driver, faces a charge of parking on a highway. A number of cattle made up the load in the transport, and none was injured.

Earnshaw was treated at the scene of the crash by Dr. A. R. Atkinson of Norwood for cuts and bruises. Edwards was cut slightly on the face and lips. Norwood constable Herb Bradley investigated.

Drama Festival In November

Peter McCombe, chairman of the Peterborough and District Drama Festival, confirmed today that this year's drama festival for amateur groups of this region will be held November 13-15 at the Queen Mary auditorium.

Entry forms are now available from the Recreation Commissioner, city hall, and last date to enter is set at October 8.

Last year's festival of three performances lasted two days. Its success and the interest already being shown in this year's festival have prompted the committee, Mr. McCombe says, to tentatively extend the festival to three days: Thursday to Saturday.

The festival is non-competitive. An outstanding adjudicator will be retained to assess and criticize the individual performances.

Elderly Man Falls Gashes Forehead

An elderly man who collapsed and fell to the sidewalk on Water St., at Parkhill Rd., Monday evening is recovering in St. Joseph's Hospital.

A passerby saw the man fall and he was taken to hospital by police, where he was treated for a bad gash on his forehead.

The man was later identified as William Spencer, 67, of Lakefield.

Check Movement of Aliens Across Border Into U.S.

Desperate methods used by recently-arrived European immigrants to slip across the border from Canada to the United States are described by staff writer Stanley Handman in Saturday's issue of WEEKEND Picture Magazine in the Examiner.

To gather material for this second of two articles, Handman went to Washington and then visited border points to discuss the problem with U.S. immigration officials. He learned of the tactics used by aliens who seem to stop at nothing in their determination to enter and live in the United States. Increasing thousands are sneaking across the imaginary 4,000-mile line, using every means of conveyance.

The WEEKEND article deals with several "case histories" and tells of the doings of highly-organized gangs that smuggle human cargo.

Another fact of U.S.-Canada relations is examined in an article on St. John's, Nfld. In this, pictures and story describe the atmosphere of friendliness and acceptance that surrounds American servicemen stationed at the capital of Canada's newest province.

Staff writer Cyril Robinson tells how St. John's has fallen in love with the U.S. airmen who have brought millions to the city's merchants and marriage to many of its daughters. Nowhere in the many parts of the world where American forces are stationed have they made so great and good an impression. They are, Robinson suggests, far more popular than Canadians from the other nine provinces. "The hospitable natives lent a tolerant ear to the mainlanders," he says, "but they literally threw their arms around the Americans."

With Coronation year approaching, readers will be interested in a new portrait of Queen Elizabeth, published for the first time in Canada by WEEKEND. In full color, it occupies the two centre pages and is 14 by 18½ inches, suitable for framing. The story of the artist, Margaret Lindsay Williams, who has made portraits of four generations of Royalty, is in the same issue. Her paintings are reproduced, as well as her magnificent picture of the young Queen.

Husband Calls Love Note "Ridiculous"

HAMILTON (CP)—A love note written by Mrs. Mary Rosenblatt before she was found shot to death was described in court here yesterday as "ridiculous" by her husband, Charles Rosenblatt.

He testified on the opening day of the trial of Henry Lee, 37, charged with the murder of Mrs Rosenblatt June 2. The trial, before Mr. Justice W. F. Spence, is expected to last until Thursday.

Crown Attorney Harvey McCulloch in his outline of the case said Lee pulled up at a garage near Sheffield at about 1 a. m. June 2, bleeding from two wounds in the chest made by a .22-calibre rifle found in the back seat of his car. Mary Rosenblatt lay in the front seat, dead from two shots one of which hit her heart.

In Lee's pocket a short note was found saying: "I wanted to go with Harry tonight for this ride, and I am as much to blame as he is. We're both crazy in love with each other. Mary Rosenblatt."

Her husband testified that they had been married 20 years, had two children and had been happy.

Shown a photographic copy of his wife's note, he said it was not her normal writing. "She's much neater than that. She must have been under a great stress. I don't think she wrote it of her own free will."

Unemployed Show Big Drop

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's unemployed dropped to 147,800 from 175,700 in the five weeks up to Sept. 4, the Labor Department reported yesterday.

It was the lowest jobless total so far this year, though still above the figure of 129,000 for the same time last year.

In Ontario, job applications declined to 43,100 from 50,900. Most important factors, the department said, were increased activity in the construction and some manufacturing industries, and increased demand for farm labor.

West Failing To Meet Challenge—Meighen

BOSTON (AP)—Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, former Canadian Prime Minister, said last night that he does not believe the western world is meeting the challenge of Communism in earnest.

He spoke at the annual dinner meeting of the Boston Stock Exchange.

"Communism is a moral disease and a fraud," he said, "but we must acknowledge that it is human energy, courage and enterprise. It is unbounded willingness to toil and endure."

The onetime Conservative leader named socialism and its "handmaiden"—the welfare state—as important aides to Communism within the western world.

Jury Convicts Indian Of Manslaughter

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Archie Seneca, 33-year-old Muncey Reserve Indian, yesterday was convicted of manslaughter in the death of Mrs. Lydia Riley, whose bullet-torn body was found near the reserve May 11. He had been charged with murder. He will be sentenced Friday.

When the jury returned its verdict yesterday after deliberating for 1¾ hours, Mr. Justice R.I. Ferguson said: "I know you must have taken a merciful view of the events to arrive at that verdict."

The grand jury had returned true bills charging Seneca with the murder of Herman Henry and Beatrice Henry in addition to the murder of Mrs. Riley. Nothing was said of these charges in court yesterday. After the trial, crown Attorney C.C. Savage said their disposition would depend on instructions from the Attorney-General's Department.

Mrs. Riley's body was found on the slope of a gully, bullet wounds in the head, chest and back. Those of the Henrys were found side by side about a quarter-mile away. Seneca was arrested three days later. All had been shot.

In his summary, Mr. Justice Ferguson said of the defence contention that the accused was drunk, that drunkenness was not a defence "unless you are satisfied he was so drunk he was incapable of forming the intent to kill."

Plan To Offer Greater Incentive To Private Capital—Ottawa

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Canadian government's capital-assistance pipeline which poured more than $170,000,000 into defence production expansion during the last 18 months may be gradually choked off soon.

Government policy-makers are thinking of replacing it through more generous use of another method—allowing abnormally high depreciation write-offs for income tax purposes—to continue encouraging private investment in Canada's defence effort.

The change may see a drop in the amount of risk capital supplied by the government to expand the defence machine, but it may ease the load on the taxpayer when the next annual budget rolls around.

Under the capital-assistance program the government plows money into development of factories filled with machines which might have little use except for the building of arms. Private industries operate the plants for the government on a fee basis and when the need for them ends, usually get first chance at purchasing them, if the private companies want to convert to some other use.

GOVERNMENT LOSES

The government usually ends up the loser, realizing only part of the cash it invested. The government takes all the risk.

Under the accelerated depreciation program, the private company invests its own money. But the government helps by allowing extra-large depreciation write-offs for income tax purposes during the first four years, to reduce the company's risk of loss should the defence program suddenly fold after that time.

Both of these federal inducements to encourage rapid defence construction development have been employed in Canada's three-year, $5,000,000,000 defence program started in April, 1951.

A major portion of the capital assistance went towards development of Canada's aircraft and shipbuilding industry. Now the feeling is that the current build-up is just about sufficient to produce all of those types of war weapons Canada needs under current planning.

If further large investment is required, the policy-makers feel that with proper encouragement, private industry will be able to carry the ball.

PROGRAM COSTLY

Capital-assistance requirements make heavy demands on the taxpayer's dollar. Last year, Parliament appropriated $90,000,000 for capital assistance and this year added another $100,000,000.

So far, capital assistance has been approved for some $188,800,000 worth of projects.

Jury Fails To Agree On Fleming Verdict

BRAMPTON (AP)—A Supreme Court jury yesterday failed to agree on a verdict for William Fleming, 30, charged with manslaughter in a highway accident June 28. Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven ordered a new trial.

The case arose from the deaths of Anne Vanderhule, 15, and William Green, 14, who were struck by a car while walking home from a Port Credit theatre.

U. of T. Senate Sends Greetings To St. Michael's

TORONTO (CP)—The Senate of the University of Toronto, in a goodwill message marking St. Michael's College centenary, said that today no liberal state can continue to exist in a moral vacuum because of "the threat of diabolic powers."

The message was read last night at the centennial dinner by University College Principal F. C. A. Jeanneret. It said: "An education which is spiritually neutral fails to arm its citizens with the shield of faith and the sword of the spirit for their conflict with false and insidious religions."

The message, signed by University President Sidney Smith and Registrar J. C. Evans, congratulated the college on completing a century of service.

BRINGS GREETINGS

Lieutenant-Governor L. C. Breithaupt brought greetings from Ontario and Mayor Allan Lamport sent Toronto's congratulations.

James Cardinal McGuigan, Archbishop of Toronto, said that St. Michael's, once firmly established, "has been able to provide intellectual and cultural leadership which is recognized from one end of the country to the other."

Earlier, Archbishop McGuigan celebrated pontifical high mass. Attending were Edward Cardinal Mooney, Archbishop of Detroit, and Papal Delegate Archbishop Ildebrando Antoniutti, personal representative of the Pope in Canada. The sermon was preached by Most Rev. R. H. Dignan, Bishop of Sault Ste. Marie.

3 Outstanding Canadians To Get Honorary Degrees

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Three outstanding Canadians in the fields of writing, history and education will be honored by the University of Western Ontario at its fall convocation Oct. 24.

The honorary degree of doctor of letters will be conferred on Hugh MacLennan, 45, internationally-known Canadian novelist. Historian Louis Blake Duff of Welland will receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws. Leonard Wheeling, former superintendent of Windsor, schools, will be awarded the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

Between 75 and 100 undergraduate students also will receive their degrees.

RECOGNIZE CONTRIBUTIONS

Dr. G. E. Hall, university president, in announcing recipients of honorary degrees, said the university was continuing its policy of recognizing contributions to Canadian life, and particularly in the three fields represented by the Canadians to be honored this year.

Mr. MacLennan's novels "have publicized Canada outside her borders," the president said.

Dr. Hall described Mr. Duff as a noted Canadian historian and a great Canadian citizen.

Born in Bluevale in 1878, he was a reporter for newspapers in Wingham, Stratford, Galt and Welland. For a number of years he was editor and publisher of the Welland Telegraph. He sold this paper in 1926.

Mr. Wheeling, born in St. Catharines in 1884, was superintendent of Windsor schools from 1939 to 1950.

Courtship Rocky Road For Befuddled Penguins

WASHINGTON.—The penguin is a clown in formal dress, a bird that "flies" underwater, eats pebbles, and often cannot tell whether the neighboring bird he is courting is a little girl penguin or just another boy that is fooling him.

The fascinating habits and idiosyncrasies of these remarkable inhabitants of the Southern Hemisphere are thoroughly explored by David Hellyer and Malcolm Davis in Nature's Clown, the Penguin, in the National Geographic Magazine.

The writers find that there are six genera of penguins, and from 17 to 22 living species, ranging in size from the powerful emperor, who may grow to a height of four feet, down to the bantamweight Eudyptula minor, an Australian native that measures a bare 15 or 16 inches.

None range north of the equator, and the Emperor spends his entire life on the frigid Antarctic continent, where the temperature may go to 77 degrees below zero. Other varieties, such as the Galapagos, named for their native islands, live practically on the equator. All eat marine crustacea, cuttlefish and other sea food.

FLIGHTLESS BIRDS

Penguins are truly flightless birds, in that they never rise higher into the air than they can jump. Instead of wings they have flippers, which enable them to travel at remarkable speed under water. With these flippers they literally fly beneath the surface. One variety has been clocked swimming 30 feet a second, submerged.

Despite their manlike formal attire and their ability to clown, penguins probably would win no prizes in intelligence tests. As an example of stupidity, Hellyer and Davis cite the Adelies, who "are so pea-brained that, in their anxiety to be good fathers and mothers, they will often brood over a small rock, a piece of ice, or a dead and frozen chick. Lacking the genuine article, one Adelie was observed baby-sitting on a discarded cheese tin."

Sometimes, instead of sitting on rocks, penguins eat them. Pebbles frequently are found in their alimentary canals.

Pebbles also are important in penquin courtship, which can be rather confusing to penquins and observers alike. A hopeful male picks up a pebble and offers it to his intended as a prize. If, instead of accepting it, the lady rejects it and turns out to be another male, and it sometimes happens, the pebble has to be picked up and offered all over again.

The absurdity to which this confusion can be carried was once illustrated forcefully to the noted ornithologist, Dr. Robert Cushman Murphy. A particularly myopic courting penguin approached him and gravely laid a pebble at his feet.

SELF-PRESERVATION

Stupid as they may be, penguins have a well-developed sense of self-preservation. Playing on an ice shelf and desiring to swim, Adelies will be curious about the safety of the water. They want to know if there is a hungry leopard seal in the neighborhood. To determine this they manoeuvre around until one bird gets pushed overboard. If the trial balloon comes up uneaten, the whole gang takes to the water.

Penguins sometimes are remarkably courteous to man. Explorers tell of approaching penguin colonies only to have a deputation of birds advance toward them, led by a spokesman who gravely offers an address of welcome in penguin language.

Reds Torture Five Priests

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Roman Catholic news agency Fides reported yesterday five more "tortured-scarred missionaries" have come out of Red China with grim stories of how the Communists try to obtain confessions of espionage.

The five, all in pitiful condition, Fides reported from Hong Kong, are: Rev. Maurice Kavanaugh, of Ireland, Rev. Joseph Schyns, Rev. Ulrich Lebrun, Rev. Albert Van Lierde and Rev. Karel de Ryck, all of Belgium.

They were quoted as describing in detail tortures including "the Communist airplane ride," hanging from rafters, plucking of beards, and weeks without sleep.

The five were arrested in Peiping July 25, 1951, in a clean-up of foreigners accused of spying.

In the "Communist airplane ride" sticks were tied behind their knees and elbows and from these they were suspended on poles from which they were swung for hours, until they cried for mercy, promised to confess or fainted.

TORONTO (CP)—A number of University of Toronto students learned yesterday that the university owes them money. During the summer a form was sent out so students could pay fees by mail before registering in the fall. All students in arts and professional faculties were charged $1 too much. Students who paid when they registered paid the right amount. The university will refund the $1.

Stevenson Defends Korean Steps

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Governor Adlai E. Stevenson, defending the administration's action in Korea, said last night that when the Communists crossed the 38th parallel "that was the testing point for freedom throughout the world."

The Democratic presidential nominee said in a television and radio broadcast that when the Reds were stopped in Korea the action "was received with enthusiastic shouts of approval by the overwhelming majority of the American people, and even by the Republican leadership."

But now, the Republicans "attempt to make you believe that it was almost an act of treason."

"But what do you think they would be saying now if we had not stopped the enemy in Korea, if Japan was threatened and if east Asia was falling bit by bit to the enemy?" he added. "Would they not now be saying that Harry Truman and Joseph Stalin were boyhood friends in Outer Mongolia?"

U.S. MUST LEAD

The United States, he said, "must play the principal part in saying ourselves, our friends and our civilization" from "this monster tyranny" of Communism.

He said his mail indicated the people are troubled most by these four questions:

"Korea, how serious is the Communist danger in this country, is our prosperity in danger, and how can we get the highest integrity and dignity in government?"

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Two pop bottles hurled from the Ambassador Bridge Sunday struck and injured two passengers of a cabin cruiser 152 feet below on the Detroit River. T. R. Jones, manager of the Windsor branch of the Imperial Bank, and his daughter, Mrs. Frank Baldwin, were knocked unconscious when struck by the flying bottles. They suffered abrasions and head bruises.

Kennan Staying Put

WASHINGTON (AP)—A State Department spokesman said yesterday that Ambassador George F. Kennan will return soon to his Moscow post despite the sharp attack made on him by the Communist party newspaper Pravda. Pravda last week called Kennan a "slanderer disguised as a diplomat" and said he lied about the Soviet Union. Kennan now is in West Germany.

Naguib Promises Egypt Britain Forced From Nile

MEHALLA EL KOBRA, Egypt (AP)—Premier Mohamed Naguib, making a triumphal tour of northern Egypt, promised thousands of wildly-cheering Egyptians yesterday that Britain would be forced out of the Nile Valley.

Naguib, army strongman who sent King Farouk into exile, was hailed everywhere by peasants as the "common man sent by God to save us."

Those travelling with the premier, who is a major-general, said the popular enthusiasm for the country's new leader exceeded any such demonstrations within their memory.

"Long live the enemy of our enemies, the landlords," the peasants shouted to Naguib, who has approved legislation breaking up vast land holdings of wealthy Egyptians for sale to the poor.

At Tanta, provincial capital 60 miles north of Cairo, Naguib addressed a crowd estimated at 55,000. After urging Egyptians to forget partisan quarrels and unite, he said the army which took over the government in a military coup last July would "not consider its movement fulfilled until British evacuation of the Nile Valley and unity between the Sudan and Egypt has been accomplished."

Lawn Of Sunnyside Farm Setting For Fall Wedding

The marriage took place September 24 of Delma Garbutt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Garbutt, of Lakefield, and James Robert Fawcett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fawcett, of Lakehurst, on the lawn of Sunyside Farm in Smith township.

The Rev. Timothy Wesley officiated.

The lawn and arch were decorated with white bells, roses, cannas and palms. The wedding music was played by Miss Mary Nicholls. During the signing of the register, Miss Melba Pavy and Miss Lenore Armstrong sang, "I Love You Truly."

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a floor-length gown of Chantilly lace over slipper satin with long sleeves and seed pearls inset between lace and nylon net yoke. Covered buttons extended from pointed waist to Peter Pan collar with seed pearl inset. Her fingertip veil was of embroidered nylon net illusion and was caught to a headdress of pearl orange blossoms. She carried a showered cascade of garnet roses and bourvardia.

Miss Ruth Flynn, of Lakehurst, was bridesmaid. She wore a gown of nylon marquisette over pink taffeta with nylon net yoke, matching headdress with an embroidered chapel length veil and matching mittens. She carried a ring bouquet of gladioli and chrysanthemums.

The two flower girls, Donna and Diane McEwen, of Callender, cousins of the bride, were frocked in lime green and daffodil yellow corded taffeta. They wore matching headdresses of orange blossoms and lily-of-the-valley and carried matching ring bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums.

Keith Fawcett was his brother's best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Beachwood Lodge where the bride's mother received, wearing a grey gabardine suit with black and wine accessories, and a corsage of red roses.

The groom's mother assisted in a grey two-piece dress of ottoman cord with black velvet and rhinestone trim, black velvet accessories and a corsage of red roses.

On their return, they will live in Smith township.

African Theme Features St. James' Church Services

A weekend in Africa, consisting of special missionary services on Sunday and a Missionary and Maintenance banquet Monday was held in St. James' United Church.

The purpose behind the two-day event was to fit in with the missionary study books in the church groups which are centred in African mission work for the 1952-53 season.

Capacity congregations attended the missionary services Sunday. The guest speaker was the Rev. Anson C. Moorhouse, a former missionary in Africa. He chose as his subject, "The Challenge of Africa," for the morning service. He explained that missionary responsibility in Africa is not a matter of choice but a necessity. Referring to the ever-diminishing distance between continents, the guest minister said that now there is an absolute need for missionary conviction and action on the part of the church. This alone can bring Christian fellowship among the peoples of the world.

At present Mr. Moorehouse is connected with the film production department of the United Church. At the evening service he showed a film, "The King's Man." The picture is about the life of the Rev. Frederico Mussili, who entered the Christian ministry through the influence and training of the United Church in Angola.

Mr. Moorhouse's visit to Peterborough was of special interest as his father, the Rev. A. E. Moorehouse, was a former minister of St. James' United Church.

The activities of the weekend were brought to a close Monday evening with the M. and M. banquet served by the members of the St. James' Women's Association.

The guest speaker for the evening was the Rev. J. Arthur Steed, of Lakefield, who is home on furlough from Angola where he is a missionary. Mr. Steed described the experiences of missionaries in Africa and the development and progress of the work there. He told stories of native customs and the effect upon them of Christian teachings.

Mr. Steed was introduced by the Rev. H. D. McCormack, of St. James' United Church.

Greetings were expressed by the Rev. Nathaniel Cole, of Hastings United Church, and chairman man of the Peterborough Presbytery; E. L. Sackville, lay representative for George St. United Church and a commissioner to the 1952 Church Council and the Rev. A. E. Larke of Springville United Church and representative of the M. and M. committee of the Peterborough Presbytery.

Music for the evening was provided by Mrs. D. R. Jackman, who sang two solos. A sing-song was led by Ron Davis, president of the Young People's Union.

Star Of U.K. Troupe Touring Canada Will Visit Port Hope

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON (CP) — Attractive, tawny-eyed Jacqueline Lacey, has her fingers crossed. She's hoping Canada will like her.

Jacqueline, whose hair matches her light-brown eyes, is one of a London Theatre group of 14 players who sailed for Newfoundland recently. They open at St. John's Oct. 6 in "Pink String and Sealing Wax."

CANADA-BOUND — Irish-born Jacqueline Lacey, 26-year-old actress, is on her way to Canada with a London theatre group of 14 that hopes to tour the Dominion. It opens at St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 6, in "Pink String and Sealing Wax." A versatile actress, she will play many parts, from Portia in the "Merchant of Venice" to the principal boy in the Christmas pantomime.

The company, under the direction of Leslie Yeo, hopes to tour Canada. It will go to Halifax Nov. 9, return to St. John's for a Christmas pantomime and then perhaps to Toronto and Ottawa.

PLAYS MANY PARTS

Jacqueline's scheduled Canadian parts cover a wide range. She plays all types of characters from Portia in the "Merchant of Venice," to the principal boy in Cinderella." Other parts are Kate in Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" and the female lead in James Hilton's "Random Harvest."

Miss Lacey was picked for the Canadian tour because of her versatility. Since her schooldays, this 26-year-old girl from just outside Dublin has thought of nothing but a stage career.

She left school to become assistant and general run-around for the stage manager at a provincial theatre, and fought her way to lead parts in West End plays. After wartime service with the Royal Navy, she spent a year on a scholarship at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art.

From touring parts in 1947 Jacqueline climbed to a part in Orson Welles' 1951 West End production of "Othello."

Here she shared a dressing-room with Edmonton-born Dianne Foster, who played Bianca. Dianne has just landed the coveted part of Alan Ladd's leading lady in the film "The Red Beret."

Recently, Miss Lacey made several appearances on television and one of her ambitions is to appear on Canadian television.

"I want to stay at least two months after the tour and see something of Canada," she said. One of her first ports of call will be the home of cousin Michael Jarvis at Port Hope.

Swim Suit Unsinkable

LONDON (CP)—An unsinkable swim suit is the latest device undergoing experimental tests in the battle against poliomyelitis.

Sponsored by the British Infantile Paralysis Fellowship, public demonstrations have been given in London, with polio sufferers dressed in the life-saving garment being slowly lowered into the Thames.

Dennis Kellett, 32, disabled in both legs by the disease, was the first patient to participate in the public demonstration. Although a non-swimmer and weighing 182 pounds, he was kept afloat while he went through a series of exercises. Buoyancy was provided by a kapok lining, weighing about two ounces, attached to the suit.

Officials of the Fellowship believe the suit will help those disabled by infantile paralysis and other diseases to benefit from water treatment.

Call Of The Air Luring Women

LONDON (CP)—One of the biggest staff problems of Britain's airlines may soon be resolved, reports British Overseas Airways Corporation.

Months of expensive training are necessary to fit girls for the work of air hostesses. They often leave to marry within a year's service, said an official.

But now the call of the air is luring some of these women back.

One "old timer," serving on B.O.A.C. after a three-year break, is attractive Mrs. T. Ponsford, who left to marry one of the corporation's senior officials.

"It may sound silly and sentimental, but I found I really missed the atmosphere," she said. the first revision in 51 years.

Burke-Dion

The marriage took place recently of Miss Irma Gertrude Dion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dion of Rockland, and Leo Edward Burke of Peterborough, son of Mrs. Thomas Burke and the late Mr. Burke in Holy Trinity Church, Rockland, near Ottawa.

The Rev. Eugene Lalonde officiated and the wedding music was played by Miss Alma Lafleur. The soloist was Miss Jeanne Seed of Picton, aunt of the bride.

Given in marriage by her uncle, W. R. Seed, the bride was attended by Miss Ferdie Laporte of Fort Coulonge and Ottawa.

The bride's gown was designed with a strapless bodice of Chantilly lace and net over taffeta. The skirt was created with an overdrape of lace trimmed with blue velvet ribbon. The long-sleeved jacket of lace featured a Chinese neckline. With her ankle-length gown, she wore a halo of pale blue net and lace and a fingertip veil of nylon tulle. She carried a cascade bouquet of Happy Day roses. Her only jewelry was a necklace of pearls set in gold worn by her mother on her wedding day.

Mr. Stephen Burke, brother of the groom, was best man and the ushers were Mr. Raymond Seed and Mr. Brian Seed.

Following the reception at the home of the bride's parents, the couple left on a wedding trip to the New England States and Boston. For travelling the bride chose a navy blue gabardine suit, red velvet hat with matching purse and navy blue accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Burke will live on Otonabee St., Peterborough.

Need Environment Change Worrier Told to Leave Home

DEAR MISS DIX: My problem concerns the atmosphere of our home. I am unmarried, living with my parents and brothers. I am a very nervous person, and a great worrier. My folks are good, and well-meaning, but they are anti-social and easily given to arguments among themselves. I don't feel free to invite friends home, since I never know how my folks are going to behave. Worry over my home situation is making me so nervous that I find it difficult to do my work. When I try to talk to my mother, she misunderstands me and acts as if I were trying to make trouble.

S. H.

ANSWER: Your trouble seems to be entirely of nervous origin, but whether it has all originated with your family, or whether some of it has been induced by outside worries, is impossible for me to decide. A frank discussion of the problem with your doctor or minister would yield more tangible assistance.

Learning to live with one's family can often be a difficult task. It is, nevertheless, one of life's first requirements. No matter how different your outlook may be from theirs, no one in the whole world will ever be as close to you as your own blood relatives. Blood is thicker than water. As a member of a large family you must learn to accept their failings, make the most of their virtues and adjust your own temperament to communal living. Any attempt to evade it will lead to ultimate unhappiness for you.

DON'T MAKE IT PERMANENT

However, I do feel that a temporary separation from your family would be good at the present time. Don't try to make a permanent break. Why not get a job in another city for a while? This would strengthen your own independence, which seems to be weak, would give you a better perspective on the family and living your own life for a while will certainly awaken you to an appreciation of your own folks. There's no need for you to quarrel with your parents over the separation. With the help of your doctor and minister, they can easily be convinced that your health requires a change of environment. New work in a new locality should produce results, if your trouble stems chiefly from home atmosphere. Should this drastic change fail to bring about an improvement in your nerves, psychiatric treatment is indicated.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: How can I deal with a girl who is lacking in consideration? I am a young man of 23, going with a girl two years younger. We are very fond of each other, but she leads me into the most embarrassing situations. For instance, when we are out, if she meets a friend, she'll stand and talk for half an hour or more leaving me stranded. She doesn't even introduce us. Often when I call on her she'll extend the same treatment, engaging in some activity or talking to someone and leaving me on the side lines.

D. S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: While it's possible that your girl friend is simply ignorant of the fundamentals of good manners, her actions are more indicative of a terrific ego that impels her to put everyone around her in an inferior light. Most erroneously, she believes that her own position is thereby exalted. It is — but only in her own eyes. Marry such a girl only if you want to spend the rest of your life basking in the reflected light of her radiant personality. Such an existence, I warn you, can become very boring.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: After 27 years of marriage, my husband who was never good to me or our four children, left me and went away — no one knows where. For the first time in the 27 years I have peace, though its hard for me to get along.

I have met a man of 51 who is married with grown children. He claims he wants to divorce his wife and marry me when my divorce is granted. Do you think I would be doing right to marry him and have what happiness I can for the remainder of my life? I am 41.

B. M. W.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your life certainly hasn't held much happiness so far. Married at 14 to a man considerably older who mistreated you for 27 years, your situation calls forth nothing but pity. You can be thankful your husband left on his own accord; the hardships you have until you are on your feet are nothing compared to those you have endured so long.

Don't add to your misery, however, by becoming involved with a married man. When you both are divorced, think of remarriage if you wish, but not before. Concentrate now on making a place for yourself in the working world.

People Happier Years Ago Enjoyed Simpler Things

PORT PERRY —"I have no secret for longevity . . . I just come by it naturally I guess," says Mrs. Susanna Moase, who at 95 is Port Perry's oldest citizen. "My mother lived to be 103 and another relative also reached the century mark."

A native of Mariposa township, Mrs. Moase has out-lived four brothers and four sisters, most of whom reached 90 years. Her husband and daughter predeceased her a few years ago. She indicated that good food may aid long life. "I grew up on a farm and always had plenty of good things to eat."

Despite the many wonders of this age Mrs. Moase thinks the people of her times were more satisfied. "They seemed to enjoy the more simple things and were a happier race than today," she said, recalling the joyous gatherings at churches, schools, and picnics. "It was a wonderful day when several school sections got together and many games were played and the bands and singers joined in."

HAS GOOD MEMORY

Almost totally blind for the past few years and partially lame, Mrs. Moase still has a sparkling memory and keen hearing. As a result the radio which she listens to regularly is her best companion. "I don't know what I'd do without my radio." She keeps up on the local and world happenings via the news-casts and especially enjoys the Sunday church service broadcasts. She is also a regular listener to Cities Service's program "Patriarchs and Papers".

A resident of Port Perry for 48 years, Mrs. Moase came here at the turn of the century when this village was a railway centre and Lake Scugog was churned by steam boats carrying passengers and freight. "Port Perry had fine homes and a good business section and was a bustling centre."

Born on May 25, 1857, the daughter of the late William and Mary Rogers, she attended public school at Mariposa and finished off at Lindsay high school. Although not a strong girl she was kept busy on the farm of her parents. "I guess that's why I had no hobbies in those days. I was generally at home and there was always lots to do on farm of three and four hundred acres.

In 1876 the Rev. N. S. Scott of Seagrave, married the then Susanna Rogers and John Moase at her Mariposa township home to start 62 years of wedded bliss. The happy combination farmed there for 18 years until they moved to Port Perry where Mr. Moase took up carpentry. "The journey here was by horse and sleigh in midwinter. Twenty-five miles in an open sleigh was just a short trip in those days and the roads were a lot different and the snow a lot deeper."

Despite her affliction, Mrs. Moase is very cheerful and thankful that she is as well as she is. Her happiest occasion each year is when her nephews and nieces numbering upward of 20, mostly from the Oakwood district, come to her home for a birthday dinner party.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Green Tomato Recipes For Many Readers

With these cool nights I know that many of you with gardens are frantically trying to gather and store the produce still on the vines and in the ground. Right now I have a dozen or so letters from you asking for green tomato recipes.

My friend Kathryn makes green tomato mincemeat, a jar of which usually reaches our house around Christmas time, so farther down in the column you will locate the recipe.

Green tomato mincemeat makes appropriate Christmas gifts. So do any of these pickles. Think of how welcome a jar of homemade green tomato relish would be to a family with no precious fruit cellar bulging with pickles—as yours is.

GREEN TOMATO RELISH

Four quarts tomatoes, 2 onions, ½ cup salt, 1 quart vinegar diluted by ADDING 1 pint water, making 1½ quarts altogether, 4 cups brown sugar, 3 tablespoons mustard seed, 1 tablespoon each whole cloves and whole allspice, 2 sticks cinnamon, 1 tablespoon chopped ginger root, 2 red peppers hot (if preferred not so hot use only 1 red pepper). Wash tomatoes and cut into slices about ¼ inch thick. Peel the onions and cut into very thin slices. Put tomato and onion slices in layers in large bowl, sprinkling the layers with the salt as you add them. Cover this with a plate that fits inside bowl to weight them down and let stand overnight. In morning drain, but do not rinse. Heat the diluted vinegar to boiling point with the sugar, red peppers cut into thin strips and the spices tied loosely in cheesecloth bag. When boiling add the tomato and onion slices, cook over low heat, allowing them to boil for 1 hour or until tomatoes are transparent. Pour into sterile jars and seal. If you have a very cool cellar this may be kept in sterile crock covered.

GREEN TOMATO MINCEMEAT

Three pounds green tomatoes, 3½ lbs. tart apples, 2 lbs. each brown sugar and raisins, 1 cup finely chopped suet, 1 tablespoon each salt, nutmeg, grated lemon rind, 2½ tablespoons cinnamon, 2 teaspoons cloves (ground), 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 1¾ cups vinegar (if desired the vinegar may be replaced with cider). Chop or grind tomatoes, add salt and let stand 1 hour. Drain well, then add barely enough water to see it under surface of tomatoes. Bring to boil for 5 minutes and drain again. Add pared, cored and finely chopped apples and all other ingredients, mixing well. Bring to boiling, then simmer 1 hour, stirring very frequently. Pour into sterile jars and seal. Seven pints.

GREEN TOMATO SAUCE
(With Apples)

Six quarts washed and chopped green tomatoes (have made this with tomatoes forced through coarsest knife of food chopper), 1-3 cup salt, 1 large onion, 2 quarts chopped apples (these do not have to be peeled if put through coarsest knife of food chopper), 1 large bunch chopped celery including leaves, 2 teaspoons mustard seed, 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, cloves and allspice, 2 pounds white sugar, 1 quart cider or spirit vinegar. Sprinkle the salt over the chopped tomatoes and onions and let stand overnight. In the morning drain and add chopped celery and apples. Mix the spices with the sugar and add them to the vinegar. Stir this into the mixed vegetables and fruit and place over low heat and after it comes to gentle boil simmer 1 hour. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

The reason I am not including piccalilli is because I gave it to you two or three weeks ago. As you know it contains green tomatoes and belongs here. If you still want it again let me know.

BARBECUE SAUCE

Four quarts chopped cabbage, 6 quarts chopped green tomatoes, 1 pint chopped onions, 6 green or 3 green and 3 red sweet peppers, 1 bunch chopped celery. Mix and add ½ cup salt to these vegetables which have been chopped fine and let stand overnight covered. Drain. Add the following: 1½ lbs. brown sugar, 2 tablespoons salt, 1 tablespoon each mustard seed, ginger, ground cloves, cinnamon, celery seed, turmeric, curry powder; add ½ gallon vinegar and boil altogether for ½ hour. Pour into sterile jars and seal. Wonderful with hamburgers or hot dogs.

WRONG: Don't bother.

RIGHT: Send her flowers if you can.

James Bay Storm Claims 4 Lives

MONTREAL (CP)—George H. Carpenter who writes an outdoor column for the Montreal Gazette under the pen-name "Izaak Hunter" reported today that a weekend storm sweeping James Bay cost at least four lives.

Mr. Carpenter, who flew back to Montreal yesterday from a hunting expedition to James Bay, reported in his column the havoc caused by the far-northern storm will not be known for weeks.

He said four young Indian hunters lost their lives when their 20-foot, motor - driven canoe was wrecked by a 60-mile-an-hour gale.

The bay's gale - driven water smashed docks, damaged aircraft and caused boats to founder.

Mr. Carpenter said he believes his news of the storm is the first to reach civilization.

Two Men Pay Fines On Liquor Charges

Two men pleaded guilty to liquor charges in police court today. McLaren Logan, 28, 270 William St., was fined $10 and $2.50 costs or ten days when he pleaded guilty to a drunk charge.

Kenneth Clarke, Otonabee township, was fined $15 and $2.50 costs for having liquor in a place other than his residence.

Unions Fight

Bethlehem workers from hearing the facts.

TRYING TO INTIMIDATE

"It was a disgusting exhibition. They brought in some of the crowd from Deloro and several carloads of Jackson's buddies from down your way, in Peterborough. They were trying to intimidate the workers and prevent them from attending the meeting. But we intend to stay there and there will be subsequent meetings."

Herman said that Steel has no legal right to represent the Bethlehem workers.

"They are engaged in mining iron ore, commonly known as open-pit mining, and that certainly leaves no doubt in the fact that they properly come under the jurisdiction of Mine-Mill."

Police reinforcements were called for on Sunday but there was no trouble. The situation, however, remains tense. Both unions seem determined to continue their Canada-wide fight in Marmora.

25 Students Go To University

Approximately 76 per cent of the 1952 graduating class at P.C.V.S., or 44 students out of 58, have continued their education this year in universities, normal schools, nursing courses and other institutions, Howard Moebus, vocational guidance director, said today. This is an increase of eight per cent over 1951.

In his annual survey, Mr. Moebus reported that 15 students, Eleanor McBrien, Patricia Hamilton, Gail Craig, Betty Crowe, Shiela Young, Gwen Martin, Marlene Wright, Nancy Rowell, Pauline Zacks, Hugh O'Connell, Richard Pulley, Rod Delaney, Sandy Dewar, Herbert Cunningham, and James Wilkinson are attending the University of Toronto.

The next most popular university choice was Queen's University where seven students, Margaret Martyn, Lois Holman, Roger Ingall, Douglas Hancock, Donald Ash, Ron Buck and Bill Frisken, are attending.

Other university students are: Bryon Young, Jim Telford and Warren Brown, all at University of Western Ontario, Gwen Mitchell and Dave Ingram at McMaster, and Barbara Clark at Macdonald Institute.

He is recovering from concussion at Civic Hospital.

Kenneth and a neighbor, Donald Moncrief, 15, were driving a herd of cattle belonging to Kenneth's father, S. Boyce, along the seventh concession road of Smith township.

Both boys were on horseback and the one Kenneth was riding apparently stumbled, throwing him off into the ditch. He struck his head in falling.

Strasser Barred From Running

HANNOVER, Germany (AP) — Otto Strasser, a Nazi rebel against Hitler, now living at Bridgetown, N.S., was barred today from running for the West German parliamentary seat left vacant by the death of Socialist leader Kurt Schumacher.

The Free Social Union, a rightist party without a single parliamentary deputy, announced yesterday it would nominate Strasser, for the special election Nov. 9.

The Lower Saxony ministry of interior, however, told the press today that Strasser's name cannot be put on the ballot because he lacks the necessary three-months' legal residence in the state.

Strasser, who fled from Germany in 1933, has tried repeatedly in recent years to return, but failed because he was on an Allied blacklist.

125 Pupils Enrol At Bible College As Term Begins

About 125 students will enroll this week in the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College, an increase of about 15 over last year's student body, the Rev. William H. Found, president of the college, said today.

Some 80 have already enrolled and most of the others have arrived in the city and will go through the registration process this week.

Between 50 and 55 freshmen have arrived and they are writing entrance examinations today. Monday night a campfire was held behind the college.

Classes will begin Wednesday, but the official start of the new term will be marked with special services, Oct. 13. In the afternoon there will be a youth rally in the Pentecostal Church on Dublin St., at which the president of the board of directors, the Rev. J. H. Blair, will be guest speaker.

In the evening the official opening ceremonies will be held, with the Rev. W. H. Fitch, Windsor, treasurer of the board of directors, as guest speaker. The entire student body will sing as a choir for the service.

Among those in the freshmen class are one student from Bermuda and three from Winnipeg, as well as prospective ministers and deaconesses from all across Ontario, the Maritimes and Newfoundland.

A new instructor has been added to the staff. He is the Rev. C. H. Bronsdon, B.A. His wife will become registrar and secretary of the college. Mr. Brondson will be head of the English department, and will also lecture in public speaking and homiletics (the art of preaching), and will instruct in the life of Christ and the life of St. Paul.

Mr. Bronsdon is a graduate of Western Bible College in Winnipeg and received his B.A. degree from Wheaton College, in Wheaton, Ill., this year. Mrs. Bronsdon attended Bethel Bible Institute in Saskatoon, Sask. They were married last year.

The two-hour show contains 25 spectacular acts by Canadian-born drivers.

Livestock Ban Kept For Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States Agriculture Department spokesmen said today it may be some time before the ban on imports of livestock, meat and game animals from Canada is lifted.

The border was closed to all such imports last Feb. 26 because of an outbreak of the dread hoof-and-mouth disease in Canada. The disease affects deer and other such game as well as cattle.

Canadian officials reported the country was free of all evidence of the disease two months ago.

But an official of the U.S. Agriculture Department's bureau of animal industry said that agency still is investigating. In the past it usually has delayed about a year after an outbreak of hoof-and-mouth disease in any area before lifting restrictions.

McGrath was endeavoring to release a rock which jammed in the machine when he became trapped. He suffered a fractured thigh, broken ribs, a crushed chest and multiple lacerations.

U.S. Engineers Recommend No Money Spent

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States Army engineers have recommended against spending federal money on three beach-protection projects along the Lake Erie shore of Ohio.

The engineers informed Representative George Bender (Rep.Ohio) today that unfavorable reports have been made on proposed projects covering a 15-mile stretch between Sheffield Lake Village and Rocky River; an eight-mile area between Cleveland and the Chagrin River; and the south shore of Sandusky Bay.

MUST BE PUBLIC LAND

Federal money may be used for fighting beach erosion only on publicly-owned land—and this must be approved by Congress. Some members of Congress have voiced opinions that legislation is needed to permit the engineers to help fight the ravages of high water on private land.

The report on the Sandusky Bay project said there is no publicly-owned shore line in the area. The engineers advised local authorities that the best way to protect that shore line is by using stone retaining walls.

Army Considers Plan To Enlist Apprentices

OTTAWA (CP)—The army is considering a plan to enlist apprentices below the present enlistment age of 18 years, it was learned last night.

An army headquarters source said nothing definite has yet been decided on the plan, however.

He said the army was not experiencing any slack in enlistments. A number of returning veterans from Korea were leaving, but many of these were expected to re-enlist after a holiday.

Shots Fired At Plane

REHAU, Germany (AP)—A U.S. liaison plane flying near the Czech-German border was fired on Sunday with small arms from Czech territory, West German border police reported yesterday. The police did not know whether the single-engined plane was hit. U. S. air force headquarters at Wiesbaden said it had no confirmation of the incident.

Urge Clemency

TOKYO (AP) — Delegates from 18 countries attending a Buddhist conference today urged pardon or clemency for all war criminals convicted by the Allies after the Second World War.

Eisenhower Aiming Blow At Communist Infiltration

NEW YORK (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower swings the political spotlight on the Communist issue today on the basis of Gen. Walter Bedell Smith's assumption that Communists have penetrated every United States security agency.

Before a plane take-off for Columbia, S.C., the Republican presidential nominee worked on a speech aimed at throwing the Democrats on the defensive on the Communist question.

For his text, the General took Smith's testimony in Washington yesterday that Smith assumes Communists have infiltrated even the Central Intelligence Agency, which he heads.

Testifying on a deposition in the libel suit of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, against Senator William Benton, Connecticut Democrat. Smith said he believes the Communists are "so adroit and adept they have infiltrated every security agency of the government."

MAY BE ON STAFF

He said he had not found any in the C. I. A. but believes there are some operating, possibly even on his own staff.

Arthur Summerfield, Republican national chairman, said Smith's statement demonstrated that the "national safety has been endangered' by what he called "looseness" in Washington security measures.

Development of the Communist issue might push into the background in Eisenhower's Columbia speech the touchy civil-rights issue, on which Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina left the national party by saying he would not support Stevenson. Byrnes will introduce Eisenhower at today's speech.

Will Ask Curtailment Of U.S. Canned Fruit

OTTAWA (CP)—A delegation of Canadian canners and fruit growers is to appeal to the federal government today for curtailment of imports of American canned fruit.

Two southwestern Ontario Members of Parliament, Raymond Anderson (L—Norfolk) and Murray Clark (L—Essex South), will head the delegation which will interview Finance Minister Abbott.

The delegation will submit that canning and fruit growing industries in Canada are being injured by the volume of canned fruit cocktail imported from the United States. The government will be asked for a tariff increase.

Revolt Crushed

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—The government announced that it had crushed an attempt at rebellion early yesterday in which five persons were killed and 10 wounded. A band of armed civilians attacked an army post at the agricultural colony of Turen in Portuguesa State and a guard was killed in turning back the attack, the government said. Another armed civilian group seized the prefecture in the nearby village of Bruzual. Soldiers recovered the prefecture, killing four of the rebels and wounding 10.

Cantor Collapses

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Eddie Cantor collapsed in his home Sunday night after completing his season's first television show. Dr. Julius Kahn announced yesterday that he ordered the 60-year-old star to hospital for a week's observation. Dr. Kahn said Cantor was suffering from exhaustion and overwork.

7 Days In Jail Drunk Driving

Gordon Bruce, 33, 133 Rubidge Street, was sentenced to seven days in jail Monday, after he pleaded guilty to a drunk driving charge.

Constable William G. Scott testified he picked up Bruce on September 20 on Weller Street, after being informed by radio that the Provincial Police were holding a man there.

He said he found Bruce and another man in the car in a drunken condition. Constable Scott said the car was owned by the other man and that Bruce had been driving when a Provincial Police cruiser was forced into the ditch. However, there was no accident, Scott said, as the driver of the cruiser managed to pull it back on the road.

Cruiser Belfast Returns To Britain

TOKYO (Reuters)—The cruiser Belfast is returning to Britain after spending 400 days in Korean waters, Far East naval headquarters announced today.

The 11,550-ton Belfast, the largest cruiser in the Royal Navy, was hit by Communist shore artillery off Chinnampo, near Pyongyang, early last August. A shell exploded on a mess deck, injuring four Chinese ratings, one fatally. Damage to the ship was superficial.

Prairies In Lead In Farm Accidents

REGINA (CP)—Sixty per cent of Canada's farm accidents occur in the prairie provinces, although they have only one-third of Canada's farm population.

The reason, according to a survey here, is that prairie farming is more highly mechanized than other parts of the country. Tractors are one of the major accident causes, while combines and threshing machines add to the count.

While an official survey of farm accidents for this year has not yet been produced, an unusually high number of tractor fatalities have been reported.

Bad Cheques Bring Jail Sentences

Two men who pleaded guilty to charges of false pretences involving bad cheques a week ago were given jail sentences by Magistrate W. R. Philp Monday.

John R. Mosier, 29, 165 Verdun Road, Oshawa, was sentenced to two months, one month on each of two charges of passing worthless cheques.

His record shows convictions for similar offences in Belleville and Oshawa and two other convictions, one for theft and another for an indecent act.

$20 ON OSHAWA BANK

He pleaded guilty to obtaining $10 in cash and $10 in merchandise from the Family Credit Clothing Co., by giving a $20.00 cheque on an Oshawa bank.

Mosier also admitted obtaining $6.05 in cash and $13.95 in merchandise from Eric Howard's men's wear store by giving a cheque and stating he had sufficient funds to cover it in a Peterborough bank.

A third charge alleging he obtained money by false pretences in Deseronto recently by the same method was read and Mosier pleaded guilty. However, it was then discovered that the wrong initials were used in the charge, and Mosier will appear on an amended charge later.

Arthur M. Doughty, 61, 150 Hart Avenue, was sentenced to three months in county jail, when he pleaded guilty to obtaining $53.62 from Albert Florence by false pretences.

He obtained the money by giving a cheque for this amount made out to a James Davis and purporting to be sikned by a William J. McCann.

Doughty admitted being convicted in Toronto on July 28 of two charges of forging and uttering and being sentenced to two months on each charge.

Says Ike Endangered U.S. By Bad Advice In 1945

ABOARD TRUMAN TRAIN (AP) President Truman today accused Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower of having endangered the United States as commanding general in Europe by grave "blunders" which left the country unaware of Russia's threat to world peace.

He said Eisenhower's 1945 advice that he saw no reason why Russia and the U.S. would not remain "the closest possible friends" carried "great weight" and "did a great deal of harm."

If Eisenhower had given "better advice in 1945," Truman continued, "we wouldn't have had so much trouble in waking up the country to the danger of Communist imperialism in 1946 and 1947 and 1948."

Truman chose whistle stop speech at Havre, Mont., to launch the latest attack on the Republican presidential nominee in reply to Eisenhower's own charges of blunders by the Truman administration in the field of foreign policy.

The President voiced praise of the Democratic presidential candidate, Adlai Stevenson, for having known "that Communism was dangerous and that we had to take measures to stop it."

Truman said Eisenhower didn't have such "wisdom and foresight."

Expect 120 Visa Arrests

DETROIT (CP)—United States immigration officials said yesterday the number of Canadian citizens arrested on visa fraud charges probably will reach 120.

Eighty-seven have so far been arrested as the result of an Immigration Department investigation which began during the summer. Of these, 62 were indicted by a Detroit grand jury.

The officials said most of the 62 are accused of submitting false bank statements in connection with their visa applications.

Most of those slated for arrest—they also had submitted false bank statements—now are outside of Michigan although they entered the U.S. at Detroit.

Germ War Charges Some 3500 Years Old

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. A. Clifford Morson, surgeon-teacher from London, said yesterday the Communists have nothing new in their charges of germ warfare in Korea—they were used 3,500 years ago in Greece.

He said in a lecture at the University of Toronto that during the Peloponnesian war in Greece, 431-404 B.C., the Athenians suffered a great plague and there were "wild accusations of poisoning by enemies." At that time the enemies were the Spartans.

South Korean Premier Resigns Position

Audubon Series Of Nature Films Begins In Oct.

First speaker in this season's Audubon Screen Tour series will be Robert C. Hermes, who will show a color film titled "Bonaventure Diary," on October 6.

The film will show the birds of Bonaventure Island in the gulf of the St. Lawrence, and Mr. Hermes will provide commentary for it. Bonaventure is one of the greatest "bird cities" on the North American continent.

Sponsors of the screen tour are the members of the Peterborough Nature Club, whose president, Lewis H. Bird, announced the program for the season today. Mr. Bird said there would be five speakers, and that the series would etxend from October 6 to April 24.

MATINEE SHOWS

Matinees of the screen tours will be held at the P.C.V.S. auditorium, and in most cases the afternoon program will differ from the evening one. Evening programs will be at the Queen Mary Auditorium, which is sold out for all five lectures.

The five speakers, their dates and topics for the season, are: October 6, Robert C. Hermes, Bonaventure Diary; November 29, Allan Cruikshank, "Below the Big Bend"; January 22, F. William Hall, "South to Siesta Land"; March 23, Walter H. Shackleton, "Oddities In Nature"; April 24, Tom and Arlene Hadley, "Happy Valley."

Nature lovers of 200 cities of the United States and Canada will see the Audubon screen tours this season. The color films shown of wildlife in its native haunts are the result of thousands of miles of travel over rugged terrain.

First of the series, "Bonaventure Diary," is a movie showing tremendous flocks of crying, wheeling seabirds—gannets, kittiwake gulls, murres, puffins — and the splendid 300-foot red sandstone cliffs of the island.

Arrested In Car Man Faces 6 Charges

Arrested Sunday morning in a car parked near the entrance to Jackson Park, Sylvester DeLaire, 29, 70 Cameron St., faced six charges when he appeared in police court Monday.

He is charged with having care or control of a car while intoxicated, two charges of having liquor in a place other than a residence, non support of his wife and children, and driving without a chauffeur's or operator's licence last April 26.

He was remanded without bail until Friday when the non support charge will be heard in Family Court. Bail on the charge of being drunk in charge of the car was set at $400 and he was remanded on this and the other four charges until October 6.

British Dentists Noticing Big Drop In Income Now

CARDIFF, Wales (CP)—Before new charges were imposed under Britain's health service last June, some dentists were making as much as $12,000 a year.

At the annual convention here of the British Dental Association, a statistical report disclosed that under prevailing arrangements the average gross amounts paid to dentists were only about half what they were in 1949.

BOOM TO SLUMP

"Some are earning no more than in 1939," the report said. "In many industrial parts of the country dentistry has definitely passed from a boom to a slump period."

Association members charged that earnings had been greatly reduced following the 28-per-cent reduction in dentists' fees, saddling patients with half the cost of dentures and the recent imposition of a basic £1 charge for dental treatment for adults.

Since these changes were introduced there had been an important drop in attendances said A. P. Husband, chairman of the association's executive council.

UNFAIR BURDEN

It was believed in the profession, he said, that the £1 charge was a retrograde step. He believed it placed an unfair burden on the regular patient wishing to keep his teeth in good order.

"In the long run it will cost the country more in ill-health," he said.

A Glasgow dentist who earned £300 a month when the plan began reported that his earnings dropped to £40 in the first month of the new scale.

Brazilians Reluctant To Invest But Expansion In 'Boom' Period

Brazil is at present going through a "boom" period, and, despite the continually rising cost of living (not altogether offset by rising wages), there are everywhere signs of growing prosperity, J. Halero Ferguson writes from Rio de Janeiro to The Montreal Star. In the hard-headed, impatient, industrious State of Sao Paulo the feeling of pulsating prosperity permeates everything, taking one back to the days of laissez faire capitalism at its most effective and unchallenged period.

MUCH TO DO

Inflation, however, is not the only fly in the Brazilian ointment. Brazil has huge untapped mineral and agricultural resources begging for development, and vast areas of land asking for exploration. But although there is enough money today in private hands to finance such development, it is not, on the whole, taking place.

The growth of Sao Paulo and other areas notwithstanding, the analogy with the days of Victorian prosperity is not complete. The Victorian capitalist had almost an adventurous preference for putting his money into enterprises in distant and undeveloped places; the present-day Brazilian, although often personally extravagant, is economically far more conservative.

People who try to persuade Brazilian business men to put their money into long-term projects which will eventually benefit both themselves and the country are asked: "Why should we, when we can make much more money by buying real estate and waiting until property values have quadrupled?"

LEFT TO GOVERNMENT

The development of the country, therefore, becomes the responsibility of government. Since the Brazilian federal government has not itself sufficient capital, personnel, equipment or technique to undertake such large projects, it must look for co-operation from elsewhere — elsewhere being in this case, the United States.

The United States at present takes the great bulk of Brazil's principal crop—coffee— provides Brazil with most of her imports (Brazil's trade with the United States is second only to Canada's) and is in any case the only country with sufficient money to undertake any really large-scale undertakings in a nation occupying half a continent.

Since the beginning of World War II., Brazil has received millions of dollars in loans, investment, advances, and so on, from both public and private sources in the United States, and there have been set up mixed commissions on health, finance, and other specific matters. But in general each particular problem or group of problems, to facilitate the exploitation of some raw material needed by the United States armed forces, or to suit the legitimate but necessarily narrow interest of a private company whose primary object is to make a profit, not to develop Brazil, whatever its high-minded advertisement may say.

PLAN NEEDED

There has been, in fact, no co-ordianted plan for development, (Point Four and its U.N. equivalents are regarded rather cynically by Latin Americans, who believe that for political reasons—their remoteness from Russia—they always come last on the list.)

Now at last, however, a United States-Brazilian Mixed Economic Commission is in existence, and the recent visit of the United States secretary of state, Dean Acheson, to Rio de Janeiro underlined American interest in the country, which Brazilians had be gun to feel had rapidly waned after the death of President Roosevelt.

The mixed commission's task, however, is hardly such a simple one as merely finding the right amount of money to put in the right place. The North Americans are understandably reluctant to hand over any money until they know with some degree of exactitude how it is going to be used. The Brazilians, for their part, are equally reluctant to draft far-reaching plans (involving, they point out, a great deal of time, manpower and expense until they are reasonably certain that the money with which to carry them out will be forthcoming.

It must also be admitted that there is a further drawback to "development by officialdom," one which it never referred to in official reports and which it is the height of bad form to mention in public. However, one San Paulo newspaper risked the accusation of bad form and brought up the taboo subject in an editorial asserting that "Brazil is the most corrupt country in the world except Farouk's Egypt." The comparison, designed to shock, is exaggerated, but as in most expanding economies, the spoils system in Brazil is highly developed and almost universal, the argument being, "There's such a lot of money floating around why shouldn't I have some of it?"

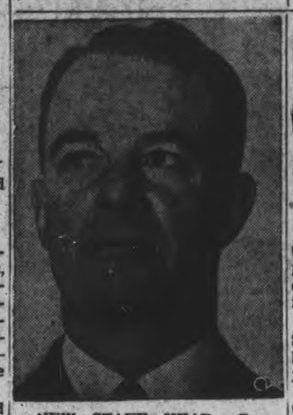
Canada Strips Home Army Of Jeeps, Trucks For NATO

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is stripping her home army forces of hundreds of Second World War vintage jeeps and some trucks temporarily in a new move to speed the training of the North Atlantic Treaty armies.

The jeeps—600 to 800 of them—and some trucks will be sent to Europe where they are needed now They will be replaced later by new equipment.

A defence spokesman said a new and more powerful type of jeep will be delivered beginning some time next year.



The spokesman said the Canadian-United States decision to send the Canadian equipment as soon as possible was taken in the face of a shortage of jeeps and trucks in European N.A.T.O. countries.

Canada already has sent artillery equipment sufficient to equip four divisions—to Holland, Belgium, Italy and France. She also has sent guns to Luxembourg and signals and other equipment to Norway and Sweden.

RESERVE UNITS STRIPPED

All reserve forces units will be stripped of jeeps entirely on a temporary basis. Each reserve unit now has its own complement of jeeps but when new deliveries are made a command pool system will be started.

Under this system there will be a pool of jeeps and other wheeled equipment. Each reserve unit will be able to draw on the central pool for the equipment required for any given manoeuvre, then turn it back in when the manoeuvre is complet

Record Polio Outbreak Fought In West

EDMONTON (CP) — Western Canada was struck by a record polio outbreak this year but the east appears to have enjoyed an incidence lower than last year.

British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan all had all-time highs in deaths and cases this year.

Incomplete figures from Eastern Canada indicate only mild outbreaks.

The west to date has had 135 deaths and 2,248 cases of the disease which normally reaches its peak in the late summer.

During the last week the four western provinces have reported 273 cases and 18 deaths. Medical health officers said the epidemic appears to be slackening off but there is nothing conclusive.

Totals to date this year for the four western provinces, with the record in brackets:

British Columbia, 363 cases and 23 deaths (270 and 12 for the corresponding period in 1947); Alberta, 543 cases and 44 deaths (380 and 29 in 1948); Saskatchewan, 860 cases and 51 deaths (512 and 22 in 1937); Manitoba, 254 confirmed cases, 228 suspected cases and 17 deaths (1,011 and 20 in 1941).

In Ontario the polio incidence reached its peak in August and this year's reasonably-mild outbreak is on the decline. To Sept. 26 there were 450 cases and 17 deaths compared with 1,422 cases and 60 deaths in the corresponding period last year. In the whole of 1951 Ontario had 1,700 cases and 78 deaths.

Duke Of Windsor Undergoes Checkup

LONDON (AP) — The Duke of Windsor, who twice within two months has had periods of feeling under par physically, had an x-ray checkup at Middlesev hospital Monday.

The Duke, who came to London alone from Paris, is staying for a few days with Queen Mother Mary at Marlborough House. One of the objects of the journey was to have a physical examination, a member of his personal staff said.

"There is nothing wrong with the Duke. The examination was a check up on his condition," the spokesman explained.

West Needs Patience Claxton Declares

MONTREAL (CP) — Defence Minister Claxton said Monday the western democracies need patience as well as power to meet and stop the threat of Communist aggression.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the Life Insurance Advertisers Association, the minister said he believed Korea is a "deliberate trial of our patience." The west must be prepared there, as elsewhere, to withstand that trial.

"We must have trust and confidence and faith in each other," he said. "The Communist imperialists have tried to break up our alliances by arousing suspicions of one country against another."

Convicted As Drunk Says He Was Drugged

TORONTO (CP)—Alex McPhail, 29, was convicted Friday of being drun. Monday he told police from a hospital bed that he had been drugged by a woman and two men who robbed him and stole his landlord's car.

McPhail was admitted to hospital Saturday with a fractured skull.

Police found McPhail supported by two men on a downtown street when they arrested him.

Modernistic Cathedral Design At Coventry To Be Modified

LONDON (CP)—The original, modernistic design for Coventry's new £800,000 cathedral, which won a prize of £2,000 for the noted dinburgh architect Basil Spence, is to be altered to bring the structure into closer harmony with surrounding ancient buildings.

It was the second change in plans announced by Spence since his widely-criticized design was accepted more than a year ago. His plan was to preserve what was left of the old cathedral, destroyed by war-time bombing, and combine it with a creation expressing the idea of a new age.

The original design called for a rectangular structure 240 feet long, 88 feet wide and 90 feet high, with a stained glass window rising 70 feet at one end. Separating the old from the new were plans for a great porch and a huge glazed screen which could be lowered into the ground, leaving the cathedral open. The walls were to be of zig-zag pattern with all windows shining towards the altar.

There was an indignant public outcry when the drawings and models were put on display.

CALLED A FREAK

Critics assailed the design as "an aesthetic outrage," "a super cinema," a "press-button cathedral," and "an architectural freak."

Last January the first modification of plans was announced. The Cathedral Reconstruction Committee approved the architect's design to eliminate the sliding glass screen, dividing the porch from the nave. It was also proposed at that time that the glass walls would be rigid and have doors, all to be decorated with transparent figures of saints.

The latest amendments, Spence said, involved no alterations in principle. The zig-zag appearance of the walls will be modified and certain other controversial aspects of the original design removed.

The revised plans must be approved by the Cathedral Council and the Joint Council, composed of Anglicans and free churchmen, before construction operations begin. It has been estimated it will take up to 10 years to complete the job.
